Food Supplies Are Effected

Freight Tension is Effecting the Market—Shortage in Grocery Sundries

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs, appeared in Canadian Grocer:

Molasses is very "firm" this week, but so far remains at fairly low prices. This is causing considerable speculation in the trade because the whole tendency in the market at present is bullish. Importers and wholesalers alike profess to see no material alleviation of present prices ahead unless the shortage of freight is corrected, in which event the present high prices of sugar, if maintained, would tend to attract molasses cane and operate to maintain a high level of prices. Here again, as in many other lines of groceries, the freight situation is an important factor. These columns have shown again and again how this freight tension is affecting the flour market, which state of affairs, by the by, continues this week and does not show any easement. The freight situation is also affecting molasses, spices, currants, teas and indeed anything and everything which is liable to be imported and exported.

Possibly more than anything else, the uneasiness in freight is the primary reason for such a very firm market in teas as exists at present. Fundamental conditions, so it is claimed, would point to a tea market which would not be nearly so strong were it not for the awkwardness in the situation regarding freights.

Relief in Sight.

This week currants, which have been one of the high spots in the grocery market for many months, have advanced another cent, and are very scarce at that. It is said that there will be a boat into New York at the end of the month which may affect a slight relief in the situation. For the present, however, buying demand is very keen and stocks are low both in Canada and in the States. Several English lines are reported higher this week. For instance, the recent rise in sal soda, referred to last week in these columns, has been productive of advances in washing powders, and kindred lines. Also some English lines are higher, notably pickles and jams of English manufacture, which have advanced about 5 per cent.

A situation which is beginning to trouble the manufacturers of groceries and will in turn reflect on the retailer is that the manufacturers of Canadian grocery sundries are exceedingly pinched in some materials, the price of which are needed for packing their goods. Such things as bottles, etc., tinplate, boxing materials and gelatine. All these things are higher and there has been a 5 per cent. advance on many lines of sundries as a way of meeting the advance in packing material. For instance, in the case of some biscuit manufacturers, though not all, the advanced price of tinplate has been productive of an advance in the manufactured product of about 1c. per pound. This is to take care of the increased cost of boxing. It is well that the public should understand the fundamental reasons for the advances which are likely to take place; obviously if the manufacturer puts up his prices the retailer has to cover himself and the public must help to stand the impact.

MAMMA! DON'T YOU SEE YOUR CHILD IS SICK, CONSTIPATED

Look at Tongue! Move Poisons From Liver and Bowels at Once

Mother! Your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember, a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given to-day saves a sick child to-morrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look and see that it is made by the California Fig Syrup Co.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—What was said by experts to be the finest string of pearls in the world, with the possible exception of a few held by native princes of India, was passed at the Customs House to-day. The 59 gems in the necklace were valued at $1,000,000 and it was believed might sell for more than that. The necklace was imported from Paris by a firm of Fifth Avenue jewellers.

ANDREW CLYDE as "Jock Lowrie" in Harry Lauder's New Comedy, "The Night Before," at Grand Opera House, Saturday, Feb. 19th, Matinee and Night.

The part of "Jock Lowrie," the "sodger hame on a furlough," in Harry Lauder's new comedy, "The Night Before," is ably taken by a young man whose remarkable ability may truthfully be called the product of heredity. His name is Andrew Clyde, and all Scots people, at the mention of that name, are instantly reminded of his renowned father, John Clyde, who was the best "Rob Roy" ever seen in the Old Country. In the Lauder show, young Andrew evinces much of the talent of his distinguished father, and, at the same time, reminds the theatre-goer more strongly of Harry Lauder himself, in his comedy touches, than anyone else in the company. He is one of the hits among a singularly clever cast.

tion of the typewriter and the larger knowledge of shorthand have brought a large army of women into the ranks as secretaries and clerks.

Idea Revolutionized.

Still, the most universal ideal of the British people remained that the chief function of woman was to be a wife and mother and the head of a household. I have seen and sympathized myself with the look of disgust and revulsion with which Englishmen turned away in Germany or in France from the sight of women working in the fields; and except in hop-picking, it may be said that agricultural employment was largely closed to women in England, though not quite so much in Ireland. Nor was it usual to see in England what you constantly see in France—the wife of the owner of a dry goods or other store sitting behind the desk keeping the accounts and generally acting as the head of the business.

Then came the war, and all these old ideas were revolutionized. A great new world for women has opened. When you enter a hotel you find a woman in a neat uniform with buttons, standing at the door as porter. When you go up in the elevator a woman usually is in charge. Now and then you see down in the House of Commons a girl of fifteen or sixteen with either a letter of a portmanteau, or sometimes even a telegram; she has taken the place of the boy messenger. In many restaurants you see women in the place of men as waiters. Women have also become waiters in clubs. You will now find her in the National Liberty Club, for instance, in the grill. The other day I dined in the Reform Club, one of the most select clubs of London, and the dinner was largely served by women. I am sure for the first time in all its history. A couple of girls stand in front of the ticket gates of our gateways; a pretty and pleasant young woman punches the tickets on our street cars. Women have always found large employment in England in the postal, telegraph and telephone services, but there are thousands now engaged in that work where there were only hundreds before the war. Very often the woman thus employed have their fiances at the front, and are longing for the time when they will be able to marry and think over the war as a hideous dream of the past.

Change is Agreeable.

I have sought to find how far this change is agreeable to the women themselves. In every case I think I can say there was in their faces a new light of hopefulness, energy and self-reliance, and when I questioned them as to their feelings they one and all expressed delight that they had at last found an opportunity of earning their own living and of attaining a position of economic independence of father, mother and of a possible husband.

Nobody who has taken an interest in the future of women and in the improvement of their position can see this extraordinary spectacle without pride and hope.

In England more than any other country the general sentiment has remained in favor of the cloistering of women and her exclusion from making her own living. Previously men of the middle classes generally have continued to look with horror on the idea of allowing their daughters to go out and face the labors and the perils of working life. In the upper classes, of course, this feeling has been stronger than in others. The results I have always regarded as disastrous to this nation. In aristocratic families it is a common sight, when the family is large and the estate encumbered, to see three or four educated, refined and energetic women fading into old maidenhood and indeed generally poverty, dependent usually for a pittance on the eldest brother living in the opulence of primogeniture, or on their hardworked younger brothers. In the middle classes there is that keen eagerness to get the settled livelihood of married life, with consequences on woman's character which are the commonplaces of keen observers like Anthony Trollope, our English novelist. It is still held to be no offense against ethics and nature for young women to marry old men who are in better circumstances than themselves. Personally, I hope to see the time when such a marriage will be regarded as at least sufficient cause for man's social ostracism as is cheating at cards.

Social Prejudices.

It is probably the sense of all this widespread though not realized servitude which accounts for the atmosphere of relief which can be plainly seen. These old social prejudices are one of the things burned up in the universal conflagration of this war. Ladies of title may be seen doing the most repulsive part of nursing in our hospitals at the front and at home.

The other evening I dined with the editor of a well-known daily journal and one of our most prominent and prosperous journalists. Married to a French wife, he has two charming daughters who bear in their features and speech traces of their Franco-Scotch parentage. One of them, a very bright, charming and pretty young girl, was absent from the dinner; she had gone down to lodgings in Erith, close by London, and one of the great armament centres; was getting up at five in the morning and was spending eight or nine hours every day in munitions work. Instead of regarding this as a hardship, she evidently looked upon it as a glorious opportunity, almost as a joyous escapade.

Among the married working women the war has also produced great economic changes. At the beginning of the war there swept over the country an entirely new feeling with regard to the soldier—and still more the soldier's dependents. In the old days it was not at all uncommon to find that even the soldier or sailor who had won the Victoria Cross was faced with the dread necessity of spending his last days of feeble old age in the workhouse. During the Civil War in America the whole county of Lancashire and all its thousands of cotton operatives were left to face semi-starvation for years, with no assistance from the State and with generous, but still insufficient aid from public charity, and journals had to raise funds to keep alive the survivors of the "Charge of the Light Brigade," one of the most extraordinary episodes of the Crimean War. Men who have fought through the Boer War have come up to me in the streets within a few months after the struggle, and begged for food. At the very beginning of this war I spoke to a leading Conservative member for Liverpool, suggesting that the support of the dependents of the soldiers and sailors should be treated in a different spirit, and he at once replied that all these should be regarded as part of the cost of the war.

Committee Appointed.

This spirit was so universal that the Ministry were compelled to appoint a committee to reconsider the whole scheme of pensions which had been drawn up by the naval and military authorities on old and rather stingy lines, and it is a sign of the times that this new committee was appointed on the suggestion of Mr. Bonar Law, then the leader of the Conservative party. I was a member of that committee, and unanimously we increased the pensions to figures which would have been staggering to a previous generation. The magnitude of these figures will be gathered from the single fact that we are paying in pensions and allowances to-day seven million and a half dollars; and nobody grumbles. This again has reacted on the position of women. Take the case of the wife of an agricultural labourer who is now fighting at the front. His wages in some of the poorer counties of England like Oxford were not above four dollars a week, and on that sum he had to support a wife and sometimes several children. Under the new pensions scheme his wife receives an allowance of three dollars a week, and she gets in addition 5s. for first child, 3s. for second and 2s. each additional child. It will thus be seen that the wife and the children receive more than the husband did when he was working at home; with the addition that his support is provided by the State.

It is plainly impossible that the old social conditions and the old pay can be accepted by such families, and this new feature in English life may be one of the things which will force that reconstruction of our land system to which I have referred.

Finally, the position of women must be enormously influenced by the fact that the already great disproportion between their numbers and those of the men will be largely increased by the loss of men's lives in the war. It was estimated that before the war the excess of women over men in England was over a million. That excess of course will be largely increased after the war; when you take into account the number of disabled men as well as of those killed, it may be doubled.

Has a Most Delicious Flavor.

In the process of making Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal the dark parts of the grains are retained—not removed as in the highly-refined cereals. Roman Meal is the darkest and most flavory breakfast food known. You can easily prove this for yourself. Make porridge according to directions—and do not stir while cooking. It's a delicious food. Prevents indigestion. Relieves constipation or money back. 10c and 25c at grocers'.

Mother's Club Elect Officers

Annual Meeting of Mother's Club of King George School

The report for the year was read by the secretary, Mrs. J. C. Anderson, as follows:

A meeting of the ladies of East City was held on Friday, March 12th, 1915, the object of which was to form a mothers' club in connection with the King George school. A large number of ladies were present, Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Christie were also present and gave much valuable assistance in organising the club, the aim and object of which were presented by Mrs. Christie, and I am sure we all feel sincerely thankful to both ladies for their assistance for the excellent papers read and for their efforts in making the club a success. Mrs. Mowatt gave a very interesting address which was greatly appreciated by all, as was also an address from Mr. Park, who spoke on behalf of the work of the school. Our first meeting was held March 30th, at which twenty-one ladies were present. At this meeting Mrs. Conway read an interesting paper on "The Welfare of the Child." We have held five business meetings and would have preferred to have held more, but owing to the work in connection with the Red Cross Society, which was so necessary, we have devoted all our attention to that work. We were entertained by the Mothers' Club of Queen Mary school on April 30th. Our report was read to the Mothers' Club of the Y.M.C.A. In June we held our regular meeting and the club was closed for the summer months. A social afternoon was held and the mothers of Queen Mary's school entertained. Light refreshments were served by the teachers of our school, for which we were much indebted. We decided at our September meeting not to disband, but would resume work when occasion demanded. It was also decided to affiliate with the National Council of Women. Two work meetings were held in October to finish two quilts which were on hand. All of which is respectfully submitted. Sec., of 1915.

Officers For 1916.

Then followed the election of new officers:

President—Mrs. G. L. Hay.
Vice-President—Mrs. A. A. Fowler.
Secretary—Mrs. S. Taylor.
Treasurer—Mrs. T. McCartney.
Cor. Secretary—Mrs. W. J. Mein.

The following committees were also elected.

Visiting committee—Mrs. T. Taylor, convener, Mrs. A. Hagerman, Mrs. W. S. Howson.

Programme committee — Mrs. F. Whitehouse, convenor.

It was decided to hold our business meeting the fourth Tuesday of every month and every Monday afternoon for work.

This brought the meeting to a close.

We hope to see a number of the ladies out on Monday afternoon for quilting.

Can Life be Lengthened?

THIS is a problem that for centuries have engaged the attention of the world's greatest thinkers. Recent research and experience have conclusively proved that Total Abstainers Live Longer than non-abstainers. The reason for this, and the consequent reduction in rates of insurance extended to applicants of this class by that old-established Company, THE MANUFACTURERS LIFE, is well explained in an attractive little booklet issued and entitled "Total Abstainers vs. Moderate Drinkers." This may be had on application. A Splendid Market To-Day

If there was one thing more than another that will pass the market of to-day down to history, it was the uniformity of prices in butter and eggs. Butter everywhere was quoted at 35 cents a pound, while eggs sold at 30 cents a dozen. This is as it should be—that is the uniformity of price, but while the spirit of competition reigns in the annals of business, we may look for the high and low.

There does not seem to be any special reason for the great difference between the levels of last Saturday and to-day, unless it would be that it is the customary thing to do at this time of the year.

Fowl, particularly chickens, were quite plentiful, and were bringing 60 to 95 cents each. The latter weighed 5 1-4 lbs., the former 3 1-4 lbs. One weighing 6 lbs. brought $1.10.

Dried apples made their debut on the market this morning, selling at 10 cents a bag (not a potato bag). The same vendor had some nice looking head cheese, which she was selling at 15 cents a cake.

White beans brought 20 cents a quart.

Lard sold at 20 cents a pound

Hot Coffee and Cake.

The ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League had samples of home-made cooking for sale, and served hot coffee and cake, the proceeds to be devoted to the purchase of wool for socks for the soldiers.

Outside Section.

Auctioneers and their wares attracted considerable attention on the market this morning, and their offerings ranged all the way from trace chains and mouse traps to libraries and cutters.

Two loads of hay sold at $19.00 a ton.

Several loads of wood were offered at their usual price of $6.00 a cord for the best hardwood, 4 foot lengths

Pork brought 14 and 15 cents though a couple asked 15 and 16c.

One dealer had a few quarters of choice lamb, which he could guarantee, and sold them at 18 and 22 cents a pound.

Mutton brought 16 cents a pound

Potatoes were scarce. One farmer sold 4 bags at $1.00 each, or $2.00 by the single bag. Another dealer got $2.25 a bag, but they were a choice lot.

Apples were somewhat scarce. Bell Flowers brought 40 cents a peck, No. 2 Spies sold at $2.00 a bag, while "Seek No Furthers" (catch on to the name), brought the same price.

—O. U. Priceman.

Closing Day Of Special Services

To-morrow will be the closing day of the series of special services which have been in progress in Bethany Tabernacle since last Sunday.

It will be an "all-day" meeting, with services at 11 a.m. and at 3 and 7 p.m.

At the morning service the annual missionary offering will be taken, preceded by a missionary address by Miss Morgan, of Central China.

Rev. H. M. Shuman will speak both afternoon and evening. In his address last night Mr. Shuman gave a striking outline of some of the signs spoken of in the Bible, as accompanying the close of this age, including political, social and religious conditions.

The Scriptures teach that in the last days "nation should rise against nation," social conditons would be as in the days of Noah and Lot, and there would be a marked increase in formality, worldliness and heresay in the religious life. As the darkest hour of night is just before the dawn so these threatening conditions are precursors of the long expected dawn of the glorious day of Christ's coming.

Services to-night at eight o'clock.

Y. W. C. A. NOTES

The class in Home Nursing conducted by Dr. Cameron will be held on Wednesday evening instead of Monday.

Picked teams from the Monday and Thursday, Tuesday and Friday basket ball players are doing excellent work. They play once a week, and any young lady interested in basket ball will be welcome to see the game on Friday evening at 9 o'clock.

Miss Littlefield will begin a special class in land drill, and the Schafer Method of Resuscitation on Saturday morning, Feb. 19th, from 9:30 to 10:30. The course will include the theory of respiration and circulation, drill on land, methods of rescuing drowning persons, etc., etc.

Miss Littlefield hold Diplomas of Life-Saving, and Award of Merit, from the Royal Life Saving Society, of London, England.

A number of candidates for the police force were being examined by a doctor the other day, and a pretty stiff examination it was, too. At length it came to testing the men's sense of hearing, and said the examiner:

"Do you see this watch?"

Candidate—"Yes."

Examiner—"Do you hear it tick?"

Candidate—"Certainly; quite plainly."

Examiner—"Stand farther back."

Candidate retires three paces.

Examiner—"Do you hear it now?"

Candidate—"Yes."

Examiner—"Well, your must be smart, for the watch has not been going for a fortnight."

AN ENJOYABLE RECITAL BY THE PIANO PUPILS

Of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Assisted by Miss Keitha Kidd and Ladies' Quartette

O most enjoyable recital by the junior and primary pianoforte pupils of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, assisted by Miss Keitha Kidd, a vocal pupil of Mrs. Greenslade, and a ladies' quartette, composed of Misses K. Masterson, R. Quartermaine, B. Logan and Mrs. A. A. Perrin, was given in the J. M. Greene Studio last evening. A large number of the parents and friends of the pupils attended.

The vocalism of Miss Kidd was a great treat to all present. Her singing displayed a soprano voice of wonderful sweetness and clarity of tone. Miss Kidd, who is only sixteen years of age, has, in the opinion of many who heard her last evening, a great future before her. The ladies' quartette showed the results of careful training in the rendition of their numbers last night. The voices blended in perfect harmony, their singing being delightful to all who were fortunate enough to hear it.

The programme was as follows:

Piano solo—"Tulip" (Graham), Miss Katheleen Robertson.

Piano solo—"Jewel Dance" (H. Engle), Miss Nelda Braund.

Piano solo—"Amoretten" (Lichner), Miss Ella Gatfield.

Piano solo—"Wanderer's Return" Op. 18 (G. Lange), Miss Laura Sogen.

Piano solo—"Nocturne" No. 12, Op. 84 (Lichner), Master Fred Read.

Ladies' quartette—"Po Lil' Lamb" (Parks), Misses K. Masterson, R. Quartermaine, B. Logan and Mrs. Perrin.

Vocal solo—"Sunshine and Rain" (Blementhal), Miss Keitha Kidd.

A Plea For The Wounded Soldier

Speaking in the House on Wednesday, on Mr. Middlebro's motion to give preference to soldiers for Civil Service positions, Mr. Burnham said the following:

A soldier should be sent forth to war on the understanding that he will be allowed sufficient to properly provide for his family while he is away; and if he dies in the service of his country he should be assured—not by the promises of the people, which are often written in water, but by a guarantee at the time of his enlistment—that when he enlists his life is insured, and that his future, and the future of his family is also assured. There are some cases arising out of this discussion which are not provided for. For instance, if a man is not fit he cannot be taken into the Civil Service, and that man might have become unfit purely through the extraordinary character of his services to his country. I know a young man from Peterborough who holds the Cross of St. George from the Czar, the Legion of Honour from the French Republic, and the D.C.M. from England. He was shattered by shrapnel, by bullet and by high explosive shell; he was stabbed three times through the groin by a German bayonet; he was left out on the field to die. Even in that extremity, he gave up his stretcher to another man, in that way exemplifying the highest quality that the human race is capable of. He is now gradually degenerating; his mother was sent over to the Old Country to see him, but the young fellow's mind is gradually weakening. Am I, Sir, to understand that such a case is to be provided for in the way proposed in this resolution? This man is incapable of holding a position in the Civil Service, and yet nothing, apparently, can be done for him, unless through the spirit of benevolence of some charitable association, organization, or private individual.

Graded Union Of Sunday School Teachers

On Tuesday Evening, February 15th, Charlotte Street Church School Room

"Each stage in the religious development of the child is in turn a preparation for the stage that follows. It is essential, therefore, that the religious teaching of any given time be suited to the particular stage of development that has been reached by the pupil; and it is clear that if the religious instruction suited to some other stage be substituted, the religious growth cannot proceed normally nor reach that measure of completeness and well-rounded maturity which should be the goal of such instruction."

And because of the splendid results from their use, even under moderately favourable conditions, the Ontario Sunday School Association is urging schools to introduce the Inter-National System of Graded Lessons into the elementary grades this year

Our Union in its desire to aid the schools of the city to reach this standard, has been most fortunate in securing Mr. Keyes, of the Normal School teaching staff, to teach a Junior Graded lesson next Sunday; also to help superintendents of schools, and teachers of junior classes, to a better understanding of the Graded Lessons, and of the Junior Department.

Superintendents of schools, teachers of junior classes are most cordially invited to hear Mr. Keyes on this advanced work in Sunday Schools.

Mrs. Middleton will sing the promotion song, "Open the Gates," used at the Jubilee Convention Pageant.

The Cradle Roll Department will consider how to increase the number of Cradle Rolls, and membership.—Mrs. Katie Parsons, Secretary.

Cement Contractor's Wife Seeks Alimony Through The Courts

Linemen Have No Right To Butcher Trees On streets

"For years the people of Ontario have permitted themselves to be victimized by all sorts of specious claims regarding the rights of telephone and telegraph linemen building contractors and others to destroy or mutilate shade trees," says Secretary Robson Black of the Canadian Forestry Association.

As a matter of Ontario law, no other than a specially deputed municipal officer has the "right" to remove or trim a shade tree. Linemen, contractors, etc., have no authority whatever in such matters, and cannot legally remove any part of a tree without the permission of the owner or municipality.

Right to Remove.

The Ontario statutes give a municipal officer delegated by the city engineer power to remove a tree from public or private property on forty-eight hours' notice, but the owner may be recompensed for planting and protecting the tree. No live tree, unless within thirty feet of other trees, may be removed without the consent of the owner of the property in front of which the tree stands.

The municipalities shall not be liable for damages for the trimming of trees in parks or whose branches extend over the streets if reasonable care has been exercised in the operation.

Any person destroying or injuring (even tieing a horse to) a street tree is liable to a fine not to exceed $25 and costs or imprisonment for not more than thirty days, half of the fine to go to the informant.

Linemen No Power.

The "rights" of telegraph and telephone linemen to butcher trees is a fiction. They have no rights whatever over any tree or public or private property. This association submitted several questions to the Attorney-General who replied:

"I think it is quite clear that the owner would have the right to prevent a telephone company from stringing its wires in a tree planted by him in the street, because under Section 2 of the Ontario Tree Planting Act such a tree is deemed to be his property.

"It is also an offence under Section 510b of the Criminal Code to destroy or damage a tree in park, pleasure ground or garden or in any land adjacent to or belonging to a dwelling house, injuring it to an extent exceeding five dollars.

May Order Removal.

"It was expressly enacted by 4 Edw. VII., clause 10, section 74, that a telegraph or telephone company should not acquire any casement by prescription or otherwise as to wires attached to private property or passing through or carried over such property so that no matter how long telegraph or telephone wires have been attached to a tree, the municipality or owner, if he has property in the tree, could compel the removal of the wire."

TONIC TREATMENT FOR THE STOMACH

The Modern Method is Most Successful in Treating Indigestion

The old-fashioned methods of treating indigestion and stomach troubles are being discarded. The trouble with the old-fashioned methods was that when the treatment was stopped the trouble returned in an aggravated form. The modern method of curing indigestion and other stomach troubles is to tone up the stomach to do nature's work. Every step toward recovery is a step gained, not to be lost again. The recovery of the appetite, the disappearance of pain, the absence of gas,—are all steps on the road to health that those who have tried the tonic treatment remember distinctly. Dr. Williams Pink Pills are a blood-builder, tonic medicine, every constituent of which is helpful in building up the digestive organs, and is therefore the very best remedy for chronic cases of stomach trouble. Thousands of cases like the following prove how successful this treatment is:—Miss Amy Browning, Cornith, Ont., says:—"I have found such great benefit from Dr. Williams Pink Pills that I would be ungrateful if I did not publically say a good word in their favor. I was badly run down and my stomach was in a very bad condition. All food distressed me, and left me disinclined to eat. I suffered from nausea and dizziness and frequent sick headaches, and this was further aggravated by pains in the back and sides. I was in this condition for several years, and although I had got medicine from several doctors it did not help me. Then I heard of Dr. Williams Pink Pills and began taking them: I am glad to say that they soon helped me, and now I am as well as ever; can eat all kinds of food with relish, and have not an ache or pain."

You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Left Arm Became Powerless Saved From Paralytic Stroke

By The Timely Use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food — Has Built Up Nervous System Wonderfully.

Paralysis is not a pleasant thing to contemplate. Even nervous prostration and locomotor ataxia are among the most dreaded conditions. It is always better to avoid these results of neglected nervous troubles by keeping the nerves in health and vigor.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has done wonders for people suffering from the more severe forms of nervous diseases, but we prefer to recommend it as a means of preventing such conditions.

This letter from Mrs. Nichols well represents what we mean, for she was undoubtedly on the verge of more serious trouble when she heard of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and sought its aid.

It is best to be warned by nervous headaches, sleeplessness, nervousness and irritability and to apply the remedy in time.

Mrs. Merritt Nichols, R. R. No. 3, Dundalk, Ont., writes: "I take pleasure in writing to tell you the great benefit I have derived from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. I was so nervous I could not sleep and found it hard to get my work done at all, but having no help at the time, had to do the best I could. Finally my left arm became powerless and cold and this continued to get worse until my whole side was affected, head and all. I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and the first box helped me so much that I used several and believe that this treatment saved me from having a paralytic stroke. It has built me up wonderfully, and I can recommend it most heartily, believing that if more Nerve Food were used, there would be much less sickness."

There is no lack of evidence as to the great work of restoration being carried on by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The sales of this great nerve tonic are rapidly increasing as its virtues are being found out. But this will not help you unless you put it to the test in your own particular case. It is well worth trying, and will not disappoint you. Fifty cents a box, 6 for $2.50 all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

ADVERTISING HINTS

Advertising is news: make your advertising newsy and it will be read with interest by the general public.

It is better to have an ad. of a given size appear in every issue of a daily than to have twice as large an advertisement appear in every other issue of the same paper.

In an ad. four inches long (56 agate lines) the maximum number of words used should be 106. Of course if a cut is used the number of words should be reduced in proportion to the space occupied by the cut.

Many an advertiser has seen his advertising fall to iron flatness, because he stopped it at a critical period in its life.

Oftentimes one can reach more buyers by advertising in a half dozen publications of acknowledged circulation, than he can by spreading his advertising appropriation over a hundred publications which all together do not amount to the volume of half of the six great media.

Funeral Service At All Saints' Church

In Memory of the Late Mrs. T. E. Fitzgerald Last Night

The funeral of the late Mrs. T. E. Fitzgerald was held this morning from 460 Charlotte Street to the C. P. R. station, her remains being conveyed to Newmarket for interment. The funeral service was held at All Saints' Church last night at 7.30 o'clock. Rev. Canon Davidson officiated, with the surpliced choir assisting and a representative congregation present. In the course of an address, in which he paid honour to the memory of the deceased lady, Rev. Canon Davidson read the following communication from the Pastor of All Saints, Rev. R. B. Grobb:

To the Congregation of All Saints'.

My Dear People,—It is a matter of deep regret to me that I cannot be with you to-night, as you gather to do honor to the memory of one of our number, who has passed to her final rest. I send you this brief message to assure you that I am joining with you in the spirit of the solemn service.

Mrs. Fitzgerald was one of the oldest and most esteemed members of our congregation and a faithful attendant at our services until her age and failing health made it impossible for her to be present. We have missed her from her accustomed place now for several months.

She was one of the oldest members of our Woman's Auxiliary, in which she always took a very deep interest. Even when she became unable to attend the meetings she continued to labour at home in the missionary cause, which was very dear to her heart.

Nor can we forget her many generous benefactions to our Church building, including our Church bell the sweet tones of which as it calls us to God's house, will long keep green the memory of its generous giver.

For these, and for her many estimable qualities as a Christian woman, we rejoice to do her honour by joining in our beautiful service, a service which breathes a benediction upon ourselves, filled, as it is, with the glorious hope of eternal life.

The thought of death always turns us to Him who said "I am the Resurrection and the Life." May His word be to us the foundation of a splendid faith in the "inheritance incorruptible and undefiled and that fadeth not away.

Your Friend and Rector,
B. B. GROBB.

At the conclusion of the service the "Dead March in Saul" was played by the Organist, Miss Flowers, the congregation standing during its rendition.

PAY WOMEN LESS.

At the end of October there were 1,224 women employed in England on the Great Central Railway, 760 of whom were doing office work. A woman supervisor of the line has been appointed to whom complaints can be made. The women are, it is alleged, paid a slightly lower salary than the men they replace and are not given any war bonus, which makes the reduction greater.

THE VANISHED CIVILIZATION OF LOST CITIES OF CENTRAL AMERICA

Only a Few Stones and Carvings Remain to Indicate the State Reached by These Early Americans—The Men Fought in Vain Against Vegitation

In all the history of civilization, there is no darker mystery than that of the lost cities of Central America. Their ruins remain—temples and courtyards, palaces, strange carved monuments patterened with human heads. And over all the jungle.

The people of a hundred cities are gone. No one knows when they went nor why nor where. All that can be made out is that the civilization arose suddenly, perhaps not many centuries before the year 1,000 of our era, flourished for only a few hundred years and then went under.

It has been maintained that the old state was literally washed away by the rain, that a series of wet years sent the tropic vegetation rolling in on the cultivated fields. Lacking iron weapons, men fought in vain against the plants.

Be all this as it may, a civilization little inferior to that of Europe of the same date perished before Columbus's time and left only its stones to show it had ever been.

An extraordinary thing about the carved altars and shafts which lie scattered through the jungle is that here and there, along with serpents and human faces and hieroglyphs yet unread, there are occasionally the heads of elephants.

One of the Copan monuments in particular bears a striking picture. The creature's trunk is twined around some sort of low herb as if to put it for food. The tusks are conventionalized into a spiral. A man's head appears about where it should be if the man himself was seated astride the neck, and further behind is another human figure as if carried on the back. All in short, carved in stone, is a good deal the sort of picture that one sees nowadays in natural history primer or curcus bill.

Clearly, then, these mysterious people knew the elephant.

But there are no elephants in America. And there have not been any since the great Ice Age, when the mammoth roamed what are now the prairies and even strayed as far south as Mexico. Either, therefore these Central Americans had passed down for some 30,000 years the tradition of the mammoth, or else they had had some much more recent contact with the eastern continent, where elephants are still common.

So the matter rested until lately. Then G. Elliott Smith of the University of Manchester, England took it up.

Unlike his predecessors, Professor Smith did not rest content with noting that the sculptor at Copan had carved an elephant's head. He asked in addition just what kind of elephant it was.

Now, there are elephants and elephants. Most of them, the African species, for example, have enormous tusks and great ears. But the circus elephant, which is the Indian species, has ears hardly larger than a circus fan and tusks only just large enough to make one row of billiard balls.

First of all, then Professor Smith argues that the Copan figure is not an American mammoth nor the wholly elephant of Siberia, nor the African sort nor any other kind except the Indian. Shape of head, size of ear, hang of trunk all prove the old carving to be one familiar peanut-eating friend. Moreover, since a man rides his neck and another his back, he is a tame elephant, not a wild one.

Now the common or circus elephant, although confined now in his wild state to the neighborhood of India, occurred also not so very long ago in China. In fact, various old Chinese potters of the Middle Ages used to decorate their wares with figures of elephants or with elephants' heads.

Furthermore, if you take the trouble to run the tip of your tongue along the roof of your mouth, you will feel there certain rough bars lying crosswise. The elephant has these same bars on the under side of his trunk, where every child has noticed them when he throws peanuts into the creature's mouth. For the elephant's trunk is not, as is commonly supposed, his nose, but his nose, upper lip and palate all pulled out together. The under side of the trunk, therefore, being really the roof of the mouth, carries naturally, the roof bars.

Both the Chinese potters and the sculptors of Copan took pains to figure these peculiar markings whenever their elephants had their trunks twisted so as to show the under side.

At this point Professor Smith once more takes up the argument. The Copan figure cannot possibly be based on any old traditions of the Indian elephant brought over by some immemorial ancestor who crossed Bering Strait. The man who cuts roof bars and gets the right shape of an ear is pretty close to first hand knowledge of the thing he figures.

And yet, Professor Smith goes on to argue, the Central Americans could never have seen an elephant in the flesh, for these reasons: The ancient sculptor of Copan, along with other details, put his elephant's eye in exactly the right place—only he mistook it for the nose. In short, he drew a nostril where he should have drawn an optic.

Then he put the eye where the hole of the ear belongs. Therefore, being quite put out to account for the ear flap, he made that into a sort of ornamental head covering, as much as anything else like an embroidered scarf.

In short, argues the archaeologist, the Central American sculptor was copying another man's figure of something that he had never seen and did not more than half comprehend. He made, in other words, for the admiration of his fellow citizens, just about what he would have made if he had somehow got hold of a contemporary Chinese vase and copied the unknown creature from that. —New York "Sun."

Rivival of Skating.—The skating "craze," which isn't a craze at all, but a sensible revival of an ancient and wholesome sport, is being twisted it to the elaborate and silly extremes that seem to be the ultimate fate of all our fads, good and bad. In New York, the centre of the rink, flourish, decorations in costumes and victuals seem new to have grown more important than the skating itself. The promoters seem too bent on making ice skating as much as possible like the late dance obsession.

SOLDIER'S WIN ROUND BY MARGIN OF SIX GOALS OVER THE ELECTRICS

93rd Won Last Night's Game by 5 Goals to 4 After the Most Exciting Game of the Year—Electrics Were Ahead by 4 to 1 at One Stage and Had a Chance to Even Things up on the Round

SOLDIER'S GOOD FINISH

The Electrics with four juniors on the line-up, threw an unexpected scare into the 93rd Battalion in the second game of the play-off series at Brock street rink last night. In the long run they did not even win the game, the soldiers taking the long end of a 5-4 score, but at the end of the second period the youngsters were ahead 4-1 and looked to have a good chance not only of winning the battle, but of catching the 93rd on the round. It was by long odds the most exciting game of the year and the crowd certainly got their money's worth.

The soldiers finished strong, getting four goals in the last seven or eight minutes. As a matter of fact the goal that was scored after time was up, but as the timers failed to ring the gong in time. Referee Moxon had no other course than to allow the counter.

Moxon, who handled the game in place of Jerry Laflamme, who was scheduled to officiate, made a fairly good job of it. The soldier supporters howled in the second period because he railroaded three of them in close succession, but the penalties were all deserved, and as no goals were scored when the men were off little harm was done. The Electrics had more cause to complain in one seime, inasmuch as he refused to allow a goal they scored early in the third period, when Cherrett, from a face-off near the 93rd nets, flopped the rubber back to Graham who slammed one past Widdifield. The Electrics were leading 4 to 1 at the time and the counter would have left them only one down on the round, and with a royal chance of winning out. Moxon for some reason or other failed to allow the goal, and the decision had a big effect on the final result, for the Electrics perceptibly lost their pepper. The soldiers followed the play with a score, and with the chances of tying up the round fading, the Electrics' steam vanished and they were finally beaten out.

It was a much better game than Wednesday night's fixture, thanks to the come back of the Electrics. The losers led by 3 to 1 at the end of the first period and 4 to 1 at the close of the second. The game was cleaner than Wednesday night's battle, the Soldiers having a heavier penalty sheet than the Electrics.

For the 93rd Windsor was probably the star. The veteran centre man worked harder than in any game this season and as usual was effective around the nets, getting two nice goals. Blewett also played a useful, effective game, doing some fine work in the last period. Montgomery's speedy rushes featured. He kept tearing down the ice, and although he was generally stopped before he got inside, his dashes relieved the pressure around the soldier nets and pulled the team together at the beginning of the last period when they were showing signs of cracking. Widdifield tore off some fine stops on several occasions, stopping two drives in succession.

The losers showed more combination than at any time this season and won a lot of friends by their determined attempt to win. Legros turned aside a lot of hot shots. On the defence, Spratt checked well, and although he was closely checked, got in some useful rushes. On the forward line, Roy Cherrett, the fifteen year old junior centre, justified his selection by getting three goals. He was always on the job around the nets. Graham, who was moved up to left wing, showed up brilliantly in spite of the fact that the position was new to him and that he was up against a hard working and much heavier wing man in the person of his fellow townsman, Harry Blewett. McMartin and Evans both worked hard.

The teams lined up as follows:

93rd.		Electrics.
	Goal
Widdifield		Legros
	Defence
Montgomery		Spratt
Dupuy		F. Montgomery
	Rover
Sexton		Evans
	Centre
Windsor		Cherrett
	Right Wing
Blewett		McMartin
	Left Wing
Ketchum		Graham

SUMMARY.

1st Period—
1 [illegible]
2 Electrics, Cherrett.
3 Electrics, McMartin.
4 Electrics, Cherrett.
2nd Period—
5 Electrics, Cherrett.
Third Period—
6 93rd, Blewett.
7, 93rd, Windsor.
8, 93rd Ketchum.
9, 93rd, Windsor.

Both teams were on their toes when Referee Moxon sent them away, and the play travelled at a rapid clip. Both goal keepers were called on early and Widdifield made one beautiful stop of a hard shot from McMartin. Finally after five minutes' play the puck drifted out to Montgomery from a scrimmage around the Electric nets and he drove in a beauty for the soldiers' first goal.

Then the Electrics started to come. Widdifield made several fine stops following rushes by Graham and Evans. The youngsters were not to be denied, however, and on a pass from Graham Cherrett evened up the score. Widdifield stopped the first shot, but Cherrett was on top of the rebound and slapped the rubber into the nets.

A few moments after, McMartin broke away and took Widdifield's measure with a swift shot from half way out. That put the Electrics ahead 2 to 1, and they were having much the better of the play, the forwards showing lots of speed and an attempt to play combination. On a combination rush they hung up another goal. Widdifield stopped Graham's shot, but once more Cherrett was on the job and batted in the rebound. There was no further scoring in the period.

Play was even faster in the second period. Cherrett nearly scored from the first face-off when he dodged through [illegible] nets and tested Widdifield with a hard shot. Evans drew a penalty for bodying Blewett. While he was off the Soldiers gave Legros several shots to handle, but he warded them off. Ketchum was chased for using his elbow on Spratt, and Sexton following for tripping. With a two men advantage the Electrics lost a golden chance by not throwing everybody up on the attack. As it was, great work by R. Montgomery saved the situation until his team was intact again. Then Windsor was chased and soon after R. Montgomery drew a rest for tripping. The decision greatly displeased the soldier supporters who gave a realistic imitation of the birds who once saved Rome by their hissing. Sexton was hurt and there was a delay until he came back. When play resumed Cherrett broke through the 93rd defence and a goal looked certain, but Widdifield came out and deflected the shot. Soon after Cherrett found the nets on a pass from Graham, and the Electrics were 4 to 1 ahead at the end of the second period.

With the red, white and blue team only two goals down on the round, there was naturally excitement and both teams were on their mettle. Graham nearly scored in the first few moments' play, but Widdifield made a fine stop. A little later he saved on a shot from Graham and also blocked when Cherrett slammed the rebound at him. Then came the goal that was not allowed. The puck was faced off near the 93rd nets and Cherrett passed back to Graham who scored. To the mystification of teams and spectators Referee Moxon refused to allow the goal. This was the turning point in the battle, for following the resulting face-off, the Soldiers carried the rubber down and Blewett found the nets. Instead of being only one down on the round as they would have been if the Electric goal had counted, the youngsters found themselves three to the bad with only a short time left and they cracked then and there. Windsor made it 4 to 3 on a pass from Blewett and Ketchum evened the count on a lucky play. He broke away down the side, but was checked and chased into the corner. From there he took a chance on a shot and the puck glanced in off Legros' skates. Then just after time was up, but before the play could be stopped, Windsor found the nets again and the Soldiers had won the game 5 to 4 and the round, 2 to 6.

NEW YORK, Feb. 11.—It was not long ago that a learned professor, who took occasion to knock athletics and athletes in general, stated that "athletes were, as a rule, lacking in character." This learned man evidently had never met George Goulding, for if he had he would not have been so careless about his remarks.

Everything this great athlete does has "character" stamped all over it—that's why there are so many Americans who flocked to his cause when his amateurism was foolishly attacked. An incident which shows what stuff this fellow is made of occurred in Canada a few years ago. This was right after the great walker had startled the world with his wonderful performances. After having conquered one worth while on this side of the continent some Canadian promoters arranged to bring to Canada Larner, the then Olympic champion and record holder.

The great Goulding admitted to me some time ago, that for once in his life he was nervous. The day of the race was a fine one and fully 25,000 persons turned out to see the match. "I was so nervous that my teeth were actually chattering," is the way Goulding described his condition. Larner was a very fast man, holding all records from two to ten miles. His style was very bad, and the late James E. Sullivan went on record as stating that Larner used a "bent-knee" gallop."

The match with Goulding was for three miles. The pair started at a brisk pace, and from the rate they were travelling it was apparent that records would fall. Just as the mile and a half post was passed Goulding began to make his one supreme effort to get away. He used every bit of strength he had, and soon began to open a small gap. At just about that time the judge of walking spoke to Larner, asking him to "settle down." Larner became angry and walked off the track. Goulding was still forcing the pace, using all he had. He heard the shouts of the crowd, and when he looked around he saw that Larner was fully 200 yards behind him and engaged in a wordy argument with the judge.

He walked back to where they were and, taking Larner by the arm, said to him, "Come on, we'll finish it out from here." Then, turning to the judge, he said: "Please let him go." Off they went again, and Goulding triumphed in one of the greatest sprinting finishes ever seen at the end of a walking contest.

Jerry Coughlin Badly Hurt

Peterboro Player Injured in a Game at Houghton

Houghton Gazette—Jerry Coughlin did not score a goal in the P. L.-St. Paul game Monday night, but he was the superior of all the players on the ice in all departments but speed. He can glue the puck to his stick and still dodge a few opponents. Incidentally, Coughlin suffered worst injury that has been witnessed on this ice, if not in the league, this season. Late in the second half, with but six minutes left to play, in fact, with the score lacking only one of being tied, and with the Portage Lakes putting up a clip of speed that had the crowd on its toes, Coughlin had a stick rammed down his throat, while he was fighting for the puck back of the St. Paul goal. He lost six upper teeth and his mouth was so badly lacerated that blood poured from it.

Belleville Here On Monday For Game With The Soldiers

The 93rd Battalion, winners of the intermediate group, have been ordered to meet Belleville in the second round, and the first game is scheduled to take place here on Monday night next, with the return game in Belleville on Friday night. The biggest crowd of the season should be on hand to see this battle. Belleville is reported to have a fast, clever team, and their victories over Picton bears out that contention. In the 93rd, however, the Easterners will meet a much better team than many fans around town are giving the soldiers credit for. The boys in khaki have a big, fast bunch with a lot of hockey experience thrown in, and if they can develop team work they will take a lot of beating. That is the one thing lacking. In Windsor, a veteran of many years' experience, they have one of the cleverest centre ice players seen here in years, and if the Soldiers see that he is handed the rubber around the enemy's nets they will get goals aplenty. Now that the Electric team which has been looked upon as a city team because its members were so well known, are out of the running, it is up to the citizens of Peterborough to get in behind and loyally support their soldier team.

The Belleville game, on Monday promises to be the biggest hockey fixture of the year, and if the fans don't crowd the rink they don't deserve to have any hockey. Keep the date open and turn out and root for the Soldiers.

Mrs. Matthews Scored An 8-End In Defeating Andy Webb's Rink

The official chronicles of the Curling Club recorded by Mr. Felix Brownscombe, will probably fail to show, under the date of February 11, 1916, even a reference to a certain game played yesterday afternoon. To begin with it was only a "scratch game" and there is no provision for entering the results of "scratches" with the main events of the season. But, for all that, this particular game will become historical, whether it is recorded or not, and really it should not be overlooked by the Secretary, for the reason that it was a victory for a ladies' rink over a men's. This, in itself, is a rare event, but even more exceptional and memorable was the eight end that Mrs. T. F. Matthews piled up against Andy Webb. An eight end, that is, one yielding eight points, is as unique in curling as a Casey walloop in baseball. Occasionally you hear of one, but only occasionally, and once in a blue moon you actually see it. But when a rink of ladies score it against a regular rink of men, well there's nothing to compare it with. It's something new and altogether out of the ordinary. Those who know Mr. Webb will suspect that he meant to be chivalrous any way, and would have seen to it that the ladies scored a win. But with an eight-end thrown in! Well, that's really asking too much. To begin with the personnel of the rinks was as follows:

H. Sherwood	Mrs. G. H. Thompson
H. R. Martin	Miss Morrow
M. C. Tooley,	Mrs. E. L. Goodwill
A. H. Webb	Mrs. T. F. Matthews
Skip—10	Skip—14

The game opened nicely and Mr. Webb's rink settled away with a slight margin in their favour. Then came the big end. Mrs. Matthews had six stones up and all well placed in the six-foot ring. Mrs. Goodwill had dropped a "guard" just inside the "hog line." It was an outpost an outlying obstruction. Now, there is no gainsaying the fact that Mr. Webb is a considerable curler. You will notice when you visit the rink that he is included in not a few group pictures in the club's gallery of rinks that have carried off prizes and that sort of thing. And just now he is playing second for 'Pete' Lang's rink which is going strong in the scheduled games. Anyway those six counters against him must have been disconcerting. Well, he put away his first stone. It sailed down the ice and made a clean raise on Mrs. Goodwill's guard, which joined the other six. Then, with his last stone, "Andy" was away off, practically crossing into an adjoining ice. Mrs. Matthews tallied another with her last counter. There was the compact eight end, and of course the gallery acclaimed the unusual feature with a great round of cheers. In an ordinary game "Andy" would have easily evaded that guard and with his other shot would have easily drawn to the inner ring, for let it be understood that he is no mean curler. Had it been Robert Neil, "Andy" would have delighted in smashing into his array of stones, but against a rink of ladies, that was an exceptional situation. Surely the combination of circumstances were extenuating. Of course if the game is recorded these will not be set down. That eight-end will be remembered when the actual play will have been forgotten.

Local Hockeyists Wanted By The Sportsmen's Battalion

Coach Billy Breen of the Electric Hockey Club has received the following letter from Lt.-Col. R. H. Greer, the officer commanding the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion, Toronto:

Dear Billy,—Mr. Marsh on his return from Peterborough to-day informed me that there was a prospect of a number of members of the Peterborough Hockey club, of which you are coach, coming along with my regiment. I would only be too delighted to have a squad from Peterborough, especially from the Peterborough Hockey Club and their affiliations. I hope you will talk this matter over with the boys most seriously and I am of the opinion that if they are considering enlisting that they will find themselves in most pleasant circumstances with our battalion.

If they conclude to come along with us I can promise them the best of treatment and will keep them all together in one platoon which will make things probably a good deal more pleasant than they will find them if the enlist under other circumstances.

They will find all the boys here of the same calibre as those they are used to associating with and this should aid in making it very pleasant for them.

Do your best to bring the entire club along with you and I do not think that yourself or the boys will ever regret having enlisted under our auspices.

Yours truly,
R. H. Greer, Lt.-Col.,
Commanding 180th Overseas Battalion.

SHOT IN LAST END

J. H. Ferguson won from Dickson Davidson the only game in the scheduled series last night by the score of 8 to 7. Almost home on the last end with the score a tie, Mr. Davidson lay three. With a pretty shot Mr. Ferguson took out the three and lay shot, and with his last stone Mr. Davidson fell short of the rings.

HOCKEY

Although the Electrics failed to measure up to the task of beating the 93rd Battalion in the play-off for the group series, the local team deserves a lot of credit for their showing this season. In the first place just before hostilities commenced the team that had been slated to represent the club was wrecked when the O.H.O. refused to give four of them certificates, and Jerry Coughlin jumped to Houghton. That left the Electrics with the pleasant task of finding practically a new team. Pete Spratt and Jimmy McMarton came to the rescue, and with Evans, who broke into the O.H.A. for the first time this year, and Billy Hamilton, who played on St. Michael's juniors two years ago, formed the nucleus of a team that tied up the district. Fortunately there was a splendid squad of juniors available, and the youngsters were called upon to fill the breach. Owing to sickness, or accidents, the team was never able to get the same line-up in action, but the junior players, no less than eight of which were used at one time or another, filled the gaps in good style, and demonstrated there is plenty of good hockey players around town if given a chance. It is the fortune of war that in the crucial series of the group race they should have two regular forwards, Rose and Hamilton, out of action, or they would have undoubtedly made a closer thing of the play-off games. The Soldiers, owing to the peculiar advantages which the O.H.A. has granted to soldier teams this year, were enabled to strengthen their team at a critical period in the race, and it is doubtful that if Sexton and Windsor had not been added, whether the 93rd would have won their way through the group, even in spite of the loss of Rose and Hamilton. However, the Electrics, veterans and youngsters alike, tried hard and have lost no friends among the fans. They have shown that there is good material here and have made a move in the right direction. It is hoped that the lesson will sink in that homebrews can be just as clever as the men from a distance. The foundation has been laid for a good team for next season.

The Toronto pros. are in bad shape from the tie game at Quebec on Wednesday. A Montreal despatch says that Keats has a bad leg and is not likely to start against the Wanderers in Montreal to-morrow night. Cameron was spiked, and Randall and Geo. Macnamara are laid up with the grip.

After a heavy Sunday dinner perhaps the family would enjoy a simple dish of cooked cereals.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I am very anxious to close up my business and retire. Have five houses, 3 frame, 1 brick and 1 concrete block house (two storeys and attic, with a good stable and garden); also about 40 choice lots of best garden land. The above must be sold to close up my Western avenue subdivision near May's school, car line, and close enough to all big factories in the south end. I know it is a very bad time to sell, but I also know that it is the very best time to buy, because my low prices and easy terms will never again be offered on such choice city property, as it will be very soon. Use your own eyes and brains to prove what I say is true. I offer at this season, to give ample time to think and plan for early spring action. No interest nor rent on houses until spring nor on lots until May. Only a small deposit required. Immediate possession. Every buyer is as certain to make money as the sun is to rise. Buy now and watch your money grow. Mr. F. C. Knight, owner of "Sheffield Villa" property, a beautiful home on Western avenue, will be ready at any time to show houses and lots. Call at office for particulars, or first go and see Mr. Knight and the property; then see me for a real bargain. Remember, this will be your last chance to buy from me. Also remember that very rich and wise men advise their friends to buy all they can afford of just such property as I am offering. Use that advice and make money.

St. Andrew's Young People Have A Social Evening

A Large Number of Young Ladies and Gentlemen Attend Last Night

The newly organized Young People's Societies of St. Andrew's Church held a joint social evening, last night, which was greatly enjoyed by a large attendance. A number of young men in uniform added interest to the evening by taking part in the programme.

There is no doubt about the newly formed organizations being progressive, if last night's meeting is an indication of what future meetings will be.

Either Might Take But Not Hold Trenches

Capt. Beattie Tells of Fine Lot of Young Men at First Communion

COBOURG, Feb. 12.—Major (Rev.) Wm. Beattie, Chaplain with the Second Canadian Division at the front, in France, and pastor of St Andrew's Presbyterian Church here, in writing to a friend of conditions now in the trenches, says: "I have little news of affairs at present that I am at liberty to give you. Things are very much at a standstill. Either side might take a bit of the first line of trenches at any time, but it is a very questionable victory, as the opposing artillery can make it untenable in a very few minutes. One cannot hold a position long if tons of high explosive shells are being poured upon it."

Major Beattie states that at their New Year Communion about two and a half miles behind the trenches they received into membership a fine group of young men.

The condition of Mrs. Frank Green who is here from the Northwest visiting her sister, Mrs. McCall, Bolivar street, has become so serious that her husband has been telegraphed for.

ADMIT FARM LABORERS.

KINGSTON, Feb. 12.—Frontenac farmers cannot understand why the Government is keeping out a good class of farm labourers from the United States. At present the farmers of this country are crippled for lack of help, and unless labourers can be secured it will mean a great reduction in the quantity of seed sown in the spring.

COBOCONK FURNISHES 20.

COBOCONK, Feb. 12.—Capt. G. A. Weedes of the 109th Battalion, Lindsay, who has been here only about two weeks, has enlisted more than twenty men. Mr. J. E. Jackson rendered him much assistance. On Thursday evening he offered himself and his car to serve in the mechanical transport, or donate $800 towards the purchase of a field kitchen, the latter being accepted, and the money was immediately handed over and forwarded to Lieut.-Col. Fee in Lindsay. His son, Harry, has also enlisted, and is going as an officer with the artillery. Prospects are bright for the enlistment at least fifty men in this village within the next thirty days.

Y. M. C. A. NEWS

"Christian Standards" will be the subject of the young men's meeting Sunday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. General Secretary C. N. Meserve will lead the discussion. Every man is invited.

The annual meeting of the Y.M.C.A. National Council was held in Toronto on Wednesday and Thursday of this week, and was attended by General Secretary C. N. Meserve of the local Association. This was probably the most important gathering in Y.M.C.A. circles since the movement started in Canada 72 years ago. The military work of the Association has assumed unexpected proportions, and the real problem of the gathering was how to accept the increasing number of invitations to start "Well-Fare" work throughout Canada, and the various battlefields of Europe. A message had been received from Major Birks, the Canadian representative, who is in charge of the Y.M.C.A. military work in Europe, stating that at least $300,000 would be required to anywhere near approach the needs of the situation. There is no lack of Y.M.C.A. Secretaries, who are waiting a chance to serve the soldiers at the front, but how to finance the ever increasing work among soldiers was the problem that had to be solved. That the problem was a large one can be seen from the fact that $66,000 is the largest amount that has ever been spent by the National Council for all branches of this work in Canada. The $300,000 budget was adopted and recreation centres under the Christian auspices of the Association are to be established at hundreds of points among soldiers.

Sir John Willison was present and stated that the Lawn Bowlers of Canada had decided to contribute $35,000 toward the military work of the Association. Another man who was present and recognized the need of keeping up the work for the younger boys at home stated that if another field secretary were added to the National Council staff to work among the Collegiate boys he would give $500 toward the salary of such a man. It is very apparent that the spirit of self sacrifice among business men has been developed during the war, and any recognized need is quickly appreciated by them and met to the limit of their funds. It is certain that if bad men have been made worse through the war, good men have been made better as a result of the conflict.

Reports from the various field secretaries showed that about 40 per cent. of the "Y" members of military age in Canada have enlisted for overseas service. This record perhaps cannot be duplicated by any other organization in the Dominion. Many Y.M.C.A. officials, including General Secretaries, Physical Directors and Boys' Secretaries are serving in the ranks. Sixteen out of thirty-five Boys' Secretaries in Canada have enlisted as privates, etc.

Major Williams, senior chaplain of the troops in Canada, was one of the speakers, and in defending the character of the 10,000 troops stationed in Toronto, he stated that for weeks from this number of soldiers an average of only four drunks per day had been reported. He stated that the same showing could be made among the same number of Toronto's leading citizens. He showed that the moral of the troops had been greatly improved by means of the Y.M.C.A. workers.

The Peterborough Association has thrown its building open to our local soldiers and are pleased to say that the privileges are being used by a good number of the enlisted men. At the last meeting of the Board of Directors of the local Association a small appropriation was made to the work of the National Council among soldiers in Europe. Contributions to the same work can be left at the office of the local Association and will be forwarded to the committee in charge of the Y.M.C.A. military work.

Why The Goal Was Not Allowed

Many fans who were at last night's game are wondering why Referee Moxon refused to allow the goal scored by the Electrics in the third period. The play happened in this way. There was an off-side near the 93rd nets, and the puck was faced off. When it was dropped Cherrett passed back to Graham, whose shot found the nets. Moxon refused to allow the goal. When asked by the Examiner after the game about the play, Referee Moxon explained that because Cherrett, who had passed the rubber back, was in front of Graham when he shot, the play was off-side. The same play comes up twenty times a night; in fact nearly every time there is a face off, and Moxon is the first referee that has been seen around these parts who has declared it illegal. It would be impossible for any centre man to get on-side after a face off before the man behind him plays the rubber, and as long as the centre man does not interfere with the play after he has made the pass, all referees' Peterborough has ever seen have taken no action on the play.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 11—For Eyes, the Best is Cheapest

At a great many different stores a line of SPECTACLES is carried, and for a few cents, and up, you can buy a pair that SEEMINGLY give some assistance to the vision, when perhaps they are causing a strain on one part of the eyes to enable another part to do its work. These glasses have been selected by the simple means of trying on pair after pair till at last one seems to suit. There has been no test to try the separate power of the eyes, no distance test, and even if the best possible choice is made there is no guarantee of satisfaction, or redress if you finally find the cheap glass is useless. Compare this with Dr. Fowler's scientific "test and make sure" service, both eyes correctly fitted, with his high-grade Peblo Lenses, covered by his absolute guarantee, at his most moderate charges, and there can be but one conclusion, that the "Best is Cheapest."

Mrs. R. H. Muir has received a letter from her husband in the 21st Battalion giving a few details of his injuries which were recently announced. Under date of Jan. 28th he wrote: Just a few lines to let you know that I am lying in No. 20 General Hospital, Etaples, France, wounded in the head, face and breast with gun shot while in action in Belgium by a German high explosive shell. I don't want you to worry about it. I hope it won't be long until I get a shot back at the Germans. Don't worry if you don't get any letter as I expect to be moved to another hospital pretty soon. Write every week, I will get your letters. I am resting comfortably at present. They have taken the shrapnel out of my head. God bless you all.

Kingston, Feb. 11.—The news that Capt. George T. Richardson, of this city, had been killed in action with the 2nd Battalion, C.E.F., was received here yesterday with great sorrow. Capt. Richardson was the son of the late George Richardson, and was born in this city. He graduated in arts at Queen's University and then joined the firm of James Richardson and Sons. When the call for volunteers came after the outbreak of war, Capt. Richardson was one of the first to offer his services.

He was an officer in the 14th P.W.O. Rifles, and well versed in military matters. Capt. Richardson went to England with the first contingent, and entered the trenches about a year ago. He was in the famous battle of Langemarck, and was slightly wounded, but refused to go to the hospital. He was regarded as one of the best Canadian officers at the front, and everyone who came in contact with him spoke in the highest terms of the young man, who was without fear and who had a most kindly heart. Throughout Canada he was known as the greatest amateur hockey player the country ever produced. In the Sydenham Street Methodist Church he was an active worker and Sunday School teacher.

Gunner "Mordie" McGill, who has seen active service with the 4th Battery, 1st Canadian Artillery Brigade, and who was subsequently invalided home, has joined the new battery that is being raised in Peterborough under the auspices of the Belmont Club. Between fifty and sixty men have signified their intention of joining the new unit, and the appended list gives the names of seventeen men who have passed the medical examination. Mr. A. N. Allison has been appointed orderly sergeant, and will leave on Wednesday for Kingston to receive instructions, after which he will return to Peterborough, where he will be stationed until the work of recruiting is completed.

The first detachment will leave for Kingston on Wednesday. To-morrow afternoon at four o'clock a meeting will be held in the Club Rooms. All who are interested in the work are invited to attend.

Following is the names of seventeen men who have passed the medical examination. The first eight have been sworn in:

A. N. Allison, 875 Water Street.
G. S. Cunningham, 378 Stewart St
G. W. Finney, 211 Barnardo Ave.
W. Kennedy, 96 Aylmer St.
M. McGill, Customs House.
W. T. Rogan, 64 Hunter St.
H. E. Raynor, 176 Dalhousie St.
F. Co Sutherland, 617 Bethune St.
J. G. Embury, 490 Cedar St.
H. W. Grey, 216 Reid St.
G. S. O'Brien, Wolseley St.
F. B. Pidgeon, 880 Aylmer St.
J. E. Ross, Quebec.
G. M. Stinton, 610 Reid St.
W. E. Thompson, 107 Hazlett St.
C. J. Telford, 658 Concession St.
W. H. Yelland, 693 Harvey St.

"Scotty" Rogers, of the 21st Battalion, writing home on Jan. 16th, says:

"I received your most welcome letter to-day. The rats around here are so thick they are pulling away our dug-out. They're as big as cows. I got the parcels mother sent, and the candles came in fine. What makes you think I'm sorry for joining? I'm not a bit. I'd have only joined some other battalion, and I'm better off than some of the fellows who don't join. Really, I'm surprised at myself the way I have come through. I'm a bomb thrower. There are only five of us left out of our platoon. The rest are all new fellows from the drafts of the 39th Battalion. It's great to watch the aeroplane duels. I saw one to-day. The Frenchman got the German. I don't think the 93rd will ever see the front. The Germans haven't a good fight left in them. I'm with the bombing company all the time. Grenades are not very nice to dandle, believe me, but it's all in a life-time."

WAR ECONOMY IN BRITAIN MAY BAR CHARLIE CHAPLIN PICTURES

LONDON, February 14.—A serious situation has arisen in the kinema trade here. There is good reason for believing that the government committee which is sitting to discuss war economies will recommend the prohibition if the importation of kinema films and that the government will adopt the idea. The object is of course to improve the exchange by preventing the sending of money out of the country for unnecessary goods.

This might seem a very beneficial measure for British film producers but unfortunately for them they are depending on other countries, chiefly America, for their supply of "blanks," the unprinted films which they use. These "blanks" are to be prohibited, too, and as it is impossible to get the British celluloid manufacturers to take up their supply, the British film producers will sooner or later have to stop operations owing to lack of film blanks.

This will be a heavy blow to the British film producers, who in spite of insufficient capital gradually are building up an industry which hitherto has been very largely monopolised by the foreign concerns.

The persons who will realise an enormous profit will be "renters"—namely, the middlemen who buy the films from the producers and lease them to the picture palaces.

The supply of new material will come to a stop when the present stock is exhausted but the picture palaces will not close. In camp and garrison towns and munition areas they are doing better than ever and they insist on having films of some sort. The "renters" will be able to re-lease at slightly reduced rates perhaps the whole of the films which they have purchased in the last year and they will be run off again.

So the "renters" will be in the very happy position of having no expenditure and continued receipts.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The Allied troops are continuing their successes at several points along the western front. Important German salients have been captured.

New Artillery Responsible For Russian Successes In Galicia And Volynia

PETROGRAD, via London, Feb. 14.—Although a general revival of activity is officially reported along the entire Russian front, the only developments of more than local and temporary importance are the Russian advance in the Stripa region, south-east of Isebroff, where the Russians succeeded in capturing heights commanding the district in which runs the main railway line between the Chodorov and Stry rivers, and the occupation by the Russians of the heights east of Tchemerine.

The progress in the latter district, which is between Rovno and Lutsk, is another sign of the resumption of the Russian offensive which came to an abrupt halt a month ago, when the Germans apparently succeeded in erecting such firm fortifications that further attempts at an advance on the part of the Russians became a waste of energy and ammunition.

It is considered significant that a new and more formidable Russian offensive is being launched against the same positions, and with success. This is explained by most of the military observers as due to the new power and effectiveness of the Russian artillery, which recently has shown marked improvement on all fronts.

The Germans, evidently surprised by the fierceness of the new Russian onslaught, which promises to extend to a general initiative along the whole line, have been forced at several points in Galicia to retire to their second line of defence.

GERMANS WANT PART OF BELGIUM.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Recent information gathered in Government circles in Berlin is to the effect that Germany holds a portion of Belgium should be annexed to Germany in any settlement of the war which is undertaken.

This view is directly the reverse of recent reports coming through Italy that Germany had offered to evacuate Belgium as a condition of a separate peace.

There is no confirmation of the report of Germany's willingness to evacuate Belgium, but the contrary view, that Germany desires to retain part of Belgium, probably will be made known in confidential advices going to the American authorities, indicating a less favourable outlook than had been expected.

The Belgian Legation announced that the rumours which have been circulated to the effect that peace proposals recently were made by Germany to the Belgian Government are devoid of foundation.

BULGARS TO QUIT.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Sofia despatches reaching Amsterdam and forwarded by Reuter's correspondent quote the Bulgarian Minister of War as saying that as soon as the action against Salonica is finished the war will be terminated so far as Bulgaria is concerned, and that the nation will fight no longer unless attacked.

INTERNS 4,000 GERMANS.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—An official report issued at Madrid, as forwarded by Reuter's correspondent there, says the German soldiers interned in Spanish Guinea number 2,600. There also have been interned 1,400 members of families of the German soldiers. All will be transported to Spain.

SOFIA, Feb. 14.—The Bulgarian troops on Saturday occupied the Albanian city of Elbassan, and are moving westward to join the Austrians in cutting off the Italian retreat from Durazzo. The Bulgarian vanguards are now less than twenty miles from the Austrian army approaching Durazzo from the country west of Tirana, and the two forces are in constant communication. By marching westward thirty-three miles to the Adriatic Sea coast the Bulgarians will complete the envelopment of the Italian and Albanian forces at Durazzo unless they evacuate and retreat hurriedly to the southward.

ROME, Feb. 14.—Swiss despatches to-day reported that Kaiser William has conferred the order of the Red Eagle upon Captain Franz Von Papen, the recalled German military attache to the United States.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 14.—The Russian Black Sea fleet silenced a portion of the Turkish shore batteries near Vitze during a heavy bombardment on Wednesday and Thursday, it was officially announced to-day.

Winds Favour Allies In The Use Of Gases

Very little is heard now of the effects of suffocating gas at the front, though the official communique frequently mentions attacks in which it has been used. The report some months ago, that five thousand French soldiers succumbed to it in the Argonne through neglect to distribute protecting masks, seems to have been forgotten and in the absence of other reported casualties anxiety seems to have disappeared. Abbe Moreaux, director of the Bourges observatory, explains why the Germans are at a great disadvantage on account of the winds, and how the Allies could dominate them in that kind of warfare if they saw fit.

"The battlefront, excepting between Meuse and Verdun, runs in a generally northely-southerly direction, the rest of it east and west, while the north of France and Belgium are all the year round subjected to general Atlantic winds; that is to say, winds varying between west and southwest," he says. "My calculations, based on the central meteorological bureau statistics, show that only 22 times in 100 during the entire winter on an average has the wind blown from the east, southwest or northeast; consequently in the winter season a German gas attack has only 22 chances in a hundred of success while in an attack by the Allies with the same arm has 78 chances in a hundred on the fronts running from north to south. On the front running from east to west the conditions are less favourable to the Allies, the north winds being in the ratio of 30 in 100 in winter, and 40 in 100 in spring, 36 in 100 in summer, and 22 to 100 in autumn.

Summing up his calculations, Abbe Moreaux thinks the Germans have less than one chance in three the year round, while the Allies have more than two chances in three of effective use of suffocating gas.

Northumberland Pulp and Paper Mill Destroyed

The immense plant of the Northumberland Pulp and Paper Co. situated at Campbellford was burned to the ground yesterday. The fire started in the long machine room, where the paper is cut and put into rolls and reams. Having a clear sweep here, the blaze made rapid headway, and despite all that could be done the building was totally destroyed. The nightwatchman was in the room at 5.30 and everything appeared to be alright. Soon after, however, the conflagration started. The water pressure was good at the commencement, but later anchor ice interfered. Two carloads of paper ready for shipment were saved, but a third one was burned. The loss is a severe one to Campbellford at the present time, as the mill was running day and night.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Aunt Lucy's Legacy.

By JANE LEE

People could talk all they liked about poverty bringing happiness, but Bayard Leighton kicked—literally—at the suggestion. He had just finished reading a letter from his maiden aunt, in which she had declared: "Money has not brought me happiness. I have lived alone all my life, and I sometimes envy you in your poverty, loved and adored by so sweet a girl as Virginia."

"I know exactly what I think of her, old man," drawled Jimmy, "but a lady's a lady—even if she is your aunt—and I'd rather not put my opinion into parliamentary English."

"You're a moral coward, that's what you are, Jimmy Bookwalter," declared Bayard as he flung the letter across the tiny hall room. "You've got a rich father who gives you more spending money in a month than you could earn in a year, besides which you're too lazy to fall in love. I hope you won't misunderstand me, Jimmy, when I tell you that the space you occupy in my luxurious apartment is much more valuable than your august presence at the present moment."

"SHE WILLS AND BEQUEATHS TO YOU THIS PORTRAIT OF YOURSELF."

Jimmy rose from the uncomfortable straight backed chair, which was the only one in the room. Bayard had given it to him when he entered and had taken a corner of the bed for himself.

"Oh, I see," mused Jimmy. "Want to get dressed, eh? Well, so long till tomorrow night. Be sure you show up at the club and dine with me at 7 sharp."

When he was gone Bayard put the inhospitable chair up on the bed to make more room and took a suit of clothes from under the cretonne curtain which covered his meager wardrobe.

It did not take long to select a tie, because he only had six or seven. Bayard seemed to be going through a mental reincarnation during this process of dressing. First he said disagreeable things—not whole sentences, but just pertinent ejaculations, such as "old fossil," "ought not to be out without a keeper," "envy me, indeed."

A little later he began to whistle snatches of popular songs, nervous little thrills. And finally, with stick in hand, he opened the door of his room, humming in a most contented manner. "Love Me Little, Love Me Long." After all, life was worth while!

Virginia Tracey and Bayard Leighton had been engaged some months. Bayard's father had lived like a rich man, and when he died suddenly the son found himself penniless. Brought up to lead an idle life, untrained for practical work, he took the first position offered to him in a broker's office at $15 a week.

That seemed all right until he suddenly realized that without Virginia nothing was right. Recklessly he asked her to marry him, and with all the impulsiveness of her love she gave herself to him. They were young, and they could wait. Aunt Lucy, Bayard's maiden aunt, had promised to make him her heir, and decidedly Aunt Lucy was no longer young.

When Bayard was blue, Virginia seemed to be doubly radiant, and tonight she was at her best as she entered her drawing room to greet him.

"Had a letter from Aunt Lucy, dear," Bayard announced as an important piece of news.

"Goody," cried Virginia, "and what did the dear old lady have to say for herself?"

"She told me how fortunate I was to have you care for me, for one thing," began Bayard as he watched the color mount to Virginia's cheeks at the compliment. "Then she said a lot of rot about— But let's talk about the pleasant things. You do care for me, don't you?" he added.

"Silly! Silly! Of course I do!" she cried. "You're silly for a whole lot of reasons—silly to make me wait to be really yours until you can take me to a fine home, but if you are satisfied to take a toothless old woman for a wife—well"—

And when Bayard went home that night he was still humming a happy air.

He took the chair off the bed, tucked it in one corner of the room and stretched himself out for the night.

In after years he talked much about that room. He always declared that he could open the door with his hand and the window with his foot at the same time; that if he bent over to lace up his boots he butted his head against the side wall, and when he thrust his arm through the sleeve of his shirt he invariably bruised the back of his hand on the ceiling.

"Your aunt died this morning—funeral Thursday," it read.

"Well, I hope the dear old lady will be happy in heaven," Bayard said, not without some feeling. "She had persuaded herself that she wasn't here."

"That telegram means a lot to you, doesn't it?" inquired Jimmy, with an air of levity.

"Yes, it does. It means that I'll have a goodly bit of the necessary long green and that Virginia and I can be married."

Some two weeks later Bayard was notified by the express company that there was a package there for him with $40 due on it, shipped from Chicago. Bayard knew at once that it was some of Aunt Lucy's valuable silver sent on to him. Jimmy would lend him the money to pay for it.

The bill was paid, and the big packing case was ordered sent to Virginia's house and Jimmy duly invited around to participate in the unpacking. Hammer and chisels were put to use, and all three of them entered into the gay spirit of the party. Piles of packing were pulled from the box, and finally a heavy gilt frame came to view. Coats were taken off, and the combined strength of Jimmy and Bayard was put to the test. Finally the picture was taken out. It proved to be a life sized portrait of Bayard as a child.

"Here's a letter," announced Jimmy as he pulled a long white envelope from the corner of the frame. Virginia opened it and read aloud:

"Your aunt, Miss Leighton, left her entire estate to charities. She wills and bequeaths to you this portrait of yourself. The portion of the will relating to you reads as follows: 'I leave no money to my dear nephew, Bayard Leighton, because I do not wish to shatter his ideal method of life. He is earning a good salary and has good health. As a slight token of my affection and as a remembrance I leave him the Gilbert portrait of himself which now hangs in my library.'"

"Isn't it a darling!" cried Virginia as she danced about the huge portrait.

"Seems to me," broke in Jimmy, "that there's plenty of wood right here to build the house, and it won't take long to cover the walls. There's the oil painting to begin with. Then we can have that letter framed. I'm sure Bayard never wants to part with that. Then I'll give you a large photograph of myself, and"—

"What's all this nonsense about going to housekeeping?" interrupted Mr. Tracey, Virginia's father, as he came into the room. "When these young people get married—and I wish they'd hurry up about it—they must come and live with me. Virginia can change her name whenever she wants to, but not her residence. And as for this legacy business, I'd rather have a man for my son-in-law who can fight his own way than one who was made by an inheritance."

Mr. Tracey picked his way across the room over the pine boards, chisels and excelsior packing. He took his daughter in one arm as he extended his free hand to Bayard.

"Mean it?" echoed Mr. Tracey. "Well, I bet I do, and to prove it I'll take Jimmy Bookwalter into the dining room and keep him there until you two settle on a date for the wedding."

The words "dining room" seemed to awaken Jimmy from his stupor. He had a mental picture of a sideboard plentifully stocked with reviving liquors. He announced that he was ready for the proof of Mr. Tracey's assertion, and together they went out of the room, leaving the lovers alone.

Motions of the Earth.

The earth has at least eight different motions. There is the rotation on the axis, making day and night; the inclination of the axis, making summer and winter; the revolution around the sun, making the year, and the motion resulting from the attraction of the moon, which shows itself most plainly in the tides. There are several other motions of less interest. Perhaps the most awe inspiring of all is the motion of the earth in space, dragged by the swiftly moving sun at the rate of 700 miles a minute.

Had No Ambition To Do Her Housework.

System Was All Run Down.

Mrs. Herbert Doherty, Beaver Brook, N.B., writes: "I have used some of your Burdock Blood Bitters, and found it to be a great medicine. My system was in a run down condition for over a year. I suffered with bad headache, and did not seem to have any ambition to do my housework. In the morning I could not half eat, and what I did eat did not apparently seem to do me any good. After using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I was an entirely different woman. I cannot recommend B.B.B. too highly to people suffering the same as I was."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment, and remove effete matter and waste products, clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be. To this fact is due the wonderful efficacy of Burdock Blood Bitters in removing every form of disease. It at once strikes to the root of the trouble, and quickly restores the depleted system to a condition of vigorous health.

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Success of a New Remedy for Backache, Kidneys, Rheumatism.

Dear Mr. Editor—I suffered for years with backache. Last March I tried "Anuric" and have used this new kidney medicine recently discovered by Dr. Pierce, and it was wonderful the way it eased the pain and gave me relief in such a short time. I have tried several medicines, but "Anuric" is the only one that gave satisfaction. I feel it my duty to recommend "Anuric Tablets" to any one who suffers as I did.

(Signed) MRS. MARGARET E. SNIDER.

NOTE: Folks in town and adjoining counties are delighted with the results they have obtained by using "ANURIC," the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, who is head of the INVALIDS' HOTEL and SURGICAL INSTITUTE, in Buffalo, N. Y. Those who started the day with a backache, stiff legs, arms and muscles, and an aching head (worn out before the day began because they were in and out of bed half a dozen times at night) are appreciating the perfect rest, comfort and new strength they obtained from Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. To prove that this is a certain uric acid solvent and conquers headache, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, if you've never used the "Anuric," cut this out and send ten cents to Doctor Pierce for a large sample package. This will prove to you that "Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid—and the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector. If you are a sufferer, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "Anuric." You run no risk for Dr. Pierce's good name stands behind this wonderful new discovery as it has for the past half century for his "Golden Medical Discovery," a general tonic made from roots with pure glycerine which makes the blood pure, his "Favorite Prescription" for weak women and "Pleasant Pellets" for liver ills.

A GREAT TUNNEL.

C.P.R. Mountain Tube Through Rogers' Pass is Now Complete.

Another great Canadian railway achievement was completed a few days ago when the two heads of the marvelous Rogers Pass tunnel in the Rockies met, says the Canadian Courier. A new grade-conquering underground highway passed from an engineering feat to a railway fact. The greatest railway tunnel in Canada and one of the greatest in the world will be in operation next autumn. The Rogers Pass double-track tunnel was decided upon in order to overcome difficult grades between mileages 76.0 and 91.5 on the mountain subdivision of the C. P. R. The western portal is 326 miles east of Vancouver, the eastern 1,056 miles west of Winnipeg. The length of the tunnel is 50 feet over five miles. It runs through Mt. Macdonald and under Rogers Pass. Since April, 1915, 1,200 men have been working to complete the tunnel for traffic as early as possible. That the work was practically completed in 1915 is a tribute to the engineering and construction staffs of the world's greatest transportation system. It was a stupendous task. A traffic highway five miles long, 29 feet wide, and 26 feet high had to be blasted through solid rock. The tunnel was designed for double-track laid on rock ballast, to be operated with oil-burning steam locomotives.

The primary purpose of this tremendous tunnel was to reduce the C. P. R. summit of the Selkirks, 4,334 feet above sea level, and to do away with nearly five miles of snow sheds, necessary on account of the snow slides in that part of the Selkirks. The tunnel reduces the summit about 540 feet and shortens the old line 4.2 miles. The tunnel was driven double, the first example of that kind of tunnel construction on this continent. A small bore 6 ft. 6 in. by 9 ft. was made 50 feet to one side of the centre line of the main tunnel, and its floor about 6 feet above the main floor line. The "Pioneer" heading and one or more centre headings were driven simultaneously. After the Pioneer had been driven 1,000 feet at the east end a cross cut was run to the spot where the centre of the main tunnel was to be and from that point new headings were begun in each direction. All "muck" had to be brought up this incline and out through the Pioneer.

A Clew That Pearl Divers Fear.

All sorts of superstitions prevail among the pearl fishers of Ceylon, and a large business is done by sorcerers who sell charms to restrain the appetite of the sharks and to drive away the diabolical stingrays. Another peril which the diver dreads more than either stingray or shark is the giant clam that weighs nearly half a ton when full grown. It will snap off a man's legs like pipestems if the victim chances to thrust a limb between its open jaws, or, at all events, will hold him until he drowns miserably.—London Globe.

No Chance.

"Your digestive apparatus is all out of kilter," said the doctor after examining his patient. "The best advice I can give you is to discharge your cook and get a new one."

"It can't be done, Doc," answered the patient sadly. "I'm married to her."

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural colour is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous and you appear years younger.

Health for Sick Women

For Forty Years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been Woman's Most Reliable Medicine —Here is More Proof.

To women who are suffering from some form of woman's special ills, and have a constant fear of breaking down, the three following letters ought to bring hope:—

North Crandon, Wis.—"When I was 16 years old I got married and at 18 years I gave birth to twins and it left me with very poor health. I could not walk across the floor without having to sit down to rest and it was hard for me to keep about and do my work. I went to a doctor and he told me I had a displacement and ulcers, and would have to have an operation. This frightened me so much that I did not know what to do. Having heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I thought I would give it a trial and it made me as well as ever. I cannot say enough in favor of the Pinkham remedies."—MRS. MAYME ASBACH, North Crandon, Wis.

Testimony from Oklahoma.

Lawton, Okla.—"When I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I seemed to be good for nothing. I tired easily and had headaches much of the time and was irregular. I took it again before my little child was born and it did me a wonderful amount of good at that time. I never fail to recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to ailing women because it has done so much for me."—MRS. A. L. MCCASLAND, 509 Have St., Lawton, Okla.

From a Grateful Massachusetts Woman.

Roxbury, Mass.—"I was suffering from inflammation and was examined by a physician who found that my trouble was caused by a displacement. My symptoms were bearing down pains, backache, and sluggish liver. I tried several kinds of medicine; then I was asked to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It has cured me and I am pleased to be in my usual good health by using it and highly recommend it."—MRS. B. M. OSGOOD, 1 Haynes Park, Roxbury, Mass.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

AM I SERVING GOD OR THE ADVERSARY?

We Must Serve the One Cause or the Other.

An Important Thought for All to Consider—Whom Are the Professedly Christian Nations Serving?—Surely Not the Lord God—Service of Self is Service of Satan—He Seeks to Subjugate the Human Will—To No One But God Should the Will Be Yielded—Yielding the Will to Him Insures Our Highest Welfare and Happiness.

[The matter under this heading is supplied by the Pastor Russell Lecture Bureau, who conduct the Brooklyn Tabernacle (unsectarian) Bible Studies, and who have arranged for its publication.]

CHARLESTON, S. C., Feb. 13.—Pastor Russell delivered a very impressive discourse here today, taking for his text Romans 6:16—"His servants ye are to whom ye obey." The Pastor said in part:

If the words of our text were rightly appreciated, they would make a deep impression upon the whole civilized world. Our Lord instructs us that there are only two Masters—God and the Adversary. We are serving either the right or the wrong. We must serve the one cause or the other. There is no middle ground. As we look over the world, we see nations engaged in deadly strife. Whom are these millions serving? Whom do they profess to serve? They have been accustomed to speak and to think of themselves as Christian nations. But we doubt whether any intelligent person would make such a claim to-day.

The Scriptures clearly point out that there are no Christian nations; but that God is preparing a new nation, the members of which will constitute the rulers of the world when Messiah sets up His Kingdom. When this new nation comes into power, all other nations will be out of business. We accept the Bible declaration that these are the kingdoms of this world, and that they are under the domination of "the Prince of this world," Satan. And they are manifesting what is their true condition. The Apostle tells what are the fruits of the Spirit of Christ—gentleness, meekness, long-suffering, patience, godliness, brotherly-kindness, love. He tells us also of the opposite spirit—the Satanic spirit—anger, strife, bitterness, hatred, envy, murder. (Galatians 5:19-22; Colossians 3:5-8.) Judging the nations according to this Scriptural standard, we can draw only one conclusion.

Doubtless there are true saints of God in all these warring nations, but the nations themselves are surely far from Christian. They profess to be serving Christ, yet by their works they deny Him. "His servants ye are to whom ye render service." These nations have been giving money and sending missionaries to teach the heathen nations how to be Christians, how to do right. What impression must the present spectacle in Europe make upon these heathen peoples? Surely some grievous mistake has been made in calling these nations Christian. They are each serving purely selfish interests. The object of each is solely its own advancement. It is a great shame to see these nations bickering as to how much territory they have gained or must gain, when they have sent millions of men to slaughter and are laying waste homes and lands, as well as breaking unnumbered human hearts.

God's Kingdom to Displace These.

So far as can be discerned, principle seems to have been lost sight of, the main issue seems to be, "What can we do? How can we further our interests as a world power? How can we become a greater nation?" Although we are not qualified to judge hearts, nevertheless it seems that there has been great hypocrisy—men and nations pretending to be what they were not.

"His servants ye are to whom ye render service." Evidently the service of many, both in America and elsewhere, has been selfish. Wherever we may go throughout Christendom, we see church steeples rising on every hand. One would naturally think, "How happy these people must be!" How they must love the Lord and one another!" But, alas! how often we find many things that are contrary to the spirit of Christ!

The Word of God has foretold all this, however; and despite the present gloomy outlook, we are assured in this Word that the glorious Kingdom of Righteousness under God's dear Son will soon displace those kingdoms of this world, whose lease of power has now expired. But this will not be until the Church of Christ shall have passed from these present conditions of strife, selfishness, and dishonesty and shall have been glorified with their great Head. Then a new force will take control in the earth. Every evil thing will be brought under restraint. All the people will be enlightened, and enabled to come to a full knowledge of God and righteousness. Gradually the world will be uplifted and blessed; for they will have learned the bitter lesson of the exceeding sinfulness of sin, as manifested in the fruitage of selfishness.

Apparently many things are taught and practised under the name of Christianity that are not really Christian at all. Many people profess to believe what they do not actually believe. Whom are they serving? They cannot be serving the Lord; for the Lord does not desire dishonesty in His service. Apparently many join the church for purely selfish reasons. When people join a denomination whose teachings they do not believe, it would seem as though they did so for some personal advantage, as though some earthly interest is being served. People seem ready to profess almost anything if thereby they can make a better living, nor get along more prosperously. We are not judging the heart, nor do we wish to condemn any individual; but surely the majority know not the first principles of the matter of being a Christian.

We ask ourselves, To whom are this majority rendering service? Evidently they are serving Self. Nearly everybody is bowing down to himself, seeking his own pleasure and profit. Although there are noble exceptions, yet this seems to be the rule. Of all the various forms of idolatry, the meanest and worst is self-worship, the doing of everything just for self. Mankind do not seem to realise that whoever is actuated by selfishness is rendering effective service to Satan and his empire.

What Is It to Be a Christian.

As a counterfeit always implies the genuine, so counterfeit Christians imply the existence of genuine Christians. The genuine Christian, the loyal Christian, serves the Lord only, for this is the meaning of his contract, his consecration vow. Jesus said, "If any man will be My disciple, let him deny himself, take up his cross and follow Me." This means the giving of self to the Lord. The Master lays a deep foundation. Giving ourselves away, renouncing our own will, is the hardest thing one can do. But whoever would enter the School of Christ must do this very thing.

To give ourselves to any one except the Lord would be most unwise, most dangerous. Satan and his evil associates, the demons, seek to gain control of the human will. They seek to have people present their bodies to spiritism and occultism, that they may ensnare their victims and make slaves of these poor unfortunates, by taking away their will and substituting the will of another, as in hypnotism, etc. The will should be subjected to no one but God—not even to husband or wife or dearest friend. We may properly enough submit our course to another, but the will should never be submitted. To the Lord alone we may safely entrust our will. Given over to Him, it is made strong for the right, and our best interests are conserved.

To those who desire to follow in the path of righteousness, the Lord says, "Give Me thine heart." This means, Submit your will to Me. But merely to submit, saying, "I do not care to have it so, although I will be obedient," will not do. This will not bring us into the Lord's family. The Lord will have no half-hearted service. We must give all or nothing. We must give up our will absolutely, must have no contrary will of our own. We must be all the Lord's.

Should some one say, "This is carrying the matter very far," we reply: Yes; it is carrying the thought to the limit. This is exactly what Jesus did. He said to the Father, "Not My will, but Thine, be done." On another occasion He said, "I came not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me." He would have no other will but the will of the Father; and He set us an example, that we should follow His steps. To do so is to be a Christian.

The Apostle speaks of seeing from the Divine standpoint, of looking at things as God looks at them. So after we have given our hearts to the Lord, after we have been accepted in Christ and after God has given us His Holy Spirit, we learn in the School of Christ to see things from God's viewpoint. Having given up our own wills to Him, we desire to think as He thinks, to view matters as He views them, and to do as He would have us do.

A Common, But Incorrect, Thought.

God has His own way of choosing, and He accepts only certain ones; no one can enter His family except upon those definite terms which He Himself has made. This does not mean, however, that He will harm those who are not chosen; or that He will say to any one, "If you do not become My son, I will send you to the Devil, to be roasted and tormented to all eternity." Our God would not do this. Whoever would thus act would be a devil. Our God loves all, and has arranged a Plan of Salvation for all who will accept His terms during the Messianic Kingdom.

The way of life now open is a difficult one. "Strait (cramped, difficult of entrance) is the gate, and narrow is the way, that leadeth unto life; and few there be that find it." (Matthew 7:14.) It is very evident that the great majority of mankind do not understand the matter at all. "Eyes have they, but they see not; ears have they, but they hear not, neither do they understand" the Word of the Lord. The words of our Saviour seem not to penetrate, even when they are read. How thankful should those be whose eyes of understanding have been opened to see the terms laid down by the Lord.

Comparatively few people have a correct view of consecration. On one occasion a young minister came to us, wishing to co-operate in some way in our work. We said to him, "Have you made a full consecration of yourself to the Lord?" "Oh, yes, yes!" was his response. Then he began to speak of his talents, his oratorical ability, etc. We saw that he had considerable pride and very lofty ideas of how great a preacher he was to be; and we wished to make sure that he understood what consecration means.

So we said, "You know that all the true followers of Christ must have the same attitude that the Apostle Paul had. He declared that he counted all things but loss and dross that he might win Christ. The Bible presents the matter in just that way. Unless we make a thorough work of our consecration, we shall not win the prize of our High Calling. This making a thorough work of the matter means that we shall be thus loyal to the Lord and thus much in opposition to the Devil."

The young theologian began to get his eyes of understanding open a little. He said, "I was not thinking of going into it as deeply as that." We answered, "Brother, it is a matter of going in deeply or not at all. There are not different stages of entrance. There is but the one Door—our Lord Jesus Christ; and consecration is connected with the entering through that door. The Lord will not change His terms to please you or me. We must either enter as He invites us to go, or else remain outside. Full consecration is the only way into the Body of Christ." Then we pointed out to him what great talents St. Paul had and how he counted them as nothing in comparison to attaining a membership in Christ's Body, the Church. But all this was a new thought to him.

"What Shall I Render Unto the Lord?"

When we begin to see the matter from the right viewpoint, we see that at best we have very little to give to the Lord. When we begin to realise what He has offered us in exchange for all that we have, we really feel ashamed to offer our all to Him; for it is very, very small. He has offered us glory, honor, immortality, joint-heirship with Christ in His Throne. (Romans 2:7; 8:17; 2 Timothy 2:12.) And what have we to give Him in return! So far as being of real benefit to Him, our all is really worthless. We are the ones who receive the benefit. We are the recipients of marvelous favor, amazing grace. It is as if we were to offer to a man of immense wealth a few broken chairs, a cracked stove, and a ragged carpet in return for being made his heir.

God desires to have our heart, our will, our affection; and He graciously condescends to accept these along with our poor imperfect talents and to use them in His service, in the blessing of others. When we give Him our will, we give Him our all; for it includes our talents, our pocketbook, our influence, our time—everything that we possess. Then He places all these in our hands to be used for Him; and we, as His stewards, are to render to Him an account of how we use these things. All that we now do is to be done to the glory of God. We are to consider His will as to what we shall wear, what we shall eat, how we shall spend our time, where we shall go, etc. As His servants, we are to seek His will, His glory, in everything.

Whose Servant Am I?

What service have you rendered to-day, yesterday, last week, last month? We cannot do much; and when we have done our very best, we are still unprofitable servants, as the Master told us; that is, we are not able to bring any real gain to our Lord. (Luke 17:10.) But He lovingly and graciously accepts our best endeavors, and grants us His blessing. It would be impossible for a true child of God to tell what Divine grace has done for him. What shall we render unto the Lord for all His benefits to us? Surely, as the Psalmist says, "I will take the cup of salvation [the cup which the Father pours] and will call upon the name of the Lord; I will pay my vows unto the Most High."—Psalm 116; 12-14.

Let us who have taken these vows upon us to be wholly the Lord's be very careful, as the days go by, that the words of our mouth and all the conduct of life, even the very thoughts of our minds, shall be such, and such alone, as will bring glory to God—making these mortal bodies faithfully serve our Master.

As we give this subject prayerful consideration, we see more and more how close-girding this whole matter is. It enters into every detail of life. Our God is watching to see whose servants we really are. He scrutinizes us, not unkindly but lovingly, to see whether we have the filial spirit of a true son—the spirit of Christ. In His faithfulness He tests us that it may be demonstrated whether we are wholly loyal in thought, word, and action, or whether at heart we are self-seeking. He does not expect perfection in the flesh; for He knoweth our feeble frame. But He expects us to do our best; and the merit of our dear Redeemer will cover what we are unable to perform.

The Lord our God is giving each one of His children the opportunity to prove to Him, to our Lord Jesus, and to the angels how sincere we are, how thorough is our consecration, and how desirous we are to do the Divine will. He gives us opportunity to "lay down our life for the brethren," and "to do good unto all men, especially unto the Household of Faith." The Lord is taking notice of all these things; and "a book of remembrance" is being "written before Him for them that fear the Lord, and that think upon His name. And they shall be Mine, saith the Lord of Hosts, in that Day when I make up My jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not."—Malachi 3: 16-18.

We are in the beginning of that Day now. The jewels are even now being made up. Surely it is the earnest desire of every consecrated heart that our God may have found something commendable to write in His book of remembrance about us. We trust that He has been able to see that we love Him and are zealous for the honor of His great and holy name; that we are willing, yea, glad, to lay down our lives for Him. But He will not write it unless it is true.

We know that the Lord is very gracious and merciful; and that He will do His part. He knows that we cannot do perfectly! "He knoweth our frame; He remembereth that we are dust." Let us appreciate our Heavenly Father, and faithfully do our part. We have made a solemn Covenant with God, and He expects us to live up to its conditions. Let us see to it that we are serving Him, and not the Adversary; that we are serving God, and not self or denomination—serving Christ.

T. ATKINS AS A POET

SOME GOOD VERSES ARE WRITTEN IN THE TRENCHES.

Parodies on Tipperary and Other Well-known Songs Form the Bulk of the Poetry From the Front, but From Time to Time a Really Good Poem Finds Its Way to the Papers.

THE good soldier is always something of a poet, even if he does not actually blossom into words. Our Thomas Atkins is the good soldier personified, and his singing in the field has kept the Great War bright for us. He has now many songs, but "Tipperary" remains the favorite, and it has gone into a variety of versions which illustrate the gifts of Atkins for parody.

If you are a Canadian soldier, and you are thinking of that long Dominion which stretches from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and want to express your affection for it in "Tipperary," you do it this way:

It's a long way to the Prairie,
It's a long way to go;
It's a long way to the Prairie,
To the sweetest girl I know.
Greetings, Piccadilly!
What-ho, Leicester Square!
It's a long way to the Prairie,
And my heart's right there.

On the other hand, if you are a Scotsman and are dwelling fondly on the hills and vales of the beautiful North Land, you probably throw "Tipperary," as some soldier has done, into verse like this:

It's a lang way tae 'Auchtermuchty,
It's a lang way tae Perth,
It's a lang way tae anywhere,
Frae anywhere else on airth.
Guid-bye tae Bellachuish,
Farewell but an' ben,
It's a lang, lang way tae Auchtermuchty,
But we'll gang back again.

You see, the gift of writing parody is not confined to the fighting man of one part or another of the British Empire, but, like the tap of the British drum, it goes all round. Nor is it always "Tipperary" that is parodied, for here is an "under fire" version of that popular music-hall song, "Dolly Gray":

There's a coal-box in the air, Dolly Gray,
And shrapnel everywhere, Dolly Gray;
You wake up in the night and get an awful fright,
Which makes you think of home, Dolly Gray;
So good-bye, coal-box, I must leave you,
As I would sooner go than stay;
For I like to live in peace and quietness,
And that is all I have to say.

The trench life, with all its hardships, has made such a dent on the nature of Thomas Atkins that it is natural he should express as much in parodies of many popular songs. Here, from a rifleman, we have a new rendering of that idyllic ballad, "My Little Grey Home in the West":

I've a little wet home in the trench,
Where the rainstorms continually drench,
There's a dead cow close by,
With her feet towards the sky,
And she gives off a beautiful stench.
Underneath, in the place of a floor,
There's a mass of wet mud and some straw,
And the Jack Johnsons tear
Through the rain-sodden air,
To my little wet home in the trench.

So the parody proceeds, and it interests us until we come to another based on "D'ye ken John Peel?" and called "D'ye ken John French?"

His belt and gaiters and stout brown boots,
On the road to Berlin in the morning?

Yes, we ken John French, and old Joffre, too,
And all his men to the tricolor true;
On the road to Berlin in the morning.

Next a parody of Omar Khayyam, the Persian poet, the subject of it being the mystery of how some young fellows are lucky enough to get commissions:

Lo! some we know, the slackest and the worst,
That played the giddy idiot all they durst,
Have one by one been all gazetted, and
Are now the cursers and no more the cursed.

There you have satire made at home before the soldier goes to the war, but our chief interest with him as a poet is in the firing-line, and from there an engineer breaks into a versified call to his comrades in England to go out and help him:

From Belgium where we hear them calling,
Shrieks and clamor, loud, appalling,
Homes uprooted, churches falling,
Vengeance, Durham men!
Leave your shops, your benches,
Come to camp and trenches;

SKIN SOFT AS A CHILD'S.

"I was a great sufferer from eczema and nothing done for me," writes Mr. John W. Mean, Lunenburg, N. S. "Five years ago three cakes of Dr. Chase's Ointment cured me and the old trouble never returned. My skin is as soft as a child's now, and I shall always say a good word for this Ointment."

A TOUCH OF GOLD.

Its Magic Restored to Its Pedestal His Tottering Dignity.

One day during his prosperous "Adonis" time in London Henry M. Dixey was walking in the Strand when he met an American actor. He belonged to the order of self satisfied persons who live to give out the impression that the man they deign to speak to is specially singled out by an indulgent providence for high favor. This particular haughty one had obviously made acquaintance with misery. His clothes were seedy, and there were written all over him the signs of pressing want.

"Hello, old man, how are you getting on?" was the Dixey hail.

"Very well, I thank you, sir," replied the unbending one.

"Doing anything just now?" queried Dixey.

"Well, no, I may candidly say I'm no. These plebeian hounds over here do not estimate art at its proper value, and I have refused, in deference to my dignity, to accept anything less than I consider my services worth. I may be out of an engagement temporarily, but, thank heaven, I have not degraded myself by taking any paltry advances, and I still consider myself a gentleman."

Then he added, in a lower and less aggressive tone, "But I must candidly own that the pangs of hunger may soon make me forget my professional dignity, as I have not had a mouthful to eat in two days."

"For Heaven's sake," exclaimed the pitying Dixey, "take this and get something to eat!" And he laid in the starving man's hand a sovereign.

With the touch of gold in his consciousness the recipient's face underwent a magical change. Hailing a passing cab, he turned to Dixey and said: "Thanks, old fellow. I'll return this in a couple of days. Cabby, drive me to the Cafe Royal."

And away he went to spend that precious sovereign at a single throw. His pride as a gentleman must not be allowed to suffer.

German-Canadian Brigade?

That a brigade of Canadians of German descent be raised to fight for Canada at the front is the suggestion which has been made to the Minister of Militia and is now being considered by him. There are at present numbers of such men among the ranks of Canadian soldiers at the front, and they have done splendid service. The chief intelligence officer with the first contingent is a German-Canadian whose father was a German army officer and whose mother was the daughter of an Austrian general, with three brothers fighting in the Austrian ranks to-day. Her son in the Canadian army has already been decorated for good service.

COULD NOT BEND DOWN

COULD NOT WALK STRAIGHT

BACK WAS SO BAD.

The bad back comes from the kidneys, and unless the kidneys are carefully watched and properly regulated many serious troubles may follow.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure all forms of kidney trouble, and cure the kidneys so that they will stay cured.

Mr. J. A. Lubinlecki, Dauphin, Man., writes: "It is my pleasure to write you in regard to Doan's Kidney Pills which I have been using for some time for kidney trouble, which used to affect my back so that at times I could not bend down nor could I walk straight. I learned about your pills from your almanac, and I bless the happy hour I thought of buying this medicine. One time a druggist persuaded me to buy ——'s Kidney Pills, saying they were just as good, in fact he guaranteed they were. I yielded to his advice, and what was the result? I had bearing down pains in my back for two days, so I took the balance of the pills unused to the druggist and told him to give me Doan's Kidney Pills as they would stop the pain in twelve hours at the outside. He told me he was sorry I did not use more of the pills, and lengthen the time to await results. I told him there was no need of waiting with Doan's Pills; they go right to the spot. No substitute for me."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; See that our trade mark, "The Maple Leaf," is printed on both the table and wrapper.

May Use Their Own Automobiles in Berlin for Any Purpose.

The authorities have announced that the wives of foreign diplomats in the capital may use their own or rented automobiles for any purpose whatever — shopping, calling, pleasure driving.

Private automobiles in Berlin have, ever since March, been so extremely limited as to be almost non-existent. A few physicians and others working in the public service have been allowed to run their machines solely.

Consequently the sight of luxurious limousines carrying the diplomatic ladies to afternoon teas and to Unter den Linden shops has greatly aroused some people, and complaints have poured in on Police President von Jagow.

The latter has dashed all the hopes of the complainers by ruling that attaches of allied or neutral embassies and ministers are not affected by the rules that bind the rest of Berlin's population.

Never Looked for It.—"Charlotte, my dear, how is it I find you weeping? Have you had bad news from your husband?" "Oh, worse than that! Arthur writes me from the country that he would die with grief at being absent from me, were it not that he gazes at my picture and cover it with a thousand kisses every day. "That is very nice of him; but surely you are not crying about that? Most women would give anything to have such a poetic and devoted husband." "Oh, yes. Arthur is very poetical. But you don't know. Just to try him I put mother's photo into his travelling bag instead of my own, and the wretch has never found it out. Boo-hoo-hoo!"

"HE IS ALWAYS TELLING OTHERS ABOUT THEM"

Brother and Sister Cured by Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills—News of Cure Too Good to Keep.

In this letter Mrs. Hurley relates how glad she and her brother are to tell how they were cured of indigestion and kidney trouble by Dr Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

That is the kind of enthusiasm Dr. Chase's medicines arouse and that is why they are so generally known and used to-day. People who are cured tell their friends and neighbours, and so the word is passed along.

From the limits of Dr. Chase's practice at Ann Arbor, Mich., the good news of these medicines travelled until they are known the world over and considered indispensable in many thousands of homes.

This is the kind of letters we are receiving daily and there can be no mistaking the enthusiasm expressed here.

Mrs. J. J. Hurley, Upper Hanwell, York Co., N.B., writes: "I suffered from indigestion for two years, and tried a great many kinds of medicines but got no lasting relief until I used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I would take severe vomiting spells and be weakened down so that I could not do my own work. I shall never be able to give the medicine enough praise for the benefit derived from its use, and will strongly recommend it to all my friends.

"My brother has also used Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and they have entirely cured him of lame back and kindney trouble. He is always telling others about them."

Dr. E. L. Brine writes: "I can certify that this statement of Mrs. J. J. Hurley is correct in all details."

Chronic indigestion is almost invariably associated with torpid, sluggish action of the liver, kidneys and bowels, and can never be really cured until these organs are awakened to healthful action by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose 25 cts. a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

A RETROSPECT.

Two gallant fighting admirals
Set out upon the sea,
One was the gallant Cradock,
The other was Von Spee.

In peace they lived together,
Each by the North Sea side;
In war they chased each other
Over the oceans wild and wide.

Two thousand leagues they hunted
Each on his covey set,
Till off the shores of Chile,
One wild dark night they met.

When Cradock saw his enemy—
For such he proved to be—
He said: "We haven't a fighting chance,
In such a stormy sea.

No, not a chance in sixty—
We have not got the guns,
We have not got the calibre,
Of our enemy, the Huns.

We can but make a target.
We Britons never fly;
We'll do our best and leave the rest
At worst we can but die."

So spake the gallant Admiral,
His fleet, he knew, outclassed;
"We'll bang away while yet we may,
We have not long to last."

The sun went down and darkness fell
Over the lone Chilian Sea;
Alas, it was the last that set
For two ships of his three.

These two were living shambles.
The third was forced to fly;
The flag must still keep flying,
Though brave companions die.

Under cover of darkness,
She fled to gain the Strait
Of deep and rough Magellan,
Where two oceans have their gate.

"I fear that I have lost her,
This lame duck of the sea,
Though I know where I shall find her,"
Quoth Admiral Von Spee.

He steered a course for Falkland,
A damp and cloudy Isle,
And as he neared Port Stanley
He could not repress a smile.

"Ha, ha," said he, "what do I see?"
A single British cruiser;
Close in my good ships, one and all,
This time we shall not lose her.

Draw in and give the coup-de-grace
The fun will soon be over;
Then, with the town and island ours,
We'll live like pigs in clover."

However good his tactics were,
He reckoned without his hosts;
For, what were these grey monsters,
These awful, gliding ghosts.

He looked and saw a battle fleet,
Steam out of Stanley Bay;
He knew the reckoning had come;
He knew it was "the day."

His day had dawned.
His sun had set, upon that stormy sea,
And he and gallant Cradock met,
For all eternity.

MOVING PICTURES.

Why They Appear to the Eye as One Continuous Photograph.

Motion pictures depend for their successful operation upon the physiological phenomenon known as "persistence of vision." If, for instance, a bright light is moved rapidly in front of the eye in a dark room it appears not as a spark, but as a line of light. A so called shooting star produces the same effect.

This result is purely physiological and is due to the fact that the retina of the eye may be considered practically as a sensitized plate of relatively slow speed, so that an image impressed upon it remains before being effaced, for a period ranging from one-sixteenth to one-seventh of a second, according to the idiosyncrasies of the individual and the intensity of the light.

So it will be seen that if a number of pictures are successively presented to the eye they will appear as a single continuous photograph, provided the periods between them are short enough to prevent one of the photographs being effaced before its successor is presented to the eye.

If, for instance, a series of identical portraits were rapidly presented to the eye a single picture would apparently be viewed, or if we presented to the eye a series of photographs of moving objects, each one representing a minute successive phase of movement, the movements themselves would appear to be taking place. This is the principle of moving pictures.

SYRIAN SAND STORMS.

One of the remarkable features of the climate and atmosphere of Syria is the prevalence of whirlwinds and waterspouts, both on land and over the sea. They are most prevalent in the deep trough of the Jordan valley and also in Coele-Syria, where the Lebanon and anti-Lebanon form another trough for the winds. They sometimes do an immense amount of damage and often at most unexpected seasons.

As a touring missionary in northern Syria I often met the whirlwinds. They appear in the shape of a column of dust perhaps two to five feet in diameter, rising straight in the air for several hundred feet, opening like a large funnel at the top. The lower end touches the ground and swings over the surface, picking up dust and pebbles in its path. The chaff and even grain on the threshing floors are sucked up and disappear. Small fish are sometimes drawn up when the swaying column passes over a stream or lake.

Many years ago I made the experiment of riding through the swaying column of a rather innocent looking whirlwind. My horse was terrified, and I had difficulty in keeping my seat in the saddle. It is impossible to say exactly what did happen. It took me some time to find my hat and several days to get the sand and dust from my eyes and ears and clothing, and I have never made it again.

"Hang on Tight."

When a smoking car with thirty-five passengers jumped the track a railroad engineer in the car, off duty, yelled to the passengers to "hang on tight," and while the car turned over no one was hurt.

"Hang on tight" is good advice in most upsets. The man who hangs on tight to himself when his temper is upset will get through without hurting either himself or others. The man who "hangs on tight" to his earnings ends with a competence. The man who "hangs on tight" to his place when business upsets come generally holds down his job. The man who "hangs on tight" when disturbancment or even disaster upsets others is a man to be hopeful about, because he will keep right side up whatever else turns over.

AIR RAID COMING.

Thomas B. Macmechen Thinks It Will Be Biggest Hun Exploit Yet.

"I believe there will be another Zeppelin attack on London within sixty days. When the raid does come it will be bigger than anything that has gone before and will be repeated night after night. The Germans will probably send at least ten Zeppelins. They are now gathering a fleet so large that they can afford to risk the loss of four or five in a raid.

"It was because they had no airships to spare that they stopped these visitations this fall. Now they are nearly ready again to strike repeated blows—to cross the channel in force, as they must do to create the amount of terror that they desire.

"But England is awake. She knows the game now. She has learned that airship must be fought with airship. She is preparing in the light of what the war has taught her to meet the menace in the right way. She is building rigid dirigibles. When the raiders come she will not be helpless."

The foregoing predictions were made by Thomas B. Macmechen, aeronautical engineer and president of the Aeronautical Society of America. He recently returned from England, where a small dirigible which he in part designed and which is described as a "torpedo boat destroyer of the air" is being completed by a syndicate under official British eyes.

Mr. Macmechen predicted last spring that the ships of Count Zeppelin would stun London and that the aeroplanes and high angle guns of the British would prove futile against them. Other experts at the time disagreed with him. But on May 31 bombs were dropped on the capital, and then, as in subsequent raids, the marauders got safely away. Mr. Macmechen now says:

"At the beginning of the war the Allies thought that aeroplanes and anti-air craft guns would be sufficient. But what the Zeppelins have done is known to the world, and it is also known that Arthur Balfour said recently in the House of Commons that England was building rigid dirigibles to meet the situation imposed by the Zeppelin raids.

"The ascent of aeroplanes at night to search for and attack Zeppelins has proved most dangerous. Numbers of aviators have been killed in England, France, and Russia in making night landings. Moreover when the aeroplanes appear the Zeppelins rise to a great height and compel the planes to exhaust their fuel in climbing after them. The Zeppelin jumps to 10,000 or 12,000 feet, subjects the aeroplane to machine gun fire, then speeds away.

"These raids have convinced the Allies that the aeroplane as a weapon of defense is a failure and that not much trust could be reposed in the anti-air craft guns. It is a mere potshot if a Zeppelin is hit. The chances in the gunner's favor are about as great as if he were playing roulette. Besides, the shrapnel fired from these guns has killed people when it fell back to earth, as I predicted it would.

"The Zeppelins are not yet firing torpedoes, but they will be doing so if the war lasts another year. Something similar to the Whitehead torpedo is being developed in the Krupp works. It takes thirteen seconds for a bomb dropped from an altitude of 2,500 feet to reach the earth.

"Everything considered, the Zeppelins have hit their targets a remarkable number of times. But a bomb that misses its mark means a great waste of weight brought all the way across the channel. The bomb will be replaced by the precise and deadly torpedo, shot from the Zeppelin at an initial velocity of 650 feet a second.

Hypatia.

Among the great scientists of the Alexandrian school, or, rather, mathematicians, were Pappus, one of the greatest of ancient mathematicians; Theon and his unfortunate daughter, the famous Hypatia—who appears to have been a better mathematician than her father—the story of whose life and tragic death is familiar through Kingsley's novel. Unfortunately none of her works is extant. She was the last of the Alexandrian philosophers who attained any fame. She lived about 415 A. D.

The Orkney Islands.

"The member from the Orkneys" is the only man in the British house of commons who can say he sits for 200 islands. Only sixty of the islands are inhabited, but the constituency embraces more than 60,000 people.

The Orkneys were once given by Norway to England as security for a queen's dower and never redeemed. In the islands the voters must go to the polls by boats, and in some cases the distance to be traveled is eight miles.

"GET UP, WILLIAM."

[The following verses are by Mr. Francis Gribble, and were written at Rubleben, where he was a prisoner of war. Mr. Gribble wrote them after reading the news of the landing of Lord Kitchener's new Army. "Aufstehen!" means "get up!" It is the shout with which the Rubleben soldiers roused the prisoners in the morning.]

Aufstehen, William, you must hurry up to-day!
Kitchener is knocking at the door!
He knows he isn't wanted, but he will not go away.
He keeps on knocking at the door.
He hasn't come alone, but he's brought the families,
A swarm of little cousins who have sailed across the sea.
Now they mean to have a hot time in the City on the Spree:
And they're all there, knocking at the door.

Aufstehen, William, the hour is getting late—
And it's Kitchener who's knocking at the door!
Aufstehen, William, you've had your little fling,
But quite forgot, while having it, that time was on the wing;
So we've got the Hohenzollerns in a row upon a string,
Now that Kitchener is knocking at the door!

Kitchener a-knocking at the door!
Kitchener a-hammering the floor!
So tumble up and tumble out and tumble down the stairs
You and Mrs. W., and all your sons and heirs, Saying: "Aren't you rather early, sir? It looks as unseasonable
To find your Lordship knocking at the door."

Aufstehen! Aufstehen! Show his lordship up!
His Lordship's come to breakfast, and he means to stay to sup,
So you mustn't keep him waiting at the door.
It's work you're unaccustomed to, but put away your pride,
And bow your head politely, saying: "Please to step inside!"
For Kitchener's the sort of guest that will not be denied,

Saved by the Telephone.

The word "hello" has been saved to popular usage by the telephone, and by that alone. Thirty-five years ago there was a real crusade against the so-called slang phrase, and the great conversational invention came to the rescue just in time.

Ages of Race Horses.

The age of race horses is taken from the first day of January in the year in which they are born. Thus, a horse foaled in March would be counted as a foal until the following Jan. 1, just the same as an animal born in December.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL

Run-down, Weak and Nervous—Made Strong by Vinol.

For the benefit of Peterborough school girls who overwork and get into highly nervous, weak and rundown condition, we publish this letter from Dorris Coplier, of Forth Worth, Tex.: "I go to the high school and take music lessons, and became rundown, weak and very nervous, so I could not do anything. I would shake all over and could have screamed at times, and was really unfit to keep on with my studies. Mother purchased a bottle of Vinol for me and within a week I was better, and in two weeks I had gained five pounds and felt fine."

It is the curative strengthening elements of the true cod liver extract, aided by the blood-making, revitalizing effect of peptonate of iron and beef peptone, contained in Vinol, which made it so successful in building up health and strength and overcoming the nervous condition of Miss Coplier, and we ask every school girl in Peterborough who is in a like condition to try Vinol, on our guarantee to return their money if it fails to benefit.

HOT FIGHTING AT SEVERAL POINTS ON WESTERN FRONT

French Win a Bloody Victory at The Village of Frisc South of The Somme Where Several German Trenches Were Captured. Near Seppois The Germans Captured 200 Yards of Trenches But Were Driven Out By French Counter Attacks.

ONLY ONE MAN SAVED FROM FRENCH CRUISER

LONDON, Feb. 14.—By battering blows south of Sainte Marie, the Germans are making desperate efforts to drive a wedge in the French line with the object of bending back the whole French front in the Champagne region. Berlin despatches report gains on the French left wing that more than offset the advance made by the French on their right, in the fighting northwest of Massiges. Both Berlin and Paris agree that the fighting in the Champagne district is heavier than at any time since the French rushed forward in the great offensive movement of last September. The German counter-attacks are delivered with the greatest force on the French left. Attacks and counter-attacks by both sides are going on at the same time in the Vimy Heights region north of Arras. Official despatches from both capitals indicate heavy slaughter with no important changes either in the Champagne or the Artois. The "nibbling" of the past two weeks is believed to have resulted in casualties of between 75,000 and 100000 men. The fighting is now spreading to nearly every sector of the front, the Germans mostly on the offensive, though heavy artillery engagements have been going on all along the battle line, there is nothing thus far in reports of selling to indicate artillery preparation by the Germans for the predicted grand offensive.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Berlin official reports claim Germans have taken another six hundred yards of French trenches and captured three hundred men and several machine guns in the Champagne district, and that Turkish forces are steadily pressing the British forces in Mesopotamia back towards Aden, the Gibraltar of the Suez. There is no confirmation here for either report.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The German troops captured 200 yards of French trenches east of Seppois, in upper Alsace, the French War Office admitted in an official statement this afternoon, but most of the lost ground was retaken by a French counter-attack.

The War Office statement indicated no important changes in the situation in Champagne or ner of Arras, where the Germans and French have been locked in desperate struggles for more than 48 hours.

The German onslaught in Upper Alsace was preceded by a most violent bombardment that wrecked portions of French trenches before the Teutons could dig themselves in they were driven out of most of the newly conquered positions. The War Office reported a French victory in a bloody encounter at the village of Frise, south of the Somme.

"Sunday afternoon we captured several German trenches," said the statement. "The Germans counter-attacked. A German company was decimated excepting seventy men who were made prisoners. The German losses were considerable."

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Only one man out of a crew of 375 of the French cruiser Admiral Charner was rescued. Reports of the sinking of the vessel are confirmed.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—Rumania's mobilization is now complete, said an official statement given out here to-day. The Carpathian and Danubian defenses have been finished.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The British cruiser Arethusa, which has figured in some of the most thrilling English naval exploits of the war, has struck a mine off the east coast. The Admiralty announced this afternoon that it is feared she is a total wreck. Ten of her crew were lost. The Arethusa, which is a light cruiser built in October, 1913, was known as the dare-devil of the English fleet. Her exploits inspired several English poets to create rhythms in her honour, and the Arethusa's crew were popular heroes in England. She displaced only 3,520 tons, and as armament mounted only two 6-inch and six 4-inch guns.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The first proclamation, calling upon unmarried men eligible for military service under the Conscription Act, was posted at Wallasy near Liverpool to-day.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A despatch from Athens says Turkish forces in formidable numbers are being sent to Mesopotamia. The troops released from the Dardanelles are already on their way thither, and small contingents have also left from Thrace.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says that Bulgarian forces have occupied the Albanian town of Fiera, about 14 miles from Avlona.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Increasing activity in the Balkans is reported from Athens. Following the arrival of French and British reinforcements at Salonika the French are again proceeding up the railway concentrating troops as far forward as the Bulgarian frontier.

LONDON, The reported Teutonic advance carries the Germans southward toward a strongly fortified French blockhouse on the Soudin-Sommepy highway, the scene of bloody fighting in the September offensive of the Allies. These forts have been modernized lately, and it is impossible for the Germans to get past them.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Reports of an attempted German invasion of Canada, from the American side were discounted at the Department of Justice to-day. It was declared that the department agents know where all large supplies of arms are stored, and that the close co-operation the United States and Canadian immigration authorities makes any move without the knowledge off the authorities impossible.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—President Wilson, it became known in high official circles to-day, is in perfect accord with Secretary of State Lansing, as to the policy to be pursued regarding the Teutonic decree that all armed merchantmen, passenger as well as freight, will be torpedoed without warning. The President, his close advisers said to-day, considers issues which may arise through the carrying out of the new Teutonic submarine policy, fraught with possibilities as grave, if not graver, than any which have confronted the nation since the first shot of the European was was fired.

After perusal of the German notification to-day, State Department officials said Germany draws no distinction between freight and passenger boats. The name "merchantmen" includes both classes of ships.

SCHNECTADY, N.Y., Feb. 14.—Serious damage is reported to have been done by a mysterious fire in the munition factory of the General Electric Co. early to-day. Although a report from the company declared the property was but slightly damaged owing to oil pipes becoming overheated, the plant is reported from outside sources to have been put out of commission.

Fire among oil-soaked metal borings, and an explosion among several metal barrels filled with reclaimed oil, caused the fire in the ammunition plant of the Schnectady General Electric Co.'s works. It will close down for several days, throwing 400 employees out of work for the present.

Many rumours of German spy plots were current throughout the city to-day, as there is a large German colony here.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Claude Graham-White, noted English aviator, to-day personally denied reports that he had been seriously wounded in France.

MOUNTED RIFLES HAVE GONE TO THE FRONT AS INFANTRY

The Fine Corps to Which Peterboro Contributed A Squadron Have Been Broken Up and Men Are Now In The 8th Brigade

AN INTERESTING LETTER

The following has been received by the Examiner from an officer in the 8th C.M.R., and will be read with great interest:

4, Victoria Street,
London, S.W., Jan. 29, 1916.

They are gone, and to all intents and purposes. The 8th, 9th and 12th C.M.R.'6 ended as regiments yesterday, at noon.

A draft of 340 from the 8th, 300 each from the 9th and 12th, and a previous draft a week ago of 50 each from the 3 C.M.R.'6 made a complete hash of these fine corps.

The men were the pick of the districts in which they were recruited as the mounted service seemed always to get the pick, but yesterday they marched out of Bramshott, for Southampton, and France, to reinforce the 8th Brigade, and are now in France, (somewhere).

The C.M.R.'s establishment in France has all been changed to infantry, which means about 65 men to an officer, or rather, lieutenant, and as the mounted arm needed one lieutenant for about every 37 men No officers or N.C.O.'s were required in these drafts, and we had the ordeal of seeing the boys we had enlisted and trained and got to know, march away in infantry uniform and packs. We can now appreciate how it feels to see the others go away and have to stay behind, through no fault of ours. It is all part of the job and discipline, but in this case, was rather bitter medicine. Our only hope is that the boys will be kept together and not broken up all over the brigade, as they had made their chums, and we were like a family being separated from one another.

B Squadron sent 108 men. Peterborough may get the credit, and should, for a great part of this fine squadron, but the men came really off the district traversed by the Grand Junction Railway—Peterborough, Belleville, Stirling, Frankfort, Hastings, Norwood and Asphodel, all being represented, and no better men ever came from anywhere.

The 8th Brigade is composed of mounted Canadians, dismounted and fighting in the trenches. Their establishment of 136 per squadron, three squadrons to a regiment, were a misfit for the work over there and after considerable trying out, the new establishment (infantry) was made. No sergeants, or officers went in the draft, as, as I stated before, they

This morning the thermometer at 7 o'clock stood at 20 degrees below zero. No lower during the night. This is the lowest of the present winter.—W. P.

Dr. GRENFELL'S MISSION

This week both The Examiner and Review will receive the annual contributions for the Deep Sea Mission. This appeal made each year by the Ministerial Association of Peterborough has always met with a most hearty response, and this year will be no exception. The Consecrated Doctor with his noble band of workers on the bleak coast of Labrador need all the encouragement the Christian people of Canada can give them. The story of wounds healed, and children taught, and souls saved through the work of the Deep Sea Mission is something that can be completely told only in eternity. Dr. Grenfell forsook all to follow the Lord's leading into that lone land, and like the Apostle Paul, "in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils in the sea, in weariness and painfulness, in fasting often and in cold," he has continued his work.

This year has for obvious reasons been one of the most difficult. The whole world is in need, and the generosity of the Christian people has been greatly taxed, and yet it is the conviction of the Ministers of Peterborough that no one of their members would desire that this work should be neglected.

All contributions left at the newspaper offices will be acknowledged through their columns, and no sum is too small to be appreciated and no amount too large to be wisely used.

Mrs. James Wood of this city is the Honorary Treasurer of the fund, and all enquiries concerning the work may be made of her, 'phone number ONE. All who leave one dollar or more will receive the Deep Sea Mission Magazine for the year.

J. E. R. Munro, Captain,

In spite of the advent of the Belmont Battery into the field, recruiting for the 93rd Battalion continued good during last week, some forty men having been added to the strength. This number does not include a detachment at Apsley, who have not yet been sworn in. This strength of the battalion has reached the 750 mark, and is steadily climbing.

Lt.-Col. Stewart, the inspector of supply and transport for No. 3 Military Division, paid a visit to Peterborough this morning. He was accompanied by his son, Lieut. Stewart, of the 12th Canadian Battalion, home on furlough from England.

Tommy Hess, the well-known Canadian League catcher, who formerly caught for Hamilton, has enlisted in the 173rd Battalion at Hamilton. He is not the first Canadian League ball player to join the colours. Wild Bill Baker, the London and Brantford pitcher, and Dad Stewart, the hard-hitting outfielder, who was a member of the Petes for part of the 1914 season, both being members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Miss Arabette Du Rien, daughter of Sergt. Major Du Rien, now stationed at Quebec, and who is a pupil at the South Central school, sent some parcels of handkerchiefs and chocolates to the soldiers at Christmas. She has received the following letter from Pte. Herb. Edward of Peterborough:

Jan. 28, 1916.

Dear Miss Du Rien,— I received your present this morning and the handkerchiefs came in very acceptable I assure you, and especially as they came in the name of the old school where I did all my schooling, just leaving about six years ago; I do not live far from the school. 485 Sherbrooke street where mother still resides. You can call and see her if you wish, for I know she will be glad to meet you.

I left Peterborough last April to go to Belleville to do our training, and I have been over here since July 1st and have not been to France yet, but expect to go soon now. I will be glad if you let me know how they are getting on at the school and who is your teacher, for I suppose you still go there, and if you do you may ask your teacher if she knows Herbert Edwards, as I used to know them all there. You will have to write and let me know all that is going on in my old home town, and send me an Examiner if it is not too much trouble for you.

I meet a lot of Peterborough boys over here and they are almost everywhere you go. I would be pleased to hear from you any time you please to write, and I will tell you all the news over here in England.

I have just come back from a pass to Scotland. I was in Edinburgh and Glasgow and they are fine place and I met lots of people who were glad to see a Canadian, as they seldom see

THE RECRUITING MEETING WAS WELL ATTENDED

Despite The Extreme Cold a Large Number of Citizens Turned Out to Hear Professor Wrong of Toronto—Ex-Mayor Buller Acted As Chairman

THE REAL PURPOSES

Despite the severity of the weather a large number of citizens turned out to the armouries last night to hear Professor Wrong of Toronto, who in a very lucid and scholarly style presented the real purposes of the war.

Ex-Mayor Buller acted as chairman and briefly referred to the remembrances that he and the aldermen had sent in the form of Christmas cards to every Peterborough boy serving the Empire, no matter at what point he had enlisted. To these he had received many replies. Everyone seemed happy and contented. "At first," said they, "we had not enough guns, not enough ammunition, yet we kept the Huns out of Paris. Now we are ready, plenty of guns are here, with shells by the field full, ready for the Huns when they call again."

Two-fold Aim.

Capt. Widdifield, in a neat speech, presented the two-fold aim of the recruiting meetings. Not only was it the desire to obtain additions to the 93rd, but to influence public opinion along right lines. If this latter is achieved there will be no trouble filling up the ranks of the local Battalion, which he hoped would be strictly a Peterborough unit.

Professor Wrong.

"A soldier commands my special reverence," said Prof. Wrong. "In the street car I give him my seat, because we are looking to him to save all that has come down from the past that we value. He represents liberty, serving of his own free will, discipline, for united action, and sacrifice."

In discussing the question of what the war is about, or its real purposes, roughly speaking there are two phases of development in the conflict; barbarism in conflict with civilisation, and it is that civilisation which is at stake, in which our own people have taken a large part.

Our liberties have come to us through the bravery of the English people. No other nation has such a long record of political liberty that England has. It is the one great thing which England has given the world. It is a well known fact that the parliament that sits at Westminster is the mother of all parliaments.

Political Liberty.

These liberties have not been lightly won, instead they were obtained by long hard struggles. The liberties that France gained along the lines of British political liberty was not lightly won. It cost much blood to obtain them. Looking back over our own history what tenacious fighting we had to secure them! The climax was reached when our ancestors struggled with the king and sent him to the block. The despotic power of the ruler has not yet been settled in Germany. It is true a reaction occurred with us but it has been followed by two hundred years of liberty. In France, more than two hundred years ago, they had to send their king to the block, and after nearly a century of revolution she reached the free system which she enjoys at the present time.

German is Behind.

Germany has not yet faced the struggle that our ancestors faced three hundred years ago, and France one hundred and fifty years ago, during the time of Elizabeth and Henry VIII. Politically Germany is three hundred years behind us in development. Our liberties were bought in a death struggle with despotism. If we are beaten in this conflict all our civilization is undone. "I, for one," said the Prof.

RED TAPE RABIES.

A commanding officer of a Canadian force in Calgary was verbally informed by a Calgary restaurant keeper that he had reason to fear that the soldiers under the officer's command were going to attack and wreck his premises, and requested that the restaurateur's notice should be furnished him in writing. Not having received this documentary notice, the officer did nothing, the restaurant was attacked and destroyed. There was more red tape than common sense in this stickling per form. If such an officer had his men in the battle lines and were told that the enemy was advancing in force on his flank, would he insist on a written notice of the enemy's approach before he acted? Common sense is an invaluable possession and saves many a situation. The man is best suited for office of responsibility who has plain, every-day common sense as a part of his equipment. There's a time to use red tape and a time to use horse sense. The officer spoke of didn't have the horse sense, and no matter how perfectly he has his military technique in hand he hasn't the head for an officer. It is stated that in a certain school in a certain city a small fire broke out, quickly put out but leaving too much smoke for comfort. The teachers set open the doors and sent the children outside til the smoke had escaped. The weather was cold and many of the children had not thoroughly recovered from measles; and while they were outside without their wraps the teachers stayed inside in the least smoky room with their wraps on. Both of these cases each in its way shows the wisdom of using the mind to think and the heart to care. The officer may have kept within the letter of his duty, but he was lacking in the spirit—in the exercise of common sense, and was potentially guilty of the wrecked restaurant.

THE BAR BANISHED.

Misfortunes come not singly. Their gregarious character has been proved by the members of parliament. First the fire wiped out their luxurious home with all its comfort and, every luxury of appointment. Now a worse thing has befallen them. The "bar"—situated high in the top of the late parliament buildings, has gone the way of extinction. It wasn't exactly a bar, but it answered the purpose. It was the place where liquid refreshments that cheered, and very often, inebriated, our legislators, could be obtained in unstinted and unregulated quantities. It was not officially recognised, but it was there. Its physical locale was destroyed or disturbed by the fire; and now its spirit, or or spirits, must go, or rather, not come back. In the new and temporary legislative quarters there has been no provision made for the bar. Members of parliament, when thirsty, must forage for drinks like ordinary men. If the parliamentary bar has not been officially recognized it has been recognised as an incongruity—a place where liquor could be served and consumed on the premises at all hours of the day and night to all and singular who applied. It was outside the jurisdiction of the provincial license officials, and even of the provincial parliament, and if it remained when the present Ontario Government enacts prohibition, the parliamentary bar would remain as a "blind pig" in the midst of an otherwise "dry" Ontario. The bar, however, is not to be re-established. This decision may be regarded as an outrage, a restriction of the "personal liberty" of our lawmakers. But, contrary to supposition, members of parliament are only common mortals, and must submit to the ordinary processes of law; especially in this age when restriction of drinking facilities and practices is becoming a popular obsession We may not get prohibition under the present government, but the drop of the bar is sealed, both in the purlieus of parliament and in the provinces, one after the other, if not over the whole dominion. When our Federal authorities "banish the bar" the force of example may operate to suggest action to our provincial authorities.

PATRIOTISM AND APPOINTMENTS.

If at any time, then, at the present, patriotism in appointments to office should override partisan considerations. In Toronto there is trouble in the party ranks, themselves, over an appointment. Mr John Reid failed to secure appointment as a factory inspector, and the Riverdale Conservative Association, of which he is presumably a protege, is indignant. A little unpleasantness in the Conservative family over office appointments may have little interest for the general public, but the motives that influenced the government in making a selection is of very special interest to the public. The Toronto man was apparently "turned down" after being promised the position, in favour of a man from Eastern Ontario. This is not so bad; but the reason the Eastern man was selected reveals bad conditions. A cabinet minister from Eastern Ontario is said to have declared that to appoint the Toronto man would "cost him" (the minister) "his bread and butter." This means that if he appointed the Toronto man who is admittedly well qualified as factory inspector, with three sons on the firing line, the stability of the minister's position would be prejudically affected. This is the vicious part of the situation. The personal interests of a minister, of a partizan, must be pitted against the efficiency of the public service. Not only must the official selected for office be a partisan of the proper colour; but he must be from a section of the province that will save a minister "his bread and butter"; strengthen his position in the cabinet, which should be rendered safe by efficiency of service.

It would seem that partizanship goes far that cannot avoid family quarrels over the division of the spoils. Is it possible that there is some partizan considerations that influence Dominion ministers in retaining in important offices, alien enemies whose presence in positions of trust is a national danger? There are four men of German birth or origin hold ing most responsible places in Otta wa. It is safe to have men whose nationality inevitably exposes them to suspicion, kept in positions, in which they may have access to state secrets which, revealed to the enemy, would imperil great national interests? Whatever considerations of personal or party nature retain these men in office, patriotism and the interests of the country and empire would suggest dispensing with their services. Certainly we can find in Canada, Canadians of unimpeachable loyalty, capable of filling positions of trust, and it would be the commonest decency to give Canadians of undoubted loyalty and trustworthiness the benefits of the emoluments of office in preference to aliens of a country which experience has shown to be utterly unworthy of trust—aliens of a country with which we are at relentless war. Canadians whom we know and trust, and who will give faithful and loyal service, should, one would think, be preferred to foreigners, who have access to state secrets, which the enemy would give much to get, if there were not the easier way of having political agents in the service of the Government of Canada.

LOOKS FAR FROM RIGHT.

Men of German birth or of German name and family occupied earlier in the war, or now occupy, four positions of extreme importance in Great Britain and Canada.

One was at the head of the British navy.

One is private secretary to the Canadian Minister of Marine, who looks after our coast defences and is in charge of our navy, such as it is.

These four men were fine men. All who knew the first two in England angrily resented the casting of any aspersion on them. Yet the posts they were in did not look like posts that they ought to be in, and they resigned.

These two men in the Canadian service, one in our army and one in our navy, are fine fellows, too, as all who know them, say, but the posts they are in do not look like posts that they ought to be in at a time like this.

The appearance of it is not right. The men may be all right, and they may have given excellent service and it need not be suggested that they be dismissed or unfairly used. But the country should not use itself unfairly either. There are other posts to which men of German birth or family could be transferred until the shocks and strains, doubts and distrusts, of this great war have evi

The British People Are Not Quite Given Over To Cult of Materialism

Sir David Beatty's solemn appeal to the religious instincts of the British people, is being commented upon very widely, and with unanimous approval. To show that in these dark days of stress men turn instinctively to their religious instructors a correspondent has very kindly sent a copy of the Record, a religious publication, which reports many of the great services held at the first of the year in the chief English churches. This was, at the suggestion of the Archbishop of Canterbury, made a day of intercession. In many churches there were unprecedented crowds. In others as many as eleven services were held, in the course of the day. There were some notable utterances, which ought to be remembered long after the immediate occasion for them has been forgotten, and which are as applicable today in Canada as in England when they were delivered.

The Bishop of London.

In London the chief services were at St. Paul's Cathedral, where, in spite of the drenching rain, great congregations assembled. In the morning the Bishop of London was the preacher, and very aptly he pointed out that, in any review of the war, it was God Who made all the difference. What did God think about it? That was the only question worth asking on the first Sunday in the New Year. God had no special favourites. It was part of His education of the world that He never let a nation or an individual off the responsibilities of their mistakes or did their work for them. It was no part of God's plan to stop the inevitable, but God had never allowed devilry, lust and tyranny finally to triumph. The truth was that if the day of victory was coming it was only part of a larger day. Our sons would have died in vain if, after the war was over, we went back to our old life. At the afternoon service the Lord Mayor, aldermen, and sheriffs, and some eighty members of the Corporation of London attended in state. Nearly all those present were in mourning, and the almost unvaried black of the vast congregation had a solemn and impressive effect.

At South Hackney Parish Church, in addition to many services on the Day of Intercession, the rector, the Rev. B. S. Batty, and his colleagues arranged a very effective procession throughout the parish on Sunday afternoon. The principal streets were visited, and in each the names of those who had gone forth from that particular street were read out. After they had been commended to God in prayer the Bishop of Stepney, who accompanied the procession, addressed a few words of sympathy and encouragement to the relatives living in the street. The rector then showed the crowd a special prayer-card, inviting all who wished to pray for their dear ones at the front to come that night to the parish church and receive one. The effectiveness of the procession was much enhanced by the band of the 10th County of London Regiment, who led it. In the evening the large parish church was crowded, and it was a most impressive sight to see all those who had responded to the rector's invitation filling up to the Communion rails to receive the card. All gave their names and addresses, and it is proposed to start a "League of Prayer," with weekly meetings for them.

The Archbishop at York Minster.

At York Minster the Archbishop of York was the special preacher. The Archbishop based his sermon on the words (Matt. vi. 9, 10. For this nation there we [illegible] (asked the Archbishop) learning slowly—might it be [illegible] that the ordeal through which we are passing was testing not only our capacity for [illegible], but our moral strength? Without the immense renewal of our moral strength we could not hope to achieve so great a thing as victory, when the powers massed against us were so strong that [illegible] the things that were hindering and preventing us putting forth our whole strength were just the relics of the old wrong spirit of the nineteenth century, which was being judged—our disputes, our divisions, our assertion of the rights, and the neglect of the duties of the classes of men, our self-indulgence. It might well be that victory was withheld until God saw we had learned the lesson.

At St. Peter's, Liverpool, the Bishop said there could be no doubt that the greatest source of national strength was a national knowledge of God. The New Year broke upon an England saddened, troubled, and anxious. We were mourning the loss of nearly 120,000 of our bravest and our best who had fallen in battle. We were mourning the vast number of half a million casualties. Our land was filled with the maimed and wounded. There was scarcely a village or a congregation that was not mourning one of its members. We had had to face failure, disappointment, and reverse, and yet in the strength of God we were facing the future with undiminished resolution. But the goal would never be reached unless we as a nation know God.

Frivolity of National Life.

At the evening service, closing a long series of services in Manchester Cathedral, the preacher was the Bishop, who said the war had taught us that we had made far too much of amusement, and that our moral fibre had been weakened by its pursuit. It was not surprising that people who had been brought face to face with the actualities of the war should be profoundly discontented with the frivolity in our national life, and he believed that when the men came back from the trenches they would be impatient of the old forms of religion. At Bradford on Sunday a great united service was held in St. George's Hall. The congregation embraced people of all the Protestant denominations. The devotions were led by the two chief religious leaders of the city, the Vicar of Bradford, representing the English Church, and the Rev. Principal Griffith-Jones the Free Churches. The Lord Mayor (Mr. Thomas Howarth) also took part. It was a united service in every sense of the word. "At such a time," said the Rev. Principal Griffith-Jones, who delivered the address, "we merge all our differences in view of the great national crisis in which we feel ourselves, and under a sense of common spiritual need."—Mail and Empire.

PRINCES BOWLED OUT.

Prince Oscar of Germany is out of the war with a weak heart, and the Crown Prince is out of it with a weak head.—Montreal Mail.

SAVE PENNIES FOR THE WAR.

Economy and thrift are the primary obligation of all Canadians who cannot go to the war. It should be feasible here, as in England, to encourage the creation by workingmen and other wage-earners of savings societies which will enable them to assist in financing the war. One man's the money that thousands of wage-earners all over the country are able to set aside out of their earnings are lumped together and aggregate will be very large—so large as materially to strengthen the hands of the Government. In being patriotically economical and thrifty the average Canadian of small time greatly benefit himself in character as in pocket. As "Trevor," in The London Daily Mail, has put it:

He saved, expending common-sense
On non-expenditure of pence;
And all his tolling brothers
Saved here a bit and there a bit,
Till Germans felt, in gold and grit,
A blended force that smothers!
He saved himself, when was had fled,
From scanty years he saw ahead
For folks in many a station;
And more—with others of his kind,
He saved not merely peace in mind—
He saved, the British nation!

BRING OUT ALL THE FACTS.

An open letter to Sir Robert Borden would urge the Premier of Canada to remember that it is good politics and better patriotism to let all the facts as to the performances of the Borden Shell Committee come out rather than wait until these facts are forced out.

The Sir Robert Borden Shell Committee is the only name that can be truthfully applied to the committee that acted

1. As stewards of Britain's money.
2. As stewards of Canada's time.
3. As stewards of Canada's industrial opportunities.
4. As stewards of Canada's obligations to support her supply of Canadian men with a supply of Canadian munitions.

The Sir Robert Borden Shell Committee accepted a four-fold stewardship.

At only one point, "the stewardship of Britain's money" was the Sir Robert Borden Shell Committee responsible to the Government of Great Britain.

At the other three points of stewardship the Sir Robert Borden Shell Committee was exclusively responsible to the people of Canada. And the people of Canada through the Parliament of Canada, should hold the Sir Robert Borden Shell Committee to a strict accounting.—Toronto Telegram (Conservative).

A COMMON SERVICE.

This is a tale of two clergymen actively doing "sky" work at the front—one a Roman Catholic, the other a Protestant. They had worked shoulder to shoulder for so long, both having the best interests of the men at heart, until they were inseparable comrades and the firmest friends. Presuming on this friendship, however, they dared one day to discuss theology, which of course, quickly—and seemingly irrevocably—terminated the friendship.

After a day of playing a lone hand, the priest thought better of his part in the quarrel and wrote to his quondam friend: "Why should we quarrel, old chap, we who have been, and really are, such good friends at heart. The cause of our quarrel is one that we can never consider from the same point, and so there is no use trying, but we are both doing the best we can for the Master—you in your way, and I in mine."

Some Few Signs That "The Clock Is Running Down"

Special to The Examiner.

TORONTO, Feb. 14.—"Like a clock that is running down." This seems to be the prevailing opinion in regard to the Hearst Government. Seldom, if ever, has such indecision and such lack of unity been apparent in a superficially strongly-entrenched Government. Some of the characteristics which point to the "running down" process are:

1.—The Peel bye-election case.—This election is one of the most foolish troubles that any Government has ever deliberately run into. If there was any strong hand in the Government, or even any sense of self-preservation, Fallis certainly would not be the Government candidate in Peel to-day, as he is. Can anyone imagine such a blunder happening under the vigorous leadership of Sir James Whitney?

It is becoming plainer every day that the Government itself cannot evade responsibility in the Peel fight. Whether rightly or wrongly, Mr. Hearst's letter to Fallis is being used by him and his backers in Peel as the Government candidate. Moreover there is the statement of the acting-premier, Mr. Hanna, who said, "I would rather say no one has altered the high opinion previously held of Mr. Fallis." The Government, therefore, has to share the approbrium which is being thrown on Fallis and piles on Fallis from one end of the province to the other, irrespective of politics.

2.—The buccaneer incident.—"The worst bunch of buccaneers that ever graced the treasury benches of Queen's Park." This is not the statement of a viciously partisan Liberal breathing blood and slaughter against the Hearst Government, but the applauded statement of a Conservative in the Tory city of Toronto, expressed at a meeting of the Riverdale Conservative Association the other night in connection with an appointment made by the Government. This is another proof of the dis-union which quite suddenly seems to be undermining the Government.

3.—The Labour Deputation.—Where formerly an imposing bench of Cabinet Ministers used to meet the annual deputation of the labour representatives to the Government, this year, although the date had been fixed in advance, one lonely cabinet minister met this important delegation and that minister was the inoffensive, but minor, character, Hon. Findlay Macdiarmid. The labour men naturally wonder if their visit was not of sufficient importance to persuade some of the other ministers to walk across the corridor and see them.

NEW ASSISTANT CLERK.

Late Mr. Laplante to be Succeeded by A. Beauchesqne, K.C.

Ottawa, Feb. 14.—The position of Assistant Clerk of the Commons, rendered vacant by the death of the late Mr. J. B. R. Laplante in the Parliament Buildings fire, will, it is understood, be filled this week by the appointment of Arthur Beauchesne, K.C., now an official of the Department of Justice.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I am very anxious to close up my business and retire. Have five houses, 3 frame, 1 brick and 1 concrete block house (two storeys and attic, with a good stable and garden); also about 40 choice lots of best garden land. The above must be sold to close up my Western avenue subdivision near May's school, car line, and close enough to all big factories in the south end. I know it is a very bad time to sell, but I also know that it is the very best time to buy, because my low prices and easy terms will never again be offered on such choice city property, as it will be very soon. Use your own eyes and brains to prove what I say is true. I offer at this season, to give ample time to think and plan for early spring action. No interest nor rent on houses until spring nor on lots until May. Only a small deposit required. Immediate possession. Every buyer is as certain to make money as the sun is to rise. Buy now and watch your money grow. Mr. F. C. Knight, owner of "Sheffield Villa" property, a beautiful home on Western avenue, will be ready at any time to show houses and lots. Call at office for particulars, or first go and see Mr. Knight and the property; then see me for a real bargain. Remember, this will be your last chance to buy from me. Also remember that very rich and wise men advise their friends to buy all they can afford of just such property as I am offering. Use that advice and make money.

SECOND ROUND GAME AT BROCK ST. RINK

Fast Belleville Intermediates Will Clash With The 93rd Battalion To-night —Game Promises to be The Most Exciting Hockey Fixture of The Season

Judging by the comment around town there is great interest in to-night's second round intermediate O. H. A. game between Belleville and the 93rd Battalion, and there promises to be a bumper house for the occasion. The Soldiers have a good team and deserve support. While it is true that a number of fans have been angered at other games by the action of some of the soldiers who persisted in calling everybody "yellow" and worse who could not see the game the same as they did, there is no use blaming the 93rd team or the battalion as a whole for the lack of judgment on the part of its members. The 93rd is the team that Peterborough must look to for hockey honours now, and those fans who have loyally supported the Electrics should bury the hatchet and get out and root for the Soldiers as the Electric players themselves intend to do. To-night's game should be a hummer all the way. Reports from the East say that Belleville have a fast and fairly light team whose forwards play good combination. The latter feature will give them an advantage over the Soldiers, who have shown practically no team work, but on the other hand the speed and weight of the 93rd, coupled with their close checking may demoralize the combination of the Easterners. The Belleville fans are wild over the success of their junior and intermediate teams and it is said that they will have a barrel of money to bet on the success of their pets to-night. They may leave some of it in Peterborough.

To-night's game is called for 8.30 o'clock and the season's biggest crowd should be on hand.

THE HEROIC DEATH OF A GREAT ATHLETE

The news of the death at the front of Capt. George T. Richardon of Kingston, a member of the 2nd Canadian battalion, has been received in Peterborough as in all other places where he was known, with genuine regret. To the Peterborough fans of a few ears ago his death will recall some of the memorable battles in the early days of Brock street rink when Queen's University and the Kingston teams used to visit Peterborough. In those days it was the customary thing to open the season with an exhibition game with Queen's University, who invariably took a short tour during the Christmas holidays, and who generally beat the Petes, in fact it was considered the omen of a good season to lose the Queen's game. The late Capt. Richardson first visited Peterborough with Queen's and as long as they remember hockey, the fans of those days will never forget the dashing performances of Richardson or his equally skilful mate on the forward line, Marty Walsh, afterwards a professional star with Ottawa, and who died a little over a year ago. Richardson and Walsh were a wonderful pair in those days, and the duel between them and the duo of which Peterborough was so proud at that time, Morgan and Whitcroft, will never be forgotten. Richardson played on the boards, and no more clever wing player has ever been seen here. Fans will remember how he used to dash up the side of the rink, draw the defence over and slide the rubber out to Walsh, or if he happened to get away alone, how he would suddenly turn from the boards and sweeping across the defence at full speed, let drive a wicked shot at the nets. Richardson visited Peterborough two or three times with Queen's and the last occasion was in 1907 when he played with the 14th Regiment team. Peterborough were playing in the senior series that year, and when Kingston came up for the big game the task of looking after the redoubtable Richardson was entrusted to "Jake" Moore, an East City boy who was just breaking into fast company. At that time junior players had about as much chance of getting into a higher series as the Kaiser has of breaking through to Calais, but anyway Moore was on the team that night. He was big and fast, and his instructions were to hang onto Richardson like a bull pup to a bone. The fans who were at that game will remember how thoroughly he carried out his orders. Clever, even brilliant as was Richardson, he could not shake the big junior, who paid no attention to the puck or anything else, but hung to the Kingston star until the final gong. Richardson was practically eliminated from the play as a result, and the Petes won the game handily after a battle that was memorable by reason of the body checking duel between Glover and Crowley on the Peterborough defence and Van Horne and Jim Richardson, the Kingston rearguard.

George Richardson was as clean as he was clever and as gentlemanly as he was brilliant. He was an athlete of the very highest standard, and a favourite wherever he played. It was characteristic of him that as an officer in the Canadian militia he should have been among the first to volunteer and it is equally as characteristic that among his comrades he was noted for his dashing bravery. Lt.-Col. Mills of Peterborough, who was at the front with the 2nd Battalion, states that Capt. Richardson was out night after night in scouting expeditions around the German lines, sometimes alone and on other occasions with some equally daring companions.

His death will bring home to hockey fans how close the great war is to us. Splendid in sport, respected in business, loved by all who knew him, it may be said of George Richardson as Samuel Johnston remarked of Goldsmith: "He touched nothing that he did not adorn."

NO ONE PUNISHED.

Miss Dawsey McNaughton, who plays "Peggy Patton," the proprietor of the pie shop in "The Night Before," which comes to "The Grand" in this city on Saturday next, Feb. 19, will be well remembered as "Bunty" in "Bunty Pulls the Strings," which played such a long and successful engagement in Canada a few years ago. In the new Harry Lauder play, she has abundant opportunity to display her personal charm and her clever character drawing, as she has the stage for a large part of the second act. Miss McNaughton, like every other member of the "Night Before" company, is a native of Scotland, and well deserves her programme title of "a laughing lass."

Big Week in Curling Affairs Opens at The Rink To-night

The big week of the local curling season commences to-night when the entire seven ices will be occupied by the Orillia-Peterborough, and Bobcaygeon-Peterborough games for the Neill-Sheppard and Fitzgerald-Bottum trophies respectively. Then to-morrow at 1.30 the draw will be made for the local bonspiel. To-night's events are return games, and their results will decide the locations for another year of the several trophies. Orillia brings a margin in their favour and Bobcaygeon faces a Peterborough lead. These games should be very interesting and the public are welcome to witness them.

The finals in the District Cup games are set down for 10 a.m. on Thursday, and it is likely Peterborough will be represented as they were the winners in this district.

GRABBED GAME WITH A FINAL FIVE-END

R. G. Sturgeon's rink won a place in "the sun" on Saturday night with a final five-end that snatched a victory from J. H. Ferguson in the scheduled games. The President's rink opened the last end with one shot to the good. With his first stone in this end he lay on the button with three of Sturgeon's stones on the rings. The counter appeared well guarded but Sturgeon wormed through them with a corking shot that wicked the winner and lay. Ferguson came through with a nice draw that missed the Sturgeon inner stone by a hair's breadth and passed through to the back. Sturgeon drew neatly with his last stone and raised his end from four to five. Thus the Ferguson margin of one point on the eleventh end was changed to a Sturgeon lead of four when the game was over.

AFTER THE SALOON

(From the St. John, N.B., Evening Times.)

Ald. Muir, Ottawa, raises a question that is of much importance in all Canadian cities. In a speech this week he said there was a problem looming up now and it was the question of amusements. The saloon keepers were the only people who studied to provide a place of amusement.

"But I believe that we are on the eve of prohibition," said Ald. Muir. "And I think I am right in making that statement. It is my business to study public opinion, and it seems to me that public opinion is moving in the direction of prohibition."

He therefore contended that something must be done to provide other places than the saloons. This was a matter for a civic league. Reading rooms, swimming baths, a gymnasium—were all very necessary. At the meeting at which Ald. Muir spoke, it was decided to form a civic improvement league for that portion of the City of Ottawa. This is the beginning of a kind of community work which ought to produce excellent results.

Voice of The People

Peterborough, Feb. 14, 1916.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In order to set aright conflicting and erroneous statements that are being made in regard to a certain incident which has occurred recently in connection with School Section Number Seventeen, Otonabee, I am taking this opportunity of presenting the true facts of the case.

The difficulty that has been of so much concern to those affected, arose over the request from me to the teacher of the above school, to allow my little seven-year-old daughter, who is having her first winter at school, permission to remain until four o'clock, instead of being dismissed at three. Such a request was made, merely for the protection of the health and safety of the child. Several times previously the little girl had come home carelessly wrapped, and as a result suffered severely from cold. My only desire was to have her remain in school until four o'clock when her older sister would then be able to see that she was warmly wrapped and accompany her home. Surely my request was worthy of consideration, if from nothing else but from a humane point of view.

The teacher refused to permit my little girl to stay until her older sister was going home. I took the matter up with the School Inspector, who told me over the telephone, that my request was a reasonable one. He said: "If you wish the little one to remain until four o'clock and come home with her sister, she may do so. If you do not get it arranged to your satisfaction, ring me up the first of the week, and I will come out and see you." When the teacher learned that I had appealed to the inspector, I am informed, she went to one of the trustees and told him that I was trying to compel her to keep the child, and that before she would be forced to do so, she would resign and the board could look for another teacher.

Following my conversation with the Inspector I sent the little one back to school, but she was informed by her teacher that if she remained after three, she would be "strapped." I then took the matter to my solicitor, who advised that there was nothing in the School Act prohibiting a child remaining as she had requested. He wrote the School Inspector regarding the affair. The latter, apparently in a different frame of mind, than when he spoke to me over the telephone, when told by my solicitor that there was nothing in the School Act ratifying the teacher's action, said, the trustees could make such a regulation.

At a subsequent meeting of the School Trustees of this section the following resolution, appertaining to this matter was passed:

It was moved by Percy Price, seconded by H. Quinn, that a resolution be passed to the effect that all children in the first form may be sent home at 3 o'clock, providing parents have no objection to offer, but in the event of any reasonable objection, the parents of any child attending the school wish their child or children to remain until 4 o'clock for one or more evenings, they must send a note to the teacher asking such permission, and stating reasons. The teacher will then be obliged to let that particular party remain until school is dismissed.

The resolution was signed by Mr. Chamberlain, who was chairman.

Yet in the face of the above resolution the teacher refused my request. However, in spite of the fact that my solicitor has advised me that I could bring an injunction restraining the teacher from acting as she has done, I have dropped the matter and taken my children from the school.

Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for the space in your paper, I am,

Yours sincerely,
MRS. D. LAWRENCE.

Peterborough, Feb. 12, 1916.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I see they are still calling for recruits. Now we as good citizens don't mind giving our sons for such a worthy cause, but where are all the old volunteers that have trained and drawn government money for years? Now is the time they are needed if they are worthy of the name. Why don't they act like men and not hide in the time of war? Please let the public know how many soldiers have enlisted out of Douro and Ennismore townships. Let the government turn out the trained soldiers, and then call for the young men; and if they fail, then, just give the old men a show.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

"Citizen," in the above letter is quite right in his contention that the trained soldiers should be the first to go, but the tone of his letter is a grave injustice to the militia units. For instance, take the 57th Regiment. "Citizen" may not know it, but the fact is that the Peterborough Rangers have responded splendidly. Over half the brass and bugle bands, nearly every member of the signallers, ninety per cent. of the non-commissioned officers of the regiment, including nearly every sergeant and staff sergeant, over thirty officers and hundreds of men have responded to the call. One company alone, "C" Company, has contributed over 100 men to the C.E.F. The first call for men took nearly all the available strength of the company, but in the autumn of 1914 it was recruited up to strength again only to be depleted by fresh demands.

We are false to the lessons of Bethelhem and Golgotha if we are failing any one of us to bear our daily part in such way as we can in the ready offering of ourselves for the service of our fellowmen and for the maintenance of what we wholeheartedly believe to be right.—Archbishop of Canterbury.

A COLD CURE THAT CURES

"I've cured my colt," he said. I'll tell you how I did it. The information ought to come in handy this treacherous weather.

"I boiled a quart of wormwood and horehound together and drank it hot. Then I took two pills, and put one kind of plaster on my chest another kind on my back and a third kind under each arm.

"Thanks to my governor's advice I had sense enough to clap a mustard plaster on my stomach also, and to sleep with red-hot bricks to my feet.

"An old lady brought me a bottle of goose oil and showed me how to take it—you suck it, you know, off a quill. My uncle from the country turned up with a bundle of herbs; these herbs made a tea that I took of every half hour. On a cousin's advice I got outside an enormous dose of salts.

"My wife got me to take three pills of her own make—they were brown, bitter, and about the size of eggs. They did me good, too.

"The crisis was now reached and I retired to my bedroom. There after tossing off a pint of fur balsam, I tallowed my nose, steamed my legs in an alcoholic bath and took large doses of hot rum, spearmint tea and castor oil, which were severally recommended, by a sea captain, my minister and my grocer. Then I took seven different kinds of pills, wrapped around my neck an old stocking of my wife's soaked in hot vinegar and salt and got into bed.

"As I dozed off they burned feathers on a shovel before me.

"That completed the cure.

TO-NIGHT'S PARODIES.

Following are some of the parodies the 93rd Battalion Rooters will sing at the Brock street rink to-night:

TRAMP—TRAMP—TRAMP.

Skate, skate, skate, the boys are skating.
See them win along the line!
They will keep them on the run,
Won't the 93rd have fun!
When they bring the dandy silver cup back home?

On the fine sheet of ice they are skating alone.
For they've beaten Cobourg, and will down Belleville, too.
When the season is over they'll come back to you.
They are fine little players with Widdy and Ketch.
At our team the losers are not sore.
Will they e'er give a thought to the heart aches they brought
When they won the dear O.H.A. at home.

MY LITTLE GIRL.

My little girl, you know we're winning—
Yes, we're winning all the time;
My little girl, I see you smiling
For our team is playing fine:
We've beaten Cobourg right to a finish—
We're trimmed the Electrics, too.
My little girl, we'll beat the others
And bring the cup right back to you.

IN THE GOOD OLD WINTER TIME

In the good old winter time,
In the good old winter time,
The 93rd will be skating around
Winning all the time.
They are a bunch that's hard to beat.
You know they all play just fine—
And they'll keep Belleville on the jump
In the good old winter time.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH FATHER?

What's the matter with the 93rd?
They're all right;
What's the matter with Widdy?
He's all right.
Dupe and Mostie are a team alone.
Windsor and Sexton can hold their own.
What's the matter with Keteh and Blewitt?
They're all right.

"should not wish to live longer on this planet and see our people made political slaves.

Authority of the State.

In contrasting the German idea of the authority of the state with ours, we believe the state is represented by its citizens through their representatives. If these do not discharge their duties of government as we think they should we select others. The state represents to us the authority to preserve our liberties and business. We say who shall rule and we change them when they displease us.

In Germany the people never had any voice in who should govern them. No matter how the people vote the Kaiser appoints the Chancellor and he carries on the Government. Germany is under a system in which the people have no control on its rulers. In Germany the people are taught the supreme duty of obeying the State. In the schools, in the text books, the children are taught to obey the State. The same with the universities. There, all universities are state universities, and they sing the tune the state tells them to sing. Indeed the universities are the headquarters of the teachings of the ruling classes. The slightest independent thinking is met with stern reproof.

To illustrate: Some years ago the Prof. went to a meeting of Social Democrats in Berlin, (potentially they were rebels in Germany), to discuss some phase of German politics. The meeting was orderly, the people well dressed. In the middle of the third speech, which did not seem out of the way (in fact it was quite mild compared to some speeches which he had heard in Canada, where he has been delighted to hear the candour with which politicians deal with each other's imperfections), up bobbed a little official, who raised his finger and said: "I warn you, you are going too far.' The result was the speech was paralysed, and it ended in a lame manner. Another speaker followed, likewise very modest in his remarks. Up went the finger again: "You have gone too far and I dissolve this meeting." What would have been done here? Undoubtedly the little man would have left the meeting first. Such is the childlike obedience of the Germans.

Obedience is good up to a certain point. We British people have always retained the sacred right of using our judgment. We are warring against the remand of the State to give blind, unquestioned obedience.

Position of the Army.

In Germany the theory that parliament is master of the army does not obtain. In English history we have disliked an army that might be a menace to the people. In the reign of William III the struggle became so acute the King threatened to abdicate if he was not allowed a standing army. To-day we have complete control of our army. Every year the "Army Bill" is passed, which gives to the officers for one year only the right to command obedience from soldiers. It disappears if not renewed. Our history insists that the army is the servant of the state and must obey the wishes of the state.

The army in Germany commands a deference and respect beyond all reason. To be a soldiers is to be in a class apart. To see the swagger of the soldiers and their officers is hard to be understood if not seen. Here the Professor related how an American lady of his acquaintance had beaten a German officer on his own ground. She saw the officer coming down a narrow pavement, and she knew it was the custom for German women to step aside and let the officer pass, but her American born freedom asserted itself, and instead of so doing she confronted him. Both stood eyeing each other. Presently she said, "I am waiting." To which he replied, "I also am waiting," neither moved. In the end what chivalry he had prompted him to step aside and let the lady pass on.

A Vital Struggle.

Our struggle is a vital struggle to preserve the liberties we have won after a long and bitter fight. "Life has given nothing to mortals without great labour. Everything that is worth while costs something."

The time for sacrifice has come. Are we willing to pay the price?

The character of a people like that of an individual, is likely to be tested unexpectedly. The time of testing has arrived. Our nation is face to face with one of the greatest tests in its history. But we are a Christian nation. We believe in God. We realize there is a meaning in Christian society. Have faith to believe that the forces working in society are working towards some good and noble end. Have faith no matter how dark the day; let us not allow the passing clouds to cloud our spirits. Let us give all we have and are to support the brave men fighting for us in this time of danger.

Capt. Rollins.

In bringing the meeting to a close Capt. Rollins paid tribute to the excellent address of Prof. Wrong.

He wished to correct the idea that the recruiting meetings would in future take the form of entertainments. The 93rd had no intention of holding entertainments on Sunday evening. They cannot be borne up to face the enemy by entertainments.

During the last four weeks 202 men had been added to the strength of the Battalion. Besides these quite a number had been sworn in, but were not yet quite ready to leave their business. In addition he was pleased to learn that seventeen young men of the city had volunteered for the new Battery. "Every young man that enlists," said he, "we hope to meet out on the fields of Flanders, and we would want no better protection than our boys from Peterborough with their guns behind us, when we give battle in the trenches.

"THE NIGHT BEFORE"

The chief reason why all Scottish people are so frankly enthusiastic about "The Night Before," the new Harry Lauder play which comes to "The Grand" theatre in this city on Saturday next, Feb. 19, is because it is wholly and wholesomely true to life. There isn't a hint of caricature or exaggeration in the author's vivid picture of rural Scotch life as lived not over 25 years ago. Unlike many preceding Scotch plays, Harry Lauder's production is absolutely faithful to the best traditions of historical drama and, better still, is much more entertaining than the average so-called historical drama. "The Night Before" is so crammed full of quaint humor, homely philosophy, rugged character drawing and amusing natural situations as to elicit the warmest unsolicited praise from many a Scotsman who has seen the performance. Out of a hundred much like it, William Morris, the producer, submits the following letter from a Montreal enthusiast:

"Wishing ye a' guid health and success, and may heaven spare ye lang tae kiss the breath o' mony a flowery simmer. Haste ye back to Montreal."
—A Scottish Lad.

"P.S. The above message is the best way in which I could express my feelings and also my opinion on the good work performed by your company. I am sure there are thousands of the same mind as myself if they would only write and let you know what they think. I ask and trust that you will read this message to your company. When travelling through Scotland, I ask you kindly to read this message to all theatres in which you play, so as to show the people in far-off "Bonnie Scotland" how the people of Montreal can enjoy "A Guid Scotch Nicht," which title your play is worthy of.

one up there. There are only about a dozen of the boys from Peterborough who were in our battalion left here now, the rest are all at the front and doing their bit for the Empire, while the rest of the slackers are hanging back, but I suppose thy have cold feet. Well, never mind, we are going to win if it be God's will. I will have to say good-bye as am very busy. I am,

THE 93RD BATTALION.

The 93rd are a very pleasant bunch.

The 93rd can handle both rifle and wrench,
They can give them the devil when they come to their trench;
They will give up their home, their family and all—
They will handle their enemies the same as a ball.

The Germans are wicked, we all know that
But we can skin them, the same as a cat.
The 93rd boys are strong and well,
We can drive the Germans all to h——.

We are going to Germany, and into Berlin
And then we will sing, "God Save the King."
We will pack up our goods and place on our back,
We will then come home with the Union Jack.

The 93rd want more men to fight,
To keep up Freedom and do what is right;
We are all in the armouries having a good time—
Now, all you strong men, fall into line.

Come all you men who have some grit,
Get in the khaki and do you bit;
You can go to church and take your seat—
This is your chance—don't have cold feet.

William Thompson of the staff of the J. C. Turnbull Company, is one of the latest additions to the Belmont Battery. This morning he was presented with a wrist watch and the following address:

"We cannot but admire the noble stand you have taken in a time when you had to choose what decision you would make and also your willingness to do what you could for others in helping to bring to a close a war which is a menace to humanity and the whole world.

"We ask you to accept this small token of remembrance and our sincere wish and prayer will be that the Lord will keep and protect you, and bring you safe home again."

"Signed on behalf of the Staff."

Some feminine alarmist rang up the Armouries last night and reported that an aeroplane was in sight, hovering over the C.G.E. buildings. A particularly bright star was the nearest thing to an airship that was in sight when an investigation was made.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Mexican petroleum and copper stocks were strong in the market, while nearly everything else showed losses at the opening of the Stock Exchange today.

United States Steel was down 7-8 of a point at 84, Canadian Pacific was down 1-8, and Industrial Alcohol lost 3-4; Mexican Petroleum opened up 1 1-8 at 110 7-8, and Arkansas and Anaconda made a similar gain at 92.

ANOTHER TIMISKAMING DIVIDEND AUTHORIZED.

Directors of Timiskaming Mining Company, Ltd., have authorized a 3 per cent. dividend, payable March 15 to stock of record February 18. This calls for a disbursement of $75,000, and brings total dividends to 59 per cent. In 1906 the company paid 15 per cent. in 1910, 9 per cent. in 1911, 12 per cent. in 1912, 3 per cent. in 1913, nothing in 1914, 3 per cent. last year. The last payment was made at the year-end. The Company pays interim dividends only; it is not on a regular basis.

GERMAN-HELD C.P.R. STOCK.

It is learned that C.P.R. scrip German stamped, has recently sold in the New York market in considerable quantities well under the market level. The stock of course, is not good delivery, as both the British and Canadian Governments have ruled that transfer of it is a violation of the rule against trading with the enemy. In addition, of course the road pays no dividends now on its German-held securities.

Sir Thomas Shaughnessy has reported that German holdings of C. P. R. in January, 1911, were 15 per cent. on the total capitalization of the road; in June, 1913, they were 15 per cent., in August, 1915, only 5.39 per cent.

APPOINTMENTS MADE BY SMITH COUNCIL

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Monday, Feb. 7th, at 10 o'clock. All the members were present, with Reeve, McKee in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Messrs. Hunter and Baptie addressed the Council, and requested that a wire fence be erected on the 6th Con. south of Lot 25. Reeve McKee assured them that the Council were willing to pay the usual allowance, and that there would be no trouble in persuading Mr. Bickell, the owner of the property, to erect the same.

By-law 744 was passed, making the following appointments:

J. O. Young and R. J. Edminson, auditors at a salary of $10.

Dr. J. A. Morgan, medical health officer.

C. O. Northey, assessor, salary $120.

John Chittick, collector, salary $115 and postage.

J. R. Telford, sanitary inspector and relief officer.

By-law 745 was passed, electing the local Board of Health as follows: Reeve McKee, Deputy Reeve Northey and Dr. J. A. Morgan. The Clerk to act as secretary.

A letter was received from Hon. T. W. McGarry, treasurer of the British Red Cross, thanking School Section No. 6 for their generous contribution of $53.50 towards the fund.

The following communications were received and left over to be considered next meeting: Belgian Relief, asking contribution; Salvation Army, Toronto, asking contribution; Ontario Municipal Association.

The Treasurer was instructed to pay the following accounts:

Nicholls Hospital, Mrs. McIlmoyl, $69; Nicholls Hospital, F. Seaton (overseas recruit), $6; J. J. Bickell, cutting brush, $4.50; A. E. Kennedy, work on road, $4.65; John Murphy, 4 sheep killed, $32; Isaac Archer, 2 days' statute labour, $2.

The Council then adjourned to meet again on Monday, March 6th, at ten o'clock.

"Kids" Have Cause For Rejoicing

Famine in Castor Oil Due to The War Demands

Very seldom have the "kids" had such a cause for rejoicing. No such luck came to the now older generations in their younger days. Oh what a celebration there would have been had such a "calamity" happened then. There is a shortage of castor oil!

Children may have a pain in their "inners" without such a chance for mother holding their nose and experiencing the strangling sensation while the "hated of hated" medicine is making its way to the seat of the trouble. The price of castor oil has gone up 500 per cent., and the supply in Toronto is exceedingly limited. In fact, a famine in this curative of all ailments is now almost a reality. If you are going to have pains calling for castor oil treatment get them over before May. Then it is expected there will be supplies reaching Toronto.

Mother, if short of change, may have to find something more agreeable to the palate than salts. The price of family medicine has risen in price by a similar percentage.

Previously the castor oil came from England, but since the war broke out the supply there has been needed for the manufacture of gun cotton and for other purposes relative to the manufacture of war munitions. Some castor oil used to come from the East Indies, but no wthe growers there are shipping all their seed to England.

FIRST CARE OF BABY

As soon as a baby is born, the modern doctor cleanses the eyes with boric acid solution, or he puts a drop of a two per cent. solution of silver nitrate into each eye. This is to wash out and to kill any disease germs that might have got into the baby's eyes during the passage through the birth canal. When we consider that about thirty per cent. of the blindness in the world might have been prevented by this simple precaution, we realize the necessity for this first attention to the eyes of the new-born baby. Only a few days ago I saw a baby with eyes red and swollen, due to infection which had been carried to the eyes by a careless neighbor who bathed the baby the first few days of its life. One fortunate thing is that this condition of the eyes can be cured without loss of sight if immediate attention is given. Delays are dangerous. Baby's eyesight is too precious to take any risk; so any redness or inflammation of a baby's eyes should be reported to the physician at once.

When the eyes have been cleansed, the physician gives his attention to the mouth, to remove any accumulation of secretions. Baby has not breathed until birth and sometimes, with the first few gasping breaths, secretions from the mouth are drawn down into the lungs and cause pneumonia. Often to cleanse the mouth it is necessary to turn the baby over on its stomach, with the head lowered, and give a few quick slaps to the back to dislodge the secretions in the throat.—Woman's World for February.

have a full complement of them over there. The officers and sergeants left behind, we believe, will be placed, but, of course, no one knows where, and, as we came over here for work, it will likely be found for us, even though it is not in our chosen line.

To friends at home, of the boys, who will be at loss how to address their mail, perhaps it would be best to keep up their old regimental number and put late 8 C.M.R. on it 8 Brigade Canadians, B.E.F. France In time it will all straighten out.

We had a concert Tuesday evening before the boys went away, and as a guest, had Lt.-Col. Birdsall, who was up to see some old friends, having come across with Mrs. Birdsall, to see his son, Capt. Birdsall, who is in Londonerry House, suffering from a severe bomb wound in the head, and who, his friends will be glad to hear is now progressing favourably though very weak from loss of blood He has had eleven months in the trenches and is about due a rest and I hear, will get a chance to come home for a time to rest up before going back.

All the boys were in fine shape going away, having got over the colds they contracted from this damp winter climate here, and the joke at the infantry packs and pants instead of our nifty cavalry kit, kept everyone as near good natured as possible, under the circumstances, although fitting it on was something of a problem, and at the concert we had a squad come on with the kits fitted (in burlesque) which brought down the house.

We had six weeks almost continuous rain soon after we landed, and the mud is deep enough yet to suit anyone, but it does not rain quite so much, nor is it so cold, and we may hope for something better soon in the weather line. In Flanders I do not think it is any better than here as I saw several parties at Waterloo coming home from the trenches, and they were muddy enough to suit any one.

The Kaiser Sends A Threat To The Roumanians

LONDON, Monday, February 14.—A despatch to the Daily Mail from Ungheni, on the Roumania frontier, says:

Baron von Dem Busche-Haddenhausen, the German minister at Bucharest, who was entrusted with a special mission to Roumania by the German government, has returned from Berlin where he was received in audience by the kaiser and has opened his campaign in his newspaper, Roumania, by threatening Roumania.

"The Germanic powers," he says in his paper, "know how to strike swiftly and energetically."

He asks on which side Roumania is going to range herself, and declared that Germany wishes to know immediately.

The Times Bucharest correspondent in a series of delayed despatches dated from Jan. 27 to Feb. 1, tells of purchases of wheat by the belligerent powers in Roumania. It appears from these despatches that Germany in a formal note to Roumania, demanded the same rights for the purchase of cereals as accorded to Great Britain, and proposed to purchase at the same price charged the British all the remaining stocks of Roumania wheat and 100,000 wagon loads of maize.

Roumania conceded equality of privileges, and according to the newspapers, the Germans purchased by secret contract 400,000 tons of wheat for the purpose of preventing the realization of its sale to the British government.

The Roumania government, the despatches add, will forbid the export of the wheat.

SAILORS SUICIDE ON SNARED "SUBS"

Canadian Surgeon Saw In a Captured Craft 27 Bodies Each With Bullet in Head

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Among the passengers arriving from Liverpool on the Anchor liner Cameronia was Dr. M. S. Inglis, who has been for several months in the war zone with the Canadian troops from Montreal, and who expects to return in ten days to the front, he said. In an interview with the reporters on the steamer Dr. Inglis gave some interesting details of submarine warfare waged by the Germans, and said their crews preferred to end their lives by the pistol rather than fall alive into the hands of the British.

"Some little time ago," Dr. Inglis continued, "I was in Dover, England, visiting a naval surgeon who was an old friend from Canada, when four German submarines were towed into the harbour by torpedo boat destroyers. They had been captured in the steel nets off Folkestone.

"We were both in uniform, and later in the day my friend obtained permission for us to go on board the submarines after they had been opened. We were told to be prepared for a gruesome sight, as the crews, it was believed, had died of asphyxiation before the undersea craft were released from the nets and brought to the surface.

"To my surprise there appeared to be a good current of air in the interior, and it was evident that the men had not been suffocated. In the forward part of the vessel, where the machinery was located, I saw twenty-seven members of the crew lying on the deck with bullet holes in their foreheads. A little distance away was the commander in uniform like his men, with a big navy revolver clenched in his right hand. A naval officer who went below with us said it was believed that the German commander first had gone round and shot his crew one after another to prevent them from suffering the horrors of suffocation and then had taken his own life. I never shall forget the sight. When we regained the deck I declined to visit the other three submarines which had been captured. Later I was told they had been opened and the crews were found to have been shot in the same manner as the twenty-seven men in the first one to be examined."

The doctor added that he was told before leaving England that fifty-nine submarines had been accounted for, and that they were no longer feared for their activities against merchant shipping around the British Isles. The British Navy was making preparations to cope with German and Austrian submarines in the Mediterranean, he said. Recently the Captain of a British freighter from London stated on his arrival that he had seen a captured German submarine raised off Folkestone, where the craft had become entangled with the nets, and that when the crew of the British destroyer took the hatch off the interior the Germans jumped out on deck and a terrific fight started, which lasted for half an hour before all the Germans had been subdued. After that experience, the Captain said, the submarines were kept below longer, to make certain that the men were all dead.

THE BEAUTY SEEKER.

often the result of holding the head incorrectly. A few exercises night and morning will help to reduce it and afterward keep it in the proper shape. Stand erect, raise the chin and bend the head back as far as possible, then raise it to place. Alternate this exercise with the head forward; then turning to each side as far as possible. In turning the head to the sides be sure to keep the chin up and out as far as possible. Repeat these exercises twenty times night and morning.

After the exercises, massage your neck with small cheesecloth bags filled with finely crushed ice. If ice is unavailable, snow will do as a substitute, or cloths wrung out in very cold water frequently. Use a rotary motion, which is something like kneading. Do not use cream or skin food for this would add to the flesh. After this massage, take up fold after fold of the saf flesh between the thumb and forefinger, pinching it gently. As the breaking down of the tissues is apt to make tiny wrinkles, bathe the neck afterward with a good astringent lotion.—Woman's World for February.

AN APPEAL TO THE YOUNG MEN OF THE CITY

Come fellows wake up and go to sleep right. You must surely be dreaming in civilian clothes yet, and whenever a recruiting sergeant says anything to you about enlisting you will answer him by saying your parents don't like to let you go, or you don't care to give up your position fer fear you will miss something by doing so. You will be sure to miss something if you don't get the khaki on. It has also been said by women when anyone would speak of enlisting that their brothers or husband had too much sense to go, but their sense must be the kind that are called cappers, because having lots or brains will not keep any young man from doing his bit unless they are all effected so as to stop his thinking just how badly he is needed, and how much it is his duty to offer himself. And there would be but a very few Canadians fighting or training to fight if they waited for their parents to tell them they could go.

It is true that no mother can give up her son without almost breaking her heart, but she will be proud when she knows that he has done his bit for his King and country, even though his blood might be shed on the battlefield. Is it not good to die for a good cause? There is no doubt we are in the right for we are not only fighting for our King and country, but are fighting for the King of Kings when we fight to save His children and the women who are being butchered to death by those murdering Germans. We have learned by our newspapers and returned soldiers, that thousands of helpless, innocent Belgian men, women and children, have been mown down by machine guns or any way that the Germans could get them out of the way, and there are thousands more who are cripples by having their hands and feet cut off. Surely there are no Canadians who would stand up with their hands behind their back and see their mother, sweetheart, wife or sister, used so cruelly, and if we don't make the Germans pay the penalty now, and on their own grounds, they are sure to never stop until they have treated Canada in the same manner as Belgium, so it is up to every Canadian who is physically fit to get busy at once, and help to make them pay the cost before it is too late. There is no excuse for any young man who says he will go when he is needed, unless he never reads a newspaper or listens to anyone who trys to tell him anything, and if that is the case he had better get that idea out of his head and read a newspaper once in a while, then he will see just how badly he is needed now. There are many who do not want to give up their positions to enlist, but they might be glad to give up anything later if they don't o it now. There have been greater and cleverer men than a great many who are staying behind to-day that have given up their lives had all they had for their King and country.

Where and what would we be to-day had our forefathers let such little things as these stop them from fighting. While there are a few who it is impossible for them to go, there are a great many who can and ought to be in khaki. So come on and fight for the dear old flag we love so well. Have you ever stopped to listen to the sound of the bugle ringing in your ears as it calls you to do your duty, or have you heard the sound of your comrades as they say we need you badly. You were good enough to cheer us as our train pulled out from the station, and now we need you to help fight. It is true that this is the call of our ear old chums who are in the trenches to-day, and are we going to listen to this call and not respond to it. No, surely, there are no young men who will forget his best friends who are fighting for him, and trying to keep up until the rest of us come. If some of the mothers knew the way their sons are spending their time around the pool rooms, etc., surely they would rather see them enlist, even if she knew it would be his death. But one man has as good a chance as another, so don't worry about that, but come on and join the 99rd, and if you don't like the infantry, there is lots of room in the Belmont Battery.

Selling Liquor To The Soldiers

Peterboro "Red Eye" is Not Being Dispensed in Lindsay According To Inspector

LINDSAY, Feb. 14—A thorough investigation has been made by License Inspector Thornbury to find out the truth of a report which spread around Lindsay lately, that a certain party was selling liquor to the soldiers. The supposed violater of the law, it is understood, came from Peterborough on the 6 o'clock train, and it was said, carried two dozen bottles of liquor in a grip. After delivering the goods, the report stated that he left by the 8 o'clock train for the above city.

Inspector Thornbury traced the story back to its source, and found out that it was all gossip and with out foundation. The story had gained such credence that even the Ontario License Commission notified the local inspector, and asked him to make a searching enquiry into the report.

There are still citizens giving liquor to the soldiers, it is stated by the Inspector, but he expects to catch them if they continue the practice

ST. PAUL'S SUNDAY MORNING SERVICE

The Rev. Dr. Laird of Toronto Makes a Strong Appeal For the Work of Home and Foreign Missions

Preaching from the text: "For the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many," found in Mark 10:45, the Rev. Dr. Laird of Toronto, formerly a professor of Queen's University, presented in a most scholarly manner, the needs of missions in the domestic and foreign fields.

"Many of you," said he, "have been studying for many years the life of Jesus and have come to know that He is not only the great founder of the Christian Church, and the central figure of human history, but also more precious to you than all else in the world. The more closely you examine his life and look into its transparent depths the more you are convinced of one great fundamental fact, one outstanding law written over His whole life:

The Law of Self-Sacrifice.

"The life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave Himself for me." Such was Paul's testimony of his mighty Master, Jesus of Nazareth.

There was not one law governing the life of Jesus and another and different one governing the lives of the disciples. The way of the Cross was His way, and if we are to become men and women after His own heart we, too, must tread the way of the Cross. The Cross is Christianity, and we have not yet penetrated the life of Jesus unless the spirit of sacrifice springs up, and dominates our whole life.

The appeal of the Cross comes to us with particular power just now, as our county is being laid on the altar, as never before in our history our boys are giving their prospects, their careers, their lives. We are discovering again the inner meaning of Calvary, when each man pours forth his life for the good of his brethren. That is the meaning of Christianity.

There is no such thing as a selfish Christian, a selfish Church. The Church that thinks only of its own Sanctuary, of its own worship, will become stagnant, a dead Church, a graveyard, instead of a body of living men.

Christianity is the only thing worth while. It speaks from man to man, life to life, nation to nation, and we shall not accomplish our great work as a people of God until the life of every Christian man of our race is of such a character that it will tend to uplift his fellow man.

Canada's Part.

Canada has a great part to play in this work of redemption. We, as a nation, have a great reverence for God. In the past we have fought bloody battles for liberties of conscience; we have been pioneers of freedom and enlightenment throughout the world. Do we deserve these distinctions? If we are to be true to our high trust and learn the meaning of true internationalism we must first establish Christian principles in our own lies, and then pass them on to the men who know not Christ. This is the business of a Christian Church, of a Christian nation.

James Bryce, Britain's Ambassador at Washington, in speaking to a gathering of representative men from Great Britain, United States, and Canada, recently reminded them that within the last generation or two they had come into very close contact with backward peoples, instructing in ideas, in commerce, and in education; that they had so permeated these backward nations until their customs, their traditions, could no longer stand the shock of contact. Said he: "The supreme obligation of the Anglo Saxon races to-day is to fill that void which we have made. Now is the time to give these people a knowledge of the life and teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ."

We give them our education, our science, our literature, our commerce, our industries; we teach them the arts of peace and of war; alas, too, we give them our national vices, our shames; shall we withold from them that which alone can transform their inner lives and build up their manhood? Does it not come home to us very clearly how intimately our lives are bound up with the propaganda of Christianity.

Years ago the Fiji Islands were peopled with savage cannibals, the lowest type of humanity. To-day they are shoulder to shoulder fighting for Britain's honour; Britain's ideals, because not many years ago a missionary, a man looked upon as of little account, touched deeply the lives of these people, and established therein a clearer insight into the purposes of life. What man can measure up what these men have done for the Empire of Britain, for the Empire of God?

Remember what God in His grace has done in your life He can do in the lives of all men. God can do it, but He will do it only in so far as we stand up and do our share of the great work in the world. God's work, through men, through their gifts, and through their sacrifices.

Canada has a great work to perform, but if Canada is to speak with the voice of Jesus Christ, Jesus must reign in our private life, and in our public institutions. Is Canada, street clean and pure? Many of us know of the conditions in our own communities, our own Province, in the Dominion. In spite of our religious fervour gigantic evils have fastened themselves on our national life; disease, poverty and crime are still at home in Canada; the shiftless, the unprincipled, the rogues, the feeble minded, the unfortunate, are still at our firesides; the liquor traffic, the gambling dens, the houses of shame, commercial dishonesty, political impurity, social and religious unconcern, these are sapping the life blood of hosts of young Canadians.

The great need of to-day is that the gospel of purity, of personal integrity, of national righteousness, of freedom and grace be preached throughout the Dominion.

The reverend speaker then dilated on the work of the Presbyterian Church in their missionary activities showing by statistics and comparisons the great need of workers and means if the Gospel is to reach the fifteen million souls which the Church has undertaken.

He closed his appeal by relating a touching incident that occurred in the Maratime Provinces. In the city of St. John, N.B., there stands a monument erected thirty years ago that carries with it the story of the great tides of the Bay of Fundy and their madly rushing waters that reach a height of thirty to fifty feet. One day just at the turn of the tide, a little girl was seen playing, entirely unconscious of its danger. Several men and boys stood looking on in utter helplessness. Presently a young man, Fred Young, 17 years of age, caught sight of the child struggling in the waters, took in the situation at once, slipped into a building, found a rope, gave one end to the men, tied the other round his waist and sprang into the swirling waters. He was a strong swimmer and soon reached her. He signalled to haul in, but the men and boys in the excitement of the moment let slip the rope and Fred Young and the little one were swept out to sea. The monument tells of the heroic deed, but it tells also of those who let go of the rope.

To-day missionaries are bravely struggling to rescue souls. We are holding one end of the rope. What kind of grip have we?

Last Christmas time there came to a Presbyterian home in Toronto a letter from a son, a private "somewhere in France." The letter contained two cheques for $50.00 each, one for the support of his own Church, the other towards the missionary budget of the Church. He has been through all the great battles; he is still untouched. His duty lies in France, but although he is giving this life yonder, he realises that the work of the Church at home must not be crippled for want of support.

Are the Soldiers of the Cross to be outdone by the soldiers of the King. Our conflict is a greater conflict with mightier stakes. Our God is calling us for greater sacrifices, sounding the trumpet that never calls defeat.

—Paul Penman.

Distributing Khaki Bound Testaments Among The Troops

Commendable Work Undertaken by The British and Foreign Bible Society—Interesting Address by The Rev. R. J. Bowen

SOWING THE SEED

Interesting and educative was the sermon that was delivered in St. John's church Sunday morning by the Rev. R. J. Bowen of London, Ontario. Rev. Mr. Bowen has had a wide experience in the work of the Anglican church in Canada. He had the privilege of preaching the Gospel in the Yukon territory before any gold was taken from the Klondike mines. He was one of the first missionaries to visit Forty-mile Creek, Circle City, Dawson City, White Horse and many other well known mining districts of the Yukon.

The speaker took for his text, St. Luke, 8:11: "The seed is the word of God." This formed the basis for an exposition of the work that has been accomplished by the British and Foreign Bible Society since its inception. Through this medium, the Scripture has been translated into every known language and distributed throughout the world. Missionaries are never sent out without first receiving strict instructions to familiarise themselves with the language of the country they are delegated to work in. If the language of that particular country has not been translated the missionary proceeds to facilitate its translation and the Bible Society undertake to see that it is printed and distributed. By this means the seed, which is the word of God, is disseminated throughout the world.

The Foundation.

"Without the sowing of the seed, said the Rev. Mr. Bowen, your missionary work is doomed to destruction because it lacks foundation. The Anglican church has been instrumental in supplying the Scripture in one hundred and eighty-seven distinct languages and dialects. One hundred and eleven years ago we find that Great Britain was an armed camp. One man said, 'Give me mastery of the English Channel for six hours and I will change the map of Europe.' To-day one man is screaming, 'Give me mastery of the English Channel for six hours and I will change the map of the world.' In those days of struggle and stress the world got a vision and three great movements were born. One of these was the British and Foreign Bible Society. It came into being because there was need for it. Since the outbreak of the present war over three million copies of the Scriptures have been distributed to soldiers of twelve countries. Each member of the 93rd Battalion now stationed in Peterborough, as well as a number of other Canadian units stationed at various points throughout the Dominion, has been supplied with a khaki bound copy of the New Testament. each week the demand is greater and the cost of production mounts higher.

Stained With Crime.

Speaking of the war, the speaker said England's sword is stained with blood, but let us thank God it is not like our enemies, stained with crime. Britain's sword is unsheathed in defence of those liberties that have been handed down to us through the ages.

Rev. Mr. Bowen concluded with a stirring appeal for funds in aid of the work.

SCARCITY OF RUBBER ELASTIC.

The scarcity of rubber elastic has caused all the garter factories in Austria-Hungary to close down, as well as most of those in Germany. Elastic garters and suspenders are no longer to be had except where, here and there, a dealer has some stock left over on his shelves. Elastic strings which could be bought before the war at the rate of three dollars for 200 pounds, now cost from eighteen to twenty-four dollars for the same quantity, and are hard to get even at those prices. Thread has gone up from 70 cents to two dollars, and dyestuffs have also doubled in price.

THE MOST FASCINATING COMEDY OF THE DAY

DADDY LONG LEGS

By Jean Webster with
RENEE KELLY as JUDY
HENRY MILLER
Manager

When "Daddy Long Legs" comes to the Grand Opera House next Monday night, playgoers here will see for the first time the fascinating comedy by Jean Webster that has broken theatrical records in New York, Chicago and San Francisco and which is today the reigning success on the American stage. "Daddy Long Legs" was first a serial in one of the popular magazines, then became a "best-seller" among books, and when Henry Miller saw in it great material for a play and had its author dramatise the charming romance, it became the greatest comedy hit produced in twenty years. Its success at Powers' Theatre Chicago, where an original booking for three weeks lengthened into a six months' run, was followed by its triumph at the Gaiety Theatre in New York, where it remained for a year.

More than six million readers were delighted by the book and nearly half a million playgoers have enjoyed the stage story of a modern Cinderella whose dreams came true. Its quaint little heroine is Judy Abbott, transported from a hard life in a bleak institution for foundlings to the world of her dreams. She is placed by an unknown friend in a fashionable college, where she has girl friends, pretty frocks, and all the things she has longed for in her wonderful day dreams. The metamorphosis of Judy, the orphan asylum drudge, into a radiant young girl student, offers wonderful possibilities to the dramatist, possibilities that have been utilized to the fullest extent by Miss Webster, the author, and Henry Miller, the producer. The scenes in college are marvels of realism and furnish a splendid background for the fascinating romance that begins when Jervis Pendleton, the "Daddy Long Legs" of the story, decides to pay a visit to his interesting young ward without letting her know that he is her mysterious benefactor.

"Daddy Long Legs" will be played here by one of the finest acting organizations Henry Miller has ever assembled. The big cast will be headed by Renee Kelly, who scored a tremendous personal success in Toronto last spring, as she has in San Francisco, St. Louis, Detroit and twenty other American cities. Miss Kelly is a brilliant actress as well as a beautiful girl. She scored a triumph in Lechmere Worrall's comedy, "Ann," at the Criterion Theatre in London, before visiting America as Robert Loraine's leading woman.

ADVERTISING HINTS

Advertising is news: make your advertising newsy and it will be read with interest by the general public.

It is better to have an ad. of a given size appear in every issue of a daily than to have twice as large an advertisement appear in every other issue of the same paper.

In an ad. four inches long (56 agate lines) the maximum number of words used should be 106. Of course if a cut is used the number of words should be reduced in proportion to the space occupied by the cut.

Many an advertiser has seen his advertising fall to iron flatness, because he stopped it at a critical period in its life.

Oftentimes one can reach more buyers by advertising in a half dozen publications of acknowledged circulation, than he can by spreading his advertising appropriation over a hundred publications which all together do not amount to the volume of half of the six great media.

NO VALENTINE CARD RUSH

Custom is Passing—Retailers Deplore Lack of Customers

"The rose is red,
The violet's blue,
Honey is sweet—
And so are you."

There's nothing to prove that this was the first valentine message, but it has been perhaps the most quoted rhyme, and you are almost sure to hear somebody repeat it to-day.

St. Valentine is believed to have been a bishop who suffered martyrdom under Claudius II. at Rome, or according, to others, under Aurelian, in 271 A.D., on Feb. 14. The old idea was the birds began to mate on that day; hence the practice of young people choosing their "valentines" on that day by sending missives if an amatory or satirical nature, generally anonymously. And always anonymously when of the latter nature. There was a time, and not so very long since either, when the shop windows today would have been hideous with onecent atrocities, caricaturing all sorts of persons, with expressive doggerel attached. Here and there some are still to be found but the picture post card valentine of a more refined character has to a great extent replaced the old fashioned teaser. But this year there seems to be a falling off. Is it because it's leap year, and the ardent swain feels that he is privileged to ignore his otherwise bounden duty?

$400,000,000 FOR PRAIRIE PROVINCES

IN wheat alone the three prairie provinces yielded last year 240,000,000 bushels against 140,000,000 bushels in 1914, while the yield of wheat, oats, barley and flax amounted to 700,000,000 bushels in 1915 against 320,000,000 bushels in 1914.

These four crops in 1914 gave to the farmers approximately $210,000,000, while a conservative estimate places the value in 1915 at $400,000,000.

Probably no man in the West is better qualified to speak on past and present conditions there, and the prospects for the future, than Mr. J. S. Dennis, Assistant to the President of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, who with other officials of the Department of Natural Resources, is at present in Montreal, attending the annual meeting of that department.

Mr. Dennis has spent the past 40 years in the West, in the service of the Dominion and Provincial governments, the Hudson's Bay Co. and for the last 14 years with the Canadian Pacific, and during all that time has been more or less identified and connected with immigration and colonization and the development activities of the West.

"The West," he said, is wonderfully prosperous this year as a result of a bumper crop—a crop which may well be termed a double-crop, with yields running all the way from 30 to 70 bushels of wheat. Never has the West made such a record; never have the prairies so demonstrated their fertility, and, I may add, never, both from our point of view and that of the Empire, was it so necessary for the West to come through. In wheat alone, the three prairie provinces last year yielded more than all other grains put together—240,000,000 bushels, as against 140,000,000 in 1914, and if you take wheat, oats, barley and flax, we have a yield in 1915 of over 700,000,000 bushels against 320,000,000 in 1914. These four crops in 1914 returned to the farmers approximately $210,000,000; this 1915 crop on a conservative basis, will return $400,000,000. I have never attempted to boost the crop yield, and have always endeavored to be as accurate as possible, but it is quite evident that the 1915 crop surpassed anything in the history of the West, and that the financial returns per acre are greater than for any previous year; in addition, favorable late fall and early winter weather has permitted the farmers to thresh the greater part of their crops. Figures issued by the Provincial Governments just prior to my departure from Calgary, give Alberta a wheat yield of 26.16 bushels per acre; Saskatchewan 28.75 bushels per acre; and Manitoba, 28.50 bushels. Such yields are much in excess of those in any other portion of the hemisphere, but must, of course, be looked upon as phenomenal. Conditions are also much improved in British Columbia. The fruit districts of the province had the largest crop in their history, and the lumbering and mining industries showed marked revival and improvement during the year."

"That, of course, has fallen off," he replied, "and is our big—our main problem—to-day; we want more population and a readjustment, as far as possible, of the present distribution of rural and urban population. The desired end can only be reached through stimulating and increasing the immigration of people of the right class, and so colonizing them as to produce the best results. In all the provinces of Canada there is an economically unsound distribution of the present total population; too many people live in the urban centres, and the rural and producing population is too small a percentage of the whole. This is particularly true of the four Western Provinces, where the population is divided on a basis of 42 per cent. urban and 57 per cent rural, and this, in spite of the fact that these provinces contain one of the largest areas of good agricultural land, available for settlement and immediate development in the world. Occupying a territory greater in area than that of the United States, Canada has a population of approximately 8,000,000 as compared with 100,000,000 south of the international boundary. Possessed of natural resources in our forests, mines fisheries, and vast areas of agriculture land, Canada to-day is importing great quantities of manufactured products and foodstuffs, which could be and would be here were the population increased and distributed on a producing basis.

"Coincident with our remarkable urban development, the past decade has shown great expansion in our manufacturing and industrial plants, but we have not always built the superstructure on sound basis. Industrial development—particularly in the West, has established many industries, the raw product for which has to be imported, while sufficient attention has not been paid to those which would handle the raw products of the country, particularly those resulting from agriculture and animal husbandry. This fact is especially noticeable in connection with the flour industry. It is economically unsound that we should ship such a large bulk of our wheat out of the country instead of milling it at home, shipping the finished product in the shape of flour and retaining all the by-products, which are urgently needed to assist in expanding our stock-feeding and stock-finishing activities. Not only do we need more people on the land, but to build up our industries, and put our country on a self-producing basis."

"If you take the Dominion Government reports," he replied, "you will find that the total immigration for the past 10 years has been a little over 2,500,000, of which approximately 1,000,000 are reported to have come from Great Britain; if these figures are correct, it is quite clear that only a small proportion were looking for farm homes and that the greater number were of the laboring class. The report further shows that about 900,000 came from the United States and the balance from other countries. Whatever the total may be, I am convinced that, if we are going to have any success in solving the problem of increasing and properly distributing the population of Canada, we must so stimulate our immigration as to provide at least 500,000 a year for the next ten years."

"How are we going to do it?"

"For the present, at least, we can't do very much other than advertise our prosperity as widely as possible and prepare for the time when we can. The United States is, unquestionably, the field which should first be considered. They sent us approximately 80,000 in 1915. Conditions there, particularly in the Northern States, are analogous to those existing in Canada, and residents there, whether native-born or foreign, are accustomed to systems and methods of agriculture similar to our own, and to similar systems in connection with taxation, schools, currency, weights and measures, transportation, and general methods of living common to the two countries. The population of the United States is expanding so rapidly and the opportunity of obtaining cheap land or suitable employment decreasing correspondingly, that, inevitably, there must be and will be an increasing spilling over into the adjoining countries, if the openings there are attractively presented.

"Great Britain supplied, during the past decade, the largest number of immigrants, but the smallest number of agriculturists. The reason for this is readily understood when it is remembered that Great Britain is not an agricultural country, less than 15 per cent. of the population being engaged in agriculture (some 300,000 families in all), and under such conditions any marked propaganda on the part of the overseas portions of the Empire to reduce the present small agricultural population of the Mother Country is not good policy. Large numbers of the laboring class have been, and can be, obtained from Great Britain, but outside of skilled laborers, and a small number of farm laborers, the field is restricted.

"Of the unclassed immigrants in the above statement, the majority come from Northern Europe, including Belgians, Dutch, Scandinavians, Germans, Russians and Hungarians, and it is to the countries from which these people came that we must look for the large percentage of our immigrants on the conclusion of the war.

"That there will be a large movement of these people to America when the war terminates is my firm opinion. There has been such a movement following every European war of modern times, and, though it may be expected that all countries engaged in the present awful struggle will be desirous of and attempt to keep their people at home to assist in rehabilitating conditions, it is inevitable that all who can will be desirous of getting away from enforced military service and excessive war taxation, and move to the United States and Canada. It must be remembered also that there are numbers of people of all the nationalities engaged in the war already resident on this side of the Atlantic, and they will make every effort to get their friends and relatives to come and join them.

"There will of course, for a time, be a sentiment both in Canada and the countries with whom Great Britain is at war against the immigration of people of those countries into Canada, but this feeling will eventually pass.

"The question of returned Canadian soldiers after the close of the war and disbanded soldiers in Great Britain is going to be one of the serious problems following the war. It has been an acute problem following all wars, and our earliest colonization in Canada was by discharged soldiers after the war of conquest in Canada, and the Napoleonic wars of Europe. Active military service unsettles and unfits the majority of men for the occupation they followed before joining the army, and, without question, the problem of rehabilitating in civil life the men that Canada is providing for the present war is going to be a serious and troublesome one. In addition, consideration should be given to the possibility of helping Great Britain in the solution of this difficulty by bringing suitable men and their families to Canada.

"The West has suffered a serious drain in the young men who have responded to Canada's call to join the army and help the Empire in the present crisis, and this loss and the other difficulties mentioned are ahead of us to be solved. They will, however, be grappled with energetically, and with the prosperity that is now in the country, the new wealth from industrial and agricultural sources, I foresee an era of continued growth and development beside which our progress of the past decade will be comparatively insignificant."

Warships From Zeebrugge Active In The North Sea

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 14.—The Telegraaf says the German scout vessels in the North sea are believed to have gone out of Zeebrugge, as it is known that some vessels which formerly were not at that port have been lying there under steam.

The British mine sweepers gave a good account of themselves when they were attacked, and inflicted damage on three of the enemy.

In the battle that followed the German attacks one of the British ships was separated from its companions, and has not been accounted for. It is understood that this vessel is the one which Berlin identifies as the "cruiser Arabis," stating that it was sunk by a torpedo.

The naval expert of the Daily Chronicle thinks that "the answer is to be found in the fact that the British warship Arabis is an unusual type of vessel, which might easily be mistaken for something else. She is an oil-driven vessel. A number of ships of this class began to appear on the high seas in recent years."

In addition to the British ship Arabia, another British vessel was sunk by a German torpedo boat in the North Sea, according to an official Admiralty report given out in Berlin last night. The report, which is forwarded for publication by the Overseas News Agency, follows: "The Admiralty reports, relative to the sinking of the British cruiser Arabia, that a second English ship was sunk, which was hit by a torpedo. A German torpedo boat rescued the commander of the Arabia, also the surgeon, one officer, one non-commissioned officer and twenty-seven men. During the return, however, the surgeon and three men died because of long exposure in the sea."

"Oh, yes, thank you, sir," replied the damsel; "I came up in the life."

Fire Destroyed The Post Office

FENELON FALLS, Feb. 16.—Fire broke out yesterday in the post office on Colbourne street, and destroyed the structure. The firemen put up a brave fight and assisted by the resident soldiers of the 109th Battalion, did everything in their power to save the building, but at the time the message was sent, 11:45, all hope of saving it was abandoned. The weather conditions was decidedly unfavourable for the fire fighters, who prevented the blaze from spreading to the other buildings. Bulgaria Having Won Its Objective Would Like To Quit

The Crushing of Serbia Was Her Big Object---Would Now Like to Withdraw With The Fruits of Her Victory.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Reports that Bulgaria, her work in the war ended, is seeking a separate peace came to London from Athens. The information in the Greek capital came from Entente diplomatic quarters and much reliance is placed in its authenticity. There is no mention of the terms under which the Bulgars would withdraw from the conflict.

Diplomatists here attribute the rumoured desire for peace to the fact that Bulgaria, having attained the objective that drew her into the war, has nothing further to fight for. Her quarrel primarily was with Serbia. She desired the crushing of the Serb kingdom and she had her eyes on that part of Macedonia acquired by her neighbour after the second Balkan war. Having, by the weight of her army in alliance with the Austro-Germans, occupied the whole of Serbia, her principal ambition has been satisfied and she well may be willing to ease the financial load on her shoulders by demobilization.

Bulgaria entered the struggle on October 14 last by declaring war on Serbia and following up the declaration with a swift advance over the Serbian frontier on Nish, the temporary capital of King Peter.

Bulgaria's entrance into the war marked the failure of diplomatic efforts on the part of the Entente Allies to draw her into the conflict against Germany, or at least to insure her neutrality. Bulgaria, however, after seeming to lean first to one side and then to the other, and always preparing for hostilities, finally rejected the offers of the Entente Powers and five days after the occupation of Belgrade by the big Austro-German army under Field Marshal von Mackensen she took up arms against Serbia.

At that time Bulgarian statesmen announced that the quarrel of Bulgaria was with Serbia and not with the other members of the Entente. The principal question of dispute was the Macedonian territory occupied by the Serbs and Greeks after the second Balkan war, in which Bulgaria was robbed of the fruits of her victories over the Turks in the first Balkan war.

Efforts were made by the Entente diplomatists to have Serbia and Greece cede some of the disputed territory to Bulgaria as a price for her neutrality, but these exchanges failed and Bulgaria decided to enter the war, announcing that she had no intention of continuing hostilities after Serbia had been conquered. After the defeat of the Serbian armies and the occupation of the country by the Teutonic and Bulgarian forces it again was stated that Bulgaria had nothing further to fight for and probably would withdraw from the campaign.

Attempts made by the German commanders to force Bulgaria to take the lead in attacking the Anglo-French troops at Salonika the last few weeks are believed to have forced her hand.

Although refusing apparently to make this campaign, Bulgaria did join the Germans and Austrians assembled along the Greek border, with Monastir and Doiran as bases, and the bulk of the Bulgarian army is now believed to be in line with Teutonic forces and a large army of Turks.

Bulgaria brought to the aid of the Teutonic Balkan campaign a force of veteran soldiers estimated at about 350,000 men. After the second Balkan war the army was reorganized and drafts were made to retrieve the losses suffered in the battles with Serbia and Greece.

The declaration of war against Serbia found Bulgaria with five armies concentrated at the frontier. The Serbians bending all their energies to the defence of their country from the Austro-German invasion at the north, were unable to meet the Bulgarian advance. Great Britain, France, Italy and Russia quickly declared war on Bulgaria. France and Britain landed troops at Salonika and hurried them toward Nish to aid in the defence of the Serb capital.

Since the occupation of the kingdom the Bulgars have had little to do. They garrisoned much of the captured territory and have advanced across Albania nearly to Aviano, but they have engaged in no fighting for nearly two months.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Lord Kitchener, Secretary for War, has returned to London after a visit to the front.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Milan despatches reports six killed and many injured by bombs from Austrian aeroplane raid. The aeroplanes were driven off by anti-aircraft guns.

ATHENS, Feb. 15.—Bulgarians were defeated in a bloody action near the Port of Valons in Albania.

"COUNT" GREGORY IS FOUND NOT GUILTY

Newport Jewellery Firm Fails to Prove Charge of Obtaining Stickpin Under False Pretence.

NEWPORT, R.I., Feb. 15.—The long delayed case against "Count" Bernard S. Gregory for alleged obtaining of jewellery under false pretences was tried in the District Court here and Judge Baker found him not guilty. The "Count" testified that his title was conferred upon him by act of Parliament.

The charge was urged by Udall & Ballou because of the borrowing by the "Count" of an $800 stickpin, which the latter took to New York with him. The fact that the "Count" owed the firm on book account more than $1,000 was a factor in the proceedings.

"Count" Gregory who is widely known in horse show circles, was attired in extreme fashion to-day when he took the stand. The witnesses were frequently interrupted by those interested and finally Judge Baker called on the Sheriff to preserve order.

The "Count" would not discuss his troubles to-day any further than to say that the case was one of persecution, and that he was satisfied with his vindication.

The Man Who Looks Ahead

Most persons have some goal to which they steer their hopes, but many thoughtlessly unnerve the hand, and dull the brain by faulty living, then wonder why success is not achieved.

Among the everyday habits of life that often upset health are tea or coffee drinking—ancient and respectable customs, but harmful to many.

The average cup of tea or coffee contains from 1½ to 3 grains of caffeine, which, gradually accumulating in the system, often causes nervous prostration, heart trouble, mental depression, etc.

There's an easy way out of tea and coffee troubles—quit both tea and coffee and use

DIG IN CISTERN FOR BODY OF VICTIM OF ROBBER

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.— Believing that at the bottom of a deep cistern they will find the body of a legless man who was robbed of $15,000 in cash and then murdered, the courts of Passaic county, New Jersey, ordered the uncovering of the cistern in the yard at No. 21 Park place, Wallington.

Until an Erie train cut off both his legs near the hips ten years ago, Anton Alsofsky lived in comparative poverty. When he recovered, however the railroad paid him $5,000 and then he started out to realize on his abreviated physical condition. He became a beggar in the large cities of the East and his friends in Allentown, Pa., said that when he disappeared in October, 1914, he had $15,000 in cash, mostly in large bills, sewed into the lining of the clothes he wore.

He also had purchased the house and lot in Park avenue, Wallington, intending to retire there in his old age and live in peace and plenty. However, while he was begging and increasing his fortune, he rented the place to his friend, Joseph Bogovitch, and frequently was his guest.

The Pennsylvania relatives of Alsofsky informed Thomas J. Huckin, Prosecutor of Passaic county, that he had spent several weeks in Wallington just before he disappeared. He wrote that he was going to Allentown, but never arrived.

Soon after that the cistern in the yard at Wallington was filled in with many loads of earth and packed down hard. Residents began to talk and the police asked questions, but learned nothing. About a year ago a deed was filed transferring the property from Alsofsky to Bogovitch, and the latter paid the taxes.

Upon the demands of the Pennsylvania relatives of the legless man detectives began to search in Wallington last November for clews to the cripple's whereabouts, and at about that time the house caught fire and was destroyed. Bogovitch was arrested on a charge of arson, and since then he has been in the county jail at Paterson, an indictment having been voted recently.

Mr. Huckin yesterday sent a squad of men, under County Detective John Courter, to Wallington, and they began to dig up the cistern. By night they had gone down eight feet and expected to reach the bottom, thirty feet deep, on Sunday. Detectives were assigned to guard the excavation and the property over night.

FEW DOCTORS LEFT IN VIENNA

So few doctors are left in Vienna that professional consultations over the telephone have become very numerous. Instead of calling the doctor to the house many people now seek his advice over the telephone, especially in cases where the patient has already been examined. The Vienna Medical Association reminds the public of a legal decision, rendered some years ago, that such conversations are to be regarded as medical consultations, and paid for accordingly.

IS CHARGED WITH FORGING BILLS

Michael F. Reibin Has Been Arrested at Yorkton—Was Confidential Clerk.

YORKTON, Sask., Feb. 15.—Michael F. Reibin, a Doughobor employed in Lieut.-Col. Pawlett's real estate and insurance office as confidential clerk and interpreter, was placed under arrest by Chief of Police Zeats and is now in the cells awaiting trial and a charge of forgery.

Reibin, who claims to be the agent and grain buyer for the Acme Grain Co. and Smith-Murphy Grain Co., is said to have presented four forged bills of lading to the Bank of Toronto, and asked for an advance of $1,600 on same. He produced a letter purporting to be signed by shippers, authorizing him to act for them, and as everything appeared to be in order, the cashier was on the point of paying out the money. The manager, M. Duncan, decided to verify them, however, and the alleged forgery was discovered by car numbers which were not those of grain cars. When searched, five other forged bills of lading were found on Reibin's person, and a number of letters and drafts indicating a plan for conducting forgery in bills of lading on an extensive scale.

Refused Earlier Request.

Earlier in the day he attempted to cash drafts for $2,000 at the Bank of British North America on the Acme Grain Co., but as the amount asked for was considered too great his request was refused.

CALGARY FIRES ALIENS.

Council Also Passes Vote of Confidence in the Military Authorities.

Calgary, Feb. 15.—At a meeting of the City Council Saturday, at which Brigadier-General Cruikshank was present, a motion was passed to the effect that the Council had confidence in the military authorities. In case of any further trouble, should civilians interfere the General said he would call on the magistrate to ask them to disperse. All civic employes of alien nationality were ordered immediately dismissed and will be replaced where possible, by returned soldiers.

MORGAN REFUSES TO TALK.

Spends Time in London Studying Financial Developments.

LONDON, Feb. 15.— J. P. Morgan received reporters affably, but they drew even less from him than they had drawn from Col. E. M. House, President Wilson's personal representative. The efforts of the newspaper men to discover the purpose of Mr. Morgan's visit were met with a smiling reply to all. Mr. Morgan saying nothing to anybody about anything.

Financial men who were aware of how Mr. Morgan had spent the day suggested that he had been so busy getting information that he had no time to give any. They said that Mr. Morgan had been keenly gleaning whatever interesting information he could regarding the European financial situation in relation to the most recent events.

URIC ACID SUFFERING.

Uric acid is an accumulation of poison which finds lodgement in the system when the kidneys fail to remove it from the blood. In the kidneys and bladder it forms stones, in the joints and muscles it causes rheumatism. In any case the pain and suffering is almost beyond human endurance. Uric acid is promptly removed from the system when the kidneys are kept healthy and active by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

LOOK AT A CHILD'S TONGUE WHEN CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Take No Chance! Move Poisons From Liver and Bowels at Once

Mothers can rest easily after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the clogged-up waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently moves out of the bowels, and you can have a well, playful child again. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, and they become tightly packed, liver gets sluggish and stomach disordered.

When cross, feverish, restless, see if tongue is coated, then give this delicious "fruit laxative." Children love it, and it can not cause injury. No difference what ails your little one—if full of cold, or a sore throat, diarrhoea, stomach-ache, bad breath, remember, a gentle "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 60-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." We make no smaller size. Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

WET GUNCOTTON.

Owing to its high percentage of nitrogen oxide, guncotton when exposed to air in a dry state rapidly absorbs oxygen from the air and becomes very dangerous, exploding spontaneously or from slight shock. Dry guncotton in unconfined mass merely burns with a flash like gunpowder, only much more rapidly; it does not exert explosive effect unless confined, as in a shell. In its dry state guncotton is seldom used for primers and detonators, as it is too unstable and will explode with a slight shock or blow.

The guncotton carried aboard war vessels and submarines for the explosive charge of torpedoes is always wet guncotton, kept in air tight containers to prevent evaporation of moisture. Wet guncotton can be exploded only by a severe shock; hence primers or detonators of some more powerful explosive are necessary, these exploding on impact of the torpedo against a ship's side and in turn exploding the guncotton in the war head. Fifty to 100 pounds is the usual charge of a torpedo.

Ordinarily safe if properly stowed away from heat and kept moist, guncotton becomes dangerous from liability to spontaneous explosion when a slight excess of acid is present, and constant and regular tests for acidity are part of the duties of ordnance officers of war vessels and ammunition depots. Guncotton giving a high acid test is promptly condemned and either destroyed or reworked and washed.

Can Life be Lengthened?

THIS is a problem that for centuries have engaged the attention of the world's greatest thinkers. Recent research and experience have conclusively proved that Total Abstainers Live Longer than non-abstainers. The reason for this, and the consequent reduction in rates of insurance accorded to applicants of this class by that old-established Company, THE MANUFACTURERS LIFE, is well explained in an attractive little booklet issued and entitled "Total Abstainers vs. Moderate Drinkers." This may be had on application. A post card will do. It is interesting and will place you under no obligation. Write to-day

Naming a Novel.

"The thing to do," said a literary man, "is to call your novel after the name of the leading character—to call it 'John Smith,' or something of that sort."

"Why is that the thing to do?" asked the young novelist.

"Because the best and the most successful novels always have such names," the other replied. "Take as a standard the great novelists, and you will find that the greatest book of each gets its simple and plain title from the leading character's name."

"Give some instances."

"Instances are easy to give. What is the best novel of Dickens? It is 'David Copperfield.' What is the best novel of Thackeray? It is 'Henry Esmond.' What is the best novel of Scott? It is 'Ivanhoe.' What is the best novel of Thomas Hardy? 'Tess of the D'Urbervilles.' Of George Meredith? 'The Ordeal of Richard Feverel.' Of Rider Haggard? 'Allan Quatermain.' Of Tolstoy? 'Anna Karenina.'

"These things," the speaker concluded, "show a man that it is a lucky and well-omened thing for him to name his book after the leading character in it."

Has Had Few Accidents.

All his life King George has been singularly free from ill-health and accidents. He is such a splendid horseman, and his mounts are so thoroughly broken-in and carefully selected, that an accident such as occurred in France is the last misfortune in the world that his attendants would have anticipated. In fact, this is the first physical accident of any consequence that the King has ever experienced. He has had, of course, one or two narrow escapes. When he was motoring on the Yorkshire moors in 1912 a car coming rapidly in the opposite direction only avoided a collision by the chauffeur's promptitude in overturning it into a ditch.

Gold Saved South Africa.

The gold mining operations of the Union of South Africa were its salvation during the recent critical period of its history, according to a recently issued report. By arrangement between the Imperial and Union Governments the continued production of gold was ensured after the outbreak of war even at times when the export of the product could not be carried on with safety. During the year gold of the value of $177,000,000 was produced in South Africa, but the actual exports were only about $100,000,000. Some $75,000,000 worth of gold was retained within the Union on behalf of the Bank of England.

Blacks Enlisting.

A colored regiment is being raised in South Africa. So great was the rush when the doors were opened that barricades had to be erected, and a squad of police had to be requisitioned to keep the entrances passable. This aptly indicates the enthusiasm with which the recruiting opened at Cape Town. Within two hours 200 recruits were enrolled, a large percentage of whom had already served in the German South-West Africa campaign. The non-commissioned officers will be drawn from the ranks. The training of the contingent will be carried out at Simonstown. Enlistment is confined to single men without dependents.

Britain's Wealth.

At a rough estimate the capital wealth of the British empire is $130,000,000,000 and its yearly income $20,000,000,000. This statement was made by Reginald McKenna, chancellor of the exchequer, in reply to an inquirer in the House of Commons.

The Wit of Shakespeare.

"Shakespeare was godfather to one of Jonson's children, and after the christening, Shakespeare being in a brown study, Jonson came to cheer him up and asked him why he was so melancholy.

"'No faith, Ben, not I. But I have been considering a great while what would be the fittest gift to bestow upon my godchild, and I have resolved at last.'

"'I prythee what?'

"'I' faith, Ben, I'll e'en give him a dozen good latten (an alloyed metal something like brass) spoons, and you shall translate them.'"

While Shakespeare, according to Jonson, had "small Latin and less Greek." Ben Jonson was one of the giants among classical scholars of his day, when no other scholarship was recognized.

KEEP URIC ACID OUT OF JOINTS
Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Eat Less Meat and Take Salts

Rheumatism is easier to avoid than to cure, states a well-known authority. We are advised to dress warmly; keep the feet dry; avoid exposure; eat less meat; but drink plenty of good water.

Rheumatism is a direct result of eating too much meat and other rich foods that produce uric acid which is absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate the uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which helps overcome uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.

New Zealand's Medal.

New Zealand has its own Victoria Cross—one of the rarest medals ever awarded "For Valor." This Cross is very similar to the one so much coveted by the officers and men of the army and navy. The centre, however, bears the wording "New Zealand," instead of "For Valor," and has no lion. This medal was instituted in 1869 by the Governor of New Zealand, Sir G. F. Bowen. He exceeded his authority in doing so, but Queen Victoria signed the necessary order for the medals, adding a note, however, that it was not to be taken as a precedent. Altogether only nineteen of these crosses were awarded.

To Employ Returned Soldiers.

The ex-Prime Minister of Australia, J. C. Watson, has been appointed by the War Committee to organize a scheme for the employment of returned Australian soldiers. His duties will be to visit the different states and secure the co-operation of the State Governments to a scheme of land settlement drawn up by the Federal Government; and also to enlist the sympathy and support of private citizens and landholders. Mr. Watson thinks that there will be enough land available to make grants to British soldiers, who desire to settle down as farmers, as well as to native Australians.

Cross of War for Prince.

The conferring of the Cross of War upon the Prince of Wales by the French President has created the liveliest satisfaction in this country. This is the first purely war distinction that his Royal Highness has received and, as far as can be gathered, the Prince is the first British officer to possess the Cross. A number of officers, from generals downwards, have been given different grades of the Legion of Honor, while a few non-coms. have won the French Military Medal.

SIR EDWARD ELGAR.

Britain's Greatest Composer is a Cheery Optimist.

Emerging from a temporary retirement, Sir Edward Elgar has delighted many admirers by recently appearing in the conductor's chair at the London Coliseum and conducting some of his greatest compositions, and, in addition, has written the music for a new play, "The Starlight Express," which Miss Lena Ashwell is producing at the Kingsway Theatre. Undoubtedly Sir Edward stands as the foremost of England's composers and musicians of the present day.

From an early age he displayed exceptional musical talent, although he never had a lesson in orchestration, and, indeed, is almost entirely self-taught. It is safe to affirm, however, that Sir Edward, whatever his earliest ambitions might have been, little dreamt when he started life in a solicitor's office, gave lessons on the violin, and played in the local orchestra at Worcester, his native city, where his father was an organist, that he would one day attain his present fame.

He had not much money in those days, but he was determined to learn. Nearly every week he used to journey to London from his native city, in order to attend the Saturday night concerts at the Crystal Palace. Now and then a small composition of his was given in his native district, and this local fame led to him being made band conductor in 1879 to the County Lunatic Asylum, where he spent his time coaching players recruited from the attendants.

It was while he was acting as band conductor to the asylum that he became familiar with practically every instrument, ranging from the French horn to the organ. Indeed, it would be difficult to name any instrument which Sir Edward cannot play. It was in these early days that he added to his income by composing dance music, for which he received special payment, while now and then he arranged accompaniments for nigger minstrel ballads for the use of the asylum inmates, for which he received 1s. 6d. each.

Possessing a keen sense of humor, Sir Edward Elgar is nothing if not an optimist. Not long ago he gave some good advice to an audience of musicians.

"Above all," he said, "let us be cheerful. Good music need not be dull. I know it is an old problem whether a dog bewls because it is happy or miserable."

Birds and Disaster.

Tradition has it that a late swallow brings luck to the hostel he favors, and many country people still regard the bird as semi-consecrated, and refuse to allow its empty nest to be interfered with during the winter months. With the spring, the birds return to their original eaves, and it is a sign of impending misfortune if they neglect last year's nests. A swallow at sea brings disaster in its train, but a sand swallow is considered a mascot by the surrounding countryside.

Even the little hedge-sparrow may lay claim to some share of notoriety, for illness attacks the occupant of the room into which it gains access. A dead wren is another little treasure, and the superstitious Manx fishermen would never set sail at one time without one. A live wren will not work the same result, but a dead wren can vie with the renowned caul among sea superstitions. It is said that the wren averts a storm. Long ago, an evil spirit haunted the herring fisheries, until it suddenly assumed the form of a wren and flew off.

An Indian Marriage.

It seems almost incredible to an English girl that her little Indian sister never sees her husband until after the marriage ceremony. The parents choose the wife for the son of the house without consulting either party. Sometimes the bride is as young as fourteen. The child is gorgeously dressed, and placed on a dais behind a sheet; the women of the family being in attendance.

On the other side of the sheet is the bridegroom and many of his young men friends. The groom keeps throwing over jewels attached to flowers, which the women on the brides side remove and place in her lap or on her person.

This first ceremony is called the Shahdee, and although a man is allowed four wives, no other ever holds the same position as the first chosen for him. The others are of little importance, living their lives more or less as servants to the first wife. As the first wife gets to middle age she is known as the Begum.

BRONCHITIS
COMES FROM A NEGLECTED COLD.

Bronchitis starts with a short, painful, dry cough, accompanied with rapid wheezing, and a feeling of oppression or tightness through the chest. At first the expectoration is a light color but as the trouble progresses the phlegm arising from the bronchial tubes becomes of a yellowish or greenish color, and is very often of a stringy nature.

Bronchitis is usually at its worst in the morning on account of the phlegm becoming lodged in the bronchial tubes during the night, and it very often takes some time coughing and gagging before you can get the throat clear of the phlegm.

When this happens you may be sure that if the bronchitis is not attended to immediately it will sooner or later develop into pneumonia, or some other more serious lung trouble.

The best remedy for to cure the cold is DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP.

Mrs. Roy Conner, Greenwood, Ont., writes: "I must tell you what Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup did for me. Whenever I got a cold I would be troubled with bronchitis, and sometimes I would almost choke to death. After taking two bottles of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I was cured."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is 25c and 50c. per bottle. See that you get the genuine.

In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Every child has a right to a happy childhood. The recollection of a sunny childhood is an auspicious inheritance and a splendid preparation for the strain and burden of life. In China the first four or five years of a girl's life are a continual agony. All the children in India are born old. Go among the submerged masses in any of our great cities and you will find children barren and desolate beyond description. To have this joy crushed out of a little life is a sorrowful tragedy that will shadow all its future. Gray skies will often weep above them in the after years; see to it that, so far as possible, these early years are unclouded. Let them have their childhood.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Mattie's Milkman.

By MURRAY FIEL.

Miss Jeannette's objection to Gene Carman was his profession. He was night editor on a morning paper, and he came home anywhere between 2 and 6 o'clock in the morning.

Miss Jeannette was country bred, and for forty years she had accepted without question the dictum that those who were out of night were no better than thieves and robbers.

Just what was the difference between thieves and robbers Miss Jeannette did not know. She knew only that those were the only sort of persons who were out when decent folk should be abed, so when her pretty niece, Mattie Boyer, gave evidence of more than a passing interest in Carman she very promptly frowned upon the young man and warned Mattie that she must have nothing more to do with the Carmans, mother and son.

The latter lived on the floor above Mattie and her maiden aunt, and kindly Mrs. Carman had been a tower of strength to Miss Jeannette when she and Mattie had first come to the city to live.

She had pointed out the best places at which to trade and helped Miss Jeannette to get an obnoxious tenant on the lower floor out of the house and had initiated both the elder and the younger woman into city ways generally.

Naturally it had hurt the old lady when the Boyers had terminated their friendly relations without word of warning, but a hint from Mattie to Gene soon set matters right.

"HE'S STUCK ON ME SHAPE AND SENT ME A MASH NOTE."

Mattie was accustomed to Miss Jeannette's sudden whims, and she assured Gene that presently there would be a turn of the tide in his favor. Meanwhile she had to obey Miss Jeannette's prohibition against seeing Gene, so the only communication they held was by means of notes.

Every morning when Gene came home from his work he found a note stuck in the wide mouth of the empty milk bottle beside the Boyer doorway. The milkman came through the house later, gathering up empty bottles and leaving the filled ones.

To any person who chanced to pass it would appear to be a note of instructions to the milkman, but to Gene, coming home tired and sometimes disheartened, the little blue envelopes were like mental cocktails.

The same bottle would not serve as his postoffice as well, for Miss Jeannette took in the milk.

The best that Gene could do was to leave his letters in the candy store on the corner, where Mattie could get them when she returned from her work.

Had Mrs. Carman been willing to act as messenger the problem would have been far more simple, but the kindly old lady would have nothing to do with the affair.

She was hurt that the friendship should be so suddenly terminated and still more hurt that her son should be regarded as ineligible. She wondered at his lack of pride that he should still want to marry Mattie in spite of Miss Jeannette's prohibition, and she was most ostentatiously neutral.

For a time the milk bottle postoffice answered its purpose excellently well Miss Jeannette went to bed early and let Mattie close the house, so that the latter set the bottle out in the hall every evening.

But one morning Gene did not come home as usual. There had been a sensational accident, and all the men on duty had been rushed to the scene. Even the men on the desks who could be spared were sent out, Gene among them.

It was nearly noon when he at last reached home, so exhausted that not once did he think of the letter. Mind and body were numb, and he did not dream that another man was reading the letter intended for him and was gloating over its contents.

Mattie's letters were not affectionately personal. She knew the danger of the missives falling into other hands, so she wrote vague notes of good cheer.

In the missing one there was an allusion to the long wait for love's culmination, and this gave to Butch Cassidy the milk boy, the idea that the young woman with the glorious blue eyes was very much interested in him.

"I bet she seen me somewhere on Sunday," he mused. "She's a pippin, but I guess I'm some apples myself when I get me new harness on. It's a darned shame that she didn't pipe up a couple of weeks ago. She'd have put it all over Slim Bleecher's girl at th' ball of th' Milk Wagon Drivers' association. The Lady Flirts give their blowout a week from Thursday, and that's the day after pay day. I wonder would the little dame give a look."

Butch was a firm believer in the adage that "faint heart ne'er won fair lady," so as soon as his horse was stabled and his routine ended he made for the flat house in which the Boyers lived.

He was somewhat taken aback when Miss Jeannette answered the bell. Mattie worked only in the afternoons, reading to an invalid, and generally it was she who paid the bills on Tuesday morning when Butch made his regular round.

"Where's the little lady?" demanded Butch determined to brave it out. "I want to say nothin' to her."

"My niece is out just now," was the severe response. "I understood that she paid your bill yesterday."

"Bill be blowed," said Butch politely. "This is a personal game, see? I got the money yesterday. I want to make a date wit' her. Get that over your think plate?"

"You!" cried Miss Jeannette in disgust.

"Sure," was the easy response. "She's stuck on me shape and sent me a mash note. I ain't wise up to all her talk, but that's clean. Give a look."

Moved to anger by the incredulity in Miss Jeannette's look, he produced the note, now sadly soiled. "You ain't just what I'd pick for a mommer-in-law, but I guess I'll have to take you wit' th' rest of th' furniture."

Miss Jeannette had lived in dread of a misalliance for Mattie, and now her worst fears seemed about to be realized.

Butch promptly took his departure after giving a frightened ring on the bell of the flat next door, trusting that some one might come to the woman's relief. He could not know that they had all gone out, so it was Mrs. Carman, summoned by a piano agent, who brought Miss Jeannette back to consciousness. Miss Jeannette clung to her convulsively.

"Did you see that milk wagon driver?" demanded the shuddering Miss Jeannette. "My dear Mrs. Carman, that man is going to marry Mattie. I have heard of young girls eloping with their father's coachman, but with the driver of a milk wagon! Do you know that Mattie actually has been writing letters to him?"

A gleam of comprehension came into Mrs. Carman's kindly eyes. She knew that Gene had come in late that morning, and she could guess the rest. Here might be an opportunity to make things come out all right.

"I suppose that Mattie admired his appearance," she suggested gently. "Young girls very frequently do fall in love with a fine physique, and I recall that the driver is very athletic. If you had not interfered with Gene and she"—

Miss Jeannette grasped her arm. "It's not too late," she declared. "Tell your son that I will make any apology he demands. Perhaps if they see more of each other Mattie will forget this mad infatuation."

"I am quite sure that she will," declared Mrs. Carman comfortingly. "I will speak to Gene and ask him for your sake to try and regain Mattie's love."

Miss Jeannette gave her rescuer a grateful glance, and the little woman withdrew to sit patiently on the front step to warn Mattie when she should return. There Gene found her when he came out to go to work, and he listened in great amusement while his mother explained the situation.

"Of the two evils you are the less," she reminded smilingly. "If Mattie will only play her part well and consent to gradually forget her milkman you have won."

"I don't like being the lesser of Miss Jeannette's two evils," declared Gene happily as he bent to kiss his mother's wrinkled cheek, "but to save Mattie from her milkman I am willing to be even that, dear."

An Old, Family Cough Remedy, Home-Made

Easily Prepared—Costs Very Little, but is Prompt, Sure and Effective

By making this old-time cough syrup at home you not only save about $2, as compared with the ready-made kind, but you will also have a much more prompt and positive remedy in every way. It overcomes the usual coughs, throat and chest colds in 24 hours—relieves even whooping cough quickly—and is excellent, too, for bronchitis, bronchial asthma, hoarseness and spasmodic croup.

Get from any drug store 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. Full directions with Pinex. Keeps perfectly and tastes good.

You can feel this take hold of a cough or cold in a way that means business. It quickly loosens the dry, hoarse or painful cough, and also heals the inflamed membranes. It also has a remarkable effect in overcoming the persistent loose cough by stopping the formation of phlegm in the throat and bronchial tubes.

The effect of pine on the membranes is known by almost every one. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, combined with guaiacol and other natural healing ping elements.

There are many worthless imitations of this famous mixture. To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex," and do not accept anything else.

SHE GAINED 35 POUNDS.

Mrs. George Bradshaw, Harlowe, Ont. writes: "I was troubled for many years with weak, watery blood and dropsy. I had nervous headaches, dizziness, and sinking spells, and was in fact, a confirmed invalid. Doctors told me my heart and kidneys were diseased and gave me up but by using 10 boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I have been cured of many of my old complaints and gained 35 pounds in weight.

Jones' Van Dyck.

People told Jones that his youth was against him—he looked too young. If he wanted to rise rapidly in his profession he would have to grow a few hirsutorial decorations.

He started a Van Dyck. His wife watched its growth critically. She didn't take to it—said she married a young man, not a professor. The whiskers grew and grew, and hubby looked more and more like a pirate. Wifey tried to talk him out of them, but he insisted they were an actual necessity in his profession.

One morning Jones woke up with his chin feeling moist and sticky. He rubbed his hand over his face foliage and found it wet. Then he opened his eyes and saw his wife standing over him with a bottle of peroxide in her hand. Filled with alarm, he jumped out of bed and over to the mirror. Already the stuff that makes blonde to order had done its work. That primeval growth was red, yellow and mauve, e'en as the growing corn. Jones had to wipe the dust off his razor and remove the chin weeds.

"I suppose you think you've done something pretty smart," he observed to Mrs. Jones gruesomely as he removed another bunch. "You've ruined my profession, that's what you've done."

The Moving Force.

A teacher after giving some lessons on physical force asked, "Now, boys, can any of you tell me what force it is that moves people along the street?"

He was greatly surprised and the class highly amused at receiving from one of the boys the unexpected answer:

"Please, sir, the police force."

PEOPLES OF THE WORLD.

The Aryan or White Race and its Numerous Divisions.

The division of the earth's population according to race is as follows: Indo-Germanic or Aryan race (white) occupying Europe, America, Persia, India and Australia, about 775,000,000; Mongolian or Turanian (yellow and brown), living in Asia, about 657,000,000; Semitic (white), living in Asia Arabia, etc., about 65,000,000; negro and Bantu (black), found in Africa about 150,000,000; Malay and Polynesian (brown), inhabiting Australasia, about 33,000,000; American (Indian red), found in North and South America, number, including halfbreeds, about 25,000,000.

The Slavs are one of the chief divisions of the Aryan race. They are divided, as a race, into two leading families, the eastern and western Slavs. The eastern Slavs comprise the Russians (Great Russians, Little Russians and White Russians); Bulgarians, Servo-Croats, including the Servians and Montenegrins, and Slovenes in Carinthia, Carniola and part of Syria. The western Slav family is divided into the Poles, in Russia, Austria and Prussia, and the Kassubes; the Czechs, or Bohemians, and the Moravians, with the Slovaks in Hungary, and the Lusatian Wends or Sorbs in Saxony and Prussia. The theory is that their original home was in Volhynia and White Russia.

A Hypochondriac.

"Pa, what is a hypochondriac?"

"A hypochondriac, Wilfred"—

But just a moment. "Pa" in this anecdote is not a good and kind father, yearning to impart useful information to his son, but one of those smart answer givers whose main object in life is to get into the back pages of the magazines. Such fathers look upon their little sons groping for knowledge as providers of openings for senseless domestic epigrams; hence—but we'll go back.

"Pa" takes off his glasses and looks benignly at his son.

"What did you say, my boy?"

That gives "pa" his chance.

"A hypochondriac, Wilfred"—names like Wilfred add humor to this sort of thing; John, for instance, would fall flat, and James would be indefinitely worse; but to resume—"a hypochondriac, Wilfred, is a man who has such a dread of catching cold that whenever he takes a bath he stops up all the holes in the sponge for fear of drafts."

The Secret of Harmony.

Young Mrs. Mead, whose experience of married life had been brief and happy, had just engaged two servants, a man and his wife.

"I am so glad you are married," she said to the man with whom she had made terms. "I hope you are very, very happy and that you and your wife never have any difference of opinion."

"Faith, ma'am, Oi couldn't say that," replied the new servant, "for we have a good many, but Oi don't let my wife know of them, and so we do be gettin' along well."

Misplaced.

Sergeant to Tommy (who has fallen out for the fourth time)—What! At it again? You know you ought never to have joined this 'ere regiment, me lad. You ought to 'ave joined the flying corps. They only let you fall out once there!—London Punch.

THE "JOLLIES."

Facts About the Royal Marine Branch of the Naval Service.

"If ever the hour of danger should come to England, the Marines will be found the country's sheet-anchor," Earl St. Vincent, one of England's greatest admirals, once said, and certainly "The Jollies," as the Marines have been nicknamed, have always worthily upheld the fighting traditions of the British Empire.

To-day the corps of the Royal Marines has reached the greatest expansion of its wonderful record of 250 years. To-day it not only mans and fights about a quarter of the guns of the Fleet, but is employed in a variety of other capacities, as in coast defence batteries, heavy and light artillery brigades, an infantry brigade, field engineers, transport, and submarine miners units. To fill the gaps in their ranks and to keep their complement to full strength, the Marines are now asking for recruits, and men may join either for long service or for the period of the war.

Marines, though part of the naval forces, are in the first place soldiers and trained as soldiers; but as their life is spent for the most part on board ship, a thorough course of instruction in naval gunnery and other naval subjects follows their military training. The man who joins for the period of the war, however, will probably be trained only as a soldier, says The Times.

Young men between the ages of eighteen and twenty-three are accepted for long service, and between nineteen and thirty-eight for the period of the war. The physical standards for war recruits are: For the Marine Artillery, height 5ft. 7in., chest 35in.; for the Light Infantry, height 5ft. 3½in., and chest 34in.

The privates' pay in the Artillery branch is from 4s. 2d. to 9s. 4d. a week, and in the Infantry branch from 3s. 2d. to 9s. 11d. Extra "efficiency pay" can be earned, and men of certain rank qualified in gunnery can obtain further pay ranging from 7s. to 10s. 6d. a week. Men employed on shore receive extra pay for special duties, and men with the knowledge of certain trades may add considerably to their pay. Separation allowances are made on the usual basis.

During the first two or three weeks of his training the recruit is instructed in the duties of sentries, etc., he is employed on fatigue, and later has two or three weeks devoted to musketry. Next he undergoes a course of field training, and the last two weeks of his course are given up to infantry drill on parade. Then, as has been said, if he is a long-service recruit, he passes on to his division at Chatham, Gosport, or Plymouth, for further training, before joining his ship, or if he is a war-service recruit he is probably drafted immediately to the Dardanelles.

They Paid the Price.

The corporation of the city of Glasgow wanted to purchase the Whistler portrait of Carlyle and in due course waited on the master of the gentle art of making enemies about the price (1,000 guineas). They admitted it was a magnificent picture, but "Do you not think, Mr. Whistler, the sum a wee, wee bit excessive?"

"Didn't you know the price before you came to me?" asked the master, with suspicious blandness.

"Oh, aye, we knew that!" replied the corporation.

"Very well, then," said Mr. Whistler in his suavest tones, "let's talk of something else." And as there was nothing else of interest to detain the "corporation" they paid the price and made an excellent bargain.

An Eye For His Colors.

Haiti appears to breed a spirit of sensitive patriotism unknown in other countries. Some years ago a general in the Haitian army ordered an artificial eye. The maker did his best to execute the order satisfactorily, but the eye was returned from Port au Prince, with a letter complaining that "the eye you forwarded me is of a tint that resembles the Spanish flag. I am far too patriotic to wear any colors but those of my own country." After ascertaining from the ministry of marine the colors of the Haitian standard a scarlet and green eye was dispatched, and this met with enthusiastic approval.

By Way of Experiment.

Not long ago there was a certain salesman in a dry goods shop of an Ohio city who was habitually observing to his fellow clerks that the concern would find it rather difficult to get along without him. These remarks coming to the ear of the senior partner of the firm, he decided to interview his clerk concerning them.

"Mr. Spotts," said the partner, with a grim smile, "although you have not proved to be our most efficient clerk, yet we have appreciated such service as you have condescended to render us during the intervals when you were not expatiating on your own merits. Now we have lately heard it said that if you were to die the business would have some trouble in surviving the loss. This has worried us a good deal, for you, like all of us, are liable to drop off at any moment.

"For this reason, therefore, we have concluded, for our peace of mind, to experiment while all of us are in good health in order that we may ascertain whether the firm can bear up under your loss. You will accordingly consider yourself dead for the period of one month, and we will try to see whether we can get along without you for that length of time."—Harper's.

HAD WEAK HEART HAD TO STAY IN BED

Many women are kept in a state of fear of death, become weak, worn and miserable, and are unable to attend to their household, social or business duties, on account of the unnatural action of the heart.

To all such sufferers Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills will give prompt and permanent relief. They do this by their calming, strengthening and invigorating action on the heart causing it to beat regularly and naturally, and in addition to this they tone up the whole nerve system.

Mrs. J. Day, 234 John St. South, Hamilton, Ont., writes: "I was so run down with a weak heart that I could not even sweep the floor, nor could I sleep at night. I was so awfully sick sometimes I had to stay in bed all day as I was so weak. I used three and a half boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and I am a cured woman to-day, and as strong as anyone could be, and am doing my own housework, even my own washing.

"I doctored for over two years, but got no help until I used your pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25. They can be had at all druggists or dealers, or will be mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

The Unattainable.

Old Mr. Dinsmore had a great habit of lecturing to young men of his acquaintance. One evening Wilbur Moore, a young man from the city, was calling at the Dinsmore home.

"Have an ideal, young man," said the old gentleman enthusiastically. "Always have an ideal, I say, and hug it to your bosom at all times and places."

"I believe that, too, sir," agreed the young man, "but she won't let me."—New York Times.

A THREAT TO RUMANIA

German Minister at Bucharest Makes One in His Newspaper.

LONDON, Feb. 15.— Adespatch to the Mail from Ungheni, on the Roumanian frontier, says:

Baron von Dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, the German Minister at Bucharest, who was entrusted with a special mission to Roumania by the German Government, has returned from Berlin, where he was received in audience by the Kaiser and has opened his campaign in his newspaper, Roumanie, by threatening Roumania.

"The Germanic powers," he says in his paper, "know how to strike swiftly and energetically."

He asks on which side Roumania is going to range herself, and declares that Germany wishes to know immediately.

It is reported that the mobilization of the Roumanian army has been completed by calling up a new class, and the general staff is finishing defence works along the Carpathians and on the banks of the Danube on the new Dobrodujs territory.

Roumania, it is said, will also prohibit the export of 400,000 tons of wheat secretly bought by Germans to prevent the realization of the wheat sale to Britain, though Germany has formally demanded the same rights for the purchase of cereals.

IMPERIAL PREFERFENCE.

London, Feb. 14.— The New South Wales Cabinet has decided, in the purchasing of supplies for public service, that a ten per cent. preference be extended to local, British or Empire manufactures.

HOLLAND'S GOLD STOCK DOUBLES DURING WAR

Netherlands Has More of the Precious Metal Than Ever Before in Her History—Industries Making Enormous Profits.

Not the least curious of the many strange incidental effects produced by the war is the fact that the small country of the Netherlands probably contains more gold to-day than ever before in its history. In the past year, for instance, a continual steady inflow of gold from the European continent and oversea has doubled the stocks of the Netherlands bank, and with Holland's foreign exchanges continuing their ever-downward course there is no saying to what figure they may not reach if the war lasts much longer and is still kept out of her borders.

With long queues standing daily at the bank's doors, the government at the outbreak of war had to reduce the compulsory ogld covering the bank's callable liabilities from 40 to 20 per cent.; those liabilities at 620000,000 florins or $258,333,0000, are now covered to the extent of 60 per cent., the gold stocks amounting to 430,000,000 florins or $179,166,000. On the other hand, a review of the year just closed shows that the banknote circulation has been a record one, reaching the figure of 576,700,000,000 florins on November last, or $240,291,000.

Other evidence of the favourable factors which the war has brought with it for Holland is found in the new year's speech of the chairman of the Amsterdam chamber of commerce, in which he shows that a number of businesses and industries have been able to make considerably increased profits, although the risks were abnormal. The Dutch shipping companies have been making enormous profits, while the Dutch ship-building yards are so crowded with work that orders can only be placed for very distant deliveries.

It may be noted incidentally that the considerable rise in the prices of American industrial securities was one of the principal factors that aided in a rapid liquidation of the mass of stock loan transaction that had to be compulsorily suspended when the war crisis broke out, as the Dutch public took advantage of this rise to realise a large quantity of their American holdings and obtain the ready money they needed.

There is, however, another side to the medal, for the feverish activity in some economic departments is more than offset for the nation as a whole by the big rise in the cost of living and the burden of the mobilization costs. The war loan of some $115,000,000 has long since been eaten up, and at the end of the year the floating debt of the treasury had again grown to $54,000,000, so that another big loan seems inevitable in the coming spring while large taxation increases are already before parliament.

The export of cut and rough diamonds to the United States amounted in the first 3 quarters of the year to 13,780,000 florins or $5,745,800, against 12,781,000 florins or $5,325,400. The demand for rough diamonds, which was small in the beginning of the year, increased considerably, especially in the third quarter of the year, while prices remained firm. Amsterdam merchants have been establishing more representatives in America than formerly, so that the increased stocks in their possession should be taken into account in connection with the foregoing figures.

RUSS WINS IN CAUCASUS.

Troops Had to Advance Through Deep Snow in Cold Weather.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The Russians have won additional successes in the Caucasus, near Erzerum, where their troops, advancing through deep snow and in a temperature sometimes 25 below zero, have forced almost inaccessible passes and taken prisoner dozens of Turkish officers and over 700 soldiers. They captured seven guns, machine guns, ammunition wagons, stores and cattle. After a bombardment of the forts of Erzerum, a violent explosion occurred in one of the forts. Russians have dislodged the Turks from a position near Khynvaskala and occupied the town of Khopy, about 50 miles distant from Erzerum.

Varieties of Title.

The titles of the different orders of knighthood are all of a most high and mighty descrip. The Garter is "most noble," the Thistle "most ancient and most noble," and St. Patrick "most illustrious." The Knights of the Both are officially "most honourable," the star of India is "the most exalted," St. Michael and St. George is "the most distinguished," and the order of the Indian Empire is "the most eminent."

Alkali Makes Soap Bad For Washing Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

Literary Beginners.

Robert W. Chambers gave this advice to the literary beginner some years ago, says the London Strand, and it holds good today:

"Have something to say and learn by experience how to say it. The important thing, to be sure, is something to say. The trouble with most people who try to write stories is that they have nothing to write about. Next, don't talk about it; do it. A writer can make his own market.

"It is the only way to do. Write what appeals to you and find a publisher who will take it. Don't go to a publisher and ask him what he wants. Make him want what you have to offer. If it is the real thing you won't have much difficulty. You will 'break into print' with your first effort."

The Crop of 1915.

It is beyond question that 1915 has been the banner year in the history of western Canada as far as the yield of all produce of the soil is concerned. The prices in respect to grain have been well in excess of the average obtained during the past ten years, and the present grain crop has brought more money to western Canada than any previous one.

The yield of grain has been large in every locality in the west, and in some cases phenomenally so. Reports would indicate in portions of Alberta and Saskatchewan a yield of wheat of over sixty bushels to the acre, and it has been well said that we have this year garnered not one crop but two. As to what effect this crop has had on the prosperity of the individual farmer it is difficult to say.

A Strathcona Story.

Lord Strathcona was fond of telling this story of a Highland chief, The Macnab, a pioneer on the upper Ottawa. "On one occasion Macnab entertained Sir George Simpson and a number of leading fur traders of Highland origin. Some surprise was expressed that Simpson should have occupied the seat at one end of the board, and a Mr. McKenzie the other end.

"At last some one inquired: 'Macnab, why are ye no at the heid o' your ain table?'"

"The host turned upon his questioner and answered with great dignity:

"'Mr. MacPherson, I'd hae ye ken weel that where The Macnab sits, there is the heid o' the table!'"

"A GREAT LITTLE MAN."

King George is Absolutely Fearless of Zeppelin Raiders.

King George is a great little man, a sailor and a soldier every inch of him. There is not much connected with the navy and the army that he does not know about, says Cosmo Hamilton, the English dramatist, who for the last year has been an officer in the Royal Naval Aviation Corps and was held personally responsible for the safety of King George V at Sandringham Palace during the Zeppelin raids.

"When the war first started it was the magic name of Kitchener that caused the thousands in England to enlist, but to-day the men in the trenches speak with affection of 'G. 5,' which is their pet name for the King."

With regard to the report that King George had told Premier Asquith that he would abdicate the throne immediately if the war terminated by an inconclusive peace, Mr. Hamilton said he thought it was quite likely to have happened.

As to his duties at Sandringham Palace early in the year Mr. Hamilton said:

"We left London with two 4.7 guns and two electric searchlights. The guard consisted of 36 men of the Royal Naval Aviation Corps under my command with a lieutenant as my aide. On our arrival at Sandringham we found a detachment of 250 Grenadier Guards commanded by Major Gilbert Hamilton, with Lord Stanley, son of the Earl of Derby. The guns were placed in position, one at each end of the palace with the searchlights on motor trucks about 300 yards away.

Among the 36 men in my detail I had 15 baronets, who owned town and country houses with yachts and motor cars, two well-known surgeons, a clergyman who was the son of a bishop, a professor of history at Oxford University, two painters, three bankers, and the remainder were merchants and insurance and shipping brokers. All of them had been well trained as gunners and gave up their incomes to earn 40 cents a day without meals.

"The first day after we arrived the King invited the officers of the guard, including myself, to see the grounds, which had been laid out under the direction of King Edward VII. A portion of the garden was set apart for trees planted by distinguished personages. 'There, gentlemen,' said the King, 'is a tree planted by my grandmother, Queen Victoria. Here is one that was planted by the late King Christian of Denmark, and on the other side is the one that was placed by the Kaiser.' After a pause the King added: 'You will see that it is crooked.'

"When we left London Kitchener instructed us to sit on the King's head if necessary to protect him from harm in the Zeppelin raid, but it was a difficult order to carry out, because he is absolutely fearless and would not hide in time of danger for anyone.

On the night of one of the early raids the Zeppelins struck the east coast at Hunstanton, about nine miles from Sandringham. There was a low lying fog at the time, rising about 30 feet from the ground, which was very favorable for the raiders. Sir Charles Cust, the equerry in waiting, was in his bath when he heard his telephone ringing in his room and jumped out to answer it. While he was listening to the report from the commander of the station at Hunstanton the King walked into his room and said 'What's up?'

"Sir Charles told him the Zeps were on their way and the King replied: 'Well, I hope they go by before dinner without harming anybody.'

"Going out of the equerry's room, King George saw the electrician rushing along the corridor to shut off the lights, whereupon he called out: 'If you switch off a single light I will have you shot. I have had electric light at my dinner nearly all my life and I am not going to do without it now, whether there are Zeppelins or not.'. As a result of this order the palace was the only house showing lights within a radius of 100 miles during the raid. The Zeppelins passed within three miles of Sandringham Palace.

Mark Twain's Advice.

Mark Twain was a firm believer in the higher education of woman, but Hartford still remembers a speech he made one June to a platform of Hartford girl graduates.

This speech, a humorous attack on the college girl, ended:

"Go forth. Fall in love. Marry. Set up housekeeping. And then, when your husband wants a shirt ironed, send out for a gridiron to do it with."

Pride of Pedigree.

"Who was that you just spoke to?"

"Can't think of his name just now, but he is a descendant of one of the old families."

"He hasn't got over it yet?"

"My boy, they never do."

Worth Cultivating.

"Keep up the flirtation," advised the friend.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.

VICTIMS OF NIAGARA.

Water Birds Go to Sleep and Are Swept Over the Falls.

Swimming too near the brink of the falls, hundreds of water birds, even swans, ducks and geese, go over Niagara falls to their death each year in the migratory season. So many birds pay the penalty for their daring each year that bird lovers on both the American and Canadian sides of the falls are considering steps to lessen the annual toll of the feathered life.

Since a majority of the victims are claimed in the night, the theory is advanced that the birds go to sleep while swimming and don't wake up until the rapids have carried them over the danger line. Usually they are killed outright in the fall. Sometimes they are only stunned and are picked out of the river below the falls and sold for food.

In 1912, so Ernest Harold Baynes, the naturalist, relates, 140 whistling swans went over Horseshoe falls. Boys and men fished the birds out, knocked them on the head and sold them.

"James Savage of Buffalo," Mr. Baynes says, "with some friends once saved a flock of swans by chasing them in a power boat and making them fly away just before nightfall. It was a daring thing for these men to do, for if by any chance the engine had become disabled nothing could have prevented their going over the falls."

African Marriage System.

You cannot fancy how deeply complicated the African marriage system is nor how many ramifications there may be to a woman palaver. One day Mr Hemingor was sitting in a hut talking with two members of his congregation, wives of one husband. He was talking to them about their sins, which were of an obvious character. The younger woman had been accused of stealing food. Then he turned to the elder, Wawa, she of the ten children, five of them dead and five of them cruel.

"Wawa," said he, "why cannot you live at peace with this wife of your husband? Why are you always quarreling?" (They are notorious scrappers.) "Well," said Wawa, "she was bought with one of my children, and I cannot forget it."—Jean Kenyon Mackenzie in Atlantic.

Turks' Names For Greeks.

The Turks have definite names for the Greeks who inhabit Ottoman territory and for those who are their own masters. The latter are Yunan and their country Yunanistan—names derived from "Ionia"—while the Greeks and Turks are Rum. By origin this is simply "Romans" and is an inheritance from the Byzantine days, when the inhabitants of Constantinople, the New Rome, were called Romaioi, while the provincials were known as Helladikoi. "Rum" was the conquering Turks' name for the Byzantine empire. It survives in Roumelia, while the popular Greek language of the present day is still known as Romaic. But every Greek, in Greece or in Turkey, calls himself a Hellene.—London Chronicle.

DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION AS ONLY CURE FOR PILES

It is by the cure of extreme cases like this that Dr. Chase's Ointment has won the reputation of being about the only actual cure for piles—itching, bleeding and protruding piles.

Mr. Samuel Parker, fruit grower, Grimsby, Ont., has made the following declaration before Mr. W. W. Kidd, Notary Public, of the same place: "I do solemnly declare that I was troubled with bleeding Piles and was advised to go to the hospital to have an operation performed. My wife said 'No, get a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment.' I did so and have used it according to directions while living in Manitoba, and obtained a complete cure, for I have never been troubled with Piles since. I am now 70 years of age and want to recommend Dr. Chase's Ointment to all sufferers from Piles. My wife has used it for itching skin and obtained complete cure."

Mrs. William Schettler, Spy Hill, Sask., writes: "I have used Dr. Chase's Ointment with great success as a treatment for Piles. About 15 years ago I had this ailment very bad and suffered greatly. By using Dr. Chase's Ointment a complete cure was affected and I have never had a return of the old trouble. It is undoubtedly the best Ointment made and no family should be without it."

Put Dr. Chase's Ointment to the test and it will not disappoint you. Sixty cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

FRENCH RECAPTURE POSITION OF ADVANCED TRENCHES OCCUPIED BY ENEMY SUNDAY

Some Encounters Between Patrols in The Reilon Section In The Lorraine District---Night Passed Quietly on The Remainder of The Front.

GERMANS FAIL ALONG THE RIGA FRONT

PARIS, Feb. 15.—"In the Champagne district, at a point to the east of the roadway between Tahure and Sommepy, we have captured a portion of advanced trenches occupied by the enemy on Feb. 13. In the Lorraine district there have been some encounters between patrols in the Reilon sector.

"The night passed quietly on the remainder of the front."

GERMANS FAIL ALONG RIGA FRONT.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 15.—An official statement issued to-day reports the failure of all the German attacks along the Riga front, where the Russians are declared to be retaining all their positions, and have taken many prisoners. Violent disturbances have broken out in the 12th German Army near Vilna. Lieut. Raache, in command at the village of Girmondy, has been killed, and forty officers and numerous soldiers have been court martialed.

ONLY LOCAL ACTION IS FRENCH CLAIM

PARIS, Feb. 15.—A semi-official communication issued here affirms that the frequent German attacks on the French front during the last few days, while intended to give the impression of great activity, are in reality only local actions, without consequence and without gain for the attackers. The communication says: "The same is true of attacks east of Tahure to the Somme-Py line. We could, in our turn, undertake similar operations and strive for useless success, but we take good care to refrain from doing so, because the gains to be obtained are small when compared with the sacrifices involved, and because these attempts invariably result in reducing the value of the attacking troops."

GERMANS PREPARE FOR BIGGER ATTACK

LONDON, Feb. 15 — The Germans are preparing for a still greater offensive blow in the Champagne, designed to hurl back the French on a fifteen-mile front from the Challerange railway Since early yesterday, a steady roll of heavy German artillery has shaken the hills of Champagne. The Germans are hurling thousands of high explosive shells at the French positions on the ridges, concentrating their fire on Tahure and the sector just east of the Navarin Farm.

Paris expects the German blow to fall before night. The bombardment was so vicious that the French troops were under cover practically all of yesterday. Sharp clashes between hand grenade parties occurred at the western end of the Champagne battle front, but there was no attempt during the daylight hours to recapture the trenches taken by the Teutons in a violent assault of the preceding night. The present struggles, beginning with "nibbling" attacks, are now spreading to every front, and are beginning to attract the serious attention of military critics here. It is admitted the German gains in the Champagne in the last three days have been the most important advances registered by the enemy in several months. The French are counted upon to counter attack with all the forces at their command to recapture these last positions. There is every indication that the furious battling in the Champagne region will continue for several days.

CANADIAN PORTS MAY BE USED

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—In case armed merchant vessels are prohibited from entering United States ports, it is probable that munitions for the Allies will be shipped by rail to St. John, N.B., or Halifax and there loaded on merchant ships having guns for defensive purposes only, or munitions may be louded at United States ports on unarmed coast wise steamers for Canadian ports, and there transhipped to Atlantic liners, or Atlantic liners running to American ports could call at Halifax on their westward journey and disembark their guns there, picking them up on the eastbound trip. Such vessels would enter and leave New York or other ports unarmed, and so comply with American regulations.

IMPERIAL PARLIAMENT OPENS.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Parliament reassembled this afternoon with several most vital issues affecting the progress of the war in the balance. For the first time since the reign of Queen Victoria, the Sovereign was absent from the opening session. A Royal Commission, headed by Baron Buckmaster, conducted the formal opening ceremonies in place of King George, who is understood to be still suffering from the effects of his recent fall from a horse on the Western front. The King's indisposition has at no time been serious, it was

SPRING ASSIZES OPENED AT ONE O'CLOCK TO-DAY

Chief Justice Mulock is Presiding —Two Charges of Murder Against Sanford Lindsay And His Wife Will Be Dealt With

ALIMONY CASE

The spring assizes opened to-day at one o'clock with Chief Justice Mulock presiding. Some difficulty was experienced in getting a full complement of grand jurors. The twelfth man was selected from the spectators' gallery.

The case of McLeod versus McIlmoyle, a civil action involving an agreement was transferred to the April non-jury sittings. Mr. Strickland of the legal firm of Bennett and Goodwill, appeared for McLeod and Mr. G. N. Gordon for McIlmoyle.

Mr. Frank Arnoldi, K.C., of Toronto, will represent the Crown in the criminal proceedings. The latter includes a charge of murder against Sandford Lindsay and his wife. It is alleged that the accused caused the death of their fourteen year old daughter Lily May Lindsay and the latter's unborn child.

The Grand Jury.

Chief Justice Mulock, in addressing the Grand Jury, merely referred to the criminal list, promising to have something further to say to the jurors after they had disposed of the criminal business. His Lordship outlined the duties of the Grand Jury. He alluded to the charges upon which Sandford Lindsay and his wife were indicted. One of the charges was that of incest, which had its sequel in the death of Lily May Lindsay and her unborn child.. His Lordship dwelt upon the enormity of the offence.

Charles Brewer, another prisoner, was also charged with attempted murder, while Charles Stevens stood indicted on a charge of rape.

The first case called was that of Ferguson versus Ferguson. This is a civil action for alimony. Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. Joseph Wearing for the defendant.

Mrs. Florence Ferguson was the first witness called. To Mr. Kerr she said that she was married to Edward J. Ferguson in December, 1906. Within a few weeks after their marriage, defendant became abusive. They separated in 1911 for about six months and again in May, 1915. Witness said that defendant brandished a butcher knife on one occasion and threatened to murder her. Defendant frequently accused witness of taking drugs for improper purposes. This witness denied. Witness claimed to be afraid of Ferguson.

The case is proceeding.

RUSSIAN BLACK SEA FLEET REDUCE TURKISH BATTERIES

PETROGRAD, Feb. 15.—A semi-official statement issued to-day concerning the recent activities of the Russian Black Sea fleet, describes a two days battle with the Turkish coast batteries near Vitesh, between Capes Laroe and Neroniett (Troblsund), in which four Turkish batteries were reduced to silence. A Turkish sailing ship with a crew of 25 men, was captured and eigh supply ships sunk the following day. Ships which were supporting an offensive movement by the Russian troops destroyed two stone and four wooden bridges.

Besides speaking at Bobcaygeon, he addressed another meeting at Omemee this afternoon and will also speak at Oakwood and at Little Britain. The Examiner has received the following:

Somewhere in France, 1916.

Editor of Examiner, Peterborough:

Sir,—Through the columns of your paper I would like to thank the Mayor and citizens of Peterborough for their kindly Christmas greetings, which I received at the above address. Such kind remembrances are greatly appreciated in the war zone. I don't think a Christmas card was ever more welcomed than they have been by the allied forces this year. It surely is "good to be remembered" not only "by the 'girl you've left behind" but by all, and I certainly have been well and substantially thought of by many Peterborough people, and I thank them all most heartily.

Though late, I wish you and all the compliments of the season.

Sincerely,
G. F. Reid,
N.S. C.A.M.C.

The ladies of Trinity Church will entertain the 93rd Battalion at a reception this evening in the Simcoe Street recruiting rooms, from 7.30 until 9 p.m. All friends of the members of the Battalion are invited. The object of these receptions is to bring the men of the battalion into closer contact with the citizens.

PARTNERS WANTED

For the 93rd Dance.

Come on, my lads, for we're off to France,
To teach the Germans the way to dance.
So, come right on, and give a hand,
For partners are in great demand

The goose-step is the step they know,
And we object to it, and so
The gallop is the step we'll teach;
So hurry up and fill the breech.

The 93rd wants partners still.
So join up now, go through the drill
To teach the Germans this new dance,
And gallop them right out of France.

Through Belgium then, we'll waltz
To music of our little guns,
Across the Rhine to Germany;
Come, join on, and a partner be.

Then we'll tango them to Berlin.
That city steeped in sin;
We'll cake-walk those bold Landsturms
Back to their birth and kin.

If you don't join you'll miss the chance
Of joining in this famous dance,
And all your life you'll rue the day
You did not draw a soldier's pay.

A glorious march will swell the strain,
When we come marching home again;
Too late you'll wish that you had come,
When we return—the lesson done.

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—Colonel Logie has again declined to permit officers commanding Kingston and other Battalions to recruit in Toronto, as ten Toronto units are being raised at present.

An interesting ceremony took place at the regular meeting of the Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F., last night, when Past Grand E. J. Matchett, who has enlisted with the 93rd Battalion as Company Quartermaster, was presented with an emblematic ring as a token of recognition of his faithful services to the lodge. Bro. Matchett has serv-

BERLIN SAYS THAT U. S. HAS YIELDED

Ambassador Bernstorff Notifies The German Foreign Office That Uncle Sam Will Not Press Further Unacceptable Portion of His Lusitania Proposals.

STORMS IN GERMANY

Special Cable to The Examiner:

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—Ambassador Bernstorff has notified the Foreign Office that the United has yielded to Germany and will not press further the unacceptable portion of her Lusitania proposals.

Berlin, Feb. 15.—The Lusitania settlement has suddenly become the centre of violent party storms in Germany. The newspapers to-day attacked Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg and Foreign Secretary Von Jagow with unprecedented vigor for failing to explain the terms of settlement in the Prussian House of Commons. They declared that the public should be permitted to know whether Germany has made any further concessions, tending to cripple her submarine commanders. Party leaders who are anxious to preserve good relations existing between Germany and the United States, however, are delighted with the unofficial reports of the nature of settlement. They consider that neither Germany nor the United States has emerged triumphant from the negotiations. They believe the very fact that both nations have made concessions in the interests of harmony, makes the Lusitania agreement of more gratifying nature than would have been the case if one country had yielded all. An important phase of the political controversy is the fact that the Conservatives, hitherto the Government's supporters, are now its strongest opponents. The Radicals are supporting the Government.

PTE. ALBERT L. HOLT

PTE. C. D. SHAW OF PETERBORO IS KILLED AT FRONT

Local Member of The 39th Battalion Who Was Drafted To The 25th Lost His Life in Action on February 6th

ANOTHER ONE WOUNDED

Killed.

Pte. Cecil Donald Shaw, 308½ George street, of the 25th Battalion, C.E.F., formerly of the 39th Battalion (Peterborough detachment).

Wounded.

Pte. Albert L. Holt, 36 Lafayette avenue, of the 39th Battalion, C.E.F., formerly of the 39th Battalion (Peterborough detachment).

News of the death in action of one Peterborough member of the 39th Battalion, and the wounding of another, was received to-day. As far as is known Pte. Cecil D. Shaw, who was at the front with the 25th Battalion, having been drafted from the 39th, is the first member of the Peterborough detachment to lose his life at the front.

Killed Feb. 6th.

A message has been received to the effect that Private Cecil Donald Shaw, 412583, formerly of the 39th Battalion, and late of the 25th Battalion, was killed in action on February 6th. Death was due to a gunshot wound in the head. Deceased enlisted in Peterborough, and prior to his departure, boarded with his sister, Miss Elizabeth Rose Shaw, at 308½ George street. He was employed at the Canadian General Electric Company's works. He originally came from Scotland.

Pte. Holt Injured.

A field card from Pte. A. L. Holt, who enlisted here in the 39th Battalion, has been received by Mrs. D. Gunn, 36 Lafayette avenue, with whom he boarded for seven or eight years, announcing that he had been wounded and received in an hospital.

He and his chum, Pte. Walter Dawson, enlisted with the 39th and were later drafted to the 26th Battalion. The field card gave no intimation of the character of Pte. Holt's injuries, but Mrs. Gunn thinks that it was in his right arm since he apparently signed the card with his left.

A WARNING TO AUTOMOBILE OWNERS

A number of automobile owners in this city are running around with last year's number plate attached to their machines. The time for procuring the new 1916 number plate has expired and trouble is in store for those who persist in operating their cars without first obtaining a new number plate. The latter can be obtained at J. E. A. Fitzgerald's, 254 Brock street.

CROWN LIFE'S CROWNING YEAR.

It is a great credit to excellent management and to the satisfactory state of national conditions, that the Crown Life Insurance Company, even with the handicap of the war, has achieved a record year. Though one of the youngest of Canadian life insurance corporations, it is also one of the most vigorous. Its progress for the year 1915 is shown in many ways. Applications for new insurance total $4,008,408, a substantial advance over last year's figures. The total effective insurance on the company's books amounts to $13,709,888, being nearly a million dollars in excess of the figures of 1914. The assets have increased to $1,850,085.49, and the surplus is now $245,189.58. Whether or not the patriotism of the company is explanatory of its progress, it is certainly "doing its bit." The company subscribed for $100,000 of the Canadian War Loan, and placed two floors of their Head Office building on Yonge street at the disposal of the Patriotic Fund for the year, free of rental, and also two floors of their Colborne street premises for the use of the Red Cross Society, without rental charge. The president in submitting the report, referred to the agency organization which warranted expectation of increased business, and pointed out that in face of great success in a trying year the outlook for next year was more promising than in any of the past years of the company. The Crown Life and those interested in its welfare, are to be congratulated upon the good showing it has made.

HELPING RECRUITING.

Does Mr. Hearst, Premier of Ontario, really think that whitewashing Mr. Fallis, M.P.P., for Peel, and officially condoning his virtual stealing from the public chest, is calculated to stimulate recruiting? Mr. Fallis was not found guilty of horse stealing; but he was found guilty of stealing horses—through his toll gate, and feloniously appropriating to his own use $1,800 that should have gone either into the pockets of the farmers who sold horses to the government or into the Dominion treasury. Is a straight-minded young Canadian stimulated to joining the ranks to fight against German crookedness on the plains of France or Flanders when he sees a representative of the people gathering in spoil and enriching himself at the expense of the country, of the empire, and of the cause for which Canadians are asked to fight? The $1,800 Mr. Fallis "annexed" would have bought ten more horses, at $180 each, or twelve more at $150 each. It is not the "stolen" money that counts, but the dishonest and unpatriotic gain, plus the daring outrage of honest and patriotic principle that is concerned. Can honest and patriotic Canadians sympathize with whitewashing such a man? Yet he is, with approval of the leader of the Conservative party in Ontario, a candidate for re-election to the seat from which he was driven out by the force of public opinion. Why did Mr. Hearst accept the resignation of Mr. Fallis? If he is good enough to be Mr. Hearst's candidate for re-election, he was good enough to hold the seat. Neither Mr. Hearst nor Mr. Fallis, nor those who sympathize with them, can throw stones at the Germans.

SHALL WE PROBE?

Is there to be an investigation into the contracts and orders made, and placed by the defunct, and in the popular mind at least, discredited shell committee? What the country needs at the present time is the concentration of every effort to help Canada do her share in waging war. Both parties in this matter are in complete accord, and we must see that every effort counts; that there is no wasted action, nor wasted material, nor wasted money. Recruiting is stimulated if the recruit has confidence that he will be well treated, and that every possible effort will be made by the nation to back up his individual endeavours in the fighting line, to provide for his personal comfort and make him fit to do his best; to provide him with good arms and good ammunition. To get our people to work together there must be a basis of confidence and evidence of determination on the part of the government that everything will be made to count. The public and members of Parliament cannot have this confidence so long as mystery hangs about the contracts and orders and doings of the late shell committee. Sir Wilfrid Laurier has given notice of a motion calling for an inquiry into the doings of the committee. The government is bound to this course, by virtue of its responsibility in respect of the old shell committee which was organized by a member of the government, Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia. There is reason to believe that the conduct of the old shell committee was not in the public interests. Even if it has gone out of existence as an organization, the responsibility does no end. After harm has been done is the time that we should know the extent of it, the cause of it, and the remedy, the means of avoiding similar wrong. Investigation revealed the scandals and robbery in connection with the purchase of hospital supplies and horses in Nova Scotia. The conditions revealed were so bad, that Sir Robert Borden thrust out of Parliament and out of the party so far as he could do so, the members of parliament shown to be guilty. He went further; he demanded restitution, the return of stolen profits, in one case at least, and was in favour of severe punishment. Speaking on this subject in the House on April 16th last year, Sir Robert said:

I desire to say that any further investigation that may be possible in the matter, either for the purpose of further restitution, if any is deemed possible or for any other proceedings of any character which may be found necessary to vindicate the public honour and the public interest, will be taken by the Department of Justice . . . Let us take the most prompt and energetic means to provide that restitution shall be made, and that persons guilty of wrong-doing shall be punished so far as the law will permit. . . . I want to say, in so far as these men are concerned, two things: First, if the laws of this country permit the courts of justice to enforce restitution against them, that restitution will be enforced secondly, that if the laws permit the walls of the penitentiary to encircle them, they will go there.

Evidently "the laws of the country have not permitted restitution or punishment" except partial restitution. If restitution and punishment were called for in such matter, certainly in the more important matter of inordinate shell profits the law of restitution should be invoked. We can't tell without investigation whether there has been wrong or not. If that should be shown to have been committed then the high stand taken by Sir Robert Borden a year ago might be reaffirmed.

We don't want any mysteries as to whether or not there has been waste of public money, and waste of national effort and of national sacrifice. We are fighting for honourable and honest principles of national action; we must therefore provide that in thus fighting we employ honourable and honest methods. We are combatting German methods of crookedness and fraud and we must see that we do not employ similar methods in the home battlefield—in providing supplies and munitions. Investigation will be amply warranted if it will show as all former investigation has done, that the country has been wronged and defrauded. Then Sir Robert Borden Borden's demand for punishment and restitution will become applicable.

REVERSE OF WEAKENING.

We are not weaker, but far stronger, both on land and sea, than when the war began. . . . We have the utmost confidence that we shall ultimately prove the stronger. — Westminster Gazette.

CAN'T BE TRUSTED.

Judged by his kind, no German, no matter how long he has been in Canada, can be trusted, and we must take the needful measures to protect ourselves accordingly. — Toronto World.

A NEW EXPERIENCE.

While not altogether unprecedented, it is nevertheless a novel experience for Ontario to be deciding an important matter free from partisanship. In that respect the petition for a dry Ontario is rather unique.— Guelph Herald.

WIFE PERISHED IN ATTEMPT TO SAVE HER HUSBAND

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 15.— Two persons were burned to death and twelve others were rescued in a fire which destroyed a small building, the upper floors of which were occupied as a lodging house. The dead were Ernest L. Gove and his wife who were recently married. Mrs. Gove had reached the street from her room on the third floor, but immediately turned back in an effort to save her husband. Her body was found in a hallway, twenty feet from Gove's body.

A number of the lodgers saved themselves by jumping others were rescued by firemen.

AS OTHERS SEE US AND AS OTHERS SEE THEMSELVES

The preparedness issue dwarfs as others. It is our permanent National concern, and cities are beginning to see that it is the most important and imperative matter demanding their attention. Philadelphia has pledged herself to train and equip forty thousand men for service in the nation's hour of need; and we shall doubtless see as the months go on a similar feverish interest in other great centres of population.

The most pitiful and astounding chapter in recent history was England's apathy and neglect to prepare herself during the post-Victorian era or from the beginning of this century until the war broke out. Six warnings of terrible impressiveness and scores of minor warnings were given her that the two kaisers intended to bring on this war. It was also known in every capital of Europe that in the years between 1913 and 1916 Germany would be better prepared relative to the entente powers than she could be thereafter. The enlargement of her army and her Kiel canal would be completed in July, 1914, while the desperate preparations of France to meet the threatened invasion would not take effect until two years later, and Russia's military reorganization was little more than begun. Yet, knowing all his and warned repeatedly of what was coming the pacifists, the theorists and the place-hunting politicians of England actually halted work on their navy and reduced their pitiful little army by thousands of men.

It makes the heart sick to read of such blindness, such futurity, and the only thing that restores our waning respect for England is the tremendous energy with which she is retrieving her folly to-day. She expects to spend twenty billion dollars or twice as much if need be, mortgaging her total national wealth to half its value and to send every able bodied white man in her empire to the front to fight the war to victory. This redeems her somewhat in the eyes of the world since she admits her blunders and is atoning for them in manly fashion now.

But it is not Great Britain's folly and lack of foresight but our own which should engage our thoughts. We have had repeated warnings of troubles to come upon us and repeated demonstration of our impotence to meet them. Our commissariat broke down during our war with Spain and even that little comic opera contest with a tenth-rate power taxed our immediately available powers. We have found it expedient to back down in our dispute with Germany and to tolerate ignominious treatment of our nationals in Mexico, and we have seen our President—it was Roosevelt then—appealing frantically to California to repeal a local law and save us from attack by Japan. Very recently a Japanese organization of which Count Okuma and other foremost statesmen of the country are members has issued a fiery book which declares that the people are a unit in demanding war with the United States. Bernhardi was not a more open and violent protagonist of war with England than is this Japanese proclaimer of an inescapable conflict with us.

Are we as blind as England was to the signs of the times? Are we to be taken defenseless and unaware as she was and forced to pay billions to defend ourselves when millions would have prepared us for attack and have averted war? It is incredible folly not to look facts in the face and to let our doctrinaires, our Bryans, our Fords and our foolish female pacifists delude us into a sense of false security. A wise diplomacy might possibly avert immediate danger by making friends with the Allies, who alone of foreign nations can attack while this war is on. But are we sure that we have wisdom and insight at Washington? Are we sure, or can we be, that our administration will not hound and pinprick the entente belligerents, humiliate and harass them until, when their success is in sight as it may be before the year is over, they will lighten the restraint they are placing now upon Japan, and give her a hint that she is free to act as she sees fit?

This is not an alarmist suggestion. This paper has always deprecated trouble with Japan and believed that it could be averted if our treatment of her was considerate and just. But anything may happen now. Who can control the Pacific Coast demagogues and sand lotters? Who can say that some Mexican chief will not invite the intervention of Japan. Who can say that foreign nations will not give her a mandate to interfere to protect their interests, which we have been unable to protect? Who shall say that our withdrawal from the Philippines is not interpreted in Asia as a sign of distress in the United States and inability to protect our colonies? Who can say that the islands will not be taken over promptly by the other pacific power and that we shall be told that our interests end at Hawaii, or at San Francisco, and be more or less politely requested to keep out of China, stay at home and mind our own affairs? Is it because she may need transports that Japan has just taken under her flag some of our few big liners and freighters on the Pacific ocean?

Our peril may not be this. It may be domestic before it is foreign, but we are imitating England's crowning idiocy in neglecting to make ready for trying times of some kind and may have to equal her sacrifice of blood and treasure in order to save our institutions and our national life.—Rochester Post.

AMERICA A PUZZLE TO FRENCH SOLDIERS

Some Think Americans the Finest People on Earth and Others Regard Them as Cowards.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—During the past week I have asked fifty men of the working or small business classes in Paris—men whom I met haphazard in cafes, street cars, and subways—to answer frankly the following question: "What is your opinion of the American attitude in the Lusitania affair?"

French politeness makes it difficult for a foreigner to get an honest statement about his country. A similar reserve applies to newspapers which are liable to be quoted abroad. Nearly every one first gave a tactful reference to American help and sympathy, and real opinion was only forthcoming when the person questioned was urged to speak freely. I invariably accepted the reply without comment or further inquiry. The feature was a general failure to distinguish between the American people and the Government, perhaps because of the form of my question, or because the simple masses regard the former as responsible for the latter.

"Thirteen were soldiers on leave; five were soldiers stationed in Paris; twenty-three were Parisians, and the remainder provincials, whereof two had been repatriated from the invaded districts. Of the leave soldiers four ignored the subject; five said what amounts to "Anything causing Germany trouble pleases us in proportion to the German annoyance." Three said: "We thought the Americans a proud people; they seem to be a nation of cowards." The last one, an Alpine chasseur, said: "I know little about the Lusitania, but the Americans are the finest people in the world. I have been wounded twice—the first time slightly, on the Marne, where I lay for eighteen hours on the battlefield and suffered horribly when I was taken in a cart to a dressing station. The second time was in the Vosges, a month ago. I was shot through the body. An hour later I was on the operating table seven kilometers from the front, having been taken there by two young Americans in a Ford ambulance over a shell-swept road. Neither man hurried nor showed the least sign of nervousness. If that is what the Americans are like, God help Germany if they declare war."

One of the Paris soldiers said nothing. Two said: "Either the Americans are afraid of Germany or are too eager to profit by the war to fight." The last one seemed of a superior class. He said: "Neutrality is far more delicate than people realize." America seems to be handling dexterously a position rendered difficult by her lack of offensive force."

Nine Parisians were devoid of opinion; eight condemned America for lack of courage; four said: "Any one that can avoid this war is wise." Two admired America unqualifiedly because their relatives were well treated by the Neuilly ambulance corps. Six provinciale ignored the subject. One said: "We stood much from Germany, but, then, she was strong. Now America stands more when Germany has powerful foes." One said: "Germany has killed Americans; unless America avenges them she is shamed before the world." Another said: "What's America kicking about? The Americans knew the risk of travelling on the Lusitania and have only themselves to blame."

ARRESTED, FINDS FORTUNE

Youth Learns From Police That $400,000 Awaits Him.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15. — Keith Edward Dalrymple was taken to the police station by detectives recently. Had it not been for this, Dalrymple would not have known that he was heir to $400,000 and that the police of the country had been one the look-out for him for four years to tell him so.

The Bureau of Identification gave up nothing of a damaging character with reference to the young man, but it did develop an old circular seeking him. Young Dalrymple ran away from his home at Siloam Springs, Ark., in 1908. His father prospered in the oil business and moved to Port Allegheny, Pa., where he died four years ago.

PUBLIC NOTICE

I am very anxious to close up my business and retire. Have five houses, 3 frame, 1 brick and 1 concrete block house (two storeys and attic, with a good stable and garden); also about 40 choice lots of best garden land. The above must be sold to close up my Western avenue subdivision near May's school, car line, and close enough to all big factories in the south end. I know it is a very bad time to sell, but I also know that it is the very best time to buy, because my low prices and easy terms will never again be offered on such choice city property, as it will be very soon. Use your own eyes and brains to prove what I say is true. I offer at this season, to give ample time to think and plan for early spring action. No interest nor rent on houses until spring nor on lots until May. Only a small deposit required. Immediate possession. Every buyer is as certain to make money as the sun is to rise. Buy now and watch your money grow. Mr. F. C. Knight, owner of "Sheffield Villa" property, a beautiful home on Western avenue, will be ready at any time to show houses and lots. Call at office for particulars, or first go and see Mr. Knight and the property; then see me for a real bargain. Remember, this will be your last chance to buy from me. Also remember that very rich and wise men advise their friends to buy all they can afford of just such property as I am offering. Use that advice and make money.

General Welcome To Byersville Services

The Revival Service at Byersville last night was well attended, considering the counter attraction, and will continue to-night and each night this week. Mr. Alfred Coonie, who was a well-known character about our streets for 30 years, but who for nearly three years has lead a sober industrious life, will tell some of his experiences at to-night's meeting. We need not go abroad for trophies of grace. Many can be found right here in this city. Special prayer is being offered for the success of these services, and all who possibly get will be very welcome every night this week.

JOINT MEETING OF THE A.Y.P.A.

Last evening a joint meeting of the A.Y.P.A. and the Women's Guild was held in the Parish Hall, it being the occasion of the returning of the one-cent-a-day interest boxes, which realized a goodly sum. The A.Y.P.A. had charge of the programme, and Mr. J. W. Worth was in the chair. A good musical programme was provided which was greatly enjoyed by all present. The following contributed to the programme:

Instrumental Duet—The Misses Gardiner.
Vocal Solo—Mr. Heafield.
Vocal Solo—Miss H. Timm.
Instrumental—Miss Edna Sisson.
Vocal Solo—Corp. David Melton.
Vocal Solo—Master Harry Murduff.

Miss Olga Johnston presided at the piano.

After the usual social half-hour a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "God Save the King."

While ALABAMA repealed its prohibitory law in 1912.

The history of Prohibitory legislation is very interesting, and one of the most interesting things about it is the fact that so many States of the Union have at one time or other had Prohibition, tried it, and given it up as worse than useless.

Fosters Corruption and Contempt of Law

It would be impossible, of course, to trace here the history of all these fruitless attempts to curtail the liberty of a free people. Suffice it to say that, after a longer or shorter experience, the people of these respective States became convinced of their utter futility. Especially interesting, however, is the history of these attempts in Massachusetts and Maine. Massachusetts, for example, from Colonial times had been struggling with the liquor problem, and on her old statute books are to be found license laws of various kinds and degrees of stringency. About the year 1850, however, Prohibition sentiment was sweeping the State, and therefore in 1852 a prohibitory law was passed. This was repealed in 1854, and re-enacted by the famous "Know Nothing" Legislature of 1855; and so for the next twenty years Massachusetts had Prohibition; but it was such a farce, and drunkenness, corruption and contempt of law had increased to such a terrible extent, that, under the leadership of the foremost men of the State, such as Oliver Wendell Holmes, Prof. Louis Agassiz, ex-Governor Andrew, and John Quincy Adams, so-called Prohibition was swept away, and the license law of 1875, which with various amendments is now the law of the State, was introduced.

"Prohibition" in Maine, a Joke!

As to Maine, the efforts of the early Temperance men were directed entirely to moral sunasion and individual abstinence; but after a time the vicious principle crept in that men could be kept sober by legislation, and under the leadership of Neal Dow and others prohibitory legislation was enacted. Even a short time after its introduction, however, it was seen that this failed absolutely in its object, as was acknowledged by its sponsors again and again; but, unfortunately, politicians saw in it a fruitful field for them to exploit, and during the last half century Prohibition has been so exploited in the Pine Tree State.

Just now there seems to be passing over Canada and many parts of the neighboring Republic a wave of prohibitory fanaticism, and we are told that the whole country will soon be "dry" and the liquor problem solved forever. Such being the case, therefore, it is well to remember that similar waves have risen and subsided, not once, but many times; that, as we have shown, very many of the most important States in the Union tried the experiment years ago, found it a failure, and repealed it; and further, as may be incidentally mentioned, that these States are among the most progressive, populous, and intelligent of all. For example, as to population, six "dry" States—Idaho, Arizona, Oregon, Colorado, North Dakota, and Oklahoma—have, altogether, fewer inhabitants by over half a million than has the one "wet" city of New York, while as to wealth, possibly one street in the city of New York could buy out all these "dry" States combined.

The Personal Liberty League of Ontario believes in temperance in all things, and in its promotion; we favor the license system under proper regulation and control, but we are opposed to prohibition or any legislation which encroaches upon or curtails the purely personal liberties of our people.

stated, but his physicians advised him to exercise caution during this winter.

The King's speech was read to the members of both Houses, who assembled in the House of Lords, by the Lord Chancellor. "With proud and grateful confidence," said His Majesty, "I look to the courage and tenacity of my army and navy to perform our part in attaining the common goal—the defeat of the enemy." King George urged Parliament to authorize the expenditure of sums sufficient for the successful prosection of the war.

The galleries were thronged for the opening session to-day in expectation that Premier Asquith would make several declarations of importance in his opening speech. The percentage of members in khaki uniform showed an increase over the last sitting.

HOT FIGHTING IN LAKE KIVU DISTRICT

LONDON, Feb. 15.—In an action between the Belgians who are invading German East Africa, in the Lake Kivu district, and the German force which opposed them, heavy losses resulted on both sides. Fighting still continues. The Belgians attacked a German post situated well across the frontier and captured several trenches which the Germans had dug, and which the latter afterwards succeeded in re-occupying.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 15.—A military investigation will be made into the action of soldiers at Berlin, Ont., last night, in wrecking the costly memorial of the Kaiser's grandfather in Victoria Park. Some time ago a bronze bust was hurled into the lake, and last night the soldiers wrecked the costly marble bust, declaring it was offensive to their eyes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—A resolution protesting against the recognition by the United States of Germany's order threatening to torpedo armed vessels was introduced in the Senate to-day by Senator Sterling, South Dakota Republican.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Members of the House of Commons await with interest the Budget deliverance of Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance, this afternoon. There is the usual speculation as to the probable tariff changes and new taxation proposals; but not the slightest inkling of what they will be has not been allowed to get out. Any tariff changes will become operative immediately, while the Minister will in all probability name a date for the coming into effect of the new taxation proposals.

It is thought that Sir Thomas will take an optimistic view of the situation despite war expenditures.

He is likely to declare that the financial condition of the country is sound, and to quote facts and figures in support of his contention. While, as has been stated, nothing is really known, the general impression is that the tariff changes, if any, will be few. That there will be additions to the schedule of special taxes is generally believed, and to-morrow Canadians will all know just what additional financial war burdens they will have to bear.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 15.—The finding of a tin box by Danish fishermen along the North Sea coast to-day led to the belief that a German torpedo boat may have gone down with all on board. Inside the box were eleven letters written in German, and on a card had been written the words, "Torpedo boat now sinking; 36 aboard."

For The Deep Sea Fishermen

Those who are connected with the Royal National Mission to Deep Sea Fishermen are, in common with their fellow-members of our Empire, "doing their bit." The illustrious Superintendent of this Mission, Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, is at present in charge of a division of the hospital unit sent to France by Harvard University. His co-worker, Surgeon F. W. Willway, is an officer in the Royal Navy. Both Army and Navy are receiving the support of the eligible fishermen of these regions.

The report of Captain Cowe on the work of the Aberdeen Institute is very instructive. Among other things he says: "Our social work has through 1915 far exceeded other years. Thousands of men from the United Kingdom have passed through the home. Our staff, along with ourselves, have been taxed in supplying meals, beds, baths, etc. We have endeavoured to the best of our ability to keep an open door for all men on active service. Several crews whose ships had been sunk by submarines received hospitality from us."

The reports from all the other sections of the Mission are quite as eloquent of the services rendered by these consecrated workers to the bodies and souls of "those who go down to the sea in ships."

They tell us too the story of men who have gone to the front from these districts, some of whom are in the trenches, some in enemy prison camps, some fallen in the fight; of those who daily face not only the natural perils of the sea, but also the added perils of mine and submarine, to do their Empire's work upon the deep, and of those who wait at home, with eyes turned to the tumbling waste of waters far out on which and beyond their loved ones face the grim dangers of war.

We are invited to share in the work of Christ amongst this heroic people. Leave your subscription with either the Examiner or the Review, who will see that it is acknowledged and forwarded without delay to the Treasurer of this worthy enterprise.

Cherniavsky Trio

The return engagement of the Cherniavsky trio attracted a comparatively small audience at the Grand last night. A larger attendance would have presented a more apparent recognition of the art of these three young Russians if it were not exactly expressive of the city's appreciation of their art. It is true that the audience manifested a keen delight in the charm of the numbers, but one would feel a certain incidental satisfaction with surer indications that the circle of local music lovers was broadening And the appeal of the Cherniavskys should have been all the more general in view of the inclusion in their programme of what might be called the popular classics. Hence, it should have been all the more the result of not, not in spite of their previous concert, that they should have been more numerously welcomed.

The trio numbers were selected from Bach, Brahms, Grieg, a Russian Romance by Glinka, and a Schubert encore. The 'cello solos by Mischel Cherniavsky were, Summer Night by Sulzer, Vito, and Pappilion by Popper, an das an encore, A Cradle Song by Schubert. Leo, the violinist of the three, played Chopin's Nocturne No. 2, Polonaise Op. 4 by Wieniawsky, a ganotte by Gorsak and a valse by Fritz Kreisler, the Austrian soldier who, after service in one of the Russian campaigns, was released from further duty some months ago. Leo's partiality to Kreisler's fancies was shown in two encore selections of his composition.

Jan Cherniavsky, the pianist, played three number, including Liszt and Chopin, and a gavotte by Stevenhagen, with a Chopin waltz as an encore. Individually, and as a trio, the Cherniavskys display a keen musical temeprament which, with a facility of execution, stamps their personalities upon their art. Their work was finished in all the phases presented by last night's programme. As a concluding number they played the Russian, French and British National Anthems.

HAD RASH 7 YEARS! YET ZAM-BUK CURED IT

"Never again shall I use cheap, common ointments, since I have proved how wonderful Zam-Buk is." So writes Mrs. Joe Valliere, of 903 Hale St., Escanaba, Mich. She adds: "For seven years I suffered with a rash on my hands, which all the ointments I used—and I used many—failed to cure. I had despaired of ever finding relief when I heard of Zam-Buk, and as a last resort determined to give it a tiral. It was not long before I found that Zam-Buk is no ordinary ointment! Zam-Buk was proving itself capable of doing what all the other ointments had failed to do—It was effecting a cure.

Naturally, finding this out, I persevered with it, and its use resulted in a complete cure. I have had no return of the rash since, so I know the cure is permanent. After seven years of useless trying of remedies, I appreciate the great healing power of Zam-Buk."

If you are troubled with eczema, ulcers, or eruptions, you will find Zam-Buk equally effective; also for ring-worm, running sores, blood-poison, abscesses, pimples, cold sores, chapped hands, piles, burns, cuts, bruises, sprains, etc. All druggists and stores, 50c box, or post free for price from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto. Refuse harmless substitutes and imitations.

PROF. LEACOCK ON THURSDAY NIGHT

Famous Lecturer Greeted with Packed Houses Wherever He Speaks.

Professor Stephen Leacock, who is lecturing in the Collegiate Hall on Thursday evening, is allowing the entire proceeds to be divided between the Peterborough Red Cross Society's "Prisoners of War Department" and the Peterborough "Belgian Relief Fund," so a very generous collection is desired.

The Royal Alexandria Theatre in Toronto was packed to overflowing, and hundreds were turned away when Professor Leacock spoke there, and the same applies to cities such as Hamilton, Quebec, Boston and Philadelphia.

Extra chairs have been placed in the hall, but if wisful of getting a seat, it would be advisable to go early as a large attendance is expected.

The Toronto World says "Humorists in the flesh seldom live up to the impress of themselves as they leave it upon paper. It remained for Stephen Leacock to break the record."

Come and hear this great humorist and you will return next morning to the strain and stress of life as we are at present experiencing it, with renewed energy and enthusiasm. Mr. T. F. Matthews will be the chariman of the evening and a short musical programme will precede the lecture.

NEARLY $75 FOR YARN AS SOCIAL'S PROCEEDS

The West End Patriotic Sewing Club counted up almost $75 as proceeds from their Valentine Social in Alphonsus Lyceum last night. It proved a very successful and enjoyable social, and the ladies desire to acknowledge the assistance of all those who were present, especially the card prizes donated by Mrs. (Dr.) Gallivan and Mr. Wm. Merrill. They were won by Miss O'Heron and Mr. J. J. Lynch. An orchestra composed of Will Moher, piano; Vincent McCabe, piano, and Frank Lynch, provided splendid music. Not only was the evening pleasantly spent, but the social was concluded at a timely and early hour. The West End Club will be well supplied for a time with yarn for the knitting of socks for the soldiers.

Osteopaths Complain of Flexinger Report

Lay Their Views Before Mr. Justice Hodgins Yesterday

Before Mr. Justice Hodgins at the Parliament Buildings yesterday osteopaths complained of the Flexinger report of the Rockefeller Foundation that the osteopathic and chiropractic schools were improperly equipped to teach the science of medicine. The Commissioner announced that he hoped before making his finding to see Dr. Flexinger, the author of the report, and obtain his answers to the objections that the report was unfair, prejudiced and inaccurate.

Mr. Glyn Osler, K.C., appearing on behalf of the Ontario Osteopathic Association, took the ground that his clients were entitled to have Dr. Flexinger appear before the Commission and submit to cross-examination. Much of the evidence in the report had been gathered from janitors and caretakers.

Mr. Justice Hodgins said he communicated with him, and he declined to attend. "I now intend to see him," said the Commissioner, "but I don't want to go to him unless I have the specific objections against his report. As Commissioner I am going to get all the facts possible."

Combats Flexinger Report.

Dr. Charles Amsden of Toronto, who was a student at Still College, Des Moines, Iowa, in 1909, combatted Dr. Flexinger's report as to the equipment of that institution. On the contrary, he stated that the college was splendidly equipped.

Dr. Garnett Elliott, Toronto, also a former student at Still College, denied the statement that the laboratories of that college were inadequate.

Chiropractors wished to make a statement, but the Commissioner pointed out that he was going to take no evidence from them, as Dr. Flexinger did not criticize them. He called them quacks which was a matter of opinion. The sitting had been called to receive statements from osteopaths alone, and if the chiropractors had anything more to say it could be said on another day.

Mr. Osler said his clients were anxious that the Commissioner should upon his tour of investigation make a personal inspection of the affiliated colleges, to which Mr. Justice Hodgins replied that he would as far as his time permitted.

Billy Breen, the coach of the Electric Hockey Club, this season, who returned to his home in Toronto on Sunday, was among the 325 men who offered their services to the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion, in Toronto last night. Several of the Electric players are likely to follow the example of the well-known coach and trainer.

Seventy-eight recruits have been accepted by Peterborough units since a week ago yesterday. Forty of these were for the 93rd Battalion and thirty-eight for the 57nd Battery. Since August 1st last the recruits accepted in Peterborough have averaged five a day.

There was rather a good joke on some of the members of the 93rd Battalion at the hockey game last night. Elliott, the Belleville rover, was in the penalty box while Mongomery was hurt, and a number of the 93rd men advised him that he'd look well in khaki, suggested that he should join the colours and gave him similar advise, which the Belleville man listened to with a good natured smile, which is explained by the fact that he happened to be Lieut. Elliott of the 155th Battalion, C.E.F. Whitty, the Belleville defence man, came in for some more of the same advice from a group at the south-east corner of the rink. The boys in khaki were ignorant of the fact that Whitty is a member of the 40th Battalion. The majority of O.H.A. teams have one or two soldiers on their line-ups this winter.

The entire Hamilton Rowing Club O.H.A. team intends to enlist, the majority of them in the Hamilton Tigers battalion, in which Harold Parker, the Peterborough boy on the Hamilton defence, will take a commission.

ADVERTISING HINTS

Advertising is news: make your advertising newsy and it will be read with interest by the general public.

It is better to have an ad. of a given size appear in every issue of a daily than to have twice as large an advertisement appear in only other issue of the same paper.

In an ad four inches long (56 agate lines) the maximum number of words used should be 106. Of course if a cut is used the number of words should be reduced in proportion to the space occupied by the cut.

Many an advertiser has seen his advertising fail to iron flatness, because he stopped it at a critical period in its life.

Oftentimes one can reach more buyers by advertising in a half dozen publications of acknowledged circulation, than he can by spreading his advertising appropriation over a hundred publications which all together do not amount to the volume of half of the six great media.

Four, Locked in Hotel Room Fight With Knives and Pistols

All Found More or Less Cut and Slashed When Police Break In At St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 15.—Locked in a room on the sixth floor of a downtown hotel here, four men fought with knives, dentist's instruments and revolvers until all were too badly wounded to continue. The fight was the sequel to business differences between two dentists.

When the police and hotel guests broke into the room, they found Dr. A. F. Johnson, a local dentist, unconscious with two bullet wounds in the groin; Dr. Charles W. Kennerly of San Antonio, Texas, with blood pouring from a knife wound in his arm; another man who had registered as W. E. Arnold of Mobile, Ala., unconscious on the bed with his throat cut and Charles Lody, an assistant to Dr. Johnson, cut and bruised.

Dr. Johnson was operated on at the City hospital and Dr. Kennerly and Arnold were made prisoner patients at the hospital.

Lody and Kennerly, the only two of the four able to talk, told conflicting stories. Lody said he and Dr. Johnson had been lured to the room by a request for professional services and had been attacked by Dr. Kennerly and Arnold. Dr. Kennerly admitted having business differences with Dr. Johnson, his former partner, but said that Johnson and Lody were the first to attack.

Rochester Shoe Clerk Made Beneficia To Millions By Death of French Capitalist

ROCHESTER, Feb. 15.—Duey W. Buxton, a shoe clerk, formerly of this city, is a very happy man and his wife, Katherine Buxton, is a very happy woman caused by a telegram which was received by Buxton in which it states that he has fallen heir to $2,500,000. Buxton received this bit of yellow paper which means so much to him on Wednesday while he was at work in Ferguson's shoe store in Cleveland, Ohio. He worked until Thursday and then came back to Rochester and is now visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. DeNori, of 63 Gardiner Park.

According to Buxton, he is the grandson-in-law of Andrew DeClue, a wealthy French steamship magnate and philanthropist, who died a few months ago. The mother-in-law, Mrs. DeNori, is a daughter of the wealthy Frenchman. The only explanation of how he came to be the beneficiary of his wife's grandfather is the fact that his wife is but 17 years of age.

The family, in this city always knew that DeClue was very wealthy, and that recently he had given much of his money to French hospitals. During the past few years DeClue has spent much of his time in Paris, and is said to have contributed generously to war funds, and has been generally very patriotic since the European war commenced. Nothing of a definite nature has been heard from the millionaire for the past few years except indirectly.

Mrs. Buxton was in Cleveland with her husband up until two weeks ago when she was taken ill and returned to Rochester. She had intended returning to Cleveland in the near future but the sudden news of the legacy has upset all plans and for a while at least the Buxtons will remain in this city. They have already engaged an attorney and are making every effort to confirm the telegram which was received by Buxton.

Buxton is 21 years of age and is well known in this city. He was employed by the E. S. Esser Company and the Duffy-Powers Company in the capacity of shoe clerk and was popular in the younger set in social circles. He was married two years ago.

SIX HURT IN CRASH OF AUTOMOBILES

MISS MOULTON, OWNER OF ONE MOTOR CAR, SAYS SHE DID NOT KNOW IT WAS OUT OF GARAGE.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Six persons were injured when an automobile owned by Miss May Taylor Moulton, prominent in Vacation War Relief Association work, was in collision with a taxicab at Central Park west and Ninetieth street. The injured are Stephen E. Rapp, attorney, of No. 30 Broad street; Miss Edna Lewi, No. 607 West 156 avenue; Miss Anna H. Boyle, cabaret singer, No. 4 West 109th street; John Kelly, No. 132 East Fifty-second street; Philip Furnoh, No. 58 West 114th street, and Joseph Warren, chauffeur, in the employ of Miss Moulton. Warren was arrested on the charge of reckless driving. Miss Boyle and Mr. Rapp were taken to the Park Hospital, where it was said that they were doing well. The other injured persons were attended by a physician from the Park Hospital and sent to their homes.

Miss Moulton, who is a daughter of the late Mr. Arthur Julian Moulton, announced through her mother yesterday, that the chauffeur who was driving her automobile at the time of the crash had been instructed to take it to the garage about half past four in the afternoon and that she was unable to account for it being used at the time the accident occurred. She said she knew none of the persons who were injured.

TRACING ACID FOR MURDER TO COLLEGE LABRATORY

Detectives in The Case of Marian Lambert, Slain Near Chicago, Find Poison Was Easily Obtainable by Student at Madison

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 15. — That William H. Orpet, the Wisconsin University student under arrest at Lake Forest, Ill., accused of the murder of Miss Marian F. Lambert, a high school girl, who died in the Helm Woods at Lake Forest, Wednesday morning, stole the poison with which she killed herself from the chemical laboratory of the university, is the theory of detectives working on the case in Madison tonight. Orpet took a course in chemistry in the university and was thoroughly familiar with the laboratory He knew where the poisons were kept and had easy access to potassium cyanide, the poison which is believed to have caused the death of Miss Lambert.

R. J. Schanael, storekeeper in the university chemistry building, said this afternoon that "enough posion to kill an army" was accessible to any university student in his department. "We don't keep it locked up," he said. "We can't even keep check on it because we have so much The bottle containing potassium cyanide is the only one on the shelves conspicuously labelled with the word "poison." We put the label on the bottle after a Chinese student killed himself by taking a dose of it several years ago. The death of the Chinese was surprisingly sudden, and the tragedy caused much talk in the university, particularly among students in chemistry."

A curious feature of the case is that Orpet and most of his closest friends had much knowledge of chemistry. His one-time room mate, Zick, and his chum, Peterson, are taking the course in chemistry. Miss Celesta Yuker, the girl he intended to marry, is an instructor in chemistry in the State Normal School at DeKalb Ill., Miss Lambert also was studying chemistry in the Highland Park High School.

Otto Peterson, speaking of his mailing the letter to Miss Lambert for Orpet, said:

"Orpet gave me a letter Tuesday and asked me to mail it for him Wednesday noon. He said the letter was to a girl friend, but did not give his reason for wanting me to mail it at noon Wednesday, and I didn't ask him why he wanted it done. He never told me about Miss Lambert. He appeared to worry considerably in the last few weeks, but I thought it was on account of his university work."

A search of the personal effects of Miss Lambert revealed more than a hundred letters written to her by Orpet. Dozens of those told of his great love for her and his hope that they might soon be married. Others told her not to worry, that everything would finally come out all right. The text of these letters has been kept secret. They are now in the hands of the States Attorney of Lake County.

Orpet refused to talk to-day and officials did not press for a further statement.

Chicago Police Break News To Missing Heir

PORT ALLEGANY, Pa., Feb. 15.—Keith Edward Dalrymple, who has been missing from home seven years, was found by the Chicago police, according to a message received here. He wore flashy clothing and for that reason was taken into custody. There was no charge against him. When he made known his identity, the news that he was heir to $400,000 was broken to him.

Plans were being made here to ask the courts in a few weeks to declare Keith legally dead, in order that a division of his father's estate might be made. It is expected arrangements will be made at once to have him come here from the West, so his portion of the property may be turned over to him.

Countrywide Search.

Dalrymple who now is 28 years old, left his home in Siloam Springs, Ark., in 1908. His father who prospered in the oil business, moved to Port Allegany. He died here four years ago. At that time efforts to locate the missing youth were redoubled. A country-wide search was made. Circulars were sent to practically every police department in the United States.

The information received from Chicago declared that the police were taking into custody all persons whose standing in the community was not perfectly clear. At headquarters one of the old circulars received several years ago was produced. Dalrymple told the officers who questioned him that he went to New York from his home. There he worked in department stores. Later he worked in Buffalo and Detroit.

CANADA CLAMPS LID ON BUFFALO NEWSPAPERS

BUFFALO, Feb. 15.—Local newspaper offices were advised that every edition of every American paper would first be rigidly examined by officers of the Canadian militia, acting on orders of the Dominion War Department, and circulation stopped in every instance where stories were carried "detrimental to the welfare of Canada." Newspaper men, who were assigned to investigate new movements of troops along the frontier last night, were turned back at the bridge.

COLLEGE BOY SHOT AS RESULT OF JOKE

Freshman at Oxford, Ohio, on a Pool Errand is Mistaken for a Burglar.

HAMILTON, Ohio, Feb. 15.—Forest Rogers, a freshman at Oxford College, is in the hospital here in a serious condition with a broken jaw and a paralyzed tongue and throat as a result of a joke perpetrated on him by members of the fraternity into which he was to have been initiated.

Last night was "joke" night for the fraternity members, and they sent Rogers to Newbath, Ind., five miles from Oxford, to get a package which had been left under the porch of a store. Arrangements had previously been made with a storekeeper there, and a brick was wrapped up and placed under the porch.

Rogers, however, selected the wrong store, and in his search he awakened a bulldog, whose bark brought his owner, J. C. Hunt, to the scene. Mr. Hunt had been robbed on two occasions recently, and thinking Rogers was a burglar, fired at him. Rogers was shot in the chin, but managed to walk back to the college, where he dropped from exhaustion and loss of blood. Mr. Hunt and Rogers' father are close friends.

HAS "SNIPED" SCORE OF GERMANS

KINGSTON, Feb. 15. — Herbert Swaine, Sergeant-Major of No. 3 Co., 21st Battalion, has been made lieutenant. This young Kingston officer, who lived in Toronto for some time before the war broke out, went overseas as a non-commissioned officer, although he was a captain in the 14th Princess of Wales' Own Rifles, and one of the best rifle shots in the Province. He has performed great service as a sniper, having at least a score of Huns to his credit.

A CLUE TO A DOZEN MURDERS

Chicago Anarchist Was Working on Vest Pocket Bomb.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Jean Crones, wanted on suspicion that he attempted to poison 286 guests at the Archbishop Mundelein banquet last Thursday night, has been identified as a member of an international band of anarchists and murderers with headquarters in Paterson, N.J., according to letters which the police seized after Crones fled. The letters disclose that Crones was a friend and compatriot of Gaetano Bresci, the anarchist who killed King Humbert of Italy, July 28, 1900. Until recently Crones roomed at the home of Bresci's widow in Chicago. Her house was a meeting place for anarchists.

A letter found among Crones' effects made reference to a vest pocket bomb which he had nearly perfected after working on it nearly three years. This bomb, the letter said, "if placed behind a policeman at Madison and State streets would blow him over the top of a high building."

The police believe that in the letters they will find the solution of no less than a dozen unsolved murders, and that the loss of them by the anarchistic band will prevent murders now being plotted.

Harry Layden, Champion Step Dancer of Great Britain

Harry Layden, who plays "Willie Watt" in "The Night Before," the new Lauder comedy with songs, which comes to "The Grand" on Saturday next, for two performances, is one of the cleverest dancers in Great Britain. He has about a bushel of medals picked up in various dancing and singing contests on the other side, and was the winner of the great step-dancing contest in London five years ago, in which there were 16 entries from all over Great Britain. He also carried off first honours in a recent contest of the Harmonic Society of Glasgow, where over 80 competed for prizes as singers of comic ballads. Although in "The Night Before" his part calls for the impersonation of a village toper, which he acts to perfection, Layden never touched a drop of spirits nor used tobacco in his life.

16 OF ALABAMA'S CREW LAND IN ENGLAND

HARTLEPOOL, Feb. 15—Sixteen of the crew of the Norwegian ship Alabama, which was sunk by a mine or a torpedo in the North Sea on Thursday night, have been landed here. Two of the men are injured.

The explosion shattered the after part of the ship and she foundered in two minutes. The crew escaped in a boat and were picked up by another Norwegian ship and brought here.

MR. VENISTLOS BACK IN POLITICS

PARIS, Feb. 15.—The Journal's Athens correspondent says that Mr Venizelos, once Premier of Greece has decided to return to active political life, becoming a candidate for a vacancy in the Chamber of Deputies from Mytilene.

Mr. Venizelos resigned the Premiership twice during the war owing to the opposition of King Constantine to his policy in favour of the entrance of Greece into the war on the side of the Entente Allies. He has not been active politically since the recent general elections, at which time he urged his followers to refrain from voting, on the ground that the election under existing conditions would not be a fair representation of the popular will. A parliamentary majority in favour of the neutrality policy of King Constantine was returned.

GOOD MAN FOR CANADA

Many British Soldiers Plan to Emigrate after the War.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—An interesting sidelight on the much-discussed question of emigration after the war is thrown by a Canadian officer serving in the Royal Field Artillery in France. In a letter to a friend he says:

"Many of my chaps talk of going to Canada after the war. This is Canada's time to get men who really know how to drive a team of Canadian horses and to care for them. The United States will get those men if Canada doesn't bid for them. I'd just love to have a chance to take out 500 of them. Capital lads and all ready to work. They'd each have about £40 to £50 when the war is over. Many are married and they have their little savings. Will Canada be doing anything for them? Many millions of acres will come under the plow if properly handled."

at least. For all but a fragment of that time man had to eat foods containing much waste matter. He therefore developed a muscular digestive tube, forty feet long, for handling it. When waste matter is removed from food as in refined cereals, these muscles do not function, but become weak and constipation results. We have inherited our ancestors' anatomy. By returning to a diet of entire grains we restore function in the bowels and relieve constipation. Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal is composed of whole wheat and rye with deodorized flaxseed and bran. It can be made into porridge, pancakes, and all baked products. It's very nutritious, prevents indigestion and relieves constipation or "money back."

How The Big Guns Held The Enemy Back Canada's Famous Sixth

Battery Thrown Into Action When Germans Were Pushing Through Gap at Ypres, Stopped Offensive. Eighteen Pounders Barked Their Way Through an Iron Ring at Ypres---Casualties Among The Canadian Gunners Were Heavy

DETROIT, Feb. 12.—The News has the following sent by a staff correspondent in London, Ont:

"In the first place, perhaps you've heard that the Sixth Battery, now known at the front as the Twelfth, is Canada's pet artillery. It's old—I don't know how many years old—and it was famous before it ever went to war."

"The battery had a good military reputation. It was efficent. Those who are dead died beside their guns, and those who are left are either broken in health or are still feeding those guns over in Flanders. There isn't a man from the major down who wouldn't give up his arm or his legs, or his eyes or his life to save those steel babies of ours from the enemy.

"Our major was—and still is—Wood Leonard. When the Lord made Major Leonard he made him out of the same stuff as he made Joshua and the fighting kings of Israel. I don't know what he was before he went to the war, but I know that from the time he put on the King's clothes he made it his one business in life to be a soldier from his spurs up to the brass buttons on the peak of his cap.

"The other officers were Capt McEwen, of London, now in a hospital in England; Lieut. McGann of Toronto; Lieut Taggart, of Montreal, and Lieut Herbert Scandrett, Scandrett was given the Military Cross for gallantry at the battle of Ypres.

"Our battery consisted of four guns, andeight ammunition wagons. Our guns were what is known in Canada at the 4.8 size. That means they throw an 18-pound shell a little more than three inches through the diameter. Not very big guns, I suppose, in comparison to some over there, but big enough to have been made the objective of many an enemy charge. Big enough too, to be known as the guns that barked their way through an iron ring at Ypres!

First Taste of Battle.

After describing the arrival at the front, preliminary activities and the inability of the enemy to locate them, Gunner Jennings said:

"We got our first taste of battle on a big scale when we moved to Neuve Chapelle. We entrenched in a position that was thick with artillery. The batteries were placed about every 20 yards apart. I don't know how much artillery was massed here to keep the German reinforcements from relieving the men in the trenches, but we must have had a good many guns together there.

"We went into this position as fast as the horses could drag us, and we fired at 'Gun fire.' 'Gun fire' means that you fire just as fast as you can load, fire, reload and fire. We were there four days and four nights. We couldn't see the battle that was being fought in front of us. We couldn't see the trenches we demolished, or the whole groups of men for which we got the range from the observation officer, and killed with one or two shells. We couldn't see the bayonet charges, the mine explosions, the bomb attacks, the big sweeping offensives or the counter offensives that, they say, surged back and forth on the field in front of us.

"The aeroplanes flew back and forth over us, snooping us out and sending back the signal approximating our range. The shells came and killed other men in other batteries, shattered the guns, smashed the wagons to kindling wood, and slaughtered the hard-working, eager faithful horses.

"But our battery was skillfully officered. We lost neither a man nor a horse nor a wagon during that four days' and four nights' fighting."

The Fight at Ypres.

Gunner Williams then took the story from the mouth of Gunner Jennings and told of the second battle at Ypres:

"We rattled into our position April 22. In our billets we lived in a town that was set on a hill, and by the sights in the valley below us we knew long before the actual word reached us that something was up.

"It was night, and the roads were slashed criss-cross by shell holes. The fugitives were pouring in, in great, unending stream through to the rear.

"We stopped for nothing as we tore to the firing line. Our horses seemed to scent what was up, and they dragged us in and out of the shell holes, past the lumbering ambulances, past the crying, wounded, bleeding fugitives, as though they knew that they must get to that red flare which pierced the black of the night way over in front of us.

Rushed Into Action.

"From everywhere our troops were coming—lines and lines of infantry aroused from sleep by the news that the line had been broken, guns clattered through the dark at break-neck speed, mounted officers galloping to join their commands, ammunition wagons creaking and straining under the load of shells.

"Down that black crowded road we went with nothing to guide us except the blazing shells and the red glow in front. It was dawn when we unlimbered for 'gun fire'—the fire that doesn't stop while there is a man left to load and fire, load and fire, load and fire, and another to bring up the shells. We concealed our position as well as we could in that furious hurry, but they found us, and we had to go back for a while.

"Then back into that zone of fire we swept. We had no time to conceal ourselves. All day and all night we served those guns. Canning, a bombardier, got the gas that was driven by the wind from the infantry miles in front of us, sickened and fell in what seemed to us like a fit. It got so bad that Major Wood Leonard gave the order to jump for cover.

"The shells were raining down on us, but the boys leaped to the guns to get them out.

"We got the horses hitched to one of the guns, and dragged it out, but the shells came so fast that if we tried it with the other we would have been annihilated.

"We rushed for a ditch nearby. We stayed there an hour.

"Hell was still breaking over our head, when the major shouted, 'Now, boys, to the guns.'

"We went forward in the teeth of that fire and man-handled two more guns out of that position.

"We placed our guns in a new position several hundred yards to the rear, and then went forward to man-handle the one remaining gun to the new place. Here we worked the pieces at 'gun fire' for several hours. We were in the open, having no time to dig a pit or conceal ourselves in any way.

Stopped Oncoming Enemy.

"It was here that the Germans broke through long enough to give us the hottest half hour of our lives. The infantry in front of us had given away, and we were face to face with the Germans. They got within 200 yards of us, and started an enveloping movement that would have had us surrounded if it had succeeded. But our shrapnel was too much for them.

"When it seemed as though we were being cut off we banked the guns in a half circle, and let them have shrapnel at point blank as fast as we could soak the shells into the four pieces. Our fire spread out in the shape of a fan, and it mowed down the men before us. They came forward in solid formation, and when the first line fell the next kept right on coming. They were brave enough, but no one could stand that concentrated point-blank fire, and they fell back.

"When they retired we got the guns into a new position so that we could enfilade them.

"We stayed on the job hours after that, but the big work was over. We were no longer fighting for our lives. We were punishing the retreating Germans. The offensive movement that started with the gas attack and would have swept everything before it if the Canadian troops hurled into the breach had not stood firm, was definitely checked."

SENTENCES BANKER, AT 69, TO PRISON

Franklin Burton, of Ansonia, Conn., Gets Three Year Minimum for Thefts Totalling $50,000.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 15.—Franklin Burton, formerly treasurer of the Savings Bank of Ansonia, twice Mayor of that city and one-time State Senator from the Seventeenth district was sentenced to State prison by Judge Joel H. Reed in the criminal side of the Superior Court for not less than three years or more than ten for thefts from the savings bank, forgeries of notes and mortgages and other peculations, in all to the extent of more than $50,000.

Burton was connected with the bank for twenty-five years. In passing sentence Judge Reed said that no mercy should be shown to a man of Burton's supposed standing for actions like his, for they were likely to be the means of causing the belief in the minds of many that no one in high banking circles could be trusted with the money of other persons.

"I am happy to say, however," continued Judge Reed, "that this opinion does not exist.

In the court with Burton were his son and several of his close friends from Ansonia, and as the one-time banker, now sixty-five years old, faced the court for sentence there were a few wet eyes in the court room.

At the end of last June Great Britain owned [illegible] merchant vessels of more than 1,000 tons each. Germany possessed 136 and America 68.

WIRELESS TELLS OF TWO ROMANCES

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Cupid has harnessed the wireless to his chariot. The time honored shafts shot from his bow are now tipped with radiograms. Here is how the plump little god makes his announcements nowadays:—

"Steamship Pastores, at Sea, via Tropical Radio, New Orleans, La., Feb. 11, 1916.

"New York:—Temperature 80 degrees. Weather perfect. Cruise a big success. Two engagements announced at deck dance last evening. All passengers well and send greetings.

"Steamship Pastores."

At the time the foregoing message was sent, the Pastores, which belongs to the United Fruit Line, was steaming south between Cristobal, Panama and Port Limon, Costa Rica.

The Pastores steamed from here a week ago with a large party for Jamaica and Central American ports. It was a bitter cold day when the ship started from New York. The reference in the wireless to the rise in temperature, it is suggested was made in part explanation of the summer-like romances.

EXTRA QUESTS SAVED LIVES

Upset the Scientific Calculation of Wholesale Poisoner.

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Deputy Superintendent of Police Schuettler expects to arrest within a short time of Jean Crones, assistant chef at the University Club, suspected of putting poison in the soup served at a dinner given last Thursday night to Archbishop Mundelein.

Empty poison bottles and wrappers found in the kitchen of the University Club indicate that the poisoner made scientific calculations to kill every guest at the banquet. It was understood covers were to be laid for 200 guests, but at the last moment invitations were issued for 100 more, and 206 in all were present. That thinned down the poison dose to about three-fifths of the minimum fatal dose.

"COCAINE KING" EXPELLED.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Harry Thomas, known as "the American Cocaine King," was expelled from France Sunday night. It is understood that he was escorted across the boundary into Spain. This relieves him from the prison sentence and fine imposed for seeking to organize a "dope" trust and of prosecution on suspicion of being implicated in the death of "Chiffon," the dancer who was killed by an overdose of morphine.

SOME "BOQUETS" FOR "DADDY LONG LEGS"

What Some of The Critics Say of This Splendid Comedy

Jean Webster's famous comedy, "Daddy Long Legs," which comes to the Grand Opera House on Monday, Feb. 21, for one night only, has received really remarkable tributes of praise from the representative dramatic reviewers of America. Here are just a few:

"Sensation-seeking Broadway has a great deal to learn from 'Daddy Long Legs,' the appealing play by Jean Webster, that makes the Gaiety Theatre a green spot along the Great Scorched Way. 'Daddy Long Legs' goes straight to the heart—walks right in without stopping to knock."—New York World.

"Chicago has been asked to give a verdict in the case of 'Daddy Long Legs'. Verdict returned—It is the daintiest and most delightful play of the season."—Chicago Examiner.

"'Daddy Long Legs' is like a breath of spring. Its simplicity, pathos, humor and beauty will give it a long life in popular favor."—New York Times.

"It is the sort of play the American public takes to its heart."—Chicago Journal.

"The audience was entranced."—Chicago Tribune.

CORPS CADETS WERE ENTERTAINED

The Corps Cadets of the local Corps of the Salvation Army, spent a very enjoyable time at the home of Mrs. Payne on Saturday evening last. They were accompanied by Mrs. Adjutant McElheney, Captain Chittenden and C. C. Guardian Mrs. Lang. At the supper table, Mrs. McElheney presented Mrs. Lang with a beautiful birthday book, on behalf of the Corps Cadets, to which Mrs. Lang very suitably replied. After supper, games were indulged in the rest of the evening. Many thanks are due Mrs. Payne and Mrs. Lang for their efforts toward making the evening a success.

Grace Teiper Still Asks For Mother

Injured Girl Laughs Heartily During Conversation with Nurses.

BUFFALO, Feb. 15.—Grace J. Teiper became conscious twice in the earlier hours of yesterday morning. Just about 1.30 o'clock she opened her eyes and looked about her. Detective Sergeant William H. Barret was on watch. She talked to him and asked several times why her mother did not come to see her. She said she wanted to see her mother and brothers. She did not seem to remember anything in connection with the murder.

At about 8 o'clock Miss Teiper again awoke. She was in good spirits and during a conversation with the nurse she laughed quite heartily. While conversing with the nurse she made reference to the frequent discussions which arose in their home over the war. She said that as soon as a newspaper was brought into the house the war was the topic of conversation.

Dr. Frank T. Decot made a statement to District Attorney Dudley yesterday in which he said that while he was driving home on the Orchard Park road on the night of the murder he was stopped by Constable Baker and Dr. Flemming of Orchard Park. Dr. Decot said it was he who examined Miss Teiper and discovered that she was still living.

MANY INVOLVED IN MURDER PLOT

Four Besides Actual Gunman May Be Convicted.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—A grand jury began to take evidence concerning the murder of Barnet Baff, the poultry dealer, who was killed by a band of gunmen in November, 1914. It is charged that Baff was slain as the result of rivalry in business, that a fund of $4,200 was collected from about 200 poultry merchants under the pretense that it was to be used in a legal fight against Baff and that this fund was used by a "murder steering committee" of twelve men to employ agents who in turn employed the gunmen who shot Baff to death.

District Attorney Swann believes he has enough evidence to send to the electric chair four men in addition to some of the gunmen who actually did the murder. Many of the poultry dealers who assert that they contributed innocently to the fund used to finance Baff's murder have voluntarily given information to the district attorney. Swann yesterday issued an appeal to the other merchants who contributed to the fund to give him the names of the murder committee.

Belleville Won First Game Easterners Ahead 5 To 3

Close Checking of Soldiers Held Them in Submission The First Period But They Came Strong in The Last Two Sessions—Symons The Star of a Good Game.

RETURN ON FRIDAY

The 93rd Battalion team, Peterborough's sole surviving hope in the O. H. A. stakes, received an unpleasant visit at Brock Street Rink last night when the good Belleville intermediates trimmed them by 5 goals to 3 in a second round game. The return fixture will take place at Belleville on Friday night, and while the soldiers have a fighting chance and will give the Quinte lads a hard battle, their chances of winning the round are not of the brightest.

Belleville were heralded as a team that played good combination, and they lived up to their advance notices in that respect. The close, hard checking of the Soldiers broke their team work up in the first period and the 93rd were in front 2 to 1 at the end of the first twenty minutes, but led by big Symons, the clever defence player, the lads from the East got together nicely and they dominated the game for the last two sessions. They had the Soldiers tied up at 3 to 3 at the end of the second and came through handily with two counters in the last stanza. The sterling net work of Captain Widdifield saved the Soldiers from a worse beating, for he saved frequently when his defence was beaten.

Belleville showed a tidy little team with a fast forward line an a big, clever defence. In Bill Symons the Easterners have as good a defence man as has been seen here in years. Big and fast, a good stickhandler and cool and unflurried in meeting an attack Symons was a tower of strength at all points to the winners. He is clean in his defence methods too, and utterly unselfish when he goes up the rink, never failing to pass the rubber. He was responsible for three of the Belleville goals, one on his own efforts and two on passes from him. Whitty was an able second on the defence, while on the forward line Whelan, the centre man looker the best, although the other three were in the hunt at all times especially Mitchell, the left wing who carries a terrific shot. The forwards play their positions well, and work very effectively together when they get away.

For the 93rd, Widdifield's grand work in the nets placed him in the star class. Some of his stops at close quarters were magnificent, and the Soldiers can thank his work in the second and third periods for the fact that they have not a five or six-goal deficit to face when they invade Belleville. Montgomery had as much speed as any man on the ice, and his absence for half of the second period was felt. In the forward line all four worked hard and honours were about even. Blewett's play for the first Soldier goal, was one of the features of the evening.

The Soldiers never stopped trying until the final gong, and individually they suffered little in comparison with the visitors, but the old failing of "hogging the puck" threw away chances for them.

Referee Moxon was impartial. The teams were as follows

Belleville		93rd
	Goal.
Connolly		Widdifield
	Defence.
Whitty		Montgomery
W. Symons		Dupuy
	Rover.
Elliott		Sexton
	Centre.
Whelan		Windsor
	Right Wing
S. Symons		Blewett
	Left Wing
Mitchell		Ketchum

The teams cut loose at a fast clip from the first face off, and the checking was close and hard. Both teams were checking back closely and giving each other little chance to get away. Widdifield and Connolly were both called upon to handle shots, but they were from well out, and were easily turned aside. Finally, however, big Symons secured the rubber near his own nets, fooled the 93rd forwards, pulled the defence over to one side and then slid the puck out to Whelan, who took his pass nicely an tore in on top of Widdifield for the first counter.

The Soldiers failed to let this reverse bother them any, for they came on and gave Connolly several busy minutes. Belleville were passing away at their combination, but the close checking of the Soldiers held the visiting forwards in check, and Symons had to come to the rescue with some of his rushes. Play was very even at this stage. Blewett gave the home crowd a chance to enthuse when he equalized, after a grand rush. He came down his own side of the rink, crossed in front of the defence at top speed and then took Connolly's measure with a swift shot from the left wing.

Soon after Ketchum broke away along the boards and zinged a fast one past Connolly for the Soldiers' second goal. The figures remained at 2—1 until the end of the period.

Belleville opened the second period at top speed, and Widdifield had a busy time for a while. Twice in the first few minutes he tore off sensational stops when first Whelan and then S. Symons were right inside with no one to beat but the net guardian. He also saved nicely on two bullet shots from Mitchell. Belleville were not to be denied, however, and W. Symons, getting away nicely, centred to Whelan, who had a clean run to the mouth of the nets, and gave Widdifield no chance to stop his shot. It was an exact duplicate of Belleville's first score.

Soon after Montgomery was hurt in a collision with a Belleville player and had to retire for the rest of the period, Belleville dropping Elliott. Soon after Dupuy put the Soldiers ahead again when he went up alone, and, shooting from outside the defence, fooled Connolly nicely.

The cheering of the Peterborough rooters had not died away when Mitchell evened up for Belleville. He slipped down the side and slid an easy one into the corner of the nets in fifteen seconds after the face-off, and the score was 3 to 3. There was no change when the end of the period came.

Montgomery and Elliott were back when the last session opened, but early in the period the latter was hurt and retired with Ketchum for the balance of the game. For ten minutes in the last period there was no score, and then W. Symons put Belleville in front when he wound up a spectacular single-handed rush by beating Widdifield from close in.

There was an exciting period soon after. Blewett was knocked out when W. Symons crashed into him, but soon revived. The big defence man was ruled off for the play. Just after Sexton drew a penalty and then Connolly, the Belleville goal minder was chased for dropping on his knees to stop a chance. With the Belleville goal-keeper and star defence man out of the game it looked like a royal chance for the soldiers, but the visitors checked so closely that they failed to get a shot. Then Dupuy was chased, and Belleville added insult to injury, when with their goal-minder still in the box, Mitchell drove one past Widdifield from well out, putting the visitors two ahead. They had little trouble in holding their lead to the finish.

Won Trophy From Bobcaygeon But Lost Another To Orillia

Peterborough lost to Orillia curlers by the score of 16-37 last night in the concluding games of the Neill-Sheppard trophy, which goes to Orillia with a total margin of 17 points. It is the first time in four years that Orillia has captured it, and there was nothing devious in the way they went after it. Not only was Mr. Neill beaten by 27 to 6, but R. M. Waddell went down with a 22-9 score. However, Peterborough has won the trophy three years in succession and the change will make it all the more interesting in future. George Giroux and Jim Connal saved the club's defeat from becoming a rout.

BOBCAYGEON WON.

Two Bobcaygeon rinks played the final games in the Fitzgerald-Bottum trophy annual series. They were minus 15 when they began last night and their win with 6 up was not enough to keep the shield. Caygeon won it last year and Peterborough held it in 1913 and 1914.

HOCKEY COMMENT

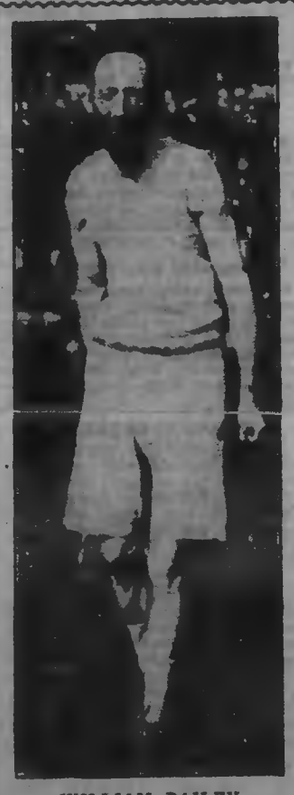
Each of the Belleville players wore a band of crepe on his arm in last night's game in respect to the memory of their goalkeeper, Phillips, who died last week following an attack of typhoid fever.

The 93rd Battalion had not a monopoly in regard to soldiers players last night. Whitty, the right defence player of the visitors, is a private in the 80th Battalion, C.E.F., while Elliott, the rover is a subaltern in the 155th Belleville Battalion, C.E.F.

Symons, the Belleville defence player, made a big hit with the crowd last night. "Put Symons on with the Electric junior and they would give any team in the district an awful argument," remarked one fan as he watched the cool way in which the big fellow worked.

The Soldiers lost a big chance in the last period when they failed to score when Connolly, the Belleville goalkeeper and Symons were both in the penalty box.

Connolly, the seventeen year old goalkeeper of the visitors, played a very effective game. The Soldiers gave him a lot of long shot to look after, and he handled them well.



WILLIAM BAILEY

At his own request, William Bailey, has been committed to the asylum. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble yesterday and asked to be committed the asylum. He agreed to conform to the rules as he had done on a previous occasion. Bailey is well-known locally, having gained some notoriety through the medium of the most card column of the local press. He is a remittance man and has resided in Peterborough for some years. The above picture depicts the subject in a running costume. Some years ago, Bailey was a contestant in some athletic events that were held under Y.M.C.A. auspices.

WATERWORKS DEPARTMENT SHOWS PROFIT OF $6,535.45 THE FINANCIAL STATEMENT

Peterboro Utilities Commission Receive Report Dealing With The Operating of The Waterworks Department For The Past Year. The Revenue Amounted To $58,547.60—Profit and Loss Account.

The Peterborough Utilities Commission held a meeting yesterday afternoon and among other things, referred to Mr. H. O. Fiske, manager, the Council's request for a meter to be installed in the police station.

Mr. S. S. Armstrong, the secretary-treasurer, submitted the following financial statement of the Waterworks Dept., for the year 1915:

During the year $5,465.70 was expended in laying mains and setting hydrants, and $1,988.39 in laying services, a total of $7,390.31 in construction work. The wages for re-laying the main on Hunter street east of Belmont avenue was charged to maintenance of mains and hydrants and is paid with the expense account.

An auxiliary steam pumping unit with boilers and boiler house, was installed on account of which $13,146.20 was paid, including half of the contract price for the pump and boilers.

The net water rates, including special frontage rates, amounted to $56,547.60, and adding $2,000 charged for the use of the dam for power purposes, brought the revenue up to $58,547.60. The expense account, including interest and sinking funds and amount written off tools and plant for depreciation, amounted to $52,012.15, showing a profit on the year's operations of $6,535.45.

36 Rinks Drawn For The Opening Of The Bonspiel

Thirty-six rinks were drawn for the open bonspiel at the Charlotte Stret rink this afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, and seven "ices" immediately went into use with the second games scheduled put down for 3.30 and the next at 5 o'clock. It was expected that the twelve ends would be played in about an hour and a half, but there won't be much time lost if these games are turned out in two hours flat.

The draw was efficiently and quickly arranged by Mr. J. H. Renwick, who also lined up last year's 'spiel and was not long in disposing of the crowd that clamored for information about when they went into action.

Among the rinks represented were Brampton, Claremont, Bobycaygeon, Keene, Norwood, Lakefield, Millbrook, Port Hope, Oshawa, Orillia, Cobourg, and others.

The preliminary round drew four rinks which, with ten others, were the first to occupy the seven "ices" as follows:

Preliminary round—
Morrow of Peterborough vs. Howson of Keene.
Matthews of Peterborough vs. W. J. Oke of Port Hope.
First round—
Harvey of Orillia vs. Giroux, Peterborough.
Martin, Peterborough, vs. J. E. A. Fitzgerald.
Field of Cobourg, vs. Redpath of Lakefield.
McNabb of Orillia vs. Campbell of Keene.
W. M. Lang, Peterborough, vs. McCallum of Cobourg.

On the centre ice, this afternoon, Herb. Martin opened up a lead of three on Jack Fitzgerald, and on the second went down three, thus tieing the score with two "ends" aside.

On the second end, Redpath of Lakefield, and Field of Cobourg were tied with one apiece.

The Brampton rink was composed of H. McKillop, L. O. Terry, W. E. Downs and J. Birss, skip.

HOCKEY.

The double-header in the City League series at Brock Street Rink, this week, promises to be an unusually interesting event. Fans will be glad to learn that the first game will be called at 7.30 o'clock, and that there will only be five minute rests between periods. This will get the games over in better time than has hitherto been the case.

LIKE RETURN FROM GRAVE

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, upon his arrival at Southamptom badly wounded from injuries received when the Persia was sunk in the Mediterranean by a torpedo, gave to the London Times a graphic statement.

"I am really returning from the grave," he said, telling his story.

"About 11:10 a.m. on Thursday, the 30th, as we were sitting down to luncheon on the Persia, there was a terrific explosion just abaft the main saloon. The passengers, all of whom had been previously assigned to certain lifeboats, tried to reach their appointed station. When I got to mine the ship was keeling over so badly that it was found impossible to launch any of the boats on that side. I climbed up with great difficulty to the starboard side, trying to pull with me my secretary, Miss Thornton, who happened to be near.

Within three minutes after the torpedo struck, the ship was on her beam ends going down by the stern. I was swept off my feet by a rush of waters and in a few seconds found myself in the ocean and under water. As the great ship went down, I was sucked along with it, striking my head and body several times with great violence.

"I wore a Gieve waistcoat, which has more buoyancy than an ordinary life-preserver. Thus, while I lost consciousness from blows on the head received under water, my waistcoat promptly brought me to the surface. I saw the sea covered with struggling human beings, very little wreckage, and no sign of the Persia.

"Only three undamaged boats were left afloat; these only partly filled. I swam about fifty yards toward a boat floating upside down. Eventually I managed to climb up and get astride of the keel."

"The Bulgarian headquarters report of February 13th, says the Bulgarian troops on Saturday occupied Elbassan, Albania. The town was dressed in bunting and the troops were warmly received by the population."

Unofficial advices on February 7th said the Austrians and Bulgars had joined hands in Central Albania and had occupied Elbassan. Elbassan is about 64 miles southeast of Scutari.

TAKE "CASCARETS" IF HEADACHY, BILIOUS AND CONSTIPATED

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headaches, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right, complexion rosy and your liver and bowels regular for months.

DINED WITH THE KAISER

British Journalist Who Was at Nish Glad to be Home.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—"The man who dined with the Kaiser," whose experience at the banquet at Nish have been greatly featured by the Daily Mail, was the guest of honour at the American Luncheon Club Saturday. He wouldn't give his name.

"I suppose I'm a spy, but not against this side," was the assertion he made. The burden of his remarks was that he was glad to be safe in London, for he expected to get short shrift if he were ever caught by the Germans or their allies, for he had represented himself as a neutral journalist.

"I was not near enough to the Kaiser at the banquet to kill him," he said: "but if I had done so I wouldn't be here now. When I got the opportunity to have a seat at the banquet through the aid of the Bulgarian press officials, I said to myself that it was worth a thousand pounds to Lord Northcliffe."

Lord Northcliffe had sent him through the Balkans and Asia Minor. On a previous occasion he had masqueraded as a Swiss chocolate salesman.

Six Killed In Raid On Milan

Austrian Aviators Drop Bombs On Italian City Far From Front.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A Reuter's despatch from Milan says six persons were killed and several injured by bombs dropped from aeroplanes which appeared over the city this morning The despatch says several aeroplanes took part in the raid, which was made at nine o'clock. Anti-aircraft guns opened a heavy fusillade and the aeroplanes disappeared after dropping bombs. The material damage was small. The casualties were all among civilians.

Milan is in Northern Italy, south of the Swiss border, and seventy miles west of the Austrian line. There have been many aeroplane raids during the war over Venice, Ancona and other points along the east coast, such as the one reported on Sunday which caused the death of fifteen persons, but aerial attacks heretofore have not been made on points as far in the interior as Milan.

Milan is the second largest city of Italy, with a population of about 500,000. It has some of the finest churches of Europe, including the celebrated Cathedral Mariae Nascenti. Its galleries contain many valuable works of art.

FRENCH DO NOT ARM SHIPS

Liners to New York Not Allowed to Carry Guns.

LONDON, Feb. 16—While British and Italian practice recognises armament of merchant ships for defensive purposes and the prevailing view expressed by the press is that such is a recognised right under international law, French liners to New York are not permitted to carry any guns.

The legal theory on which the French practice is based is an outgrowth of the principle that guns are the property of the King and that no private individual or ship shall be permitted to use them. If a French merchant ship mounts guns it immediately becomes a naval auxiliary.

CAR FERRIES FAIL TO REACH KINGSTON

KINGSTON, Feb. 16.—Two big car ferries stationed at Cobourg almost made a record for winter navigation. One of the ferries was being towed here to drydock. With the thermometer ten below zero, the ferries came within nine miles of Kingston and were then forced to return to Cobourg owing to an ice jam they ran into near Saske Island. The ice was seven feet thick and dynamite had to be used to get the ferries turned around.

HOW TO REGAIN STRENGTH

The great factor that retards recovery after sickness is that weakened devitalized condition, and it will interest our readers to know that our local druggists, McDermid & Jury and E. L. Payne, have a reliable, non-secret strength creator called Vinol, which contains iron for the blood, the curative medicinal extractives of fresh cod livers and the nourishing properties of beef peptone, all combined in a delicious native wine. For weak, run-down conditions and to regain strength after sickness, there is nothing better.

COLOUR PHOTOGRAPHY DISCOVERY REPORTED

Important Announcement Reported the Discovery Said to Be Made in Rome.

ROME, Feb. 14.—What is hailed here as an important scientific discovery is a method of photography reproduced natural colours, found, after eight years of experimenting, by the Pineschi brothers and by Signor Santoni. These men say that they have solved in a satisfactory way a problem on which scientists have been working in many countries, and that important commercial results are to be expected from the exploitation of their discovery for the purposes of moving picture exhibitors. Complete tests are soon to be made by dis interested scientists, to determine the full scope of the discovery.

It is calculated that within a depth of 4,000 feet, there are still 100,000,000,000 tons of coal left in the British empire.

Why Tolerate Catarrh?

You have noticed, no doubt, that any cold aggravates nasal catarrh, and the flow of mucous amazes you that such objectionable matter could find lodgment in your head. To ignore this catarrh when the cold subsides is wrong because it continues to slowly injure the delicate linings of the nasal passages and clog them up.

To correct catarrh, cleanse the nostrils frequently with a solution of warm water and salt, insert vaseline on retiring, and take a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion after meals for one month. Scott's acts through the blood to feed the tissues, and contains soothing glycerine to check the inflammation and heal the sensitive membranes.

Scott's is pleasant to take.

Wiley Asks Tests For Marriage Candidates

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15. — Dr Harvey W. Wiley announced his advocacy of a plan to examine marriage candidates before the issuance of a license.

"There is a great wave of misinformation spreading over the country in regard to the nutrition, ventilation, and sanitation," he said. "Congress should consider measures to relieve the situation. Lack of knowledge of these three cardinal principles of good health is stifling humanity at its very source. The race cannot be preserved when people utterly disregard these first laws of nature."

REPORT BULGARS TWENTY MILES FROM AULONA

LONDON, Feb. 16.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says Bulgarian forces have occupied the Albanian town of Fieri, about sixteen miles from Avlona.

A despatch from Athens on February 7 said that, according to advices from Austria, Austrian and Bulgarian troops had formed a junction in Albania and occupied the town of Elbassan. Elbassan is 38 miles southeast of Avlona. The Austrian official statement announced that on February 9 Austro-Hungarian troops occupied Tirana, which lies about 20 miles northwest of Elbassan. The present announcement that the Bulgarians have occupied Fieri, which is about thirty-seven miles to the southwest of Elbassan, may indicate that the Austrians and Bulgarians have started separate campaigns from that point, the former advancing on the important Albanian port of Durazzo, while the Bulgars are aiming at Avlona, which is occupied in force by Italian troops. The Austrian official statement published on February 12th, said that Italian forces had attacked the positions taken by the Austrians west of Tirana, but that their attacks had failed.

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR DOUBLE ITS BEAUTY

Try This! Hair Gets Thick, Glossy, Wavy and Beautiful at Once

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a Danderine hair cleanse. Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair, and lots of it surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and just try it.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

MME. 'DAREDEVIL' VICTIM OF ARDOR FOR FRENCH CAUSE

OUTWITTED THE GERMANS TO FEED WOUNDED ALLIES AND HAD PRISONER TO HER CREDIT.

PARIS, February 14th. — Mme. "Dare-Devil" is dead. Mme. "Dare-Devil" was the name given by French soldiers to Mme. Meunier, the wife of a farmer at Lessart, not far from Nanteuil-le-Haudouin, where the British troops passed on September 2, 1914, under the pressure of continually multiplying German troops on the left flank. The peasants of Lessart, most of them, piled their personal effects into carry-alls and carts and fled before the conflict. Mme. Meunier, however, refused to budge. Solidly braced against her doorsill, she turned a deaf ear to all appeals. She remained alone there with her mother of 75 and three young servants; she buried her choice provisions, her wine and bottles of old brandy in the garden, bought a poignard for personal defence, and waited for the Germans.

From the surrounding country there succeeded wave after wave of thick ranks of gray. Five army corps, nearly three hundred thousand men, marched through that region toward the Marne. In the early morning hours of the next day a German officer knocked at the door of Mme. Meunier's farm house with the hilt of his sword:

"I must have milk, bread, meat, wine salt, pepper for my men," he cried.

Mme. Meunier got together all the provisions that were visible in the house and when the count had been made the German officer offered a bank bill to her. Mme. Meunier drew herself up and pushed the bill back with her hand.

"I have only given you what you would have taken if I had refused. I do not want your money. You can take everything you want here free of charge," she added, "but on one condition."

ON ONE CONDITION.

"A condition?"

Yes; on condition that I shall go and come at will; I will attend to my affairs in my own ways. Otherwise you shall have nothing more at all."

"Be it," the officer replied, "but let me give you a little advice. Take good care of yourself. My men don't trifle."

Scarcely had the officer turned upon his heels, when Mme. Meunier ran to the stable, hitched up the only conveyance she had, stuffed her cart full of the provisions that she had secreted, and in a few minutes the old horse was trotting at top speed along the road between the lines of the German troops on the march. At Varaigny a patrol stopped her, searched the cart and showed their delight at the find that they had made. The legend has it that Mme. Meunier, with a raised whip, exclaimed:

At this, it is said, the patrol divided respectively and allowed the cart to pass on.

Violating all orders by her audacity, Mme. Meunier got through the German lines, reached the hospital at Nanteuil le Haudouins and distributed her provisions among the wounded French and British soldiers at the hospital, slipping pieces of money into their hands and left with the triumphant cry, "Until to-morrow, my lads."

CAPTURES A GERMAN.

The next day and the following and for ten days thereafter, Mme. Meunier passed through the German lines every day with her charge of provisions for her proteges in the hospital at Nanteuil le Haudouin. On September 12, on the road from Nanteuil to Lessard, her old cart was suddenly caught in a storm of shells. The Germans all around under brief and nervous orders were forming in battalions, hurrying their horses to their field guns. Within a short distance from her farmhouse Mme. Meunier picked up up the fuse of a shell. It was a French fuse and she believed that the deliverance of the region was near at hand. That night Mme. Meunier remained up to watch the German retreat under the galling fire of the famous French three inches, and before morning counted a score or more of the gray coated men who had passed by a few days before waiting burial on the high road. At one place she jumped out of her cart and found a German soldier, wounded, with his rifle beside him.

"The gun first, my fellow," ordered Mme. Meunier. She seized the rifle, unloaded it, installed the German in her cars, and ten minutes later arrived at the hospital at Nanteuil, now surrounded by French cheasseurs.

"I have not finished," cried Mme. Meunier, "but I am going to keep the gun. When my husband comes back from the war it will be proof to him that I have not simply remained at home twiddling my thumbs."

Mme. Meunier would have received the war cross certainly and probably the military medal but the privations she imposed upon herself and the exhaustion in the great effort she made to provision the French soldiers in the Nanteuil Hospital through the German lines during the ten days were too much for her and she died literally of physical exhaustion and died literally of physical exhaustion and privation. Her grave in the little cemetery near Lessart is kept covered with fresh flowers by the soldiers quartered in the vicinity.

WOMEN'S STOMACH TROUBLES

The Great Woman's Medicine Often Just What Is Needed.

We are so used to thinking of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a remedy exclusively for female ills that we are apt to overlook the fact that it is one of the best remedies for disorders of the stomach.

For stomach trouble of women it is especially adapted, as it works in complete harmony with the female organism, since it contains the extracts of the best tonic roots and herbs. It tones up the digestive system, and increases the appetite and strength. Here is what one woman writes showing what this medicine does:—

Newfield, N. Y.—"I am so pleased to say I can recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as an economical and beneficial remedy in most ailments pertaining to women. At least I found it so by only taking two bottles. I had indigestion in a bad form and I am now feeling in the best of health and owe it all to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BURR WILLIAMS, R. D. No. 29, Newfield, N. Y.

Many women suffer from that "all gone feeling," and "feel so faint," while doing their work. Too chances to ease their digestive system is all out of order. A tablespoonful of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after each meal should completely remedy this condition in a few days.

GREEK PUBLIC DEBT REACHES $308,520,965

ATHENS, Feb. 14.—The public debt of Greece on December 31 had reached a total of $308,520,965, and, notwithstanding that some of the Greek people are making fortunes as a result of the war, the public debt is getting larger and larger.

From the end of the disastrous war with Turkey in 1898 until the beginning of the present European conflict the finances of Greece have been under the supervision of an International Financial Committee, upon which German, Austrian-Hungary, France, Great Britain and Russia have had representatives, and an Auditing Board of Italians, headed by Signor Frederico Zappeloni, has kept track of the public debt of Greece both for the International Financial Committee and for the changing Ministers of Finance of the country itself.

Since the establishment of this International committee the public debt has increased from 941,770,766 drachmas ($168,354,149) to $1,542,604,326 drachmas ($308,520,965)—a total increase of 600,834,076 drachmas ($139,166,816), or an annual increase over a period of eighteen years of 33,379,671 drachmas ($6,675,906).

In this period, from 1898 to date, Greece has had two wars and the unliquidated debts of a third.

KAISER WANTS PEACE

Envoys Would Offer Terms to Avoid War With Italy.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—"Besides Prince Von Buelow, Prince Hohenlohe and Baron Von Kraft are now in Switzerland striving toward peace, which the Kaiser is determined to hasten, possibly in order to avert Italy's declaration of war, which, the German papers now openly hint, is imminent," says a Rome despatch to the Daily News.

"The Kaiser's representatives in Switzerland are empowered to induce the Berne Pacifist Committee to assume the initiative in a proposal for an armistice which would be a prelude to negotiations for peace. Assurances have been received, it is said, that Germany is disposed to make concessions.

"There is good reason to believe Germany is seeking peace mainly owing to the failure of the Balkan enterprise, due to complications with Bulgaria and Turkey, as a result of which both the attack on Saloniki and the Turkish-German expedition to Egypt are abandoned. Furthermore, Austria is on the verge of exhaustion.

FORTY-ONE DAYS IN TRENCHES

A French soldier declares that late in 1914 he was forty-days in the trenches without taking off his clothes or shoes. They made an attack upon Vauqnois and lay fourteen hours in the open with only a hedge between them and the Germans. Finally they crawled back under cover of darkness, and entrenched behind a slight elevation ten yards to the rear. He had eight bullet holes in his clothes and not a scratch.

Afflicted with Lame Back
THREE YEARS AGO
COULD NOT SWEEP THE FLOOR.

Women are coming to understand that weak, lame and aching backs from which they suffer so much excruciating pain and agony are due to wrong action of the kidneys.

The kidneys are overtaxed—given more work than they can do, and when the back aches and pains it is hard for a woman to look after her household duties, for no woman can be strong and well when the kidneys are out of order.

On the first sign of any weakness in the back Doan's Kidney Pills should be taken. They go right to the seat of the trouble, cure the weak, aching back, and prevent any serious kidney trouble liable to follow.

Mrs. L. Gonshaw, 683 Manning Ave., Toronto, Ont., writes: "I take great pleasure in writing you, stating the benefit I have received by using Doan's Kidney Pills. About three years ago I was terribly afflicted with lame back, and was so bad I could not even sweep the floor. I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills, and before I had used one box there was a great improvement, and my back was completely cured. I highly recommend 'Doan's' for lame back."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Billy Atwood's Degree

It Was at Least Honorably Earned

By DWIGHT NORWOOD

"Billy," said John Atwood to his son, "I have something of great importance to say to you before your departure for college. You are going to receive what I have always regretted not having received myself—a university education. It depends upon you whether you take advantage of this great benefit I am going to give you or throw it away. If I were in your place I would study hard in order that I might take an influential stand in the world. I would eschew everything but my books, try to take all the prizes"—

"Father," the boy broke in, "I'm going to college to please you. I'd rather go into a machine shop and amuse myself with tools than worry over books. I never could learn anything by studying hard to do it; I must do it. And when I've done it once I can do it again and the second time better than the first and go on improving on what I have done. However, I doubt if a college education will hurt me, and if I can get through honorably I'll do so, but I won't go through by doing what I hear so many do—passing examinations by illegitimate means."

"You needn't resort to illegitimate means if you'll give your time and attention to your studies."

"Well, goodby, father. I'll do the best I can."

William Atwood while a freshman strove to please his father by attending to his studies. But when he came to the examinations at the end of the first year he ran up against certain subjects upon which he must be examined that he had no taste for and upon which he was as stupid as any dunce. There was small chance of his passing an examination in any of them. He had been picked out for one of the mainstays of the college in its athletic contests, and the college did not wish to lose him. Some of the best students in his class offered surreptitiously to help him with his examination papers, but since he was obliged to sign a statement that he had not received such help he declined the offer. They argued that receiving such help was a common practice among the students, but they did not move Billy. However, he was such a favorite with the professors that those passing on his examination papers gave him the benefit of sundry doubts and cleared him by a small fraction.

When the spring opened Billy was called upon for twirler of the university baseball team and won largely by his own efforts the championship for his college for that season. Again the faculty treated his examination papers elastically and scraped him through the final examination for the year.

Billy was as successful at football as at twirling. He was a husky fellow and as spry as husky. When in November the game between his college and its principal rival was played a run he made—celebrated at the time—won the championship for his team, and he was carried off the field with the usual eclat. Again he was tided over his exams by the professors, for he resolutely refused to be helped by his classmates.

After this it became an axiom—a self evident truth—among both faculty and students that Billy Atwood must, by book or by crook, be boosted through college. It didn't make any difference to Billy how it was done provided he was not called upon to sign a false statement. The faculty were interested in keeping a man who by winning champion athletic games was attracting attention to the college, and the students were interested in the glory attending the winning of the games.

And so it was that in one way or another Billy, like a waterlogged scow in a shallow stream, replete with obstructions, was floated on till he approached the final examinations for his degree. His father went on to see him graduate, arriving the day after the exams had been finished. Crossing the campus, he met the president, who the moment he saw him rushed forward, seized his hand and exclaimed:

"We've got him through!"

"Who?"

"Your son. The examiners in metaphysics declared they couldn't possibly pass him on that subject. I called for the papers, found an ambiguous answer to a question, interpreted it favorably and made the mark three hundredths above the minimum. We're all delighted."

Mr. Atwood tried to look pleased, but failed. He left the president much disappointed that Billy had barely scraped through college. He inquired of a student he met who was the valedictorian of the graduating class and was surprised to receive for answer "Bill Atwood." Upon expressing his astonishment the young man added, "Oh, I was thinking of the man who won the game for us the other day."

"Great heavens!" muttered Bill's father. "Can it be that in college the man who kicks has taken the place of the man who thinks?"

The next day Mr. Atwood took his son home, and the athlete was escorted to the station by most of the students and a number of the faculty. The valedictorian went to the train alone.

Billy Atwood had inherited his strength from his mother's family, his father being rather a delicate man and at the time his son was graduated with a diploma which should have read instead of "bachelor of arts" "bachelor of athletics," was in poor health. He nursed his disappointment at his son's poor intellectual showing in secret, but did not reproach him. One thing is Billy's college career he was proud of—the boy had not achieved his diploma by dishonorable means. And this matter set the father to thinking. After all, was it wise to place a temptation before mere boys such as in all his own career had never been imposed upon himself? He thought much on this matter, but did not arrive at any solution of the problem.

John Atwood, soon after Billy's return from the university, found it necessary to close out his business and seek a salaried position. He attributed his ill success to his want of education and, finally, to having spent so much money on putting his son through college. Being well liked, it was suggested to him by friends that if he would run for a lucrative office they would give him their support. He consented and was nominated by the best men in the town on an independent ticket to run against a man supported by as corrupt a gang of scoundrels as ever remained out of jail. From the moment of his nomination the opposition managers decided that if he could not be defeated by fair means he must be by foul. Certain of Atwood's supporters were let into this decision. Some of them were disposed to expect a failure.

Billy Atwood at a conference with the manager of a daily newspaper agreed that if given the use of its columns during the campaign he would not only show up the methods of the opposition, but would take the responsibility for doing so upon his own shoulders. He was assigned a desk in a room by himself, which was used for a reception room by the editor, no one being able to get at that functionary without passing through Billy's sanctum. Here he wrote sundry articles, accusing his father's opponent of such rascally proceedings that the town was shocked.

The managers of the attacked candidate held a meeting at which ways and means for stopping the accusations were discussed. Since they were true and could be proved, it was decided to compel the accuser to withdraw them by an overawing process. Jim Donally, one of the most powerful of the henchmen, was selected to go to the editor of the paper publishing the charges and demand a retraction. Jim chose 11 o'clock in the morning for the purpose and found Billy in his sanctum writing the second article of the campaign. He had decorated the room with trophies he had taken during his college course. There were five champion bats of rare wood and exquisite finish, several silver cups, a wire mask, and on each corner of the desk was a baseball.

"Where's the editor?" asked Mr. Donally.

"What do you want to see him about?" was Billy's reply.

"I want him to retract them lies he wrote about the election."

"I wrote them."

"Well, you've got to publish a retraction tomorrow morning or I'll take one out of your hide."

"You get out of here."

Billy rose, and each stood looking the other over and sizing up his chances of victory, for it was evident that the matter between them would be settled by force. Billy took mental account of his munitions, consisting of sporting prizes, his enemy showing his own resources by pushing back his coat and fumbling at his hip. But since his enemy made no motion to use any weapon except such as nature had provided him Donally did not go into his pocket. It is a pretty low grade of politics where politicians dare to use firearms.

"You have no right here, and I give you warning that if you don't vacate the place I'll throw you downstairs."

"I'll vacate the place when I have had satisfaction," said Mr. Donally doggedly.

Billy took a step forward, and his enemy put his hand into his hip pocket, at the same time taking a step backward, which carried him to the doorway and very near the landing.

Billy sprang for the man and, shoving him through the open door, sent him down the stairway. Donally returned, holding a revolver. It was knocked out of his hand by one of the baseballs that had decorated Billy's desk. Then Billy jumped for him and sent him downstairs again. A second time the henchman returned with another revolver in the other hand, which Billy eliminated with a prize bat and for the third time tackled his opponent.

This time Donally made a better fight, grappling Billy, and the two struggled toward the landing. There Billy carried his man over, and both went down the stairs. But Billy's football practice enabled him to keep on top, and when they reached the bottom Donally's senses had been knocked out of him.

This ended the fight. The next morning an account of it appeared in all the papers. The opposition concluded to remain dormant till the reform movement had been forgotten, and the election was a landslide for John Atwood.

"Billy," he said to his son when the triumph was announced, "you needn't mind about not being a scholar. You're good enough for me as you are. My salary will be $8,000. You can have half of it with which to enter upon any career you like."

"Don't want a cent, father. I've decided to go into railroading. I shall begin tomorrow by firing on a locomotive."

Billy the next morning before daylight put on overalls and began his career. After passing through every position from fireman to superintendent he became president of the road.

WAR TEN YEARS TOO SOON.

For Germany's Schemes in Regard to Arabia.

Germany brought on the war just ten years too soon for her Syrian and Arabian schemes, according to Rev. Canon Gould, secretary of the Church of England Missionary Society, who addresses the Canadian Club at noon to-day on "Syria and Arabia as Factors in the Schemes of Germany."

Canon Gould spent 15 years in these countries, returning two years ago. To-day he dealt especially with the condition of railways in those countries, and pointed out that the whole scheme of Germany in regard to opening a way to Egypt and India depended largely on the help they could receive from the Arabs. England's assets were undoubtedly made up of her work in Egypt and Arabia.

AUSTRIAN AIR SHIPS KILL 15

PARIS, Feb. 15.—Austrian aeroplanes made a raid yesterday over Ravenna, and the neighbouring towns of Codigoro and Bottrighe, in northeastern Italy, near the Adriatic. A Havas despatch from Rome says fifteen persons were killed and a number of others wounded.

Several women and children were injured. A hospital and the basilica of Sant' Apollinare at Ravenna were damaged.

The Church of Sant' Apollinare was erected in the years 535 to 538, and was consecrated in 549 by St. Maximian. It was restored in 1779, and is the largest of the basilicas still existing at Ravenna.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

KALTSCHMIDT STEPS OUT

Resignation of Accused German from Detroit Club Accepted.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 15.—Albert Kaltschmidt, resident of Detroit, who is on Canadian "fugitive from justice" list, and who boasts, "I am not a citizen of the United States; I am a German," tendered his resignation yesterday from the exclusive Detroit Tennis Club, and it was unanimously accepted. His recent controversy with George Gordon Moore, friend of Gen. French, and rumours of his connection with numerous dynamiting outrages caused a noticeable coldness throughout the club-rooms whenever Mr. Kaltschmidt appeared, and he encountered great difficulty in obtaining opponents and partners in games.

Refusal on the part of Mr. Kaltschmidt to answer certain direct questions in regard to the truthfulness of stories which have been widely circulated connecting him with the charges made by the Canadian Government increased the tension. This fact made his ostracism practically complete and impressive.

HOSPITAL TRAIN PRESENTED.

Paris, Feb. 15.—A hospital tram of thirteen cars, to accommodate 325 persons, the gift of two wealthy Americans, was presented to the French Government.

GERMANY'S FORTRESS

HELIGOLAND WAS A DISMAL PLACE A FEW YEARS AGO.

When the Island Belonged to the British Empire It Was a Flat-topped Heap of Clay With No Shelter for Man or Beast—Concussion of Guns Brought Tons of Earth Down Into the Sea.

ALMOST important part of the German naval defence is the island of Heligoland in the North Sea, commanding the western entrance to the Kiel Canal.

It is now a mass of concreted cement, heavily fortified, and is the great naval base behind the shelter of which Germany's fleets cower in safety.

One of the old English coastguards who were stationed on Heligoland has recently given a description of this strongly-fortified German island, as it appeared before it was acquired from Great Britain.

"The island was only a small one," he said, "barely a mile long and about half a mile broad.

There were 2,300 inhabitants, and, apart from the Governor, Lieut.-Colonel Maxse, his suite, and the coastguards, the population was mainly German. In the summer the island was a very fashionable watering-place, and almost every house was a boarding-house, but only the nobility of Germany could afford to go there.

The island was perfectly flat on the top, which consisted of a kind of red clay, and provided no shelter for man or beast. Heavy ordnance could not be placed on the top. The lower portion of the island consisted of rock and was absolutely rotten, the heavy winter frosts bringing down hundreds of tons of soil at a time.

"Along the east side there were high cliffs, at the base of which the lower town was situated. The distance from the edge of the cliffs to high-water mark was about 500 feet, and this was the only available piece of ground where Zeppelin sheds could be erected.

Whenever we used the guns in practice the concussion brought down tons of earth. I don't think it is any wonder that the Germans have made it a cement island.

British dreadnoughts could lie off Heligoland and level the lot in half an hour. A fact which serves to illustrate the exceedingly rotten condition of the island geologically is that about sixty yards from the main island there stands a pinnacle 200 feet high, which was undoubtedly at one time a part of Heligoland. Numbers of birds nest and lay there in the season.

"About 1,800 miles from Heligoland there was a small island called Sandy Island, at the back of which the French fleet lay during the Franco-Prussian war.

Shortly after the Germans had defeated the French a German noble said to me: 'Some day the German fleet will lie at the back of Sandy Island, Heligoland will be a German possession, and the next thing we will do will be to have England.' I said to him: 'You had better come over to England, and we will give you a taste of our roast beef.' The first two boasts have come true, but the Germans haven't got England yet.

"You will see, however, what they had in their minds even at that time. Very few English visitors used to go to Heligoland, and the German holiday-makers even then began to look on it as a German possession."

Throwing Shoes After Brides.

Throwing a shoe after the bride is the survival of a custom based upon ancient symbolical usages in connection with sandals or shoes. Delivery of a shoe was used as a testimony in transferring a possession. A man plucked off his shoe and gave it to his neighbor, and this was a testimony in Israel.

Throwing a shoe on property was a symbol of new ownership.

From these ancient practices came the old English and Scottish customs of throwing an old shoe after a bride on her departure for a new home, symbolizing that the parents gave up all right or dominion over their daughter.

In Anglo-Saxon times the father delivered the bride's shoe to the bridegroom, who touched her on the head with it to show his authority. In Turkey the bridegroom is chased after marriage by the wedding guests and pelted with slippers.

"Hauled In" Two Persons.

"For saving two persons from drowning, a Girl Guide, Joyce Buckley Yeoman, aged thirteen, of Prestwich, has received the bronze medal of the Royal Humane Society.

"While bathing at Llanfairfechan she saw a man and girl in difficulties. In correct life-saving fashion she took the man by the head, and with the girl clinging to the man's arm, she brought them safely to shore.

"She then dashed off to breakfast. Questioned as to why she was late, she said: 'Oh, I've just been hauling in two people.'"

A Power for the German.

A nun who accompanied the British women on their return from Belgium to London relates a delightful story of how, recently, a big German officer went into a shop in Brussels and explained to the old woman inside that Germany was ever so many times bigger than Belgium.

"How is it, then," she inquired, "that you can travel through Germany in three weeks, whereas you have taken over a year to get through Belgium, and you are not through yet?" The officer saluted and walked away.

To soften a paint brush which has become hardened beyond use, place it in a bowl containing sufficient vinegar to cover the brush, and it will come out like new.

MADAME DAREDEVIL DEAD

Drove Through Enemy Lines With Supplies for Wounded Allies.

PARIS, Feb. 15.—"Madame Daredevil" is dead, but the tradition of her exploits in the first days of the war still lives in the French army.

Her real name was Mme. Meunier, and she was the wife of a farmer at Lessart, near Nanteuil-le-Haudoin, in the region northeast of Paris, occupied for two weeks by the Germans before they were forced back to the Aisne.

Mme. Meunier, the story goes, remained in her home when the Germans came, and drove through the German lines in a cart, carrying provisions and wine to the French and English wounded in the hospital at Nanteuil-le-Haudoin, telling the German sentries on the way that she had provisions which had been requisitioned for the General Staff.

Discharged Soldiers.

New Zealand has already taken up the question of helping her returned fighters. An office called the Discharged Inquiry Office, has been opened in Wellington, and an official from the Government Life Insurance Department appointed to manage it. Returned soldiers in need of advice or help communicate with the office, and all able to offer employment of any kind to soldiers who have returned are requested to send particulars of available work. Each man before or immediately after his discharge is interviewed by a public officer, who gives him a card informing him of the existence of the department. If the soldier does not require the department's assistance he is asked to sign a statement to that effect. It is recognized that it will be necessary in the case of men prevented by injury from following their former calling, to teach them some new industry. Here the department invokes the help of the head of the technical education branch and the principals of technical schools.

War on Rabbits.

So great is the demand for rabbits that rabbit trains are being run over some of the branch lines in Devon and Somerset. Dealers have established services of motor-lorries to bring the rabbits from the farms on which they have been caught to the nearest distributing centres. In normal times Devon farmers are content to receive 6d. a rabbit. Now some dealers are giving 1s. for freshly-trapped rabbits.

Unsightly Pimples Covered His Face.

All diseases and blemishes of the skin are caused by the blood being in an impure condition.

You cannot make a good complexion from the outside; you must get to the seat of the trouble. You must make the blood pure and rich by taking a medicine that will drive out all the impurities and poisons from the blood; one that drives out everything from the system that is the cause of these unsightly skin eruptions.

The best blood cleansing medicine on the market to-day is Burdock Blood Bitters; a medicine that has been used with the greatest success for the past forty years; a medicine you don't experiment with when you buy it.

Mr. Lennox D. Cooke, Indian Path, N.S., writes: "I am writing you a few lines to tell you what Burdock Blood Bitters has done for me. Last winter my face was covered with pimples. I tried different kinds of medicine, and all seemed to fail. I was one day to a friend's house, and there they advised me to use B.B.B., so I purchased two bottles, and before I had them taken I found I was getting better. I got two more, and when they were finished I was completely cured. I find it is a great blood purifier, and I recommend it to all."

A Sure Way To End Dandruff

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need), apply at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better

FACES 98TH OPERATION.

Mrs. Rosalie Vitale is to Go Under the Knife Again.

Mrs. Rosalie Vitale of 89 North Broadway, Yonkers, widow of the Rev. Joseph Vitale, is preparing to undergo the ninety-eighth surgical operation performed upon her in nine years. Dr. William C. Bainridge of 34 Gramercy Park, New York, has performed most of the operations.

"I have had so many operations," said Mrs. Vitale when told that she must undergo another, "that I don't mind them any more. I was never afraid to go under the knife, and that is why I think, I have survived."

Mrs. Vitale's husband died a year ago while she was on the operating table. Her first operation was to relieve an attack of appendicitis suffered in New Orleans.

How War Expenses Of Italy Are Met

FLORENCE, Feb. 16.— An official, well informed in such matters, recently told me, writes a contributor, that the Italian army needs one million pairs of new shoes a month. The Government pays 14 lire a pair, so that from this very humble item of running expenses we can get some idea of the enormous cost of carrying on a war even on the relatively modest scale of Italy.

Relatively modest, for Italy, among all the great Powers is the one that so far has conducted the war most economically; it has been a mere half-billion lire a month for her to the monthly 1,800 millions of francs, for example, which France has lately been spending, or the 2,500 millions she expects to spend monthly during the first quarter of 1916.

Comparisons are 'of little use, but they are interesting, even comparisons between the cost of this war and previous ones. Thus we are told that the Crimean War cost the nations involved in it (England, Russia, France, and Piedmont) eight and a half milliards of francs, the length of the operations and the fact that the troops had to fight at a great distance from their base making this an especially costly, war. The Franco-Prussian war cost about twelve milliards of francs, and that between Russia and Turkey in 1877 something over six and a half milliards.

How Italy Meets Expenses.

Italy, like all the other countries involved in the conflict, has met the expenses of the war by increasing the present income to the State through further taxation, and by securing the moneys needed to-day on the credit of the future, namely, through loans.

In Italy the incidence of the new taxes is such that practically no man escapes them. How the people, the whole people, of Italy have met the sacrifices demanded of them seems to me well stated in the words of Maggiorino Ferraris, a financial student of distinction and a statesman bound to no political or economic preconceptions, in his recent address in the Italian Senate in reply to the speech of the Minister of Finance:

"Our thinking people," he said, "live in the hope of victory. Let us pay homage to the courage of the Italian soldier, but let us also remember that wars are won by money as well as by arms. My modest task to-day is to bear witness to the gratitude of the nation towards all those who before the war laboured to bring about the economic renaissance of our country. While the soldier gives the offering of his life, let no civilian fail to give to Italy, if necessary, even his last farthing. Far better will it be to come out of this great conflict poor, than to fail in achieving victory. As for me, I feel certain that the day is coming when the world will say that Italy has had an army worthy of its people and a people worthy of its army!"

Pneumonia Finds Its Victims Weakened By Colds and Grip

This Letter Tells How to Gain Strength After Colds by Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food—Pneumonia is Prevented.

Epidemics of colds and grip are almost invariably followed by much loss of life from pneumonia. When the body is worn down by colds and the lungs weakened from coughing, pneumonia finds an easy victim.

Careful inquiry into many thousands of cases of pneumonia shows that this disease usually attacks the person who is tired and worn out, and who is therefore lacking in resisting power.

In this letter is described a case in which the patient was in the greatest danger of contracting pneumonia or some similar disease, but fortunately she sought the aid of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and was soon restored to health and strength.

Miss E. J. Buswell, Centralia, Ont., writes: "Last winter my mother contracted a bad cold. She was bothered with shortness of breath, wheezing, fevered and too sore to cough. Our doctor prescribed treatment, which brought relief from these symptoms, but when she got up she was tired, always tired and weak. I got her three boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and she soon improved. Her eyes became clear and bright, the ashen hue left the face and she began once more to take up the reins and look after the household duties."

It is always wise to keep the vitality of the body at high-water mark in order that the attack of disease may be resisted. Rich, red blood is the greatest of germicides, and because Dr. Chase's Nerve Food forms rich, red blood it is a most effective means of preventing germ disease such as grip, pneumonia and consumption.

Every day we are learning more and more the value of preventive treatment. That is one reason why the sales of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food are increasing so enormously. People are coming to realize how much wiser it is to keep well than to try to obtain cure after some serious disease has gained a foothold. 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

CLAIMS GIRL TOOK POISON

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—Accompanied by officers of Lake County, Illinois, William P. Orpet, the University of Wisconsin junior who confessed that he accompanied Miss Marion [illegible] on her last walk into Helm woods, near Lake Forest, a fashionable suburb, was brought to Waukegan, Ill., to be questioned further regarding his connection with the mystery of the girl's death by poison.

At Madison, Wis., early to-day Orpet, who had insisted that he was merely a school friend of the girl, broke down and confessed that there had been a love affair between them. He said he met the girl and walked into the woods with her, and that five minutes after he left her she swallowed prussic acid.

The officials desire to learn where the girl obtained the poison, what became of the container, how Orpet knew she took the poison five minutes after he left her, why he wrote her a letter after he knew she was dead, and why he did not come forward with his statement of his presence in the woods as soon as an investigation of the girl's death was started.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Rev. Mr. Pogue's letter in your paper of recent date is quite in accord with the sentiments of the Protestant preachers of Germany, when he says that owing to our wickedness we are bound to lose this war; and as both parties cannot lose, it necessarily follows that the Germans will win because (as they claim) their kultur and the righteousness of their cause will appease the wrath of Mars. While the writer of the letter does not pray for the success of the German Arms, he does at least, say that he hopes Britain is not victorious for some time to come, and that he would not spill one drop of his blood to prolong the life of the British Empire until it complied with his wishes in its moral attitude, but he does not say how many millions of lives more he would be willing to sacrifice before the war ends. He also advocates a cessation of military work on Sundays, which if taken seriously, would not admit of us raising a hand in our own defence, while the Germans, ad libitum, could, unrestrained, murder us with all their well-known ferocity. He quotes the Lord's holy Commandment about the Sabbath Day and virtually misleads his readers by assuming (contrary to his own knowledge and that of every other Bible student) that the Sabbath Day falls on Sunday, the first day of the week, instead of Saturday, the seventh day of the week, which was kept by the prophets of old and by Christ Himself and His apostles, and which had never been changed, for the best of reasons, because His laws, like Himself, are immutable and eternal.

His panacea for all the ills that he complains of, is that people should go to Church. It is not Churchianity that we are in need of so much as Christianity in the every day life of church-goers. He does not state wherein the German system of kultur and civilization is superior to our civilization and Christianity in our present state, or why their arms should be crowned with victory. Sometimes our friends within our ranks do us more harm than the Germans do at arms' length.

Now let us compare the strangely perverted attitude of Mr. Pogue with that of his co-preachers in Germany, who travel along the same route, only at a more terrific pace. One preacher, in referring to us, speaks of "German guns beating down the children of Satan" and to German submarines as "instruments to execute the divine vengeance to send to the bottom of the sea thousands of the now-elect." "There ought," he said, "to be no compromise with hell, no mercy for the servants of Satan." In other words, no pity for the English, French and Russians, nor indeed for any nation that has sold itself to the devil. They have all been condemned to death by a divine devil."

Another German preacher said that in killing their enemies, burning their houses and invading their territories, the Germans simply performed a work of charity. Divine love was seen everywhere in the world, but men had to suffer for their salvation. Germany loved other nations, and when she punished them it was for their good. And still another German preacher preaching on the divine mission of Germany, said that as the Almighty had allowed His son to be crucified that the scheme of redemption might be accomplished, so Germany was destined to crucify humanity in order that its salvation might be secured. The human race could only be saved by blood, fire and sword. "It is really because we are pure that we have been chosen by the Almighty as His instruments to punish the envious, to chastise the wicked and to slay with the sword the sinful nations. The divine mission of Germany, brethren, is to crucify humanity. The duty of German soldiers, therefore, is to strike without mercy. They must kill, burn and destroy, and any half measures would be wicked. Let it then be a war without pity. The immoral and the friends and allies of Satan must be destroyed, as an evil plant is uprooted. Satan himself, who has come into the world in the form of a Great Power must be crushed. The kingdom of righteousness will be established on the earth and the German Empire, which will have created it, will remain the protector."

Let me tell the Reverend Gentlemen who do not wish to see victory perch upon our brow, that we have the will and the spirit, yes, and the moral fibre to beat back the murderous Germans into their lair, there to be execrated by all other nations. Then—

"The German chant of hatred"
Will on themselves rebound,
"The chant of love for England"
Will through the world resound;
The nations in their gladness,
This song will ever sing,
And breathe the prayer of Britain
"God Save Our Gracious King."

Yours truly,
UNITED EMPIRE.

GIRL LEPER DIES IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The first death from leprosy in New York in many years occurred yesterday in King's County Hospital, Brooklyn, when Tillie Davis, 15 years old, succumbed after 33 months of illness. She was under ether at the time, as surgeons were about to operate on her to remove a leprous obstruction which was choking her to death. Miss Davis became affected in Key West, Fla., in 1913.

TURKISH FORTRESS OF ERZERUM IS CAPTURED BY THE RUSSIANS

Victory of The Grand Duke Nicholas Opens The Way For An Invasion of Southern Armenia And An Advance In The Spring That May Force Turkey to Sue For Peace---Reuter Dispatch is Confirmed By Another From Petrograd.

FURIOUS INFANTRY COMBATS IN THE WEST

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 16.—(Bulletin)—A special correspondent of the Reuter Agency telegraphs that the Russians have captured the Turkish fortress of Erzerum.

A later despatch from Petrograd said the report of the capture of the fortress has been confirmed.

NO IMPORTANT CHANGES ON WESTERN FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Stormy rainy weather put a stop to heavy artillery fighting along the western front last night, but furious infantry combats occurred both around Ypres and in the Champagne region. These struggles, however, resulted in no important changes in the general situation. The French War Office made no claims of important successes for the French in the fighting in Champagne, reporting merely the capture of some communicating trenches east of Tahure.

Stormy weather has also held Austro-German and Russion troops to their trenches on the eastern front. Berlin this afternoon reported heavy snow storms all along the battle line.

AMERICAN CLUB IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

Two Eighteen Pound Shells Were Found—Explosion Preceded The Fire—One Visitor Was Found Dead in His Room And An Officer of American Battalion Was Injured

Special to The Examiner:

TORONTO, Feb. 16.—A ringing shot and an immediate burst of flame in the third storey was the commencement of a $50,000 fire, partly covered by insurance, which destroyed the American Club here at 2:30 this morning. The force of the explosion knocked the plaster off the walls of the adjoining buildings. Officials say nothing was kept in the building to cause an explosion. The origin is still a mystery. Mr. P. I. Huston, of Dallas, Texas, was found dead in his bedroom. Edward Johnston, the caretaker, is in the hospital with a fractured skull. He is not expected to live. Several others are injured including Capt. A. R. Minard, of the American Battalion. Other officers had narrow escapes. Two eighteen-pound shells were found. It is not known where they came from. Deputy Fire Chief Russel told of hearing three distinct explosions.

Deputy Chief William Russell, who had charge of the fighting of the fire said: "I am sure it was incendiary. Floors can't drop as those did without some other cause than fire. Plaster fell from the walls in the bank adjoining where there was not drop of water. The roof of the club stayed on while the floors fell. All these things point to explosions having been set. I guess the American Battalion were getting too many soldiers to suit some of the German sympathizers. That's my idea of it."

"Did you or your men find any clues as to the fire?"

"No; the fire had pretty well covered up any traces that might be left."

Fire Chief Smith believes that the American Club blaze was incendiary in its origin. He has strong suspicion that Germans have had a hand in it, though he did not openly say so.

"I am convinced that explosions did the damage," he said. "Bricks would not have fallen from the top of that party wall as they did if it had been an ordinary fire. Further I noticed that the doors were pressed outward as if from the effect of explosion."

Controller Cameron is convinced that the Huns had a hand in the fire. "There is ground for suspecting them," he said. "The American Club had shown its sympathies with the Allies, and had figured in the formation of the American Battalion here. Naturally our enemies would resent that event more than the activities of Canadians because the Americans did not need to do this. I would like to see a searching inquiry made into the affair."

RUSSIAN STEAMERS DESTROYED BY FIRE

"Bolton Castle" And "Pacific" Both in The Service of The Russian Government Burned at Their Slips in Brooklyn—Fire Chief Suspects a Bomb Plot—Loss Will Be Four Million Dollars

Special to The Examiner:

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The steamship Bolton Castle was destroyed by fire early to-day at her slip in Brooklyn, and the steamer Pacific, lying nearby, also was burned to the waters' edge. Both vessels were in the service of the Russian Government. The Bolton Castle was loaded with paraffin, gasoline and oils, and the Pacific nearly half loaded. It is believed the fire started under suspicious circumstances, and the Fire Chief suspects a possible bomb plot.

Twenty-five Coolies were said to be missing from the Pacific. Six members of the Bolton Castle's crew were also said to be missing.

Joseph Johnsen, an engineer of the Bolton Castle, was walking on the forward deck, he said, when there was a terrific explosion in the forward hold. Instantly the forward portion of the ship became a furnace of flame, which leaped to the Paicfic, and both ships and the pier, according to Johnsen, were completely enveloped in fire in an incredibly short time.

President Claude Wood, of the Atlantic Stevedore Co., estimated the total loss in ships, merchandise and pier at upwards of $4,000,000.

GRENFELL OF LABRADOR

Here is how a newspaper man writes of Dr. Grenfell's appearance in Queen's Hall, London. He says:

"I waited in the big, hot hall of a huge London Hotel. All sorts of people fluttered in and out. Men who went delicately in their slim-waisted coats and skinny shoes. Women in furs and in velvets, stepping with dainty pride, and leaving a perfumed gale behind them. I felt a vague sense of uneasiness creep over me. It was all so civilized, so over-civilized. What would these people do if the screens which keep the grim realities of life away from them were suddenly thrown down? Their artificiality made me long for a breeze, for a flight, for a long hungry day in the open. Next moment I had the sensation I craved. A man stood beside me who brought with him into that hot hall a current of fresh, invigorating air. It was bracing to look at his lean, clean figure, his firm, brown features, his clear, smiling eyes. With his curly hair and little brown moustache he seemed like a Viking, born by accident into this country of ours. All the surroundings of cushioned luxury faded away like a dissolving view. In their place I saw the grey Atlantic heaving with a mighty swell. I saw leagues of snow and ice gleaming in the sunlight. I saw herds of reindeer browsing, and teams of swift Eskimo dogs with sleighs behind them. I heard, too, the grateful murmur of a people mightily helped and heartened. For this man was Grenfell of Labrador."

59TH BATTALION SELECTED TO GO OVERSEAS AT ONCE

Unit of Which Many Peterboro Men Are Members is One of The Fourteen Battalions Chosen to Leave Immediately—Send Off to the Belmont Battery Boys---To-day's Orders and General Military News

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—Fourteen Canadian battalions, or over 15,000 men, have been selected by the Minister of Militia to go overseas in the near future. They will replace in England the men who have left for the front to form the third division, or who are now leaving for the fourth division which is being organised. Other battalions from Canada will move forward promptly, providing the nucleus for the 5th and 6th divisions, which Canada is now arranging to add to the Canadian forces at the front.

The fourteen battalions selected are as follows:

74th, Toronto, under Col. Wineyer.
75th, Toronto, under Col. Beckett.
33rd, London, now at Quebec, under Col. Wilson.
71st, Woodstock, under Col. Donald Sutherland.
59th, Eastern Ontario (Brockville, Gananoque and neighbouring points) under Col. Dawson.
45th, Brandon, under Col. Clark.
51st, Edmonton, under Col. Harwood.
53rd, Prince Albert, now at Winnipeg, under Col. Dennistoun.
56th Calgary, under Col. Armstrong.
61st, Winnipeg, under Col. Murray.
62nd, Vancouver, under Col. Hulme.
63rd, Halifax, under Col. Campbell.
67th, Victoria, under Col. Ross.
73rd, Montreal, under Col. Davidson.

There are now 211 battalions formally authorized, and new battalions are being daily formed.

The Militia Department has had a request from the War Office for 125 bakers and 55 more expert engineers.

The Lindsay Post says: Lindsay has to-day over eight hundred soldiers within its borders. This morning the detachments from Haliburton, Kinmount, Bobcaygeon, Fenelon Falls and other centres, arrived in town for the Military Carnival to-morrow and Thursday. They were met at the different trains by the regimental bands and escorted to the armouries.

Thanks to the Ladies' Aid of the Murray St. Baptist Church, the men of the 93rd Battalion had an enjoyable addition to their supper menu yesterday. The Ladies' Aid supplied them with 180 pies of various fillings, but all good, and the generosity of the ladies was thoroughly appreciated, the boys in khaki showing their pleasure by a hearty round of cheers.

A Good Send-off.

The first quota of artillerymen raised under the auspices of the Belmont Club left this morning for Kingston to report for duty with the 93rd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F. There were thirteen in the party and the young men were given an enthusiastic send-off. There was a farewell session at the armouries at 7.30 o'clock, when a short service was conducted by Major Davidson, chaplain of the 93rd Battalion. Afterwards the artillerymen were escorted to the G.T.R. station by the 93rd Battalion. At the station the band of the 93rd played patriotic airs and hearty cheers were given by the infantrymen for their comrades in arms. Ald. Wm. Galbraith represented Mayor Duffus in the send-off. Another detachment for the 53nd Battery will leave in a day or two.

So far Peterborough has raised 350 mounted men and over 1900 infantry.

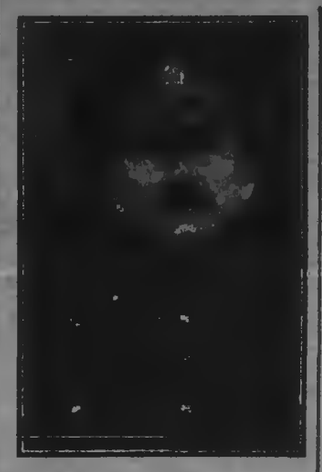
BUSINESS TAX TO BE LEVIED



PTE. "TED" QUERIN, a well known Peterborough boy who is in England with the 2nd Canadian Pioneer Battalion.

Every Form of Industrial, Financial And Public Service Activity Covered—Expected That 30 Millions Will Be Raised.

DIRECT TAXATION

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—Direct taxation of all profits in excess of "a reasonable and normal return on capital" in all trades and businesses in Canada is the revolutionary feature of the second war Budget of the Minister of Finance. Instead of again reverting to increased tariff taxes to raise the additional revenue required to meet increasing war charges, Sir Thomas White to-day proposed to Parliament only two tariff changes, namely, increased duties on apples and lubricating oils. The duty on apples is increased from forty cents to ninety cents per barrel, and oil is taxed specifically at one-half cent per gallon instead of seven and a half per cent. ad valorem.

A Retroactive Tax on Business Firms.

He made the chief source of new revenue for the coming year a tax on all corporations and business firms. This tax, which is retroactive to the beginning of the war, and is to continue in force for three years, or until August, 1917, will, in effect, divert to the Dominion Treasury 25 per cent. of all profits in excess of seven per cent. of paid-up capital in the case of incorporated companies, and in excess of ten per cent. in the case of firms, partnerships or individuals.

Taxes are Far-reaching.

While, in a sense, the new taxes are in the nature of taxes on war profits, since they apply particularly to every company which is making abnormal profits during war times, they are at the same time all-embracing. Every business, big or little, which is making big returns on at least $50,000 capital invested, will hav to give up one-quarter of the profits above the seven or ten per cent. dividend noted above, to help the Government finance the war.

Burden on Those Best Able.

This time it is the consumer and the farmer and the salaried man who escape. As Sir Thomas said, the Government had in view the class or classes in the community which seemed to be best able to bear an additional taxation burden, and this class includes all the big companies, the banks, the financial institutions of all kinds, large manufacturing concerns and every company which has a capital stock of over $50,000, and which is paying upwards of 7 per cent. or 10 per cent. in annual dividends.

No War Industries Exempt.

The limitation with regard to exempting companies having a capital investment of less than $50,000 does not apply to any trade or business dealing in war munitions or war supplies of any kind. Many of these latter companies belong to the 'mushroom' class, which have sprung up since the war with a small capitalization, but which are making large profits out of war orders. They will have to give up one-quarter of all profits over 10 per cent. of the capital stock.

Classes of Exemption.

Life insurance companies and all farming or stock-raising businesses are exempted from the operations of the tax. In the case of life insurance companies, however, provision is made whereby they are compelled to invest in Government bonds or debentures, thus subscribing to the future domestic war loans which Sir Thomas foreshadowed. He estimated the total investment in this connection at $15,000,000 during the coming year, and this amount will thus be available towards raising the $215,000,000 which Sir Thomas said the Government had to provide for during the next fiscal year to meet war outlays. Another $150,000,000 is available by loan from Great Britain under an agreement entered into last August, but the Government may not have to draw on this if the additional taxes and the proposed new war loans in Canada realize the necessary amount.

ALIMONY CASE WAS BROUGHT TO A CLOSE TO-DAY

Judgment Was Reserved — Husband Objected To Wife Wearing a Fifty Cent Hat—Some Lewd Language

CASES AT THE ASSIZES

The case of Ferguson vs. Ferguson was concluded at this morning's session of the High Court. Judgment was reserved. The case which involves an action for alimony, instituted by Mrs. Florence Ferguson, against her husband, Edward J. Ferguson, a cement contractor, revealed an unhappy state of affairs. At the close of the case, Chief Justice Mulock commended Mr F. D. Kerr, counsel for plaintiff, and Mr. Joseph Wearing, representing the defendant, for the able manner in which they had conducted the case. Judgment may be given before the close of the Assizes.

Became Abusive.

According to the evidence Mrs. Ferguson was married to Edward J. Ferguson in December, 1906. Within a few weeks after their marriage, defendant became abusive. They separated in 1911 for about six months, and again in May, 1915. Mrs. Ferguson said that defendant branished a butcher knife on one occasion and threatened to murder her. Defendant frequently accused his wife of taking drugs for improper purposes. This witness denied. She claimed to be afraid of Ferguson.

To Mr. Wearing, the defendant said that he frequently had to get his own breakfast. Between January and May, his wife prepared only thirteen breakfasts. He said there was no better housekeeper in the county than his wife, and that if other people would mind their own business and let her alone she would be all right. The defendant also accused her of giving premature birth to a child a short time prior to their marriage. The body of the child, he claims, was rolled up in a cloth and deposited in the Otonabee river. He denied brandishing a butcher knife or stick in the face of his wife. He admitted having sworn at her at times, but claimed this was unintentional.

MAN'S INHUMANITY.

At every assize or other important court, judge and grand juries refer to the inhumanity of confining the indigent poor and the insane awaiting removal to an asylum, in jail cells built for criminals. In the abstract, the idea of such things is repugnant to humane feeling. Both the cells of the jail and of a police court, primarily build for purposes of detention of criminals, are self evidently no proper or decent places to confine the indigent, and in many cases honest and respectable, poor; nor the unfortunates whose reason has been darkened. Attention has been called to this matter by a recent case, that of Mrs. Panter, who was committed on Friday last to the Mimico Hospital for the Insane. She was a pay-patient in a hospital, under treatment for a serious form of disease. A mental disorder supervened and, for obvious reasons, she could not, in the interests of other patients, be allowed to remain in the hospital. She was taken to her home; but, becoming violent, was removed to the police cells, where we are advised, the matron, Mrs. McElhiney, made her as comfortable as circumstances would permit. But hers was a case where special treatment that could only be given by a physician, was needed. She was suffering from illness, incident to the most critical period of a woman's life. It is not known that any medical attention was given her except a visit from her physician, Dr. Birnie, who saw her shortly after she was placed in the police cells; but who retired from the case when it was learned that on the medical commission of examination another physician was substituted for Dr. Birnie, who had been the patient's family physician for years and consequently knew that important medical matter, the "history of the patient," better than anybody else. That however is a detail. The point is that a woman in a delicate and critical state of health was confined in a police station cell from Thursday afternoon till Saturday afternoon; and though she may have received all the nursing attention the facilities of the place afforded was not given, to say the least, a fair chance for recovery, which in cases like hers is probable, with prompt and proper care, and with conditions not aggravated and chance of recovery lessened, by the inevitably necessary neglect incident to detention in the cell of a police station or jail.

It is not to be charged that there was personal responsibility for the fact that the woman in this case did not get a fair chance for recovery, as has been the case with thousands of others, almost every month of the year all over the province. It is the fault of the authorities who do not make proper provision for the shelter and treatment of such cases. It only needs the most rudimentary knowledge to tell us that jail cells and police station cells are not the place for even the temporary detention of such cases. No one would voluntarily select such cold, bare, dimly lighted and badly ventilated stone boxes for relatives.

It is recognized that the incipient stages of insanity afford the greatest promise of recovery from prompt curative treatment of the proper kind. If proper treatment, amidst cheerful and comfortable surroundings such as no prison cell can provide, is not assured in the beginning, the possibility is that the demented condition may become permanent and the province burdened with the life-long care of a patient who might have been cured if the conditions of proper care and treatment at the beginning had been provided. Sometimes such patients, from lack of room in asylums have to be detained in jail for weeks perhaps, every day of such detention lessening the possibilities of cure.

Apart, however, from such considerations any one who thinks and can feel, must conclude that there is a good deal of inhumanity, in the practice, the authorities permit, of punishing poverty by thrusting the poor amongst criminals or consigning the mentally affected to jail or police station cells. The outrage might be prevented and the reproach of inhumanity removed, by the provision of some suitable quarters where insane, or incipiently insane, persons may be comfortably housed and receive the care and attention these cases demand—a care and attention of the utmost value in the initial stages of some forms of mental disease. Such quarters need not be elaborate. Fortunately the cases in a community, like Peterborough, are few, and as a rule there would need to be provision made for only one person at a time. This is a matter that will bear a good deal of thinking over. The Peterborough Health Association, which is doing such a splendid work in its way, might give its attention to the subject. Though such work may not be in their province they could create a healthy public sentiment, educate public opinion and call the attention of our law makers to the necessity of providing by law that poverty shall not be treated as a crime, and the insane unfortunate be treated as criminals. When we think to the bottom of this subject we shall see that our boasted humanity does not in all things quite measure up to the demands of Christianity.

NOT PARALLEL, BUT UNPARALLELED.

The Orillia Packet, Independent Conservative in politics, thus brackets Evanturel of Prescott, and Fallis of Peel:

"Prescott returned Evanturel, after the exposure in the Legislature, which ought to have relegated him to private life forever, and Peel will probably re-elect Fallis. Evanturel's life since his re-election has been anything but comfortable in the House, and Fallis may look for a similar experience. It would have been better for the Government, better for the party, and better for the country if it had been made clear to the member for Peel that the fitting thing for him to do was to drop out of public life."

There is not quite a parallel between Evanturel and Fallis. Evanturel was read out of the Liberal party and went back to Prescott for re-election. He did not run as a Liberal candidate, for the Liberal party put up a candidate against him. Evanturel was re-elected, to the lasting disgrace of Prescott. Evanturel is doubly ostracised in the House, he has friends in neither party. If Fallis is re-elected as is probable, the two cases will be parallel. But there the parallel will end. Evanturel has no friends in the House, in a party sense but Fallis will have those of his own party. If Premier Hearst stands by him his followers will not turn the cold shoulder towards the calcimined representative of Peel. Here is a copy of the letter of endorsement of Premier Hearst in reply to Fallis' notification of resignation:

"Feb. 1, 1916.

"Dear Mr. Fallis,—I am in receipt of your letter informing me that you have decided to resign your seat in the Legislature and submit yourself to the judgment of your constituents. The step you have taken commends itself to me as the proper and constitutional one, and I have every confidence that a fair and impartial judgment will be rendered upon your record as a public man by the people to whom you are responsible, and amongst whom you have lived all your life and who know you best.

"Yours truly, W. H. Hearst."

Fallis is now circulating this letter in Peel, as an official endorsement of his candidature by the head of the party in Ontario, and as a bid for the party vote. Mr. Fallis won't be lonesome in the House for lack of party companionship. Such things as Fallis' re-election seem impossible, but when the party leader gives the party tip we can't expect the party spirit to become dormant if even the most vicious wrong-doing is condoned. We have dropped party in working for war success. Is it consistent to have party condone actions that in effect and example tend to weaken our work of participation in the war.

NOT TO BE TRUSTED.

It is impossible to believe that the United States will assent to the German proposal that a merchant vessel, if armed at all, may be sunk without warning. How much care would the Huns exercise in seeking whether a vessel was armed or not? They would sink any vessel they could strike and claim that she was armed. Their trained perjurers swore that the Lusitania was armed, and the people of Germany were told and still believe that she was an armed auxiliary cruiser engaged in carrying a cargo of war munitions when destroyed.—Toronto Star.

HOW HE HAS CHANGED

How Uncle Sam has aged in the last couple of years!

His best friends scarcely know him when they see him now. He used to be so chipper, so confident, so sure of himself.

We once knew a man in Toronto who underwent a similar change. All his life he had been an enterprising business man ready for anything. But one day he turned over his whole business to a competent German in his employ and retired. Having nothing to do but just wait around for his profits, he became a changed man. He was never the same again—lost his laugh, his bounce, the ginger went out of him, and soon he was sitting around his house moving his chair trying to avoid draughts and reading literature on diet and health. Having begun to think about his health he did not last long after that. —Toronto Star.

A MINISTER'S VIEW.

"We are not patriotic enough to rise up against a brazen politician who dares 'fess up' and come back for re-election. The preachers of Peel county certainly have a patriotic duty on hand for the next ten days. We should fear if we re-elect Mr. Fallis that the German Philistines will hear it and rejoice."—Rev. Bryon H. Stauffer, Bond Street Congregational Church, Toronto.

THE PEOPLE ARE UNITED.

A Liberal correspondent asks The Daily News what more Liberals in Ontario could do to stimulate recruiting and express devotion to Canada and the Empire in the tremendous time through which we are passing. Frankly, we think of nothing. As between Liberals and Conservatives in Ontario since the war began there is no distinction or division. We have been a united people in support of the war and in all that concerns its energetic and successful prosecution. If there is more to be done the answer should come, not from Liberals alone, but from the people without regard to race, creed or party.—Toronto News.

BIG EFFORT YET BEFORE CANADA.

Recruiting figures just given out in Ottawa show that Canada has not yet quite half of the half million of men she is to raise, which means that recruiting has to be done more energetically and systematically than has been done yet.

Five hundred thousand men is a big number for Canada to raise. It means that Canada will have to enlist practically as many men as Great Britin is now enlisting under compulsion. Great Britain has a population of around 45,000,000. That is six times the population of Canada. If Great Britain raises an army of 3,000,000, that will be just six times the size of the army which Canada is proposing to raise. What an army of 500,000 will mean in Canada is that one out of every three of the active men of the country will have to relinquish industrial pursuits and join the colours. We have a big effort to make yet. Many a man who is hesitating will have to make up his mind before we get that half million. —Montreal Herald.

MUST BE PROVOCATION.

The East is East, and the West is West, and it is perhaps difficult for easterners to find any extenuating circumstances for the acts of wanton destruction attributed to the soldiers in Calgary last week. The occurrences are very regrettable, but those who are familiar with the western spirit are loath to believe that they were committed without great provocation.

The rigid investigation which will no doubt be held will probably show that civilians were quite as much responsible for the depredations as the men in uniform. The western regiments are composed mainly of high-spirited young ranchers and farmers, intensely patriotic and keen to resent any slight or insult to one of their comrades in arms.

Impatient or red tape and disciplinary routine, they are inclined, when aroused, to take the law into their own hands. While these methods cannot be condoned, they can be understood, particularly in the light of recent outrages in this country, which are believed to be the work of alien enemies. The spirit of fair play is typical of the westerners, and it would be no fancied grievance which would move them to devastate and destroy. It is to be hoped that there will be no recurrence of the rioting. The boys should, even under provocation, restrain their exuberance to more serious work.

The Canadian soldiers have had a splendid record for sobriety and good behavior, even under the irksome conditions of barrack room and parade ground. The westerners will be the last to wish to put any black mark on the record.—Ottawa Free Press.

WHY GERMANY CANNOT APPLY THE "DIVIDE-AND-RULE" WAY TO THE ALLIES

The German Press Bureau is working overtime to discredit Italy in the eyes of her Allies. Constant assertions are being sent over the wireless from Berlin that Italy is getting tired of the war. Only a few days ago a despatch was sent from Berlin asserting on the authority of Premier Salandra that Italy would soon withdraw her troops from the trenches. An official repudiation from Italy shows that Berlin's claim was based on a mistranslation of Premier Salandra's speech at Turin, dealing exclusively with Italian party politics and that the trenches referred to were political trenches in which the Cabinet, and not the army, were fighting!

Apart from that, Berlin had evidently overlooked the fact that Premier Salandra was the man who, in May, 1915, resigned with his whole Cabinet in order that the Italian nation might make its voice heard in regard to the war, and in order that the treacherous activities of Count von Buelow in Rome might be brought to an end. The real attitude of Italy may be guaged, not from inspired press despatches from Berlin, but from the formal agreement by which the Quintuple Alliance was brought into being. This agreement, which was signed on November 30, 1915, reads as follows:

The Italian Government having desired to adhere to the Declaration of London of September 5th, 1914, made by the French, English and Russian Governments, the declaration to which, on the date of October 19, 1915, the Japanese Government also adhered, the undersigned, duly authorized by their respective Governments, do make the following declaration:

1. The French, English, Italian, Japanese and Russian Governments mutually pledge themselves not to conclude a separate peace in the course of the present war.

2. The five Governments agree that when the occasion shall arrive to discuss the terms of peace, none of the Allied Powers shall be entitled to advance any conditions of peace without a previous agreement with each of the Allies.

As a guarantee of which the undersigned have signed the present declaration and have herewith affixed their seals:

IMPERIALI for Italy,
ISQUYE for Japan,
BENCKENDORFF for Russia,
PAUL CAMBON for France,
E. GREY, for England.

It is true that so far Italy is not formally at war with Germany, owing largely to the fact that German and Italian frontiers do not touch. Developments in the Balkans, however, may at any moment bring about such a formal declaration and the recent visit of Mr. Briand to Italy may be a prelude to such action.—Montreal Herald.

Search for Principal On The Murder Plot

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 16.—Search was started to-day for the principals in what is believed by the police to have been a plot to destroy buildings and kill members of the clergy, bankers and others, in a dozen cities in various sections of the United States.

Discovery of the alleged plot, according to the police, resulted from examination of the personal effects of John Allegrini, confidant of Jean Crones, who is charged by the authorities with putting poison in soup at the banquet given Archbishop Mundelein at the University Club Thursday night, and causing the illness of 100 of the guests.

Chief of Police Healey, Chief of Detectives Nicholas Hunt and Deputy Chief of Police Herman Schuettler announced to-day after studying translation of letters written in Italian, found in Allegrini's rooms, that they regarded as established the existence of an anti-clerical organization, headed by a "committee of fifteen," of which Crones and Allegrini are believed to have been members.

Arrests are Expected.

Names of the "committee of fifteen" are said to be in the hands of the police, and it was predicted that the arrest of some of the committee members would be made before night.

Police working on the cases pointed out to-day that the illness of fifty guests who attended the Knights of Columbus banquet on October 2nd last night have been due to the activities of the alleged conspirators. At the first it was believed that the illness of the banqueters was caused from ptomaine poisoning, but discovery of the plot to poison guests at the Mundelein dinner has given strength to the belief that the illness of the other banqueters may have been due to a similar plot.

In connection with the alleged plans of the conspirators to destroy public buildings and church property, police records show that two scores or more Chicago churches have suffered fire losses within the last few years. At the Moody Church, it was said, no less than six fires, said to have been of incendiary origin, have been discovered and extinguished with small loss during the last year.

Interesting Developments

One of the interesting developments in the case yesterday was the finding of a letter in Allegrini's pocket in which reference was made to a fund collected for the widow of Gaetano Bresci, who assassinated King Humbert of Italy.

Subsequent developments have led the police to believe that Crones and Allegrini may have had knowledge of the plot to assassinate the Italian monarch.

LINOLEUM FOR BOOT SOLES.

Scarcity of Shoe Leather in Saxony Seriously Felt.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—"To eke out the supply of shoe leather," says the Amsterdam correspondent of the Morning Post, "the Home Secretary of Saxony as asked the Dresden Chamber of Commerce for a report upon the possibility of utilizing linoleum for soleing boots.

"Austrian wholesale houses announce a further rise in the prices of all medicaments from Germany, especially by-products of the dyeing industry. The rise of wholesale prices is 60 per cent.

"The scarcity of lard is so serious in Germany that the Berlin Brandenburg Medical Association requests the members to order the use of vaseline or lanoline instead of lard in prescriptions for ointments.

"To check importation of articles of luxury, ministerial ordinances issued in Austria-Hungary enact that customs duties on such goods must be paid in gold. The articles include jewellery, silks, champagne, bottled wines, and various spices.

"Yesterday the Government took stock of all supplies of sugar in Hungary, for enabling the central office to deal with them."

Movement To Lower Infant Death Rate

German Expert Believes It Possible To Save 200,000 Infants Annually by Means of Hygiene Education

Some of the difficulties which, for the present at least, confront many of the details of plans for increasing the birth rate of Germany, have led to a strong companion movement to lower the infant death rate. Its proponents argue that many steps are possible along this line at the present time.

Professor Langstein, director of the Kaiserine-Auguste-Viktoria-House for combatting infant mortality in the German empire, believes that it will be possible to reduce Germany's loss in infants to seven or eight per cent., Sweden's present rate, and thereby gain about 200,000 in population annually. He relies largely upon education to accomplish this result—education beginning with children in the folk schools, and extending upwards so as to include every person who has anything to do with babies, mothers, nurses, physicians, and so on.

He advocates a mild form of sex hygiene instruction in the schools, as well as both theoretical and practical education as to the care of children which shall extend from the lowest through the highest schools.

The newspapers can be a great educative power for good, he believes, and he recommends that they publish articles at regular intervals. They must, however, eliminate advertisements of "offerings, the use of which already costs the lives of a not inconsequential number of babies."

Maternity hospitals and like institutions have in the past, he believes had too great a tendency merely to give assistance at birth and have failed to pay any attention or to exercise any supervision over mothers or children afterwards. This must be altered, he says, so that by some system of inspection the hospitals may continue to exert a wholesome influence.

In every corner of Germany there have sprung up so-called "care institutions," where the wives and families of soldiers have been given all sorts of aid—from meals to clothes and money, advice and general oversight. Professor Langstein hopes that these institutions will not disappear after the war, but rather that they will continue, and develop so as to fit into his whole social plan.

Five Local Rinks In The "Eights" Of Main Competition In Bonspiel

And Final Should Be Reached To-night With Peterboro Having A Good Chance To Win Out—Bobcaygeon, Oshawa and Glanford The Other Survivors.

REVIEW OF THE ROUNDS

At noon to-day the primary series of the open bonspiel had reached the eights and the Peterborough Club had five rinks among the survivors. Some of these games will be played this afternoon, and the finals are due to-night. The draw for the eights resolved itself as follows:

1. G. H. Giroux vs. J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

2. C. McCallum of Cobourg vs. R. Hicks of Peterborough.

3. W. A. Davis, Bobcaygeon vs. James Connal, Peterborough.

4. G. T. Neale, Glanford vs. W. H. Taylor, Peterborough.

Great Curling.

There has been a lot of fine curling tucked away in these games, and the finals should stage some grand finishes.

George Giroux had no easy road to the eights. He had to beat Dr. Harvie of Orillia, and Geo. Morrow of Peterborough.

Jim Connal defeated DelaFosse in the primary round, but had to play an extra end to beat Needler of Millbrook.

Billy Taylor had a comparatively easy bout with Finlay of Norwood, and then defeated DeLany of Cobourg.

Primary Competition.

The play in the primary competition resulted as follows:

Preliminary and First Round.

HOCKEY COMMENT

The Toronto News says—It will interest the fans to know that professional hockey, in proportion to the number of men playing, is doing its duty nobly by its King and country. It is an injustice to say that the Toronto Club is not furnishing its quota. Of the blue and white team which meets Ottawa next, several will not be seen on the ice again after this season till the conclusion of the war.

Many of the team either are or will be shortly wearing khaki. Percy Lesueur is a sergeant in the 134th Overseas Battalion; George McNamara is taking out a commission in the Sportsmen's Battalion, while Teddy Oke is now a qualified officer in the same unit. Alf. Skinner has two brothers at the front. Allan Davidson, the former Toronto star, was killed in the trenches in France. Frank Foyston, still the property of the Toronto Club, will enlist at the close of the season, as will several of the other players. The Canadiens have enlisted in a body, while Ottawa lost half its team at the beginning of the season, and were forced to raid the Coast League to fill the gaps.

Billy Breen the coach of the Electrics Hockey Club and who has been trainer of Peterborough hockey teams off and on for the past fifteen years, did not waste much time in enlisting when he got back to Toronto. He left for his home on Sunday and Monday night he joined the 180th Battalion. He was one of those who offered themselves at the big rally in Massey Hall and the Toronto News says that he was given an ovation when he came forward. The Peterborough hockey players are ready to vouch for the fact that there will be few dull moments in the platoon that the genial Billy is attached to, for he is a born comedian. The Toronto News says:

"Billy Breen, is one of the recruits. Everybody knows Billy Breen. Come with him," shouted another officer. The same Billy Breen must have had many friends in the gathering because another rush of men to the stage followed.

FEWER SUICIDES IN VIENNA

Notwithstanding all the misery and unhappiness caused by the war, the number of suicides and attempted suicides in Vienna was far smaller than usual last year. Vienna has long had an unenviable notriety among the capitals of Europe on account of its large number of suicides. In 1913 there were 1,466 suicides and attempted suicides, as compared with 1,200 in 1914, and only 651 during the past year.

Willard Calls Off His Bout With Moran

Heavyweight Champion Asks For Postponement—Moran Agreeable To Later Date

TOO ILL TO TRAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Jess Willard has called off his bout with Frank Moran. The title holder is too ill to continue training, and rather than take any chances cancelled the match set for March 8.

This announcement came over the long-distance telephone from Chicago Tom Jones called up Willard and inquired when he was coming here to train. The latter told his manager that everything was off.

"It will be impossible for me to get in proper condition, Tom," said Willard, "so there's nothing left to do but to call off the bout."

"Will you be able to get in condition for a bout later in the month?" inquired Jones.

"That's hard to say. If my health permits there will be nothing that can stop me from keeping the engagement," answered Willard.

When Ike Dorgan, manager of Moran, was reached, on the long-distance telephone last night, and informed of the news he could hardly gasp:

"I had an idea Willard was sick," said Dorgan, "and really was afraid something would happen to put a damper on the match. Both Moran and I are very sorry to hear about Willard's illness, and hope he will recover soon. Under the conditions we are agreeable to a postponement if that is possible."

Postpone Two Weeks.

Steps are being taken which probably will result in postponement of the contest for two weeks. A definite decision will be reached to-day. Willard, for several days, has been fighting a severe cold, which has settled in his throat, but has found it a stubborn foe not responsive to treatment. Several days last week Willard was forced to lay off in his training. He felt slightly improved Saturday and resumed work, but didn't display the "pep" that has always marked his training. Yesterday when the members of the club gathered to see the champion in action Willard was absent. One of those close to Willard said to-day that Jess had been complaining of a pain in his chest in addition to a sore throat.

The champion is in no condition to train for a fight and will not be for several days.

Moran Disappointed.

Saratoga Springs, N.Y., Feb. 15.—Frank Moran, the Pittsburg heavyweight, who is training at the White Sulphur Springs Hotel for his bout with Jess Willard, was confident that he will get an opportunity to win the championship, but was keenly disappointed, this morning when a report of the International News Service informed him that there was a strong possibility that the bout scheduled for March 8 in Madison Square Garden would be postponed.

Moran, who gets up with the chickens, had just returned from an hour's skating on Saratoga Lake when the correspondent reached his camp, where the mercury stood at 18 below zero. After frisking around in the deep snow with the 130 pound reporter on his back, Moran eagerly asked for details. He was informed that Jess had a cold in the head, but not in the feet, and asked for more time.

"Of course, said Frank, if Willard is sick he cannot fight. It is a keen disappointment to have this bout postponed, but in that event we will have to wait for Willard. He is the champion. You can say, however that I stand ready to meet him any time he is ready to fight."

Asked what his plans were, Moran said that he and his manager, Ike Dorgan, and his trainer, Willie Lewis, would return to New York and learn just what the situation is. If the bout is postponed, Moran will return here and continue his training.

CHEERY TOMMY ATKINS.

Said Tommy Atkins to his chum: "I'm hungry for a smoke."
(The soldiers all were cheerful and one had passed a joke.)
He struck a match and to his lips he put his pipe of clay,—
And then a German bullet came and spat the bowl away.

They will even laugh and joke in the very face of death:
They will fight for King and Country as long as they have breath:
And all along the trenches they yelled for very joy—
'Twas the one thing that was needed to cheer the weary boys.

Some would see to-morrow, and for others 'twould never come.
As each one had a thought of Home Sweet Home;
It was then they put the fight up and forgot about the noise—
Let the Germans tell what Tommy Atkins done.

How they fought like howling devils as they gained trench after trench.
The Germans battered at them, yet they never give an inch;
And the Germans fled like cattle, and of course they lost the battle,
And everybody cheered for 'Tommy Atkins.

SCOTS IGNORE LIQUOR LAW.

New Rules Have Much Less Effect In Scotland Than In England.

LONDON, Feb. 15. — However drastic the drink orders may be considered by some Londoners, these orders are entirely insufficient so far as Scotland is concerned. This fact was revealed a few weeks ago by Lord d'Abernon, who is at the head of the Central Control Board of Liquor Traffic. He compared the convictions for drunkenness for four weeks ended December 19, 1915, with the figures for the four weeks before the new drinking regulations came into effect.

In London there had been a decrease of 33 per cent., in Liverpool a decrease of 46 per cent., in Newcastle a decrease of 31 per cent., in Birmingham a decrease of 70 per cent., and in Sheffield a decrease of 40 per cent.

In Edinburgh there had been no decrease, in Glasgow the decrease had been 18 per cent., in Dundee 12 per cent., while in Aberdeen there had been an increase of 6 per cent.

In England the average decrease per town had been nearly 50 per cent., while in Scotland it was only 6 per cent.

Fish out of season is not plentiful in Scotland.

BONSPIEL NOTES

In the Consolation games this morning "Pete" Lang was down two on the way home, with Dela Fosse. He tied the score up and in an extra end scored three.

But talk about coming from behind! Look at that Needler-Connal game. The Millbrook skip was eight up with three ends to go. Connal closed up this margin with a three, a two, and another three end, and, in the extra end, won out.

George Giroux and George Morrow were ten all winding up their tenth end. Giroux came through with three in the eleventh and another single point in the twelfth, the final score being 14 to 10.

George Morrow, in his game with T. F. Matthews, last night, opened with a six end and got two more in the next. There was one end near the close when Matthews looked safe on the button with a guard out that looked good enough. Morrow looked it over from all angles, and as he walked to the end of the rink J. W. McDermid, his vice, said: "George says he doesn't want this one any way."

"That's the first time I ever heard him say that," Mr. Matthews replied and W. G. Ferguson laughed with the group.

Mr. Morrow's last stone edged in past the guard barely missing, removed the Matthews' counter and lay shot on the inner ring. All of which shows that every end is a game in itself, and no one throws away a chance deliberately.

Jack Wiley played a great lead for Bob Hicks this morning.

Alex. Kay's Trent Valley rink hit the skids early. Their idea in remaining together, however, was a nice one.

Baff Murder Presented Before Grand Jury

May Send Four to Electric Chair in Addition to Gunmen.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—A grand jury began to take evidence concerning the murder of Barnet Baff, the poultry dealer, who was killed by a band of gunmen in November, 1914, under circumstances which have been likened in some respects to the murder of Herman Rosenthal, for the instigation of which Charles Becker was executed. There has been no hint, however, that the police were in any involved in the Baff case.

It is charged that Baff was slain, as the result of rivalry in business, that a fund of $42,000 was collected from about 200 poultry merchants under the pretence that it was to be used in a legal fight against Baff and that this fund was used by a 'murder steering committee' of 12 men to employ agents who in turn employed the gunmen who shot Baff to death.

District Attorney Swann believes he has enough evidence to send to the electric chair four men in addition to some of the gunmen who actually did the murder. These men are said to have had the distribution of the murder fund. The district attorney said that if it is proved that the 12 members of the steering committee knew all the steps taken in the murder conspiracy each of them would be in the same legal position as was Becker in the Rosenthal case.

ATTENDANCE IS ON THE INCREASE

At last night's service in the series of revival meetings conducted by Adjt. and Mrs. McElhiney at Byersville, the crowd of adults considerably increased and the story told by Alf. Coonie was listened to with rapt attention and much enjoyed.

Two adults professed conversion, and the meeting to-night is looked forward to with tense interest. Corp. Cadet Guardien, Mrs. Lang and her Corp. Cadets will assist to-night. Special visitation is going on in the neighbourhood. Everybody and anybody is welcome to these meetings.

FALL OF ERZERUM MAY COME SHORTLY

Russians Can Now Train Their Guns at Short Range Upon Remaining Fortresses—Turks Have a Garrison of 160,000 And Capture of Stronghold Would Open The Way For a General Russian Advance Through Armenia

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 16.—The great Turkish fortress of Erzerum, the bulwark that stopped Russian invasions of Armenia in all previous wars, is threatened with capture the Caucasus army of Grand Duke Nicholas, and the Slavs can now train their guns at close range on the remaining forts held by the Turks.

A Turkish garrison of 160,000 is reported gathered inside the walls of Erzerum. The occupation of the remaining forts, and the capture of this force would bring a greater triumph to the Russian arms than the capture of Przemysl in Galicia. Erzerum's fall would pave the way for the great spring advance by the Grand Duke's army through Eastern Armenia, and perhaps force Turkey to sue for peace. Erzerum is one of the most strongly fortified positions in the East. Even the most optimistic military critics do not expect its capture until several weeks more of heavy artillery battering and infantry fighting has occurred.

ALLIES RENEW THEIR PLEDGE TO BELGIUM

Special to The Examiner:

HAVRE, Feb. 16.—The Allies to-day formally renewed to Belgium the solemn pledge that they will never consent to peace until Belgium's political and economical independence is completely established.

The message was conveyed with some ceremony by the Ministers of the Allies to the Belgian Government established here. The Entente Diplomats went to the Foreign Office in a body to present the joint message from their governments.

Though Premier Asquith and the French Ministers have reiterated at frequent intervals that the Allies would consider no peace that failed to guarantee Belgium's restoration, to-day's formal statement is thought to have been made as a direct answer to the recent talk in Germany of a peace between Germany and Belgium.

NONTENEGRINS HAVE STARTED A REVOLT

Special to The Examiner.

ROME, Feb. 16.—The Montenegrins in Vasoyevici, Plavo and Gusinge districts, goaded by the ill usage of the Austrians, have revolted with such vigor that the Austrian authorities have sent to Scutari for reinforcements. The Montenegrins, thanks to arms and munitions which they had hidden, continue to resist. When they entered the country the Austrians carried off the little that remained, and the population everywhere is dying of hunger, although money is abundant. Austria is seeking to control the movement by hanging all leaders.

STEAMER IS SUNK OFF EAST COAST

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The 4,272-ton steamer Tergestes has been sunk off the east coast. All members of the crew were landed. The Tergestes was built in 1911, and at the outbreak of the war was owned by an Austrian line and registered at the port of Trieste. It is probable that she was captured by British warships and has been in service as a British freighter.

Germany's Latest Proposals Delivered

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—Germany's latest Lusitania proposals was delivered to Secretary Lansing at noon to-day by Ambassador Bernstorff, and acceptance or rejection is up to President Wilson. Both the Ambassador and Secretary Lansing refused to discuss the case following their brief meeting. The intimation was given despite the refusal of officials to talk, that the memorandum in its present form is satisfactory to the State Department, and unless some change is asked for by the White House the case will be settled by making the communication a formal answer to this Government's last Lusitania note.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The Japanese steamer Kenkon Maru, No. 11, bound from Marseilles to Baltimore, foundered in a storm in the Atlantic. Her crew was landed at Plymouth to-day.

Canada Has a Surplus of Five Millions Says White

Finance Minister States That The Surplus of Current Revenue Will Pay Millions of War Cost—Expenditure Shows a Decrease of Thirteen Millions

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—An additional war appropriation of $250,000,000 and further ways and means of raising money for the needs of the Dominions forces were announced in the House of Commons this afternoon by Sir Thomas White, Federal Finance Minister.

Twenty Millions Excess.

Sir Thomas White opened his speech with a review of the past year and remarked that in his budget of last February he predicted that the revenue for the current fiscal year would reach a total of $150,000,000. That had been realized to a degree beyond his most sanguine hopes. On March 31 he anticipated a grand total revenue of $170,000,000 or twenty millions in excess of the estimate. Up to February 26, revenue fro mall sources amounted to $145,000,000, an increase of thirty-one millions over the same period of the preceding year. Of this revenue, $82,000,000 was due to customs, $19,00,000 to excise, $14,000,000 to post office department receipts and $3,000,000 to special war taxes other than postal. The increase in customs duties, due to the higher tariff, the Minister put at nineteen millions.

Financial Position Bettered.

Turning to ordinary expenditures for the current year, Sir Thomas said that the decision not to initiate new expenditures on public works had been adhered to with the result that there had been a decrease of seven millions in capital expenditure. On ordinary account chargeable to revenue, the expenditure had totalled $92,500,000, a decrease of over thirteen millions as compared with the same period last year. Taking into account increased revenue and decreased capital and ordinary expenditure there had been since April 1 an all around betterment in the financial position, as compared with last year of $51,798,000. By March 31, the betterment would porbably amount to fifty-seven millions.

Expenditure for War.

Sir Thomas next dealt with war expenditure, noting at the outset that $150,000,000 had been voted for that purpose so far. The Prime Minister at the present session, he said, would introduce a further measure providing for an additional amount of at least $250,000,000. From the outbreak of the war to the end of January the war expenditure has been $158,000,000.

"The general position of our finances," continued the Minister, "has been that while our revenues have been increasing and our ordinary and capital expenses declining, our war expenditures have been amounting rapidly to enormous figures. Our problem is to fill the gap between the revenue and the outlay."

Credit For Britain.

After explaining the loan issues for the past fiscal year, including the domestic loan of $100,000,000, the Minister of Finance said that as a result of the successful flotation of the latter it had been possible to place sums of $50,000,000 to the credit of the Imperial Government for the payment of munitions accounts. This overcome to a large extent a serious disadvantage arising out of adverse sterling exchange conditions.

Sir Thomas then stated that since the beginning of the serious decline in sterling exchange from June last onwards the Government had been able to finance all war expenses in Canada without assistance from the Imperial treasury, thereby effecting a great saving.

Summarizing the financial situation he said: "With a revenue of $170,000,000 and an ordinary expenditure of $125,000,000, the Dominion will have a surplus of revenue over ordinary expenditure of $45,000,000. As the proceeds of the American loan have been more than sufficient to meet the capital expenditure it has been possible to devote the entire surplus of $45,000,000 to the payment of the principal of the war expenditure, the interest charegs being included in the ordinary expenditure.

"We borrowed," continued Sir Thomas, "in the United States the amount required for our capital expenditure. Our revenues will exceed our ordinary expenditures by $45,000,000. This $45,000,000 we devote to the payment of our war expenditure. By the end of the year the national debt will stand at about $580,000,000, an increase of $131000,000 during the year."

Balance of $200,000,000.

Touching on economic conditions, Sir Thomas referred to the bountiful harvest, "the greatest in the history of our Dominion" to the revival of business and to the great change which has taken place in our trade balance, a favourable balance of $200,000,000 being promised for the fiscal year.

Sir Thomas proceeded to deal with the financial conditions likely to prevail during the approaching fiscal year. The war appropriations act, is already stated, would call for $250,000, all of which would be required for war purposes. The Government would continue to make all possible reductions in ordinary and capital expenditure. The ordinary expenditures for the coming year would probably total $135,000,000 as compared with $125,000,000 this year, while the capital estimate would only total thirty millions, as compared with forty-six millions for this year. The ordinary expenditure would include thirty-six millions, representing charges upon the public debt, $20000,000 of which represents increased interest due to war borrowing. It will also include a further sum of two millions for pensions.

Surplus Next Year, Also.

Sir Thomas thought he might count on a surplus of thirty-five millions over ordinary expenditure next year, to apply to the war expenditure. This would leave $215,000,000 to be borrowed for the war. Added to this possible borrowing for capital expenditure they were confronted with an increase of public debt during the coming fiscal year of nearly $250,000,000.

Sir Thomas at this point expressed the view that in a country such as Canada, capable of tremendous expansion, it was but fair to leave a large share of the burden of the war to posterity. Even assuming that the war debt would reach $500,000,000, the annual interest charge at five per cent. would total $25,000,000. Provided strict economy was practised this burden should be carried without serious difficulty.

The Minister announced that it was opportune to state on behalf of the government that it was its settled policy that in providing for the war expenditure resort should not be had to taxation upon farms personal effects or income of those engaged in the great basic industry of agriculture.

Further Ways and Means.

Sir Thomas approached the new taxation proposals by touching on the taxes imposed last session, including the general increase in the tariff and next said: "At the time this broad measure of taxation was imposed many were of the opinion that the war might not last through the year. With the altered situation in which we have recruited 250,000 troops and are aiming at 500,000, it is manifest that we must devise further ways and means of meeting the expenditure necessary to organize and equip our new contingents and maintain our entire force."

Seat Sale Opens To-morrow

Harry Lauder's Play "Toosie Tea And Scones"

The seat sale for Harry Lauder's new play "The Night Before," opens at the Box Office to-morrow, Thursday morning, at 9 a.m.

Local theatre goers will have an opportunity of seeing something a little out of the ordinary in the way of Comedy Dramas, for in this play Mr. Lauder deals entirely with domestic conditions in his home land and to make sure of giving a perfect interpretation of his ideas he has gathered together an entirely Scotch Company of his own personal selection.

One of the leading characters in the play is "Peggie Paton," taken by Dawsy McNaughton, who will be remembered by local theatre goers for her splendid interpretation of "Bunty" in the original Company, which played here a couple of years ago.

During the action of the play, six typical Lauder's songs, which he wrote especially for this production will be introduced, and Harry Layden, Great Britain's Champion Dancer, assisted by Peter MacArthur, will offer some new steps, which should meet with popular favour.

A feature for the Matinee Performance, which will be particularly interesting to the ladies, is the fact that after the performance "Toosie Tea and Scones" will be served by the members of the Company to the Matinee patrons.

WHAT THE NEW YORK "SUN" SAYS OF LEACOCK

Who Will Speak Here To-morrow Evening --- Captain Maurice Park to Sing

Professor Stephen Leacock, who lectures to-morrow evening in the Collegiate Hall is a fund of kindly humour. He does not laugh at us, but with us, over many of the foolish antics of life.

The "New York Evening Sun" says: "It is the very gustiness of his fun-making that sweeps stupidity and lassitude from brains. This popularity of his—well, he deserves it tenfold. And as for those who simply cannot laugh at him—are there any in the world?" It will prove a most refreshing and enjoyable evening for all who are fortunate enough to hear Professor Leacock to-morrow evening.

Miss Jean Hill will play a piano solo and Captain Maurice Park will sing.

Mr. T. F. Matthews will preside.

MUNITIONS VIA HALIFAX.

To Avoid Friction With the U. S. Over Arming of Merchantmen.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—In case armed merchant vessels are prohibited from entering United States ports it is probable that munitions for the Allies will be shipped by rail to St. John, N.B., or Halifax, and there loaded on merchant ships having guns for defensive purposes only, or the munitions may be loaded at U.S. ports on unarmed coastwise steamers for Canadian ports, and there transshipped to Atlantic liners.

Another plan has been suggested, namely, that the Atlantic lines running to American ports should call at Halifax on their westward journey and disembark their guns there, picking them up on the eastbound trip.

CANADIAN WOMAN CHAUFFEUR IS MADE PRISONER

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Miss L. Joy Whitehead, daughter of the general manager of the cotton mills at Three Rivers, Que., has reached London with a Scotch medical unit, which arrived from Serbia on Saturday night after being held by the Austrian troops. She joined a British field hospital in Serbia as a chaffeur in June last, later joining the Scotch hospital unit. With the letter she fell into the enemy's hands when Kruchevac was taken. Miss Whitehead does not complain of her treatment. She says that she was detained in order that her credentials should be verified. Always fond of outdoor life, especially shooting and boating, she wore semi-male garb even in Canada, and this unconventional costume in Serbia apparently aroused the suspicion of Austrian officials that she was engaged in espionage. She has left London for a short holiday, but intends to resume active work if possible.

PROPORTION OF 57 1-3 CTS.

Ontario's Contribution to Red Cross According to Population.

Ontario, which has a population of 2,569,330, gave $1,468,188 to the British Red Cross or at the rate of 57 1-3 cents per capita. The city of London gave $1.27 per capita, Toronto $1.15 1-2 and Berlin, Sarnia, Stratford and Windsor, $1 per head. Of the various counties of the provinces York gave by far the greatest amount, its contribution being $589,787.03. This includes part of Toronto and the gift of $250,000 by the County Council. The next highest amount is $45,110.32, given by the county of Wentworth.

Alimony Case Was Brought To A Close

tional. He had a habit of swearing and frequently swore without knowing it. He asserted that his wife could swear nearly as hard as he could. Ferguson admitted throwing water at her following an outburst of profanity. She retaliated by means of a kettle of water taken from the stove. He found fault with the way she kept house and said that "chewing matches" were not infrequent. He was quick tempered, but would defy anybody to say that he was hard to get along with. He had hired men for eleven years and only discharged two in that time.

A Fifty-Cent Hat.

After they had separated, Ferguson claims he tried to persuade his wife to return. On one occasion he telephoned and subsequently instructed his lawyer to write a letter, advising her to return. Ferguson said he objected to his wife wearing a fifty cent hat and a forty-nine cent pair of shoes, which, he said, she never had to do while they lived together.

Chief Justice Mulock: "That was not a very nice way of seeking to bring about your wife's return. It was like having the Sheriff go after her to tell her to come home and be happy. You might have made use of the mails and wrote her a nice letter."

To Mr. Kerr, defendant denied that he, himself, his father, three brothers and a sister, and an uncle had all separated from their wives.

At this juncture Ferguson produced some drugs that he claimed to have found in the house after his wife left. He accused her of taking them for improper purposes. He remembered having told her he would drown her if she did not get up and get his breakfast. He also objected to his wife reading novels. He said if she would read the Bible a little more she would be a better woman.

Objected to Picture Shows.

"How often in the past five years have you taken your wife to a picture show or concert?" enquired Mr. Kerr.

Ferguson was unable to recall how many times he had taken his wife to Church. He said that she was a Baptist and he was a Methodist. He was in his forty-fifth year and he thought his wife was between thirty and thirty-two years of age. He was not sure.

At the close of the argument by the respective counsels, His Lordship said he placed no credence in that part of the testimony relating to the alleged miscarriage.

The Brewer Case.

The case of Charles Brewer charged with attempted murder, followed the Ferguson case. The Grand Jury returned true bills in both the Brewer and Stevens case. The latter is indicted on a charge of assault.

NOT GUILTY.

The case of Charles Brewer went to the Jury this afternoon and the accused was found not guilty. It was adjudged that Brewer was insane at the time the attack on his wife was committed.

The Royal Theatre is the only house in Peterborough that gives three complete changes a week. This theatre gives from 9 to 10 reels daily specially selected from the best producers. The Royal employs two Union operators, with two machines so there is an unbroken, continued performance. On Friday and Saturday the Royal will show a moving picture of the Ottawa Parliament building, burning; fired by the Germans.

Arts and Crafts Column

In this column, conducted by Mr. Hughson Johnstone, painter and decorator, 332 College street, will be answered free questions of the kind given below, for the benefit of those who, in this period of stringency and enforced and suggested economy, might like doing their own work. Questions relating to painting, signwriting, graining, furniture polishing and decorating may be sent to the Examiner, and will receive attention in due course.

A. B. C., Reid street, city:—(1) I have a cement floor and it is dusty. What can I treat it with to prevent dust when sweeping, and what would it cost per 100 square feet? (2) What can I use to make putty harder, or set quickly and not injure its lasting quality? (3) I read with interest your statement about ready-mixed paints why do these makers always say to never use yellow ochre in priming? I notice good painters using it. What is the best to use? (4) What is the best material to colour white lead paint to make a buff colour that will be durable for outside exposure? (5) How should I mix a flat-tone paint, ivory or cream colour?

Ans.: (1) Ordinary linseed oil and white lead paint is suitable for a cement floor. There are, however, on the market many kinds of surfaces intended to prevent absorbtion and consequently save paint. But for durability and general satisfaction I am doubtful whether any product so far can equal pure white lead and linseed oi lallowing the cement to drink in all it will. We have in this column repeatedly said it would be unfair to quote prices. Any painter will give you an estimate per 100 sqr. feet.

(2) The addition of carriage or any good rubbing varnish, or Japan goldsize, will not injure putty and will assist the hardening process. There are conditions though, where the above would not be suitable, and a special putty would have to be used.

(3) Makers of ready mixed paint give good advice when they say to not use yellow ochre for priming. Because yellow ochre is a clay, pure and simple and cheap and certainly not a healthy primer as it is sure to cause blisters under any paint. True, the blisters may not appear until a year or so more later. But like death they are sure to come. Study the process of securing the ochre, and how it is purified, and the cause of the blistering will be plain. Of course some painters prime with yellow ochre, because it is exceptionally cheap. They may be good painters all right, but are they "good men and true" As I said the other week, "even some painters are a little dishonest."

(5) "Flat-tone," I think is a copyrighted name for a flat paint, and I cannot say how the manufacturers make it. But to make a flat paint of ivory colour, use white lead, 56 parts, raw sienna, 1 part, Venetian red 1 part (or a little less if too strong), using pure turpentine only, as the vehicle. For cream use golden ochre and a very little red.

Query, Peterborough, Ont.: Will you please tell me in the above column how glass men make what is known as chipped glass? Is it done by hand or by machinery?

Ans.: "Glass men" do not chip glass; it is done by real, live, humane, by an acid and glue process. The portion to be chipped is first coated with white acid to roughen the surface, or it may be ground with emery and water or sand blasted. Russian glue is then prepared and applied to the glass, hot. When thoroughly hard it is subjected to severe heat, when the glue cracks and chips off bringing flakes with it. Result, chipped glass.

Ans.: It is simply a matter of finding the area in square feet. Then figure out the quantity of paper required; ordinary Canadian wall paper is 8 yds. long, 16 inches wide to the roll.

Mrs. B. W., Peterborough, Ont.: I have some real good linoleum, but it is dull. Would you advise me to wax it in order to brighten the colours?

Ans.: Yes.

Stubborn Continuance of Violent Local Attacks By The Germans

LONDON, Feb. 16.—Throughout the last 24 hours the huge battle-front in the west, from the Belgian coast to the Vosges, witnessed a stubborn continuance of the violent local attacks by the Germans which began nearly a week ago, and which are apparently aimed at "feeling out the weak and strong points in the allied line.

Berlin claimed in this afternoon's official report the penetration of the British positions at Poperinghe and the storming of French positions in the Champagne, extending over a front of 700 metres, and a gain of 400 yards in the Vosges. The French War Office, on the other hand, asserts the Germans failed to reach the French trenches, although it adds that the terrific losses have not prevented the attackers from holding on in their advanced trenches, referring evidently to French positions previously lost. Paris admits the loss of positions in Upper Alsace after they had been completely destroyed.

The exact gains or losses of either side since the German attacks began cannot be determined, as the fighting continues along the whole front with the utmost violence. Thus far, the German attacks have not yet assumed the character of a general offensive. The gain in the Champagne, which was made north-west of La Tahure, brought the Germans seven officers and 300 men as prisoners, as well as three machine guns and five mine-throwers. A few dozen prisoners were taken by them in the Vosges fighting.

17 Fights in the Air.

A British official statement issued last night denies the capture of forty British in Flanders as reported in the German official statement of Sunday. As a matter of fact, there are only eleven men missing from the fighting near Pilkelm, of whom eight men were killed in pursuing the Germans back into their trenches.

There were seventeen fights in the air on Sunday. A large hostile double-engine machine was driven down in the enemy lines.

The report states that the enemy has been very active mining south of La Bassee Canal. South of Fosse few men got into a British front trench, but were at once driven out by hand grenades.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Would you please insert the following few lines in your valuable paper, from on who was turned down for enlistment in the 93rd Battalion?

Having been born and raised a British subject and one who at all times is willing to give up his last drop of life's blood for his King and Country, I ask you the question: Am I a British subject or not? What are we fighting for to-day? Is it not for British liberty and freedom? Has not one British subject a right for a chance to fight for his King and Country as another as long as he is healthy and strong and able to stand the campaign? If not, where does our liberty and freedom stand? Having applied for enlistment in the 93rd Battalion, I was turned down the second time I applied. I was only weighed and stood under the height measurement, my weight being 146 pounds (stripped); height, 5 feet, 6 1-2 inches, and then handed a piece of paper as medically unfit. I ask you, British subjects, is this a proper or thorough examination. I have worked hard all my life time and have roughed it in lumber camps and out of it, besides having had the experience of a soldier's life having learned both the old and the new drills. I know there are at present older men than myself enlisted in the 93rd Battalion, which I can prove by one of the head officers. If this is liberty, I fail to see it. Now I am willing at any time to stand an examination before any other doctors in Peterborough or out of it and if they pronounce me as medically fit for service after being turned down twice, I would for ever disown the name of being a British subject, but rather would go and live in a country where a man would have the liberty and freedom to fight for it when your country calls you.

One Who Was Turned Down.

Give Us Liberty, And Give Us Grog

To the Editor:

Dear Sir,—Give us liberty to sell booze which we know poisons soldiers and thus helps the Germans. That is the cry of the advertisements of the Personal Liberty League in many newspapers at the present time. They don't seem to care for the liberty for which our fathers paid so dearly and which our soldiers are defending with their lives in the trenches. They are willing to risk that liberty to retain the liberty to sell booze. They don't want liberty for Canada. It is liberty for themselves to sell stuff that makes drunkards, paupers, criminals and insane. That is the liberty they want.

To attain that end they stoop to any falsehood. I have just been reading one of their advertisements which is a base attempt by cleverly worded falsehoods; to defeat prohibition, to take away the liberty of our sons and make them the slaves of the bar rooms. They want to take away our liberty to be free from drunkenness to have our sons sober to have fewer insane, to have lower taxes, to have prosperity instead of poverty, to have as little crime as they have in Prince Edward Island and other prohibition states, to share in the peace and prosperity that has come already to Alberta and Saskatchewan.

They say that prohibitionists want to dictate what you shall drink. That is simply untrue. Prohibition does not say you shall not drink, but it does say you shall not sell drink. Every family is allowed a reasonable quantity for their own use. Prohibition puts an end to the treating system and makes it more difficult to get drink, but those who want it for their own use have liberty to get it. But that does not suit the Personal Liberty League, for it gives people the liberty to drink or to leave it alone. They know well that the treating system destroys the liberty of a very large number and makes them the slaves of drink.

They would give our sons the liberty of the jail, the asylum and the potter's field. They would give our daughters the liberty of the brothel, our children the liberty of the poor house, and our women the liberty to go out washing. They have been giving us that kind of liberty long enough. It is time for a change. — H. Arnott M.B., M.C.P.S.

Only One Vesel Was Sunk Says Admiralty

Special to The Examiner.

United States To Withold Decision

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16.—What the United States will say or do regarding the German intention to sink armed merchantmen after March 1, is not likely to be finally determined until Col. E. M. House returns from Europe. Colonel House is now in London, where he is obtaining the English view. It is understood he was given advance information of Germany's purpose and her reasons when he was in Berlin.

Many Amendments to Speech from Throne

Special Cable to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 16.—No fewer than 55 amendments to the address in reply to the King's speech were down for discussion when the debate was resumed in the House of Commons to-day. The majority of amendments are unimportant, but others raise serious issue which promise lively discussion. The amendments include one by William Joynson-Hicks on defence measures against Zeppelin raids. Charles P. Trevelyn, has given notice of motion calling on the Government to announce the general terms of peace. Another peace amendment was sponsored by Arthur Ponsonby, who suggested the establishment of an international tribunal to which diplomatic disputes should be referred to in future.

RECEPTION TO MEN OF 93RD LAST NIGHT

One hundred men of the 93rd Battalion attended the social evening prepared in their honour by members of Trinity Methodist Church at the Simcoe Street Battalion Club rooms, last night. It was altogether informal and proved very enjoyable. Rev. J. P. Wilson and a committee of ladies and gentlemen from Trinity received the soldiers. A short programme was interspersed with games and the men sang choruses in which they were joined by the young ladies of the Church. Major Davidson presided and referred to the fact that the Club was for the use of the soldiers and their friends and civilians were always welcome. Social evenings will be held every Tuesday for the purpose of establishing closer friendships between the soldiers and the citizens. Next Tuesday night the members of the Womens Council will be the hostesses. Rev. Mr. Wilson and other relatives were serving. thanks, paid a nice compliment to the Battalion, referring particularly to the Chaplain. The war had come close to himself in the fact that his son an dother relatives were serving. It was a pleasure, he said, to entertain the men of the 93rd, and it was hoped that Peterborough would come to know them more intimately.

A WEAK CHESTED BOY.

"My boy, Frank, seemed weak chested and took a very severe cold," writes Mrs. D. Stevens, Ninga, Man. "The many medicines used did not seem to benefit him, until we tried Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, and found it to be exactly what was wanted to cure him." No treatment is so thorough and effective as a cure for croup and bronchitis.

The Uprising of The British; An Empire in Arms

Who could read without a thrill the news that all the remaining single men in the United Kingdom have now been called to the colours? That news must make those of us who know Great Britain realise as never before the tremendous change which has been wrought in the life of that country by the war. We shall picture the villages, the stores, the big industrial institutions, the streets of the cities, all denuded of a large proportion of the younger married men and of all the gay young men who are "heart whole and fancy free."

The British are to-day indeed a nation in arms. As the foremost nation in the world in championing individual liberty they have thrown aside that liberty and assumed a militarism which counts each man as a mere pawn in the game of war. This they have done that future generations may have handed on to them unimpaired the heritage of freedom, which they now fight to defend. The whole nation is filled with the sentiment that inspired Shakespeare when he wrote:

"In peace there's nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness and humility;
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
Then imitate the action of the tiger,
Stiffen the sinews, summon up the blood."

This wholesome uprising of the whole British nation at the very time when Germany is declaring that the Allies are beaten is an ominous sign for the Teutonic alliance.

THE COUNTRY THAT KEPT ITS WORD

THE Highroads of the World in all ages show no finer example of national sacrifice than that of LITTLE BELGIUM. By standing in the breach, by keeping its word, by stemming for two weeks the German flood, Belgium saved France and gave Britain time to get on the field.

Let us never forget this magnificent sacrifice.

And now how is it with BELGIUM.

Faced with a situation from which there is no immediate escape, deprived of their freedom, the people of desolate Belgium only ask us for enough bread to keep themselves alive. Shall it ever be said that we have denied them this.

The people of Belgium—Seven millions of them—are living under conditions of misery that scarcely can be conceived by a people like ourselves who have been spared the horrors of invasion.

Good friends of the cause, in Peterborough, are alive to what this community should do and must do to show our appreciation. So a campaign will be put on in this city beginning 23rd and continuing on the 24th and 25th, of this month. Details are about perfected.

Teams of workers will canvas the city. The objective to be raised will be $10,000 The sum named is none too large.

Be ready to help. Headquarters will be announced as in the store, Corner of George and Brock Sts. Where the Patriotic Fund Campaign was launched.

REMEMBER BELGIUM and what Belgium has done for us all.

WEDDING BELLS

McMASTER—McKEE.

A quiet wedding was solemnized yesterday by the Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George Street Methodist Church, when Miss Catharine Edith McKee became the bride of Charles McMaster, of Dummer.

COUGHLIN—CLEARY.

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the Church of Our Lady of Mount Carmel, Hastings, on Tuesday, when Miss Agnes Cleary became the bride of Mr. Charles Coughlin of Norwood. The bride was attended by Miss Lucy Noonan, while Mr. John Cavanagh supported the groom. The nuptial mass was said by Rev. Father McHugh. Mr. and Mrs. Coughlin left on the noon train via C.P.R. for Montreal and St. Albans, Vt.

PATTERSON—BELL.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the bride's father, Mr. Flegler Bell, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, at 6 o'clock p.m., when Miss Eva was united to Mr. Frank Patterson of Dummer, Sask. Rev. H. Brown of this place performed the ceremony in the presence of some twenty-guests.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore very handsome wedding gown of pale blue silk draped with cream silk shadow lace and rosebud trimming with the customary veil and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white carnations. Her travelling suit was of fine black broadcloth and black velvet hat with tips.

A beautiful gold watch and fob was the gift of the groom to the bride.

Many fine gifts and a large sum of money indicated the popularity of the young couple in the community.

They left on Feb. 11th for Dummer, Sask., where they will reside.

Varying Testimony Of Eighteen Eyes

The story of the Appam belongs to "sailor tales to sailor tunes." Clark Russel, Herman Melville, should have had the telling of it. A sensitive boy can hardly read it without feeling a outlass at his side, rings in his ears, a plug of "navy" in his pocket. Landlubbers lying down below may not deal with the adventure. Some of them may be interested in the fact, told in yesterday's Times, that the nine Appam passengers allowed to come on shore Wednesday had nine accounts of "the German raider" which took the Appam. She was a cruiser, a big gunboat, a converted fruit steamer, and so on.

Which, as a parable, allegory, moral lesson, or admonition is submitted respectfully to the sages and sons of infallibility who, from the fat depths of club sofas or professors' chairs or otherwhere, "chuck odium" at the "inaccuracy of the newspapers." Here are nine honest, intelligent men trying to tell what they saw; and no two agree. The "inaccuracy" newspapers record what thousands of persons tell, see, hear, do. The everlasting and unlimited variability of evidence, the discordances of sincere witnesses to the same fact, the practical impossibility of getting anything "exactly straight" are known to lawyers and must be known to laymen, and even to the superior souls that demand from newspapers an accuracy impossible in this world of appearances and errors.

Let us say it frankly! Nothing can be known by the senses, nothing reported by them or by anybody with absolute accuracy. Variance often proves the honesty of the varying witnesses. There is hardly such a thing as "a fact". There is only fallible observation of a show or appearance, which is not the same to any two men. There is "the invisible and inutile truth," in theory, but how shall two mortal men agree upon it?

And since it is impossible to get more than an approximation of contemporary, seen facts, past history must be a kaleidoscope of guesses, a library of fictions, many million diameters more inaccurate than the newspapers and the rest of us.—New York Times.

Chicago Officials Gathering Evidence Of Wholesale Poison Plot

CHICAGO, Feb. 16.—"I do not wish to create a panic in Chicago," was the reply of First Deputy Superintendent of Police Herman Schuettler, when asked to give his views of the plot to poison 200 prominent Chicagoans at the banquet Thursday night in honor of Archbishop Mandelein.

Schuettler refused to admit that he believes Jean Crones, missing assistant chef of the University club, is the only man who figured in the plot.

Indications that Schuettler is hot on Crones' trail and is gathering evidence of a wholesale plot, in which Crones was only a unit among a gang of anarchists, who planned to wipe out a distinguished group of men, appeared to be borne out from activities of his staff [illegible]

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—The opening was irregular, and the Stock Market moved upward by fractions in the early trading to-day. United States Steel opened 1-8 of a point up at 80 7-8, and immediately sold higher. Crucible opened down 3-8 of a point, but soon responded to the upward tendency. St. Paul and Canadian Pacific were weak, while New York Central and Chesapeake and Ohio advanced.

At 11 o'clock a re-action had set in, sending American Tobacco off 5¼ to 189, the lowest in recent years, and Canadian Pacific down 3¼ at 188¼. The weakness in Canadian Pacific was attributed generally to Canada's new taxation system. The losses in the general list were not so marked, but recessions were general.

German Ambassador Says Germany Does Not Plan To Sink Liners In New Policy

Three Enemy Submarines Have Been Sunk In The Adriatic By French Cruisers --- Thirteen French Aeroplanes Bombard Bulgar City of Strumnitza.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—The German Ambassador said Germany did not plan to sink liners in a new submarine policy. Secretary Lansing asked for such a statement from Berlin.

URGES ENFORCED ECONOMY.

London Times Reviews Britain's Heavy Financial Burdens.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The Times is taking the lead in advocating enforced economy both on the part of the Government and the people.

In spite of the immense increase in taxation, the national debt has now arisen to $6,500,000,000, and if the war continues another year, it is estimated that the national debt in the meantime will have risen to $10,000,000,000.

At the present rate of expenditure the war will cost England $8,000,000,000 during the present fiscal year, not counting the advances which must be made to her Allies, particularly Italy and Russia. The burden of maintaining Serbia is falling upon the British Government, and it is not a light one.

Weather-Proof

Any man with a title to normal health may hurl cheery defiance in the teeth of the weather, even in its wilder moods.

It's wholly a matter of blood-current and tissue cells, and everybody knows that sturdiness and vigour in these regards depend largely on good, nourishing food.

Much of the food in the ordinary dietary is lacking in certain vitalising elements which Nature has designed for sturdy growth and resistance to disease. Especially is this true of white bread and white flour foods, because in making flour white most of the energizing mineral phosphates of the grain are thrown out in the milling process.

Grape-Nuts

Made of whole wheat and barley, this food provides all the nutriment of the grain, including those vitalizing phosphates that mean everything in building up and maintaining a robust, vigorous body and keen intellect.

A ration of Grape-Nuts along with the other food has worked wonders for thousands. Ready to eat, economical, appetizing.

Banker Arrested Aboard Steamship

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The arrival of the St. Paul, of the American line, from Liverpool yesterday afternoon was not without its sensational features. Henry W. Richardson, a Kansas City banker whom United States postal authorities have trailed for three years over two continents, was placed under arrest at Quarantine, and a young woman, said to be the wife of Dr. J. Grant Lyman, who is said to have fleeced the public out of $1,000,000 in various stock schemes and whose last operations were in Wall street under the name of John H. Putnam, also was a passenger.

The St. Paul had a rough voyage, her passengers saying that she encountered storms and high seas for five days out of Liverpool. Her passengers numbered 241.

Post Office Inspectors Watson and Pollitt boarded the vessel from the revenue cutter Calumett at Quarantine and arrested Richardson, charged with using the mails to defraud. It was said that Richardson is wanted in Kansas City in connection with the wrecking of the American Union Trust Company in 1911. He, it is alleged, was one of the organisers of the company, the literature of which represented that the Armour interests were behind the company. He disappeared soon after the crash and was arrested in Louisville, Ky., in May, 1913. He jumped his bail and was traced to Mexico, then to Canada and then to Europe. The government discovered that he was in England and informed the British government that he was a fugitive from justice. Under the Defence of the Realm act he was deported and the arrest followed. Richardson said he would go to Kansas and fight the case. Nine others were indicted in the same connection, it was said.

Mrs. Lyman was asked if she was the wife of Dr. J. Grant Lyman when she stepped on the pier. "I refuse to say anything to the newspapers or to anyone else," she said. She was accompanied by her son, four months old, and an elderly woman, said to be her mother. She was asked when she had heard last from her husband, but declined to answer.

Mr. Nicoll said that he had been in England to see his wife, who was recently hurt in an automobile accident. Her right leg was badly smashed, the lawyer said, and fears are entertained that she will be permanently crippled.

"Mrs. Nicholl cannot be removed to this country," he said. "She is being treated by Dr. Arbuthnot Lane, a famous specialist."

Mr. Nicoll is the personal counsel for Theodore P. Shonts, president of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company. He said that he had not heard of the Thompson committee's investigation, and, therefore, would not discuss the committee's work.

Auditor of Panama Fined for Criticising United States Judge's Decision.

PANAMA, Feb. 17. — H. A. A. Smith, Auditor of the Panama Canal Zone, was found guilty of contempt of court. He was charged with having criticised a statement made by Judge Jackson, of the United States District Court, in rendering a decision in a case.

Mr. Smith was fined $20, and immediately gave notice of an appeal to the United States Circuit Court at New Orleans. Before the fine was imposed he made a retraction and said that had he known the evidence in the case he would not have made the statement which the Court considered in contempt.

France to Spend Nearly 16,000,000 A Day For The War

Bill Before Chamber Appropriates $1,563,400,000 for Second Quarter of 1916—$66,000,000 More Than For Present Quarter

PARIS, Feb. 17.—An appropriation of 7,817,000,000f ($1,563,000,000) for the second quarter of 1916 is provided in a bill introduced in the Chamber of Deputies to-day by Mr. Alexander Ribot, Minister of Finance.

Of the amount all except 657,000,000f. ($131,400,000) is for military purposes.

The amount provided in the bill is 330,000,000f. ($66,000,000) more than was appropriated for the first quarter. Virtually all of this increase is for artillery and accessories. The estimates under this item have been increased to 2,450,000,000f. ($490,000,000).

Some economies have been made in other directions, until the total for the quarter for artillery and munitions in reality is 450,000,000f. ($90,000,000) more than the amount of the first three months of the year, thus indicating an enormous development in this arm of the service.

The appropriation for aviation is 82,800,000f. ($16,560,000). In expenditures for engineering material, 46,000,000f. ($8,600,000) is cut off, and for horses, 62,000,000f. ($12,400,000). This is made possible by the fact that the importations from the United States and elsewhere have reached a point sufficient to permit of purchases on a less extensive scale.

It appears from the financial portion of the bill that France has advanced to Belgium 60,000,000f. ($12,000,000), to Serbia 165,000,000f. ($33,000,000), to Greece 5,000,000f. ($1,000,000) and to Montenegro 400,000f. ($80,000).

According to these figures France expects to spend daily for war purposes during April, May and June a sum of money which in normal times would be equivalent to $15,736,000. It is estimated that in the last quarter of 1915 the expenditures of the French government probably were in excess of $13,000,000 a day.

The total appropriations from the beginning of the war in August, 1914 to June 30 next, Mr. Ribot said, would be 44,415,000,000f. ($8,882,000,000), of which 32,449,000,000 ($6,489,800,000) was for purely military purposes.

Interest on the public debt amounted to 3,200,000,000f. ($640,000,000), while allowances to the wives and families of soldiers, unemployed, and related expenses for social welfare amounted to 5,050,000,000f. ($1,010,000,000).

Mr. Ribot made various references to the United States. He said up to December 31 France had realized in cash $77,240,000 from the Franco-British loan, of which on that date there remained in cash in New York $33,028,000. Treasury bonds at the end of December sold in Great Britain and the United States totalled 1,164,000,000f. ($232,800,000).

Mr. Ribot referred to the ease with which the Treasury had been able to meet all requirements.

REGULAR MEETING OF NORTH MONAGHAN COUNCIL

Deputation Waited Upon The Council in Connection With The Maintenance of The Boundary Road—Accounts Presented For Payment

The North Monaghan Council met at the Court House on Monday, 14th February, with Reeve McIntosh in the chair, and all the Councillors present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

On the motion of Messrs. Bell and Rye, a deputation from Cavan township was heard. Mr. Baptie, Deputy Reeve of Cavan Council, spoke in regard to the repair and maintenance of the Gravel Road on the boundary between Cavan and North Monaghan. According to Mr. Baptie, the statute labour from the property along the road was being spent in other places, and the main thoroughfare was being badly neglected.

Mr. Ball, also a member of the deputation, said the portion of the Gravel Road referred to was in the worst condition of any piece of road he had ever been over.

It was moved by Messrs. Rye and Bell that the North Monaghan Council grant $100 toward the repair of the road on condition that Cavan township spend an equal amount; also that Mr. Robert Waterman be appointed to act as commissioner to spend the grant for North Monaghan.

The Assessment.

Some discussion took place with Mr. Bert Sanderson, the assessor, regarding the duties of the assessor and the equalization of the assessment.

On the motion of Messrs. Rye and Robson, the report of the committee, composed of the clerk and tax collector on assessments of sub-divisions, was accepted in the interim.

By-law No. 724, appointing Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine auditor of the township accounts for 1915, was read and confirmed.

By-law No. 726 was read and finally passed, confirming the appointment of Mr. Bert Sanderson as assessor at a salary of $125 per annum, payable half-yearly.

Communications were received from H. T. Millard, dog tax; Peck, Kerr & McElderry, Local Improvement By-law; Davis-Thompson Co., insurance on Town Hall; Roland Gordon, tenants' dog tax; and on the motion of Messrs. Robson and Rye they were received.

The following bills were presented for payment:

Bruce Johnston, registration of births, marriages and deaths, $16.80; Peterborough Hardware Co., spikes, 25c; Joseph Batten, repairing, $1.05; Peck, Kerr & McElderry, local improvements, $11.06; Cranston Co., dog tags, $5.37; W. H. Bradburn, stamps, $3; Nicholls Hospital (Hodgson case), $3; Airey & Poulson, auto to House of Refuge, $3.10; Geo. Moncrieff, filling up culverts, $6.25;

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Bell, the accounts were ordered to be paid.

Seizes Burglars in Fight on Roof

Detective, Attracted by Screams, Holds Apartment Thieves at Bay Until Police Aid.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The cries of several women from windows in the apartment house at No. 187 East Fifty-seventh street attracted the attention of Detective James Donovan, who was passing on a Lexington avenue car, and he ran to the house. He was informed that burglars had robbed several apartments and had fled to the roof.

With his revolver drawn, Donovan ran to the roof and there found two men about to leap thirty feet to the roof of an adjoining house, to already they had dropped a bag of silver and jewellery.

Seeing the detective, the two men turned and attacked him. After a fight in which he cut their heads with the butt of his weapon, Donovan held them at bay until policemen from the street hurried to his assistance.

At Police Headquarters the prisoners said they were James Moore, of No. 1946 Second avenue, and Thomas Kelly, of No. 978 Second avenue. The police had no record of Kelly, but they said Moore had served terms in several prisons on conviction of burglaries.

The apartment of Miss Azaline Jonany, a piano instructor at Columbia University, had been opened and robbed, the police said. In the bag recovered on the roof next door was all of Miss Jonany's silverware and much cut glass, which had been broken by the fall. There also were a dozen pieces of jewellery.

In the city of H— lived a family, who had one of those domestics of the heavy hand. A few years ago the town received a slight shock of earthquake. Pictures were thrown down, crockery and furniture rattled about. In the midst of the tumult the mistress went to the head of the basement stairs and called out to the maid in a would-be patient tone:

"Mary Ann, what are you doing now?"

GERMANY SETS PRICES OF PORK

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 17.—The Bundesrath has set maximum prices for swine in stalls at from 63 marks ($15.75) to 120 marks ($30) per 100 metric pounds, live weight according to size of animals. The various provincial authorities are to set wholesale prices for dealers while municipal authorities must establish maximum retail prices. The municipal authorities also must prescribe what proportions of pork on hand must be sold fresh and how much may be pickled. Imported swine are not subject to the maximum prices but they may not be sold in the same shops which handle domestic pork.

The previous maximum prices applied only to the retailers, and as a result producers withheld their swine from the market or demanded a price for them which left no profit for middlemen and retailers.

If Tongue is Coated, Breath Bad, Stomach Sour, Clean Liver and Bowels

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful to-day often saves a sick child to-morrow.

If your little one is "out-of-sorts, half-sick, isn't resting, eating and acting naturally—look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to cleanse the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they dearly love its pleasant taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs"; then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

Fried breaded sausage is very nice. Dip the sausage or sausage cake into beaten egg, then into bread crumbs, and fry. Garnish with toast squares and parsley.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

France, Certain of Victory, Lifts Curtain on Great Arms Output

This war will not end in a draw or a stalemate. The military authorities of France make this statement most positively.

It is part of the German campaigns for peace, now that Germany realizes that all hope of a favourable outcome for her is ended, to speak of deadlocks and draws and the impossibility of either side being crushed, said one of the French War Office officials recently. France knows this is "victory year."

General Joffre himself, in his order to the army on 1st January, said that the year 1916 is to be one of glory for French arms. Other generals have been more free in characterizing 1916 as "victory year."

To prevent the public from being impressed by statements to the effect that neither side could win a decisive victory some of the French authorities now are willing to show part of the positive proofs which they have of the certainty of their coming victory. These proofs are located at the great French armament and munition factories at Creusot.

Last summer, when there was an outpouring on the part of France's enemies of statements meant to produce a mental depression in France a corner of the veil was lifted on the activities of the Creusot plants, but only just enough to remind the nation that here all was well and that the preparation being made justified a confident feeling regarding the outcome.

At present the work of the Creusot plants has been so far advanced, the results of the tremendous exertions put forth here during the last year and a half are so noticeable and the production of the plant has been so huge that it is considered there is no longer much need of making a mystery of the chief work that has been going on or of concealing the enormous production of the factories. Should secrets get out now it would be too late for Germany to profit by it.

Work Practically Done.

France worked feverishly, but modestly, in her armament preparations and the work is practically done, so far at least as it is considered necessary for the great effort which is to be put for this year by the army in order to achieve the decisive victory. It now is admitted that at the Creusot plants not only the greatest steel making and ammunition making talent of the country was mobilized, but also the great inventors and authorities in the departments of chemistry and physics.

France to-day is equipped with new model guns, with new types of rifles and, above all, with new kinds of powder, and there are so far superior to what France's enemies are known to have that they form the chief basis for the government's certainty of being able to blast its way triumphantly through the armoured trenches on the Western Front and to destroy a substantial part of the enemy's military forces, unless he withdraws and accepts the peace conditions which will be imposed.

The French censorship has permitted the expert who writes under the name of Antares to describe, in the Petit Parisien, the main lines of the great development that has taken place at the Creusot factories during the last year. They include enormous development of the steel making section, where new methods of improving the grade of steel have been employed, the construction of colossal machinery for handling the metal on a vast scale and the installation of much machinery of American origin for the carrying out and simplifying of certain processes in the manufacture of the finished articles.

Improved Forgings.

No better steel has ever been manufactured than is being produced at Creusot, the experts say, and the forgings for shells are of such a superior quality that any risk of premature explosion now is averted permanently. It is no secret among military experts that in the early part of the war considerable damage was done by the bursting of shells made of inferior material.

The experiments, the tests, the trials and the verifications necessary to bring about the high perfection of the articles which now have been turned out at Creusot in such huge quantities have been of an endless kind. They have been carried out by an extraordinary number of the very greatest scientists of the day.

During the work new discoveries in chemistry have been made, and new applications of physical forces. Most interesting of all probably to a person inspecting the plant are the chemical and physical laboratories of the artillery department, which are found in the great polygons which adjoin the Creusot plant.

Here are the testing grounds and the various buildings where the most delicate and dangerous of chemical materials and combinations of them are tried out every day, with a view to increasing the accuracy of fire and the destructive power of the French guns. These polygons are destined to be historic.

The most conspicuous among them are those of St. Henri, of Hoc, of Villedieu, and of Harfleur. Munitions are being constantly tested out for their power of projection and for their effect on troops, on structures of all kinds, and on fortified works.

In order to do this in the most perfect manner, it is considered necessary that the experiments should be carried out under exactly the same conditions as the artillery would have to meet in real battle.

Tested as in Battle.

To study the thousand details which make up the special qualities of a rifled gun or of a howitzer, to analyze and dissect the construction of materials, the resistant power of cannon and of caissons, their stability, and their requirements as to solidity of base, all the conditions of the actual field have to be taken into account on the polygon or testing ground.

The targets against which the artillery under trial are tested are solid steel and masonry structures filled with sand and commonly called "sand chambers." Devices for recording the force revealed by the impact of the shell and the explosive power of the contents are installed in the chamber, and from adjoining bomb-proof shelters experts watch and record every detail of the artillery fire. Two of the polygons, St. Henri and Villedieu are of short range, and the sand chambers at the end are capable of resisting the most severe shocks.

It is in these polygons that the ballistic qualities of the projectiles and the strength of heavy armoured plates are tested. There also are tried out the cannon which have to find a fixed emplacement, including those for use on board warships and coast artillery guns, which are mounted on a series of platforms at the end of the short polygon, less than half a mile long.

The platforms are of the "universal" kind, permitting the mounting of pieces of all calibre. Two large platforms are used for studying the effects of the larger calibre guns. Around these platforms the ground is treated in a special way in order to avoid its deterioration under the enormous gas jets which pour out of the gun after it is fired with the new explosives.

Complicated machinery, travelling cranes, and rolling bridges are used for the rapid mounting and dismounting of the pieces being tried out.

Solid Sand Chambers.

The sand chambers in this case are built with reinforced cement, and as the projectiles here tried weigh hundreds of pounds and leave the gun with initial velocities of twenty-four hundred to twenty-six hundred feet a second, the resisting power of the sand chambers must be appropriate, especially in view of the shortness of the range. On these polygons the the guns are tested at angles of from fifteen to thirty-five degrees.

In the testing of armour plate it is placed in front of the sand chamber and surrounded by protective structures to prevent fragments from leaving the polygon. At other places in the same polygon the resisting power of masks, steel breastplates, and the like is tested, as are also rifles of all kinds, especially for their effectiveness against the special forms of body protection used to-day by troops in the field.

All kinds of new powders are being constantly tried out, and it is known with absolute exactness how to vary the initial velocity, the penetrating power and the fire pressure of projectiles from the smallest cartridge up to the largest shell. Indeed, the details which are recorded on the testing grounds are of an almost infinite variety, and experts of the very highest qualifications record them and draw from them conclusions of a practical character.

Artillery officers who will have to use the new guns in the field also receive instruction at the factories in their mechanism and their use.

Indirect Fire Tests.

On the polygon of St. Henri are made the experiments which determine the qualities of guns which have to be fired not merely on horizontal lines or at slight elevation, but for indirect or plunging fire, which has become so important a feature in the present war, as the heaviest guns on both sides have done their most effective work at distances from which it was impossible to determine the desired point of explosion of the shells except through guidance from aircraft or by other means of observation.

The St. Henri polygon is located in the hollow of deep quarries, which are in the form of an amphitheatre, with walls which are everywhere at least seventy feet high. Here experiments are tried with guns fired at an angle of seventy degrees.

The Hoc and the Harfleur polygons are used for testing the effect of guns fired on land or on sea from special kinds of emplacement, when the conditions are not such as would be found on solid cement structures carefully levelled or graded.

The Harfleur is regarded as the most important of all the polygons. Here are tried out all kinds of munitions and here, too, are tested the results of fire and the ballistic qualities of the shells used in the indirect fire. Here also are established mathematical tables for the new explosive materials, in order to determine with absolute precision, at long or short range, the effects of fire and the altitude and methods of range finding to be adopted for each new material.

There are platforms for all kinds of the heavy guns that have been constructed and for the studying of the guns at all angles. There are platforms of solid steel and cement construction; others of common pavement, and others of sand and of earth, in a greater or less degree of solidity, in conditions such as would be found in the open field in periods of dry or of wet weather.

For High Explosives.

A special casemated battery is reserved for the trying out of the new high explosives and recent models of projectiles. The gun is surrounded by armour thick enough to prevent an unexpected explosion doing any damage. It is fired from a distance by men who are sheltered in bomb-proof chambers.

The observers are also in bomb-proof chambers, so arranged that all the results of the fire may be studied through the observation windows.

In connection with these polygons is a whole railroad system, with complex switching devices for the trains. Several armoured observation cars are constantly being run while the experiments are in progress, and locomotives and all other appurtenances of the trains are also fully armoured.

One of the important features of the testing grounds is the meteorological station, which allows a constant checking of the weather and atmospheric conditions to accompany the observations of all kinds made by the chemical, physical and mathematical experts during the progress of the tests.

It is in consequence of the immense success which these experiments have brought during the last year to the manufacture of cannon and munitions at Cruesot and of the fact that there have been produced at the factories thousands of new guns of different types, as well as whole mountains of shells and munitions of all kinds, and of the knowledge also that both guns and munitions are superior to those which the enemy is known to have and that their destructive power is such as will certainly justify the forecasts made for them when the day comes for their employment that the French government know that the war will not be a draw or a deadlock. It is Creusot which justifies it in referring to 1916 as "victory year."

Creusot has been epigrammatically called the "creuset" of France. The French word "creuset" means a crucible or melting pot. Through Creusot is arising the new France.

KEEP GERMANS AT HOME.

How Fatherland Will Punish Canada When War is Over.

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The Frankfurter Zeitung publishes an angry article in reply to comments of the Times on the destruction of the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa. Referring to anti-German agitation in Canada, the Frankfurther Zeitung says: "If Canada does not receive any more German immigrants, that will suit us perfectly. It is really not the business of Germanism to elevate British colonies by German efficiency and in this way lose hundreds of thousands of Germans to the Anglo-Saxons. No immigrants were more welcome in Canada before the war than Germans and Scandinavians. If Canada now, instead of Germans, likes to invite her allies from Senegal, Himalaya, Russia and Japan, there is no objection from the German point of view. After the war we shall be able to employ German hands at home and in territories where German work brings benefit to German people."

Alkali in Soap Bad for the hair

Soap should be used very carefully if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

REMARRY AFTER 40 YEARS.

After a separation of forty years, during which they each married again, Caleb Johnson and Mrs. Ella Day were remarried yesterday in Hackettstown, N. J. The reconciliation and final marriage was effected by their two children, it is said.

Miss Ella Derrican, foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Weller, was married in 1869 to Mr. Johnson in Hackettstown. They had three children. In 1875 they were divorced. Mr. Johnson then married the second time and Mrs. Johnson later was married to Israel Day, of Hoboken. Recently, it is said, the second Mrs. Johnson died and Mr. Day died. Then John Johnson and Miss Jane Johnson, the surviving children of the first marriage, began their efforts to get their father and mother together again. They met and agreed to forget the ancient differences. The wedding ceremony followed.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A GUILTY CONSCIENCE

A Story of Parisian Politics

By F. A. MITCHEL

Politics was running high in Paris. A candidate was speaking to an audience, inveighing against the demagogues who, he asserted, were corrupting the masses. "Money," he said, "is flowing like water. There is a man in this audience who I know has received 100 francs for his vote. Just think of it—100 francs for the surrender of the invaluable privilege he enjoys under the republic of expressing his wish in national affairs!"

After the meeting the speaker, Victor Daroux, was sitting in a restaurant on the Boulevard des Italiens with a couple of friends, partaking of a supper. He was just raising a glass of wine to his lips when a man stepped up to him and said:

"M. Daroux, I am the bearer of a message to you from my friend M. Charlier. He demands a retraction from you in tomorrow morning's journals of your accusation in your speech this evening that he has sold his vote. In case you refuse"—

Daroux, who was staring in wonder at the speaker, broke in—

"Why does M. Charlier assume that I referred to him in my remarks?"

"Because you looked directly at him when you made the accusation."

Daroux was deliberating what to do in the matter when a waiter approached and informed him that a gentleman in another part of the room desired to speak to him privately. Excusing himself, Daroux went to this newcomer.

"M. Daroux," said the man, "I represent M. Arnoux. He demands an immediate retraction of your accusation made this evening that he has sold his vote for 100 francs."

Daroux was tempted to laugh, but the speaker was so serious that he refrained.

"Why does M. Arnoux assume that I referred to him in my remarks?" he asked.

"Because you were looking directly at him."

Daroux was silent a few moments, then said:

"And if I refuse to retract?"

"In that case M. Arnoux expects that you will give him the satisfaction due from one gentleman who has wrongfully accused another."

"Let me have your address," said Daroux. "I will send an early reply."

Returning to his table, Daroux received the same announcement from M. Charlier's friend of what was expected in case of a refusal to retract and called also for his address. The man had scarcely gone when a third came and demanded a retraction for M. Blanc for the same offense and received the same answer as the others.

"It seems," said Daroux to his friends, "that if a guilty conscience counts for anything there has been a good deal of vote selling."

During the next half hour three more men demanded a retraction of M. Daroux for accusing them of selling their votes, and the accuser, after being informed that a refusal would be followed by a challenge, called for the party's address and promised to send an early reply.

"It does not seem so remarkable," said Daroux after the last man had been disposed of, "that so many men have sold their votes, but that the price in each case should have been a hundred francs. I had heard before rising to speak that 10,000 francs had been distributed among certain influential voters, but I did not know that a hundred francs was the current price paid. I fancied that some one of the persons bribed might be in the meeting, and it occurred to me to fire an effective shot by making a pointed accusation. It seems that I have killed half a dozen birds with a single stone."

These words were spoken to friends who were with Daroux when the avalanche of demands for retraction fell upon him. One of the party suggested that if the matter were properly handled sufficient capital might be made out of it to win the election. Daroux was running for the corps legislatif, but his opponent was so lavish with money that he had no hope of being elected. However, those gentlemen now gathered about him at the restaurant were shrewd politicians, and they set themselves to find a method of procedure by which the incident at home might be used to turn the scale in his favor.

It was decided to stave off the matter till the day before the election, which was to take place in four days. The day after the demands for satisfaction were made no reply was sent. The second day each one of the conscience stricken men received word that M. Daroux refused to retract. A reply to his refusal was returned by each one of the six men accused in the shape of a challenge to mortal combat.

Daroux chose six seconds to represent him, and since, being the challenged party, he was entitled to choice of weapons, time and place of meeting he instructed each second in accepting the challenge to choose foils, to appoint the time at 10 o'clock on the morning before the election and the place the Place de la Concorde.

Every challenger was struck with amazement that so public a place should have been chosen for the meeting. "I cannot see," said M. Charlier, "how he expects to make capital out of so great publicity. He has made an accusation which is thrown back in his teeth, and he must answer for it under the code. Surely there is no advantage in this." M. Arnoux was much puzzled at the choice of place of meeting, and M. Blanc—who, by the bye, had distributed the money used to buy votes—began to fear that some game was to be played. Nevertheless he did not see how he could do anything to prevent it.

At a quarter to 10 on the morning appointed for the fight M. Daroux, surrounded by his six seconds and a surgeon, appeared in the Place de la Concorde, near the base of the obelisk. Paris was quite alive at that hour, and many persons were passing and repassing. Seeing the party at the foot of the obelisk, the seconds with foils under their arms, the surgeons with their boxes of instruments, persons stopped to learn what it all meant. Gradually a crowd collected, and the word was passed from one to another that there was to be a duel.

"Can you tell me," asked one of another, "who that distinguished looking man is, with his arms folded, waiting?"

"That, monsieur, is M. Victor Daroux, candidate for election tomorrow for the corps legislatif."

"And why so many attendants?"

"That I do not know; I am waiting to find out."

At the moment a carriage drove up, and M. Arnoux, attended by his second and a surgeon, alighted. He seemed quite chagrined at seeing the crowd, but it had been not entirely unexpected. He supposed that Daroux was intending to make a display of his skill and bravery on the eve of the election. Arnoux, seeing that no one of the other party made any advance to begin the fight, said:

"Pardon me, gentlemen. If we are to fight so publicly it may be well to begin at once and have it over with."

"There is another ahead of you, monsieur," replied one of Daroux's seconds.

"Another! What other?"

"One who took M. Daroux's accusations to himself."

Arnoux winced.

Another carriage rolled up, and another challenger alighted. He, too, was delayed, and before the cause of his delay could be explained to him four other defenders of their honor arrived in quick succession. The crowd by this time had swelled and was in a fever heat of expectation. No one understood why so many men, each attended by a second bearing foils, should continue to pour in. It happened that M. Charlier, who was the first challenger, arrived last. As soon as he came M. Daroux's second begged the crowd to make room, since the duel was about to begin. The other five challengers protested, and the crowd began to hoot and yell, at the same time pressing the duellists so closely that there was no room for the fray. Finally some one of the crowd yelled:

"What's it all about?"

"It's a put up job!" cried one of the bystanders.

"There's half a dozen of 'em picking on one!" shouted another.

"There's an advertising dodge in it somewhere. Wait and see," was a third person's explanation.

"Here comes a gendarme!"

Meanwhile Daroux stood silent with folded arms, the only person whose dignified appearance commanded respect. When the gendarme arrived Daroux said something to him in a low tone, to which the officer assented.

Then M. Daroux, raising his hand to impose silence, made an explanation. He began by telling of bearing on good authority that a large sum was being used to land his political opponent in office and of his having made a blind charge. Then he told how each of six different men in the audience had taken the accusation to himself and demanded a retraction or satisfaction.

"And now, my friends," continued the speaker, "I am here to back my words. I have accused none of these gentlemen. They have accused themselves. For we all know that a guilty conscience needs no accuser."

The men who had come to fight Daroux got away as fast as they could, amid the jeers of the crowd. Daroux entered his carriage with his attendants and drove across the Seine to the legislative building on the other bank, attended by an enormous crowd. There he alighted and made a political speech, in which he told the story to a multitude of voters.

Every evening paper in Paris had an account of the affair, and the cafes were filled with persons laughing at the way Daroux had exposed the corruption of his opponents. That night he spoke to an immense concourse, who demanded again and again to hear the story from his own lips.

The journals the next morning all published editorials upon the low grade to which Paris politics had sunk and the iniquity of using money at elections. During the day Daroux drove from one polling place to another and wherever he appeared was greeted with shouts of applause mixed with laughter at the way he had turned the tables on his opponents.

Before 9 o'clock at night it was known all over Paris that Daroux had been elected, and when the papers came out the next morning they announced a landslide in his favor.

What became of the six self accusers was never known. They got away from under the limelight as quickly as possible, and on the day after the election not one of them was to be found in Paris. Daroux was urged to proceed against them for bribery, but since the only evidence against them was what they had themselves furnished, no action was ever taken in the matter.

It Fitted the Case.

The girl asked the polite salesman if he had good cheese.

"We have some lovely cheese," was the smiling answer.

"You should not say lovely cheese," she corrected.

"Why not? It is," he declared.

"Because"—with a boarding school dignity—"lovely should be used to qualify only something that is alive."

"Well," he retorted, "I'll stick to lovely."

Knew It.

ARAB TREACHERY IS TROUBLE TO BRITISH

Tommy Does Not Understand the Reason For Cruelty of Tribesmen Along Bagdad Route

The British or Indian soldier does not know that the tribesmen of the inverted double deltas of the rivers of Mesopotamia are the descendants of Khariji Anarchists of the 9th Century and of the Carmathian outlaws of the 10th, that among them smoulders the sub-conscious fire of the cause of the Caliphs whom the Turks replaced and persecuted, that to them for above eighteen generations all organised government has been the emblem of cruelty, oppression and robbery, that their chiefs have of set purpose been schooled in treachery by generations of perfidious Turkish Beys and Persian Governors. The British or Indian soldier does not know that since Ja'afer the Barmecide was executed by the despairing Haroun-al-Raschid no man south of Bagdad has stood for justice and right-doing; that all has been wrong-doing from the days when the Mongols pierced the canals of irrigation and annihilated a population of eleven millions, and thence to the coming of the Young Turk Committee of Union and Progress and the German Concessionaires, who have thrived on intrigue and wickedness in these latter days.

All the British and Indian soldier knows is that his dead comrades' bodies are stripped and mutilated, that if a trooper lose his way alone he is little likely to return, that a bullet has sung past his own topi or puggaree from a mud wall above which flutters a white flag, that he has now and again found a loved friend lying with throat cut from ear to ear. And the name Arab is hated. After the war it will be small wonder if the Indian veterans will want to make the Arab conform absolutely or be harried out of the land and back into the desert whence he came. If much good is to come out of the native Mesopotamian he needs another master than the Turk. For years the Porte has applied steady pressure upon the native population to make them settle down. At German suggestion the Turk has increased the number of military and police posts to make brigandage unprofitable. He has planted colonies of Circassians by way of example. He has brought about much forcible settlement. He has contrived to get considerably more land under cultivation and has increased the security of life and property and consequently the desire to work for a living, but he has failed in two cardinal points. He has not given honest government or capable administration. He has not secured sufficient population of the right character to make this desert blossom.

Mucilage and Gum.

"I went into a stationer's shop in London one day," said an American, "and said to the shop assistant:

"'Do you keep mucilage?'

"'No, sir,' the young man answered. 'We try to take in all the papers, but there are so many new ones coming out. Still, I can order mucilage for you, sir. Which number did you want?'

"I learned afterward that I should have asked for gum. They don't have the word 'mucilage' over there in England.

"But an Englishman traveling on one of our railways stopped a train boy and said:

"'Have you got any gum?'

"'No; I don't use it, boss,' the boy replied in friendly fashion, 'but I can let you have a chaw off this here plug.'"—Washington Star.

ONE MORE BATTLE

That Was What General Lee Wanted Before Yielding.

HIS TALK WITH LONGSTREET.

Major Ranson's Interesting Account of the Scene in the Confederate Commander's Cheerless Tent the Night Before the Surrender.

An interesting account of the dramatic scene at General Lee's headquarters the night before the surrender, when the Confederate commander was still determined to strike one more blow for the cause for which he was fighting, is given by Major A. R. H. Ranson in Harper's Magazine. Major Ranson writes:

"When I arrived at headquarters General Lee was in a tent, sitting with General Longstreet on some bundles of rye straw, the ground being wet from the rain, at the upper side of the tent, with one candle for a light. I made my report, and the general told me to wait, as he wished to see me. He asked me if I had had anything to eat, and I told him no. He said he was sorry he had nothing to offer me. He gave me a bundle of straw and told me to sit near the door.

"It had been raining all afternoon, and I was quite wet. I was also very tired, so I put my foot through the bridle rein of my mare standing outside and, lying down on the bundle of straw, was soon asleep.

"I was awakened by voices and, looking up, saw the colonel I had left in charge of the troops at the bridge standing in the tent. He reported that the rations had not arrived, and the starving and discouraged troops had all deserted in the darkness, leaving their arms in the trenches.

"General Lee heard him to the end of his account, and then with a wave of his hand dismissed him. Turning to General Longstreet, he said: 'This is very bad. That man is whipped. It is the first time I have seen one of my officers who had been whipped. It is very bad.'

"The conversation between the generals was then resumed in low tones, and I again fell asleep. I must have slept for some length of time when I was awakened by General Lee's voice, speaking in loud tones, louder than I had ever heard from him. He was saying, 'General Longstreet, I will strike that man a blow in the morning.' General Lee sometimes spoke of General Grant as 'that man' and of the Federal army as 'those people.'

"General Longstreet replied in low tones, giving the strength and condition of his command and the strength and position of the enemy, and concluded by saying, 'But you have only to give me the order and the attack will be made in the morning.' Again the conversation was resumed in low tones, and I fell asleep.

"I must have slept for an hour at least when again I was awakened by the loud, almost fierce, tones of General Lee, saying, 'I tell you, General Longstreet, I will strike that man a blow in the morning.' General Longstreet again recounted the difficulties, ending as before, 'General, you know you have only to give the order and the attack will be made, but I must tell you I think it will be a useless waste of brave lives.'

"Thinking I had been present long enough at such an interview, I coughed and got up from the straw and, drawing back the flaps of the tent, looked out into the darkness. General Lee said: 'Captain Ranson, I beg your pardon. I had forgotten you. Go now and get something to eat and some rest. I will see you in the morning.'

"I found my poor mare lying flat on her side in the rain and fast asleep. It was past midnight and very dark, but I reached our camp, though neither I nor my mare got anything to eat that night.

"The morning came, and I listened for the sound of our attack, but all was still. There was no attack. Our fighting days were over."

The Art of Embalming.

The modern embalmers have not recovered the secret of the art as practiced by the old Egyptians and probably never will. Some of the bodies known to us as "mummies" buried 3,000 or 4,000 years ago are still in a state of perfect preservation. Back of the ancient art lay a religious creed. The ancient Egyptian believed that after many thousands of years the soul came back to find its body and that if it was not found the soul wandered forever in misery and wretchedness; hence it was absolutely necessary to preserve the body, and hence, finally, the embalmer's art.—New York American.

Easier.

"I'm going to the dentist's to have this tooth out. Just mind the baby till I come back." Husband (with alacrity)—You mind the baby. Jessie, I'll go and get a tooth pulled out—

Visiting Cards.

While it would be difficult to say just when visiting cards were first used, we are quite certain of the fact that they are not of very ancient date. Apparently they were adopted in English society before they were generally used on the continent. It was probably about 1700 that they came into fashion in Great Britain, and it was as late as 1770 when they were introduced in Paris. It appears that the first visiting cards were regular playing cards, the backs of which were used for the address.

Freak of a Lightning Flash.

During a thunderstorm in Deal, England, Minnie Rogers, seventeen years old, was walking along one of the small back streets of the town carrying a number of umbrellas, etc., when a vivid flash of lightning, evidently attracted by the steel frame of one of the umbrellas she was holding, ripped open her own umbrella, struck her and threw her violently to the ground. There was only one man in the street at the time, and he assisted her to rise. Strangely enough, when she had done so she found that all her clothes, umbrella and cap were perfectly dry, whereas before she had been drenched, for the rain poured down in torrents. Her description of her feelings was, "I felt just as though my head had been stung by a wasp, there was a singing noise in my ears and I seemed to see a bright light, like the sun, shining through my umbrella." With the exception of her hair being slightly singed, she sustained no injury.—Strand Magazine.

ACTRES TELLS SECRETS

A Well Known Actress Tells How She Darkened Her Gray Hair and Promoted Its Growth With a Simple Home Made Mixture.

Miss Blanche Rose, a well-known actress, who darkened her gray hair with a simple preparation which she mixed at home, in a recent interview at Chicago, Ill., made the following statement: "Any lady or gentleman can darken their gray hair and make it soft and glossy with this simple recipe, which they can mix at home. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Orlex Compound, and ½ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until it becomes the required shade. This will make a gray haired person look 20 years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of hair, relieves itching and scalp humours and is excellent for dandruff and falling hair."

The Dean's "Christy Minstrels."

Mr. Alfred Capper in his reminiscences tells a delightful story of the famous Dr. Vaughan. The latter had been delivering a course of theological lectures to a class of young black men, whom he was preparing to be missionaries. At the end of the course he invited the whole class to come and dine with him on the following Wednesday evening. On the appointed night the Dean stood on the hearthrug waiting for his young guests. Eight o'clock came, no guests; a quarter-past eight, still no guests. At half-past eight the Dean rang the bell, and when the butler appeared he said:

"It's an extraordinary thing, Smith, that none of these gentlemen have appeared!"

"Yes, Mr. Dean, sir," replied the butler, "but what is still more extraordinary is that I have done nothing all the evening but turn away Christy Minstrels from the door!"

Had Palpitation OF THE HEART ALSO WEAK and DIZZY SPELLS.

When the heart begins to palpitate it will beat fast for several seconds, then slow, then start to flutter, and a feeling of utter depression will come over your whole system, accompanied by weak, fainting and dizzy spells, and if you should happen to wake up in the night with your heart palpitating, and that "all gone" sinking sensation, you feel as if you were surely going to die.

When you feel this way, you may be sure that both your heart and nerves are out of order, and what you require is a real good heart and nerve tonic; one that will build up and strengthen both the heart and nerve system.

For this purpose nothing can equal Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. J. S. Nicholls, Listowel, Ont., writes: "I was weak and run down, my heart would palpitate, and I would take weak and dizzy spells. A friend advised me to take your Heart and Nerve Pills, so I started at once, and found that I felt much stronger, and my heart was ever so much better in a short time. I cannot praise your medicine too highly for it has done me a world of good. My husband has also been bothered with heart trouble, ever since childhood, and finds great relief by using your valuable pills."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

LOCAL WEEKLY MARKET REPORT

Prices Show a Peculiar Tendency To Fluctuate—Butter Up Eggs Down—Wheat Up and Hogs Down—Comparison in Prices

MARKET FEATURES.

Butter, up 3 cents for dairy prints. Creamery prints decline.
Eggs drop to 30 cents a dozen.
Geese go down 3 cents a pound.
What sinks 5 cents.
Peas stiffen in price.
Potatoes stronger still, top price $2.25.
Hogs ease off, 15 cents a hundred.

Dairy and Poultry.

Butter, dairy	36c
Butter, creamery	35c
Eggs, new laid, doz.	30c
Cheese, lb.	24c
Cream, qt.	35c
Turkeys, lb.	25c
Geese	20c
Ducks	15c
Chickens	23c
Live hens, each	$1.00

It is hard to account for the high price asked for butter last Saturday on the market. In view of the fact that it is showing a tendency to weaken at other points. In Toronto the quotation for the best grades was but 32 cents, and 27 cents for the ordinary dairy quality. In Montreal, 33 cents, and in New York, 31 1-2c. per pound.

Eggs at Toronto have held pretty steady through the week. At Montreal they declined slightly, while in New York they went up 4 to 5 cents a dozen. Storage eggs on the other side of the line are thinning out, so we may look for firmer prices here.

Since cheese prices are largely controlled by the volume of export trade, we may look for a weakening tog the reason that it is almost impossible to secure freighters across "the pond."

Poultry prices remain stationary, notwithstanding the fact that the seasonable trade just now is in live fowl.

Grains, Hay.

Wheat, bush.	$1.10
Oats	40c
Barley	56c
Peas	$2.00
Buckwheat	70c
Rye	80c
Shorts, ton	$28.00
Bran, ton	$25.00
Flour, cwt.	$3.75
Baled hay, ton	$20.00 to $22.00
Loose hay	$19.00 to $20.00

The Toronto Wheat Market is somewhat changeable this week. Winnipeg No. 1 Northern is bringing $1.25 per bushel. Oats are 47 to 49 cents; barley is 66 to 68 cents; rye is 88 to 90 cents. buckwheat is 76 cents, and peas $1.50 to $1.75 per bushel.

Large quantities of hay are being shipped from the port of Montreal to fill war contracts, and the country round about is being literally combed but not much is being taken from other parts of Ontario. The reason for this is hard to explain in view of the fact that the Government is allowing the C. P. R. to ship hay in bond through the Dominion from the other side, and at the same time place an embargo on Canadian hay.

Flour still continues to rise on the outside market, as well as on the local. Manitoba grades are quoted at $7.20 a barrel, which is about the same as our $3.65 a hundred. Shipping facilities at the ocean ports are so meagre that export in any quantity is impossible.

Seed Grain.

Red clover, cwt.	$27.00
Alsike, cwt.	$25.00
Alfalfa, cwt.	$27.00
Timothy, cwt.	$12.00

Toronto prices on seeds are:

Red Clover from	$7.00 to $12.50
Alsike	$4.50 to $7.50
Timothy	$1.00 to $3.50

Fruits and Vegetables.

Apples, per bag	$1.00 to $2.00
Apples, per barrel	$2.25 to $5.00
Potatoes, per bag	$2.00 to $2.25
Onions, peck	20c
Onions, white pickling, qt.	15c.
White beans, lb.	10c
Carrots, peck	15c
Turnips, bag	35c
Parsnips, peck	15c
Beets	15c
Celery, head	15c
Cabbage, head	5c.
Cabbage, doz.	25c
Oranges	30 to 40c
Grapefruit, three for	25c.
Lemons, doz.	25c.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 35-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub well into the scalp. After a few application all dandruff disappears and the hair stops coming out.

The beautiful residence of Dr. C. W. Ross was totally destroyed last Saturday morning by fire, and caused by the acetylene plant exploding at about 7.20 a.m. In less than fifteen minutes the whole building was in flames. The stable then took fire, which is not more than ten feet from the Victoria skating rink. The bucket brigade got quickly to work, and with the municipal telephone soon got fire fighters within a radius of six miles. Everybody fought heroically for three hours and saved the stable and contents which at one time looked impossible. If the skating and curling rink had caught fire the greater part of the village would have been swept away. J. H. Fletcher, who was dug out of the cellar, has proved to be badly burned about the head and hands and is suffering a great deal of pain.

Dr. Ross wishes to thank those who so kindly assisted at the recent fire. He intends to resume practice in Keene shortly and requests all those who owe him money to settle their accounts as soon as possible.

A Certified Cure of Bilious Headache

Chronic Liver Trouble Was Entirely Cured by the Use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills—Endorsement by Justice of The Peace

Many people are habitually bilious. Mode of life tends to make chronic a torpid condition of the liver. The result is spells of biliousness with sick headache, stomach derangements and much irritability and depression of spirits.

To many neglect to take active means of curing biliousness. The bad spell passes over and for a time they are all right. But an unusually hearty menu upsets the liver and consequently the usual discomfort and suffering.

The writer of this letter has broken up this habit of biliousness and is now enjoying the best of health. Her experience should prove of value to many who, like her, have suffered for years from bilious spells and sick headaches.

Miss Cora Cochran, Salterby, N. B., writes:—I was nearly always troubled with headaches. And every two or three weeks would have to lose a day or two from school with bilious sick headache. I have taken doctor's medicine and other preparations, which did little good.

"When I had the sich headache I would vomit a lot and could keep nothing on my stomach. My mother got Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and I was soon improved, and continued the treatment until entirely cured. My condition generally was greatly benefitted, and I am now in the best of health."

Mr. J. J. Keohan, J. P., writes:—"This is to certify that I am personally acquainted with Miss Cora Cochran and believe her statement in regard to Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to be true and correct."

Keep the liver active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and you will prevent a multitude of petty ills. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Limited, Toronto.

SOME FEATURES REQUIRE ELUCIDATION

Lord Shaughnessy's opinion of the Proposed Means to Increase the Revenue

Special Cable to The Examiner:

MONTREAL, Feb. 17.—The following statement was issued by Lord Shaughnessy President of the Canadian Pacific Railway: "The war has, as we all know, added and will for some time continue to add, important financial burdens to those that the country was already carrying and the Minister of Finance is compelled to resort to drastic methods of taxation for the purpose of meeting the situation. The measure now before the House would appear to be about the most feasible means of providing the additional revenue required but it strikes me that it has some features requiring elucidation and that Sir Thomas White would be inclined to amend before the bill becomes law it may be pointed out that if the amount paid up on its capital stock is to be determined by the share capital actually issued as fully paid, some of our Canadian companies, although making large profits just now, will have oceans of water between their net revenue and the proposed tax, while others, like the Canadian Pacific for instance, have outstanding capital stock less in amount than the money actually paid for it, without reference to appropriations from revenue for capital expenditures. Every good citizen and reasonable man will loyally stand back of the Finance Minister in the adoption of the plan of taxation that may finally be considered best in the circumstances, but in return the people of the country will demand probably more emphatically than ever before that expenditures in connection with war shall be without wastefulness or extravagance, and that the Minister of Finance, with his colleagues, shall see that the country's money is neither pilfered nor squandered.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days, and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

TRAILING MAN WHO THREATENS NAVY SECRETARY

Arrest Expected in Buffalo Following Two Letters Sent to Josephus Daniels That Writer Will "Get" Him.

BUFFALO, Feb. 16.—Government secret service operatives here are on the track of a man who has written two letters to Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, containing threats against the cabinet officer's life. This man has been seen in Buffalo within the past few days and it is said an arrest is expected shortly.

The letters were sent from Buffalo In them the writer said that he was entitled to back pay for his service in the navy, and was tired of trying to get it from local officials, and so had decided to "get" the secretary of the navy.

Most of the contents of the missives was rambling and incoherent, but the writer said that he would wait until to-morrow (Tuesday) to see if he could get any of the back which he claims is due him, and if by that time he had not got it, then he would set out to accomplish his object of "getting" Secretary Daniels.

Winter Known.

According to a source of reliable information, the writer is known to the local authorities who are working on the case.

They say he is a young man, who created a sensation several years ago by declaring that he was the murderer of a girl, whose body was found on the outskirts of the city not far from Buffalo. It is said that he was at one time in the navy.

Just after the girl's body was found and the authorities were trying to locate the murderer this man made a "confession" in which he said he was the murderer. He was taken to the city but after a thorough examination the authorities were satisfied that he was not the girl's slayer.

This man, it is claimed has been in Buffalo for several weeks. It is known that he attempted some time ago to enlist in another branch of the military service, but was rejected because of his past record.

The letters, which were received at Washington are now in the hands of United States District Attorney Stephen T. Lockwood, who, with the secret service operatives, is trying to locate their author.

"Those who know" say that next year's apple crop will be a bumper.

Farming is none too profitable at the best of times.

If the fall wheat remains covered during March it may come out all right. So, cheer up.

Be careful in chosing your seed for spring sowing.

Dont forget how the grain was harvested in a wet condition and some of it heated and sprouted. Such seed has lost its vitality.

If you are in doubt send a sample to the Dominion Seed Branch, in Ottawa, and have it tested for its growing qualities.

There will be a serious shortage of help on the farm this year.

Large Number of Turkish Troops Were Captured By The Russians

It is Believed That The Entire Garrison of The Captured Fortress of Erzerum Together With a Large Quantity of Supplies Fell Into The Hands of Grand Duke Nicholas' Army---Violent Storms Along The Western Front Hamper Military Operations.

TRENCHES ARE FLOODED

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Between 35,000 and 180,000 Turkish troops and a large number of guns were captured by the Grand Duke Nicholas' forces when they entered the Turkish fortress of Erzerum, according to unofficial reports received from Petrograd this afternoon. The War Office received no additional despatches from the Russian commander and was unable to verify these reports. It was estimated that about 100,000 Turks comprised the garrison of the captured fortress, and that more than 1,000 guns were mounted on the various forts. There is nothing to indicate, however, how many of the Turks succeeded in making their escape. The fact that the city fell within five days after the Russians began storming the forts, makes it appear possible that the captures both in men and guns were large.

GREAT REJOICING AT FALL OF ERZERUM

News of Capture of Fortress Received in Petrograd With The Biggest Demonstration Since The Fall of Przemysl—Grand Duke Nicholas Is Again The National Hero—Thousands Marched Through The Streets Waving The Russian Colours and Chanting Hymns

Special to The Examiner.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 17.—The greatest demonstration since the capture of Przemysl, occurred in Petrograd to-day, following the confirmation of reports of the capture of Erzerum. Great crowds marched through the streets waving the Russian colours and chanting hymns. Thousands attended Te Deum in the great Kazan Cathedral, while other thousands, standing outside in the snow, offered up prayers for the Grand Duke Nicholas, again the national hero. The conquest of Erzerum, the first important Russian victory since the retreat from the Carpathians began nearly a year ago has stirred the Russian people to great depths of patriotism. Newspapers to-day declared the Grand Duke's triumph only a prelude to great victories that will carry the Czar's armies sweeping back through Poland and Galicia before summer. The capture of Erzerum means the collapse of all Turkish plans of conquest in Persia. Military men here believe, and possibly will force the Turks to abandon their plans to invade Egypt. With the British army soon to be heavily reinforced, fighting only 110 miles from Bagdad and the Grand Duke's forces moving westward through Armenia in the spring drive, it is not believed here that Essad Pasha will risk sending large forces to the Suez.

ALARM IN CONSTANTINOPLE OVER ERZERUM CRISIS

Special to The Examiner:

ATHENS, Feb. 17.—Great alarm is felt in Constantinople over the situation of the Turks at Erzerum. Large bodies of troops have been sent forward to combat the Russian advance. The fear is expressed in the Turkish capital that should Erzerum fall Grand Duke Nicholas will repeat his feat early in the war of sweeping through Galacia, by a great drive through Armenia toward Constantinople.

The news of the capture of Erzerum evidently had not reached Athens when the above despatch was filed.

CAPTURE OF ERZERUM WILL HAVE AN EFFECT ON OTHER THEATRES OF WAR

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The capture of the great Turkish stronghold of Erzerum by the Russians is declared as the best item of news for the Allies in many months. Military experts dwell upon the importance of the capture, declaring that it gives the Russians the key to Asia Minor, and is a victory which will inevitably have far-reaching consequences. General Barthaut says it is not only a deadly blow to Turkey, but an event which cannot fail to have its effect in other theatres of war.

CANADIAN TROOPS IN ACTION REPELLED A GERMAN ATTACK

Artillery Operations Impeded By Violent Rain Storms

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Once again the Canadian troops have been in action at Ypres. Word to that effect has just been received by the Militia Department here. According to reports the Canadian troops repelled with great success that part of the German offensive which was directed against their trenches, leaving piles of German dead on "no man's land" in front. Casualties among Canadians it is stated were small and comparatively insignificant. Reports state that the German attack was preceded by heavy artillery bombardment, which caused the Canadian troops temporarily to retire from their first to their second line trenches. When the enemy did charge, however, the Canadian troops were thoroughly organized and met the advancing masses with a withering and sustained volley of rifle and machine gun fire. Effect of this fire was deadly in the extreme.

"There are many Germans in our trenches," the report says. "Whole platoons of them, in fact, but they are all dead Germans. Our losses were very slight."

The trenches attacked, it is stated, extended over a length of about 4,000 yards. Those which were temporarily evacuated were soon afterward retaken.

LINDSAY TRIAL IS PROCEEDING AT THE ASSIZES

Prisoners Plead Not Guilty To Five Charges Including Two of Murder —Charles Stevens Convicted of Assault

JUDGMENT RESERVED

"Guilty," with a recommendation for leniency, was the finding of the jury in the case of Charles Stevens, who was indicted on a charge of having committed criminal assault. The case went to the Jury this morning, and the above verdict was returned shortly after eleven o'clock. Sentence was reserved. Chief Justice Mulock dismissed the Petit Jurors until 3 o'clock this afternoon, with the exception of the jury sitting on the Lindsay case.

The five charges against Sandford Lindsay and his wife are as follows:

Sandford Lindsay.

1. That of causing the death of his fourteen-year-old daughter, Lily May Lindsay.
2. That of committing incest.
3. That of causing the death of the unborn child of Lily May Lindsay.

Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay.

4. That of causing the death of Lily May Lindsay.
5. That of causing the death of an unborn child.

Pleaded Not Guilty.

The prisoners, through their counsel, pleaded not guilty to all five charges. This morning the charge of incest was proceeded with against Sandford Lindsay. The latter manifested a keen interest in the proceedings. The prisoner presented a much cleaner appearance than he did at the preliminary hearing. Even at that it is difficult to appreciate the taste of an evening contemporary which described Lindsay as a 'handsome' man.

Mr. Frank Arnoldi, K.C., of Toronto, is appearing for the Crown, and Mr. D. O'Connell and G. N. Gordon of this city for the defence.

Provincial Detective Boyd of the Provincial Police Department, is present at the hearing. He took an active part in the investigation following.

LEACOCK TO-NIGHT

The greatest interest is being evinced in the lecture to be given to-night by this genuine humorist, and a packed hall is confidently looked for to be there in good time and not risk being disappointed by not getting in. Those attending are asked to give generously to the collection, which will be taken up by girls in Red Cross uniform.

The entire proceeds are to be divided equally between the local Red Cross Society's "Prisoners of War Department," and the local "Belgian Relief Fund." Everybody is giving their services entirely free of charge, even the talented lecturer pays all his own expenses. Thus there will be no deductions for expenses. The contribution given by the citizens of Peterborough will all be donated to the two above splendid and deserving objects and should call forth the utmost generosity on the part of Professor Leacock's hearers.

NO SKATING TO-NIGHT AT BROCK ST. RINK

City League Hockey Games are on

As the City League games will be played at the Brock street rink there will be no skating to-night. It was announced that the Leap Year night would be to-morrow night, but wishing not to conflict with the big concert at the Opera House this special night has been postponed until next week. There will be skating to-morrow night.

93RD BATTALION INSPECTED TO-DAY BY COL. HEMMING

Officer Commanding The 3rd Division Visited Peterboro Unit To-day and Was Apparently Well Pleased With What He Saw---Sir Sam Hughes Defines Proper Conduct of a Soldier---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Col. Hemming, the O. C. of the 3rd Division, paid an official visit to the 93rd Battalion to-day, on his way East, from Lindsay, where he was in attendance at the military carnival of the 109th Battalion. The officer commanding the district closely inspected every man of the Peterborough Battalion, and also visited every part of the Armories, scrutinizing the kitchen, bunk rooms, etc., very narrowly. He visited the Band room and heard Bandmaster Hughes' organization play, afterwards commending the Band highly as one of the best, if not the best, in the Canadian Expeditionary Forces. Col. Hemming spent some time on the parade ground watching the different platoons at work, and seemed very well pleased with the stamp of men in the battalion, and with the progress they are making.

Neither wanton rowdyism or ruffianly misconduct is discipline, nor does either become a soldier. Such actions must find no place in the Canadian service.

"The donning of a soldiers' uniform does not exempt any man from his bounden duties and responsibility as a reputable citizen. On the contrary, being in uniform should be, and in properly constituted corps is, a guarantee of manly behaviour.

"History records that the ruffian rarely proves himself the bravest in the presence of the enemy. It is the self-controlled man who proves himself a true soldier.

"There must be no yielding to frenzy on either hand. This war requires cool heads, firm minds and controlled actions, backed up with the best armament."

These instructions are being sent to all district commanders, for transmission to all officers, whether of the militia or the overseas forces.

A supplementary report dealing with the alleged riot in Berlin, Ont., on Tuesday evening was received by Sir Sam Hughes, the Minister of Militia, to-night. It says: "Investigation shows that last night's outbreak was not preconceived. After securing the Kaiser's bust, a framed picture of King George draped with the German flag, and many other German flags were found. This was construed as an insult to the King and infuriated the men. Many civilians actually participated in the work of destruction. Two kegs of beer and bottles of whiskey were also found, although over a year ago the management decided that the Club would be closed during the period of the war. While asking protection this morning the Lutheran pastor (Mr. Tappert), reiterated that the stories of German atrocities were untrue."

The Norwood Register says: The local platoon of the 93rd added four recruits to its strength this week, bringing the number up to forty. The new members are: Lloyd Q. Enfield, H. Crester, T. Lamastra, Absond Eserie. The first mentioned is a well known local young man and a native of our village; the second and third named hail from the neighbourhood of Hastings, while the fourth is a six-foot Assyrian, who has traversed our Townships for the past few years selling his wares.

TO-DAY'S ORDERS:

Headquarters, Peterboro, Feb. 17, 1916.

President Falconer At Normal School Conference

This week-end the students of the Normal School are holding a Conference at the school for the discussion of questions which necessarily are of vital interest to those starting out in pedagogical avenues of life. The sessions of the Conference will be held Friday afternoon and Saturday morning, commencing at 1.30 p.m. and 9 a.m., respectively.

A great acquisition to the interest of the Conference will be gained in the presence of Dr. R. A. Falconer, President of Toronto University, who will give the address at the Friday evening session. The Normal staff and students extend a most cordial invitation to the public to be present at any or all of the sessions, and especially on Friday evening, to hear President Falconer, who requires no introduction to those interested in educational affairs. The Conference will close with a special service, conducted by Rev. J. P. Wilson, for the Normal students, in Trinity Methodist Church, on Sunday morning, to which all friends will be welcomed.

TURKISH ARMY IS NOW IN FULL FLIGHT

Russians At Once Took Up The Pursuit After The Capture of Erzerum Which Marks The Beginning of The Collapse of Turkish Military Power.

FAR REACHING RESULTS

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A despatch to The London Daily Mail from Petrograd says that the Turkish army is in flight westward from Erzerum. The Russians, it is said, at once took up the pursuit, and it is believed in the Russian capital that the retreat is likely to become a rout, even if it already has not become such.

May Capture Thousands.

The mountain regions through which the Turks are hastening are difficult to penetrate, and it is considered not impossible, according to word from Petrograd to-night, that practically the entire army of Turks, reputed to be more than 180,000 in number, will be either captured or dispersed into ineffective units. At any rate, it is felt both in the British and Russian capitals that the victory at Erzerum marks the beginning of the collapse of Turkish military power.

Joyfully Received.

The London Daily Mail's despatch reports that the conquering Russians were warmly welcomed by the Armenians. With the flight of the Turks the natives—men, women and children—turned out to hail the Russians as liberators, and to offer thanks for the expulsion of the Moslems.

General Judenich was in immediate command of the force that captured Erzerum, the fall of which is calculated to facilitate the capture of Trebisond, one week's march northward, and thus secure the Turkish gateway from Asia into Europe.

Far-reaching Result.

The Chronicle's military correspondent writes:

"Erzerum is the key to Armenia politically and in a military sense. Its fall undoubtedly means the liberation of the long-suffering Armenian race. After the war the Armenian nation, hitherto divided into the Caucasus, the Armenian provinces of Turkey and northwest Persia will be united under the Russian flag, for the Russians, once in Erzerum, will never again be driven out of it. The Turks retreating from the fortresses are at present a mere mob without equipment or cohesion. Supplies now cannot be got to them for many weeks, perhaps months, owing to the absence of roads and railways and the great distances. Virtually all of Armenia now lies open to the Russians.

"The immediate consequences of the fall of Erzerum will be threefold; the Turks (the right wing) in the Lake Van district are put in a precarious position and will be lucky if they win clear; Turkish pressure in Mesopotamia will at once be alleviated, for strategically all the theatres of war in Turkish Asia are one, and reinforcements will have to be drawn on towards the point of most danger; and for the same reason a Turkish attack on the Suez Canal will probably be postponed for an indefinite period."

DOORS WILL BE OPEN EARLY FOR THE BIG CONCERT

Grand Will Be Open at 7 O'clock To-morrow Night To Avoid a Rush—Orchestra Will Play For Thirty-Five Minutes

BIG CROWD GOING

Arrangements have been made to have the doors of the Grand Opera House opened at 7 o'clock, sharp, to-morrow night, for the concert and presentation of instruments to the Band of the 93rd Battalion. The concert, proper, will begin at 8 o'clock, sharp, and the early opening is to avoid a rush at the doors, as it is expected that the crowd will tax the accommodation of the Grand. The orchestra of the Opera House will play a programme of popular airs, from 7.20 to 7.55 p.m., and on account of the length of the programme the latter will begin sharp at eight o'clock. Mayor Duffus will preside.

A BIG BARGAIN IN ALUMINUM COOKERS

Four Quaker Oats Coupons and 90c Will Make You the Proud Possessor of One

"Are you a lover of good Oat Porridge?"

"Yes, when it is well cooked."

There can be no doubt that some of the magic that lies in the luscious flakes of Quaker Oats is in the cooking. On that point no one will care to disagree.

What is a well-known fact is that Quaker Oats forms a marvellous vim-food. They are batteries of energy. To "feel one's oats" signifies vitality. But in order to make certain that users of their Nature-endowed Oats may derive all the nutritive value they possess, the Quaker Oats Company have put within the reach of all a new cooking vessel for cooking their favorite cereal.

In practically every grocery store in this city and simultaneously throughout Canada, may be seen a window display of Quaker Oats products, and there is also shown an aluminum cooker which is being offered to the public for the purpose of enabling the housewife to get the very best results from Quaker Oats, so that the flavour and aroma is retained.

This cooker is made of pure aluminum and retails regularly for $3.00. They are specially made up and have a cereal capacity of 2 1-4 quarts. Aluminum is one of the metals that has had a recent rapid advance, selling a few months ago at 19c. a pound, it now brings 35c. It is only the fact that the order for these cookers was placed in advance that it is possible to supply them to the public at all and the furnished to the public at all and the manner in which they can be secured by the payment of 90c. and four coupons from Quaker Oats packages, makes it possible for every home to have one. The offer is made from February 21st to March 4th, and it is suggested that if you desire a cooker that you arrange with your grocer early for it.

KINGSTON, Feb. 17.—"C" battery of the R. C. H. A. is arranging to have a Sportsman's Battery. Lieut. E. B. Savage of Montreal, a graduate of McGill, and also a member of the M. A. A. A., has taken up the matter, and it is believed that more than enough men will be secured to fill up such a battery.

NERVOUS SOLDIERS.

This war is making Canadians nervous, uncertain of temper. We have had recent exhibits of lawlessness and destruction of property. One does not like to charge these things against the essentially lawless spirit of Canadians, but rather against their temper. Canadian soldiers have enlisted to fight; they feel, even, if the drill sergeant does not think so, that they are as fit to fight, as they are ready; they are spoiling for a fight—and if they can't have the real thing, an imitation will do. It is to be hoped that the wrecking, by soldiers, of restaurants run by Germans, in Calgary was due to something like this spirit. The soldiers are entitled to considerable sympathy, and it is a question whether or not the responsibility of the destruction of the German eating houses in Calgary doesn't fall back upon the Government. The soldiers enlisted to fight the Germans, and they don't feel pleased to see the Government making pets of native-born Germans occupying fat Government offices where they have facilities for getting secrets that may be turned against the soldiers, themselves. The same influence may have been behind the action of the soldiers who wrecked the bust of the Kaiser's grandfather in Berlin, Ont. Both those actions are irritable as they are, only show that the temper of the Canadian people is "touchy"; that there is a point, beyond which tolerance becomes weakness, if not potential treason. Why shouldn't our citizens be exasperated over the danger and disloyalty of having Germans form an element in their government and the administration of their affairs? Still, soldiers, under discipline, wearing the King's clothes, should remember that such acts are childish, and are achievements for, perhaps, a mob to be proud of, but unworthy of men who have enlisted for warner work than sacking a kitchen or knocking a helpless bust on the head.

OUR LIFT LOCK ECLIPSED.

Peterborough, with good warrant, has reason to be proud of her lift lock, both as a triumph of engineering accomplishment and as a show feature of the city. But its glory, is on the edge of departing; the lift lock is in danger of eclipse. We have been boasting that we had the only hydraulic life lock on this continent, and the biggest of its kind in the world. The new locks on the Welland canal will throw our lift lock into the shade. The difference in level of 325 1-2 feet between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario is to be overcome by seven lift locks. These locks have great dimensions—800 feet in length, 80 feet in width in the clear and 30 feet of water over the mitre sills at extreme low level. Our lift lock is a canary bath in comparison; with a length of 140 feet, a width of 33 feet and 8 feet deep. But the new lift locks haven't us beaten yet. Their lift is only 46 1-2 feet, while ours has one of 65 feet. We can boast of being superior in the matter of uplift, even if we are eclipsed in the matter of mere bulk. We don't envy the Welland canal its big locks. It is a great work, one to be proud of and a tremendous feature of our transportation facilities. If we had the exploiting faculty, the publicity genius of our Yankee cousins, the Welland canal would rank, in the matter of claims for greatness, as a great engineering utility, with the Panama canal. The chief point of superiority of the Panama canal is that is adjustable—built on the sliding scale—while the Welland canal is solid as the firm-set earth, exempt from land slides, and needs fear no destroying element but the German bombsters or an earthquake. Welland and Lincoln counties, not being in the earthquake belt like the Panama canal, and in danger of earthquake disturbance. It may be no mere idle fancy to imagine that the land slides on the Panama canal are due to subterranean vibrations that cannot be measured by seismographic instruments, but operating persistently exercise accumulated force that may produce the land slides.

A BAD EXAMPLE.

Chief Justice Meredith has laid down the only true and safe policy of dealing with the foreign — hostile — element of our population in Canada. In commenting upon the case of an alien enemy he said: "It must be the general safety first in all things, always." We must not be fatuously, foolishly tolerant. Of course it comes hard to Canadians, who have never enjoyed anything but the widest personal liberty, the fullest freedom of thought and expression of opinion to resort to coercive and restrictive measures. We have Germans, as a class, the most virulent and dangerous alien element, occupying positions of most important trust under the Canadian government—positions in which they can, if so minded, secure information to be turned over to the enemy and to represent very great danger to Canada and Imperial military interests. Can we imagine a Canadian having a position of any kind in Germany except in a jail? With evidence of the outrageous activity of alien enemies in Canada, the destruction of property and loss of life, the temper of the Canadian people is not inclined to tolerate official encouragement and patronage of a dangerous element. We are fighting, with men and money and munitions, the German nation. We need every mother's son, every possible dollar and every ounce of lead to do the work. The government is the responsible administrator of a trust, the constitutionally created agents of our discharge of duty. We look to the government for light and leading—we look to the government for example, for an attitude and a course of action that will stimulate recruiting. Will any young man be incited to enlisting enthusiasm, when he sees the government keeping Germans in positions of possibilities of danger, in the choicest places of emolument? To take the very lightest view of the matter, the government, in retaining in positions of trust, the most dangerous kind of aliens, is setting a bad example. Safety first forbids the government taking chances by keeping foreigners in positions of trust and of possibility of doing tremendous harm. It may seem a hardship to separate these Germans from their fat salaries, but Canada has better use for her money than having it possibly employed against ourselves. It is a greater hardship to see our public and munition buildings blown up and our fellow citizens killed. Shouldn't we avoid the patriotic absurdity of possibly, and probably, paying money for plotting against ourselves.

UP TO PEEL COUNTY

The electors of Peel county are facing a grave responsibility. The re-election of Mr. Fallis to the Legislature would be nothing short of a mandate from them for profiteering at the expense of the public. While they would be speaking for themselves and their own constituency only, their action would undoubtedly have a wide influence, it would be taken as an indication that the people of Canada sanctioned the sort of boodling that Sir Charles Davidson condemned at his inquiry into the horse-buying operation of Fallis.

If Fallis were to be upheld in his actions by the people who, behind every court in the land, stand as the final judges, a dangerous encouragement would be given to men with opportunity before them of similar profiteering elsewhere.

The return of Fallis would be a straight approval of his horse-buying operations, for, the turning over of his profits to a Peel county battalion in no way mitigates the offence. He gave the money, which did not belong to him, to a patriotic purpose solely because of the pressure of public opinion and not because he had any compunction about keeping what was not his. He apparently, still believes that it was proper for his to step in between the government and the farmer and take a profit for doing nothing. If Peel county re-elects him it will be telling him to do the same thing over again if he gets a chance.

Even the most partizan Tory voter can surely not afford to have his constituency sanction the action that was so roundly condemned by Sir Charles Davidson. What of the man who condones that which is wrong? Is he not a party to the guilt?

Peel county will surely not establish a precedent for the whole of Canada—a precedent to the effect that the people of Canada approve of such profiteering as that carried on by Fallis.—London Advertiser.

UNITED STATES CITIZENS PAYING BACK FIGHTING DEBT THEY OWE CANADA

Fifty thousand Canadians entered the Federal army in the War of Secession and fought under the Stars and Stripes. The sympathies of seventy per cent. of the American people are on the side of Britain and her Allies in this war. This sympathy finds expression in various ways. Chief among these is the formation in Canada of an American Legion recruited for overseas.

In an editorial dealing with the establishment of this American Legion, The Boston Transcript writes of it as "a particular recompense for a similar service done to this country by the Dominion more than half a century ago. The fact is that Canada or Canadians gave as much very practical aid in that war." Two-fifths of the Canadians who fought in the Civil War were killed or wounded. Much has been made of the Confederate plots that were hatched in Canada, and too little credit given the men who crossed the border to fight in the Federal ranks. This is due to the fact that the Canadians were incorporated in the United States army as individuals, and did not form separate regiments. The Americans in Canada are acting differently. They are forming an American Legion, and may be large enough ultimately to form several regiments. That the action of these American citizens in our midst is warmly approved by the bulk of American opinion on the other side of the border is evidenced by the attitude of the responsible Press. The Boston Transcript says:—

"It would doubtless be a breach of neutrality to enlist recruits for that legion in this country. But there is now law forbidding Americans to visit Canada and while there to enroll themselves in the American Legion. To what extent it is legally permissible for citizens of this country to send to that legion contributions toward its equipment is an interesting question. But doubtless those who, while not able to enlist themselves, would like to feel that they have in some way added to the efficiency or to the comfort and safety of those troops will find a method of doing it which will not involve them in trouble with the Department of Justice. Certainly the career of the legion will be watched with interest by multitudes in this country who have no personal interest in or relationship to any of its members, but who, instinctively sympathize with the spirit which led Kosciuszko and Pulaski hither from Poland, and Lafayette and De Kalb and Steuben hither from France, for the last-named, though a German, came from France and under French patronage. The soldiers of this legion are not mercenaries nor soldiers of fortune, but, rather knights-errant, offering their lives, without hope of distinction or emolument, for a cause which they believe to be the cause of America as well as of Great Britain, and in a supernational sense the cause of humanity and righteousness."

Canadians are gratified beyond measure that, despite every effort of the enemy to cause a rupture between the United States and Great Britain, the great American people, "Who speak the tongue that Shakespeare spoke; the faith and morals hold which Milton held," point to the American Legion as an earnest of their desire to see the Allies victorious over Germany, and will follow with pride its fortunes on the field of battle.

AN APPEAL FOR THE ARMENIAN SUFFERERS

Cable messages received by the Committee of Mercy from American Consuls and American Missionaries who are doing their utmost to relieve the desperate need of the Armenian refugees in the four Russian provinces bordering on Turkey and the Caucasus Mountains, emphasize the urgent need of funds to continue this humanitarian work. The suffering of these people is said to be beyond description.

The campaign for the relief of these refugees, inaugurated by the Committee of Mercy, is meeting with the endorsement not only of Americans, but of some of the most prominent people of Europe. Numerous cable messages commending and encouraging this campaign have been received from abroad by John Moffat, of the Committee of Mercy Executive Committee. Among these was one from Lord Bryce, in London, as follows:

"Friends of Armenia here rejoice to hear of your campaign of mercy. Terrible accounts reaching me of sufferings of refugees in Transcaucasia. Famine, exposure, disease. Needs most urgent. Fifty thousand estimated to have died since August. Treatment of Armenians exiled to Syrian deserts reported worse. Head of Armenian Church at Etchmiadzin implores representations by neutrals to Turkish Government on behalf of miserable survivors."

Ex-Premier Venizelos, of Greece, is another who is deeply interested in this relief work. He cabled as follows:

"Cordially endorse your noble intentions to relieve the heavily suffering Armenian nation. Thank you for permitting me to participate in the work.

Sir Gilbert Parker, in addition to endorsing this relief work, has expressed himself in no uncertain terms concerning the terrible existing conditions. His cable message was, in part, as follows:

"Most warmly approve and support your great national campaign in aid of the Armenian sufferers. That the crimes of the Lusitania and Persia should be repeated upon Armenians is natural and to be expected. They both have their origin in the same organization and design and are offenses against civilization. High and skilled ability plans the scheme and low brutality carries it out. The world is aghast at these hellish incidents belonging to a complete and remote barbarism. The United States is revolting at the crimes and will desire to relieve those who have suffered by them, just as the American people have deliberately and effectively relieved the necessities and lightened the sorrows of all belligerents during the war."

Minister of Foreign Affairs Briand, of France, has also given his strong endorsement to the relief campaign. The following cable was received from him.

"The French Government voices to you and to your colleagues of the American Committee which is to give assistance to the Armenian its appreciation of your generosity and enterprise. Heartfelt gratification for the grand American Nation for its consideration of the Armenians. This is a new expression of sympathy and is applauded for its merit."

Sir Edward Grey, cabling as the representative of the British Government, expressed himself as follows: "His Majesty's Government cordially sympathizes with the humane and benevolent object of your Committee and earnestly hopes that it will meet with a generous response."

It is to aid these sufferers that the Committee of Mercy is appealing to generous-hearted Americans for contributions. One hundred cents of every dollar contributed for the relief of the Armenians will be devoted in full to this purpose; all administration expenses are borne by members of the Committee. The actual work of relief is being and will be done by American Consuls and American Missionaries. They will purchase and distribute all articles, this serving as a guarantee that the proper supplies will be placed where they are most needed.

Contributions should be sent to Charles R. Crane, Treasurer, the American Committee for Armenian Relief, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

GERMAN SUBS.

LONDON, Feb. 16.—The London Daily Mail expresses the opinion that 1st March, when the German memorandum comes into effect respecting armed merchantmen, will see the inauguration of a German submarine campaign with newly-built vessels of an alleged tonnage of 5,000.

These vessels are reported to be capable of crossing and recrossing the Atlantic without needing fresh fuel or water, and, according to The Mail, they will act as long-range commerce destroyers.

PRISONERS ARE CONTENT

Those Confined at Bischofswerda Have Plenty of Amusement.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Reporting a visit to the Bischofswerda prisoners' camp where several Canadian officers are interned, the American representative says that two Canadian orderlies have been brought to the camp, bringing the total number of British officers' servants to seven, a fair proportion in view of the fact that there are only thirty-nine British officers, including Canadians, prisoners. There was some dissatisfaction on the part of the officers as to the amount of fatigue work which their servants were called upon to perform, but as ten more non-British orderlies had just come, the commandant thought this would soon be rectified.

The senior British and Canadian officers, majors, share a good-sized room, and generally the British and Canadian officers room by themselves, with one or two officers of other nationalities where there are accommodations for ten to a dozen persons.

About a month ago, owing to the unsuccessful attempt to escape, concealed in a box, which has been made by an officer prisoner, certain privileges, such as football, a daily bath, the use of wine and beer and the unrestricted receipt of letters and parcels, had been suspended for a few days, but all had now been restored. Some time ago the practice was introduced of permitting officer prisoners to take walks in the neighbouring country in company with German officers, and on their parole on each occasion.

Military Or Moral Significance of The Fall of Erzerum

The capture of Erzerum by the Russian army, under the Grand Duke Nicholas, is a great historical event and fully warrants the victorious leader's Psalm of Thanksgiving. "God," he says, "has granted the brave troops of the army of the Caucasus such great help that Erzerum has been taken after five days' unprecedented assault. I am inexpressibly happy to announce this victory to Your Imperial Majesty." Why this Cromwellian fervour? the reader may ask. Because, to the orthodox Russian the fall of Erzerum has a deep religious significance. The capture of the city in which a few months ago the Turks committed unspeakable atrocities in the extirpation of the Christian population is more than a victory of Russian arms over the Turkish army. The Russian peasants see in it a triumph of the Cross over the Crescent, an earnest of the day when the Mosque of St. Sophia in Constantinople shall be restored to its former place as the mother church of the orthodox religion.

* * *

Apart from its symbolism, the occupation of Erzerum is of great military importance. The city is one of the oldest in Armenia. It has been ruled by Persian, Roman, Saracen, Seljuk Turk, and Ottoman. It was a frontier fort of the Eastern Roman Empire fifteen hundred years ago. The Turks have held it for four hundred years. Twice during that time the Russians have been temporarily in possession. In 1829 they took it by storm and garrisoned it for two months. In 1878 they occupied it for a few months by consent while negotiations were proceeding for the peace established under the Treaties of San Stefano and Berlin. On that occasion they had unsuccessfully attacked Erzerum after capturing the Camel's Neck—or Camel's Hump—range to the east, on which the earthworks and forts defending the city are located. During the opening months of the present war the Russians again got almost within striking distance of Erzerum, but the defences were then too strong to be tackled, and Turkish reinforcements shortly thereafter drove the Russians back within their own frontier. The roads of Armenia centre in Erzerum, and now that the Turks have been deprived of the use of the Black Sea ports, their armies in Armenia, in Mesopotamia, and in Western Persia are likely to come to grief for lack of supplies and ammunition. Urfah, near railhead on the Bagdad Railway, is the nearest point from which relief can come by rail, and Urfah is over 250 miles from Erzerum as the crow flies, with great mountain ranges intervening. If any considerable part of the Turkish army has been cut off in or near the city and forced to capitulate, there is nothing to prevent the Russians from sweeping half way across Asia Minor before the veterans of Gallipoli can be thrown into action against them.

MAKE DIVORCE CHEAPER

W. M. Northrup Will Submit His Case to Parliament.

OTTAWA, Feb. 16.—Parliament will have a discussion on the question of Divorce. W. B. Northrup's resolution is to be considered. Mr. Northrup wants the powers of the courts extended so that they may deal with divorce cases as well as ordinary actions, and so reduce the present cost of divorce applications through Parliament.

The German Spy System And How It Is Being Operated

One of the outstanding characteristics of the German race is their close attention to detail. When the German empire became an established fact in 1871 she almost immediately started to organise, establish, and distribute her spies, on the most stupendous and complete systems ever known. Spy system on very large scales were in existence in many countries. Here again, the German development of detail was brought to play. She had just become an empire and was being recognised as a power in world parties. Her ambitions soared to great heights. She looked forward to the day when her Emperor would be another Alexander an dthe whole world dominated by Germany. Through her spy system she immediately sent men into all important countries. Small storekeepers, merchants, professors, diplomats, men and women in all walks of life were employed. Where their business did not pay the secret service of Berlin met the deficits. And in these later years, when considerable payments in cash weer required for dynamiting and similar outrages, the men were supplied throuhg consular channels under fictitious headings, as shown in the papers taken from Von Papen, an officer attached to the erman embassy at Washington. They formed a large and powerful silent army preparing the way for the actual fighting forces. For forty years and more they had regularly and systematically collected detailed information of every sort, both military and commercial and sent it, by code to German headquarters where it is elaborately classified and card indexed. After a few years of such service a spy has so compromised himself that he dare not refuse to do any act which his superiors order. Needless to say, when any spy was suspected of double dealing, the system soon eliminated him. That is one reason why the ermans knew with such certainty exactly what to expect at every point in their advanec toward Paris, and how they caught the allies so totally unprepared when their preparation was most complete. It explains the case with which so many munitions and powder works have been injured throughout the U. S. But it does not explain the coming doom of the German Empire. That is due to her misplaced faith. Justice and right are the belief of the strongest part of the world and these forces are bound to overcome the German idea of might, and restore peace before long.

FIRE ESCAPE LED TO HEART OF ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Poverty is not the only bugbear that makes love leave by the window. When Mrs. Adelaide Brown Oxenham's father entered the door Gino Terrelli left by the fire escape, according to evidence in the Supreme Court yesterday before Justice Greenbaum. Alfred J. Oxenham, assistant cashier of the National Bank of Commerce who is living at No. 730 Riverside Drive apart from his wife, is seeking a divorce.

Mr. Oxenham never was near the fire escape at his wife's home in No. 4,536 Park avenue, the Bronx. But several others say they were. One of them saw Terrelli's foot, another his arm, and another his face. Always he was on the fire escape either coming or going—more daring than Romeo—they said. He did not much care what happened so long as he found his beloved at the top of the winding iron stairway.

Charles G. Matthews, who lived in the house, said he grew worried about the manner of Terrelli's entrance. He suggested the door.

"You are likely to get shot as a burglar," he said to Terreli one night as he passed his window. He says Terrelli replied absently, "I know it."

Mrs. Mary Ellinger, of No. 200 East Twenty-seventh street, said that Mrs. Oxenham had told her that her first husband fell dead from heart disease and she introduced Terrelli as her second. Prior to her "second marriage" she permitted Terrelli to come up the fire escape when her father was asleep in his rooms, it appeared. At times when the parent was out Terrelli entered by the door with his own latch key.

Justice Shefield, who recently obtained a divorce in New Jersey, his wife having written the "Dream Boy" letters, conducted the case for Mr. Oxenham. He asked Miss Charlotte Lundeberg, of No. 2,249 Valentine avenue, the Bronx, what she saw when she lived in the Park avenue apartment. "I saw a man's foot as it went through the window of Mrs. Oxenham's bedroom one midnight," she said.

Could she identify the foot? She could not.

Mrs. Caroline Matthews said she heard a noise one night in January, 1915, and on investigating said, in a frightened voice, to Mrs. Oxenham "There's a man on the roof." Mrs. Oxenham put her head out of the window and replied, "It is only a tenant locked out."

Mrs. Oxenham lives now at No. 343 East Fifty-seventh street. Although there is apparently no fire escape suitable as a road to the heart, she is accused of misconduct with Terrelli there as well as at the Parkavenue address. The case will be continued today.

Identifies Man Who Gave Signal To Shoot Baff

"Second Gunman" Found in the Nappanock Reformatory, According to Witness.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Joseph Zefarano, who received $300 for his part in the murder of Barnet Baff according to the evidence that is now in the possession of District Attorney Swann and the police, was identified as the man who gave the actual signal to the other "gunmen" to begin firing upon the poultry dealer.

The identification was a climax in a day that was exceedingly fruitful to the District Attorney. Guiseppi Arichiello, "first gunman," who has confessed that it was his well-directd shot that killed Baff, made the identification which more deeply incriminated Zafarano than anything that yet has developed.

Zafarano was being questioned and cross questioned by Mr. Swann and his assistants, James O'Malley and John J. Dooling. Detectives were stationed about the room. Without any intimation of what was coming, the door opened suddenly and Arichiello appeared in the doorway, handcuffe to Detective Di Martini. Mr. Swann asked:

"Archiello, is there any person in this room who was present at the murder of Baff?"

Gave the Signal, He Says.

Archiello evidently was surprised. But recovering quickly he walked with the manacled detective straight to Zafarano. He placed his hand on Zafarano's shoulder and said:

"This is the guy who was with me and who raised his hat and gave the signal to shoot."

It was like a bomb to Zafarano. He jumped up and lunged toward Arichiello, but the little man did not move. Two detectives grabbed Zafarano and pinioned him, pushed him against the wall and held him there until his arms were fastened behind him. Meantime Di Martini led Arichiello out of the room and back to the Tombs.

The prosecutor's men continued to question Zafarano all the afternoon but just what results were obtained was not fully revealed. Mr. Swann said he had asked Zafarano if he had divided money in the saloon of Ippolito Greco, in East 10th street immediately after the murder. Zafarano admitted he had. When asked why he had been paid the money he said, "It was complimentary."

The District Attorney was particularly pleased with the result of the meeting of the two men. It established the third definite identity, Frank Ferrara, the chauffeur, who admitted having driven the "murder car," completely identified Arichiello, the "First Gunman," even before he saw him in the Prosecutor's office. The "First Gunman" later confessed; Ferrara confessed his part and now the idetity of the man who gave the signal for the assassination is believed to be revealed. Further Mr. Swann announced that the "Second Gunman" had been found, according to confessions in the hands of the police and Prosecutor. He is believed ot be in Nappanock Reformatory after conviction for a hold-up on November 9, 1915, when Joseph Termeni was robbed of his money and watch and rings. It had been reported that the "Second Gunman" had been murdered, but Mr. Swann, looking up indictments to learn if he had any aliases that might lead to a man wanted, found a trail. Witnesses of the murder were sent up to the reformatory and these witnesses it was said, picked Carmelo Russo out of a line of prisoners. They positively identified him as the man who fired the first shot.

First Shot did Not Hit.

According to the confession made by Arichello, the "first gunman" shot, but did not hit Mr. Baff. The fatal shot, it is contended, was Arichiello's. Russo will arrive in the District Attorney's office this morning, and the District Attorney will question him and probably have the other prisoners face him.

Details of the business rivalry and dealings of Mr. Baff that preceded his murder were told to the District Attorney by a man who was a merchant in West Washington Market at the time. Mr. Swann would not reveal this man's name, but allowed him to be questioned at length in the Prosecutor's office. The man said that Mr. Baff came to the market as a factor in 1910, when there was a bitter warfare among the shippers. Mr. Baff worked as a free lance, fixed prices, made his own shipments, and had his unloading done himself. He cut under others, making enemies. He antagonized the chicken handlers and the union because he ran his place on an open shop basis.

The District Attorney's informant told of the troubles with the men in Hoboken and Weehawken and reviewed at length the story along the same general lines which have been known since the murder. He said that the live poultry business amounted to about $20,000,000, and of this Mr. Baff had controlled about $2,000,000. In July before the murder, the informant said, a fund was collected, apparently to block a strike. Every dealer was asked to contribute, and Mr. Baff gave $200. No checks were accepted. The money, it was declared, went to the "inner circle," which is supposed to have been instrumental in bringing about Mr. Baff's assassination. The informant said that the "small fry" the retail kosher dealers, were the ones most affected by Mr. Baff's shrewd methods.

NEARLY CAUGHT ARCHDUKE.

Russians Made Surprise Attack on An Austrian Outpost.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 17.—Attacks which have so far been feints have been made on the Archduke Josef Ferdinand's positions on the Styr-Chomin front. The Austrians here were surprised and nearly lost their archducal commander. Our men crossed snow-covered march country which had not borne traffic the day before. An increase in the frost made it passable. Austrian outposts were overpowered, and a dash was made into a thinly manned advance trench behind which was seen a group of staff officers riding along the front of the second trench. From prisoners it was later learned that this was the archduke and his staff. The archduke and his suite galloped away leaving a dead orderly.

I was treated by different doctors for 3 years, and only got temporary relief. My son advised me to take Gin Pills, and after taking the first 2 or 3 doses I got relief. I continued to take them until I got completely cured. I owe my life to Gin Pills.

Mrs. W. P. Adamson, $1.00.
Miss Carveth, $1.00.
Mrs. W. C. Austin, 50 cents.
Mrs. Bain, Downie Street, 8 pairs of socks.

The League wish to extend a hearty vote of thanks to the many knitters who made possible this large shipment of socks in such a short time, and trust that the ladies will keep up the good work, so that there may be just as large a shipment for next month.

The next shipment will be the breaking of Spring and the mud and water in the trenches will be at its worst. Let the comforts of all at home only help to remind each one of the discomforts of the boys in the trenches who are so nobly fighting our battles.

The following are the addresses to which the four different boxes were to be delivered in France:

Says Lincoln Is Most Dangerous Spy At Liberty

After Whirlwind Campaign in Which He Won Seat Dropped From Sight.

Ignatius T. Lincoln, British member of Parliament, self-convicted spy and accused forger, now said to be on the Atlantic Ocean, after eluding the most elaborate dragnets of the American secret service, is one of the most daring and dangerous emissaries of the Kaiser, according to James Alderson, tenor soloist of the St. Paul's Cathedral. Mr. Alderson met Lincoln in the Old Country.

Referring to the recent exposes of Lincoln, Mr. Alderson says that is the first time in seven years that he had appeared in the public eye.

"He is wanted badly in England, and is probably the most clever and dangerous spy at large," said Mr. Alderson. "I first met him at Darlington, England, during the last general election. That constituency had been Conservative for over thirty years, the seat being held by Pike Pease, son of Sir Joseph Pease. Lincoln was brought into Darlington by Seebohm Rowntree, the famous candy manufacturer. He was a natural born debater, and a fine looking man. He was introduced as an Austrian, and his speeches on tariff reform swept the constituency, and he was elected over Pike Pease by 500 majority.

Disappears With Money.

The Conservatives then got busy looking up Lincoln's antecedents, and he suddenly disappeared mysteriously. A large sum of money belonging to the Rowntree firm, which had taken him into its employ, also disappeared. From that time until he was captured in New York nothing was heard of Lincoln.

It is believed he had important plans of Darlington, Hartlepool and other districts, and gave information of great value to the Germans. In the recent raid on Hartlepool an attack was directed against the great works of Sir Christopher Furness, probably from plans furnished by Lincoln.

Wonderful Ability.

"He is a most dangerous man because of his initiative, daring and his unusual cleverness. I met him at a Liberal dinner during the election campaign, and came in contact with him many times later.

"An idea of his ability can be gained from the fact that in three months he was able to get himself elected over the strongest man in the district, and in a seat that had been held by the Opposition for over thirty years. If he should get over into Canada he will make things lively."

PELL IN A PAINT.

Mrs. Edwin Martin, Ayer's Cliff, Que., writes: "Before using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I was in a terrible condition. Dizzy spells would come over me and I would fall on the floor. I could not sweep without fainting. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has so built up my system that I can walk and do my housework. Your medicine cured me when doctors had failed."

Dr. GRENFELL'S LABRADOR MISSION

Have you made your contribution? If not do it now? Do you know anything about this real man of God, who is endeavouring to change the wilderness of Labrador and make it to blossom as the rose?

Trying to give these hardy fisherfolk half a chance. "Hard work, simple life, a call to exercise both mind and body would do a great more for many who talk Christianity at home; but do very little at it except to nurse their own souls and incidentally coddle the bodies to death."

It is essentially British to get up and go out into the world. It is largely this spirit that has made our Empire." So writes Dr. Grenfell.

Coming to Labrador more than twenty years ago, establishing hospitals, schools and mission churches. Putting up small sawmills, and stores, by which he broke the unjust Barter principle of trade! Developing reindeer herds, brought from Europe, so as to give the people fresh meat, driving out the illegal liquor traffic, thus he sought to develop, safeguard and make morally strong these hardy people, whose only source of livelihood is fishing, and whose prospects are often cheerless and almost hopeless.

He is their good Samaritan, their physician, their philanthropist. Recognised as such by the great Christian leaders of Europe and America, and especially honoured by our Sovereign George V.

Here is your chance to do your bit! Have the satisfaction of sharing in this good work.

Send in your offering to either "Review" or "Examiner."

Girl 15 Years Old Lays Her Downfall At Door of Father

Authorities Hear Sordid Charges Against Leamington Man.

CHATHAM, Feb. 17.—A serious charge was made in the county police court by a fifteen-year-old Leamington girl against her father, who, she alleges, was responsible for her arrest on a charge of vagrancy and prostitution.

It was during her evidence in her own behalf on the charge of vagrancy that she made the serious charges against her parent. This was the first intimation that the court authorities had received, and the girl was induced to tell all. She related several instances, alleging her father had committed offences against her, in reply to which the father had no statement to make.

It is understood that steps will be taken to prosecute the man. The girl was made a ward of the Kent Children's Aid Society and has been found employment in a local home.

Roosevelt's Cousin Breaks Down In Court

Sobs at Trial of Annulment of Marriage is Heard.

NEW YORK, Feb.17.—John Ellis Roosevelt, in testifying in the suit for annulment of his marriage with Mrs. Edith Hamersley Roosevelt, broke down and sobbed when he declared that despite her coolness to him he loved her still.

Mr. Roosevelt is more than 60 years old, his wife less than 35. Just how old Mrs. Roosevelt is, Mr. Roosevelt is unable to learn, as she steadfastly refuses to tell him, he said. From what could be gathered, he judged her about 33 now. Mr. Roosevelt is a cousin to Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

The couple were married Jan. 6 1914, in Washington, and have since lived in Sayville, L. I., and at the Roosevelt town house in New York. Mrs. Roosevelt left him and brought suit for separation on the charge of cruel and inhuman treatment. Pending trial, alimony of $400 a month was granted, the allowance being based on her computation of Mr. Roosevelt's income of $60,000 a year.

"WAKE UP!"

To Be Presented Here Next Week

"Wake Up!" the multiple reel patriotic photoplay which is coming to the Grand Opera House Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Feb. 22, 23 and 24 and will be shown twice daily, matinee and evening, has been running in England for the past year and until last week had never before been shown in Canada.

The picture was produced with the assistance of the war authorities and the Boy Scouts and used largely for recruiting purposes on the other side, as the appeal to the every British subject "Wake Up!" carries is a strong one showing the imaginary invasion of England's shores and the horrors of invasion.

At the first presentation of the film at the Palace Cinema theatre Kentish Town Road London, over two hundred Englishmen answered the call to the colours as a direct result of the picture's appeal.

All in all "Wake Up!" is an epoch making film and no true Canadian should miss this great opportunity to see the picture that electrified all England. This wonderful film is now being shown in Toronto at the Grand Opera House.

Emery Titman Weds June Levy

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Feb. 16.—Emery Titman, reputed to be worth $3,000,000 son of the late head of the Penn Reduction Company, of Philadelphia, this afternoon married Mrs. Annie Smiley Corkey, of Middletown, N. Y., a divorcee, known to the stage as June Levy. The wedding was held in the shore home of his mother, at No. 208 South Vermont avenue. Immediately afterward the couple went to New York.

Efforts had been made to keep the ceremony a secret. The couple first appeared at the Bureau of Vital Statistics at City Hall last week, but as the young woman did not have her separation papers they were unable to obtain a license. On Saturday afternoon, after the City Hall had been closed, they coaxed Register Glenn to issue a license, but only a few of their friends were aware of this.

The Rev. Thomas W. Davis, of Philadelphia, known as the "baseball pastor" performed the ceremony. Alfred Cump, of Philadelphia, was best man. Mrs. H. F. Eccles, of Brooklyn sister of the bride, attended her. W. Ernest Shackleford, of this city, was sponsor for the couple.

Mr. Titman, who weighs more than 400 pounds, has been a familiar figure here for many seasons. Because of his size he always attracted attention, and as a daily "sun bather" on the beach he was known to thousands.

Minister of Militia Gives Commons Details of the Rumpus at Berlin

OTTAWA, Feb. 17. — Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, this afternoon made a statement to the House of Commons in reference to the disturbances in Berlin, Ont.

A Lutheran preacher named Tappert had been making assertions that the conduct of the British in the present war was as bad as that of the Germans. Such utterances had caused trouble, and last evening ten or fifteen soldiers had visited a hall where German flags and a bust of the Kaiser were stored. The flags had been destroyed and the bust carried off. Sir Sam said that the authorities had been instructed that soldiers had the same privileges of the law as civilians, and also were liable to the same penalties. An investigation was being made by the Militia and also the civil police. Alien enemies had been treated pretty leniently by the Government, but seditious utterances and actions would not be tolerated, said Sir Sam.

Orders Issued.

Gen. Hughes gave to the House the following orders he had issued to each commanding officer as a result of the Berlin and Calgary disturbances:

"Neither wanton rowdyism nor ruffianly misconduct is discipline, nor does either become a soldier. Such actions may find no place in the Canadian service. The donning of a soldier's uniform does not exempt any man from his bounden duties and responsibility as a reputable citizen. On the contrary, being in uniform should be, and in properly constituted corps is, guarantee of manly behaviour. History records that the ruffian rarely proves himself the bravest in the presence of the enemy. It is the self-controlled man who proves himself a true soldier. There must be no yielding to frenzy on either hand. This war requires cool heads, firm minds, and controlled actions backed up with the best armament."

German Chancellor Intimates That Germans Will Sit Tight Holding The Territory Conquered By Them As A Basis For Trading When The Peace Negotiations are Undertaken—To Depend Upon

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—In a recent speech the Imperial German Chancellor indicated that Germany would make no more offensive moves on land, but would sit tight holding the territory conquered by her forces with the intention of using her territorial gains as a basis for trading when peace negotiations were undertaken. In making his announcement, the Chancellor was repeating the views of the German General Staff, which has concluded that it would be a waste of men and money without commensurate strategical gain, to take the offensive on land. It is understood the purpose of the German Government is to depend mainly for the future on the activity of her submarines in harassing enemy commerce.

ARTILLERY UNITS ARE SAFE IN OLD ENGLAND

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—The official announcement was made to-day of the safe arrival in England of the troopship Metagama, which sailed February 5th with 79 officers and 1,592 men, including the 8th and 9th Artillery Brigades, fourteen Naval Flight lieutenants, and army service corps detachment.

The Peterborough boys in the 33rd Battery were on the Metagama.

STRONGER AIR FLEET URGED FOR BRITAIN

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 17.—A warning that German supremacy in the air may within the near future render England's supremacy on the seas of no avail in repelling disaster, was sounded by several aeronautic experts to-day in comments on yesterday's Zeppelin debate in the House of Commons. They say unless England awakes to the danger, and begins building mighty battle fleets, she cannot longer enjoy isolation from Europe because of the superiority of Dreadnoughts and battle cruisers. "We must be as strong in the air as we are upon the water," says the Times. "There is little use in keeping the enemy out by water, if ever he can strike at us effectively from the air."

GERMANY HAS SUBMITTED A COUNTER PROPOSAL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17.—Great Britain must give pledges that passenger liners will not fire on submarines before Germany will instruct its commanders not to fire on such vessels without warning. This, in effect, constitutes the counter proposal from Germany to the United States objection to the plan to sink all armed ships after March 1st. This became known to-day following a twenty-minute informal discussion of the new submarine issues by Secretary Lansing and Ambassador Bernstorff.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Violent storms along the western front last night not only impeded all artillery operations but held the infantry to their trenches. The War Office this afternoon reported no change in the situation.

In the Artois region the wind and rain storm reached its greatest violence. Shelters were blown down, trenches flooded, and the roads converted into seas of mud impassable to auto trucks.

Call on The Government To Restrict Exportation of Power

Hydro-Electric Railway Association of Ontario in Session Yesterday—Resolutions Adopted—Mayor Duffus of Peterboro Elected to The Board

Restrict exportation of power to United States.

Restrict expansion of private electric companies.

Urge early statement of Government policy.

Improve Port Stanley Harbor.

Obtain authorization for final surveys and rights of way for radials.

The above is the substance of unanimous resolutions adopted by the Hydro-Electric Radial Association of Ontario at its session in the Council Chamber yesterday morning. One hundred members were present, presided over by Mr. J. W. Lyon of Guelph. The resolutions are to be urged on the Government at the next session.

The resolutions to restrict exportation of power and extension of private electric corporations was moved by Mr. R. Stirett, of Petrolea, and seconded by Mayor Burgoyne of St. Catharines. It read as follows: That the Government be requested not to approve of the proposed investment in additional works of the Canadian Niagara Power Company and the Ontario Power Company to their plants at Niagara Falls, and that all companies operating at Niagara Falls be prevented from investing any additional capital in works which are not modern. Also that the Government of the Dominion of Canada be respectfully requested to restrict the amount of power to be exported by each of the said companies to the amount now being actually developed and exported to the United States by the Ontario Power Company and the Electrical Development Company, and in case of the Canadian Niagara Power Company to a maximum of 50,000-h.p.

Mr. W. C. Bush, of St. Catharines, moved that the Government refuse extension of existing charters for electric companies and also refuse to grant any new charters in districts now served by the Hydro.

Mr. G. J. Thorpe of Guelph asked that the Government be again requested to provide subsidies for construction of Hydro lines.

Controller Morris of Hamilton, commented on the way the people had sold their birthright up to the present. "We have given hundreds of millions to private corporations. It is high time we began to subsidize ourselves," said the controller.

Mr. J. W. Lyon—"It would be a queer thing if a Government that built good roads should neglect a revenue producer like the Hydro.

Improve Port Stanley.

A resolution asking the Government to provide money for deepening and improving the harbor at Port Stanley was approved. Mayor Stevenson of London stated that the harbor was falling into disuse, and something must be done immediately.

Mr. J. W. Lyon—"Why should the Government grant $25,000,000 to improve Toronto harbor, and totally neglect the other?"

The resolution was carried unanimously. Mayor Stevenson added that the expense involved would be only about $715,000.

Mr. D. B. Detweiler, of Berlin, was sponsor for a resolution that the Hydro-Electric Railway Association of Ontario apply to the Government for a charter incorporating it as a provincial company. The object, he said, was to make sure that municipalities would pay for surveys when they asked for them in future.

For Expansion.

Ald. Maguire, by resolution, called on the Government to pass legislation which will allow the municipalities to guarantee the bonds for further development of the Hydro from the Niagara and Chippewa rivers.

Ald. Maguire stated that 116,000 horsepower was sufficient for the present, but in two years would be insufficient to meet the demands. He stated that Sir Adam had prepared the estimates, and that a sum of ten million dollars would insure 500,000 horsepower.

Finances Good.

The finances of the Association show a balance of $184.45 in the bank. The total expenditure for the year ending February 24th was $3,-167.57, while the receipts from membership fees and subscriptions totalled $3,341.57.

Officers Appointed.

The following officers were appointed:

Hon.-President—Sir Adam Beck.

Hon. Vice-Presidents—Hon. I. B. Lucas, W. K. McNaught.

President—J. W. Lyon, Guelph.

Vice-Presidents—Mayor Church, A. F. Wilson, Markham.

Third Vice — Mayor Stevenson, London; Mayor Duffus, Peterborough Mayor Walters, Hamilton; J. B. Ryan, Guelph.

Treasurer—G. Powell Hamilton, of Guelph.

Secretary—T. J. Hannigan, of Guelph.

SHORTAGE OF SOCKS AMONG BOYS AT FRONT

Mr. J. G. Colmer, the London Secretary of the Canadian War Contingent Association, the great Canadian Society that has done so much for the well being of our troops in the field, has informed the National Service Committee in a recent cable that there is a great danger of a shortage of socks.

Mr. Colmer gauges the shortage from the steady increase of requisitions from officers in the field with whom he is in touch, and in the interests of the soldier's comfort and efficiency, further shipments of socks from Canada are immediately imperative. The women of Canada have shown amazing generosity and energy in supplying socks but the great and increasing need must urge their knitting needles to fresh efforts.

Socks and other field comforts can be contributed through any national organized woman's society or they can be sent direct to the shipping point, Reid's Wharf, St. John, N.B. They should be addressed to the Canadian War Contingent Association and plainly labelled "Field Comforts."

Cash contributions should be sent to Mrs. Bruce, Treasurer, National Service Committee, 77 King street East, Toronto.

TIRED OUT KIDNEYS

Kidney troubles are so frightfully common because the kidneys are so easily upset by overwork or excesses in eating and drinking. Cure is effected not by whipping them on to renewed effort but by awakening the action of the liver and bowels, by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This rests the kidneys and makes them well. Backache and urinary disorders then disappear.

Immense Variety of Comforts Sent To The Canadians Overseas

One of the miracles of this war has been the immense and efficient organization which has been built up to supply the troops in the field with the various sinews of combat. A most surprising thing has been the efficiency of the volunteer organizations instituted by civilians to send comforts to the trenches. One expects a government service to be well organized, similar perfection of system can only be got from volunteer workers when a whole country is inspired with a patriotic desire to render service.

An idea of the services rendered by our Canadian public in this regard can be gained from the December statement of the Canadian War contingent Association, the chief medium for sending Canadian Field Comforts to the front. This statement contains a list of the various articles sent to the trenches in one month Their variety is extraordinary and is good proof of the accurate knowledge the Association has of the innumerable wants of thousands of men.

The list is headed by socks—17,450 pairs or a total of 70,800 pairs since October. This is a war of socks, as well as of silver bullets. In the matter of clothing, 10,012 mits, 3,206 woollen helmets, 7,484 mufflers, 2,584 body belts, 2,000 shirts and 500 towels were also sent, to protect our men against the rigours of winter.

To supplement the Government food ration, 140 lbs. of cocoa, 615 lbs. of cake, 13 cases of curry powder, 1,371 lbs. of confectionery, and Oxo, milk-coffee, condensed milk, tea, gum and other edibles in like quantities were shipped to the kitchens of the various battalions.

An item of 4,200 cakes of soap brings vividly before one's mind the trench mud. The 184 candles on the list also recalls another condition of warfare. Too much light is a dangerous thing in the trenches. The candles also are useful in trench cooking, although for this purpose the "Tommy's cookers," of which the C.W.C.A. sent 192, is the trench range par excellence.

The Association also pays attention to the soldiers' need for recreation. Its December shipment included 14 foot-balls, 98 games of draughts, 18 sets of quoits, 9 sacks of newspapers in addition to boxing gloves, gramophones, baseballs and playing cards.

In the way of smokes the Society shipped 1,000,000 cigarettes and nearly 2,000 pounds of tobacco. It does not forget the soldiers' desire for personal neatness. It sent toothbrushes, tooth paste, combs, talcum powder, shaving sticks and brushes, together with vaseline and razors.

This generous supply of toilet articles explains one of the chief differences between the French and English soldier. The French "poilu" lets his beard grow to record lengths. The English and Canadian privatee have an almost religious cult of the razor.

These comforts and this evidence of the solicitude of our people at home are of great importance in keeping our troops in good condition and good spirits, and the supply of field comforts by contributing to victory will have an appreciable effect on the duration of the war.

Persons wishing to send Field Comforts can do so through innumerable societies in Canada—in fact any branch of any national organized woman's association. Those wishing to send direct, should ship their comforts to Reid's Wharf, St. John, N B., addressed to the Canadian War Contingent Association, and plainly labelled "Field Comforts". The C. W. C. A. will do the rest and have the goods in record time in the trenches where they are most needed

THE TURKS DESPISE GERMANS

"When This War is Over and Islam Triumphs, Woe to Jenebet Germans," Writes Mahometan.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—"I resent emphatically the constant imputation that the Turks and the Germans are alike. We are above the Germans—the civilized world ought to recognize this fact—and our culture is superior to the German kulture," writes Hadji Avnoullah Mahdi Bey in 'The New Armenia," published in New Jenebet (Polluted) Germans." He continues.

"People call us the tools of the Germans, but it is the Germans who are our tools. We needed a powerful European ally for the triumph of our Moslem religion, and Germany was anxious to serve our purpose. They have served us in every capacity—they have furnished us with money, ammunition, aeroplanes, submarines, battleships—but, nevertheless, we despise them.

Atrocities Repulsive

"Another mark of inferiority of the Germans to us is manifested in their cruelty toward their co-religionists. As long as the Germans are presumably Christians they have no right to murder the children of the Belgians and the French, to dishonor their women, or to bombard their cathedrals. No Mahometan would ever dishonor a Mahometan woman or intentionally destroy a mosque. Our Koran enjoins us to wage eternal war against giaours who say that God is Christ. But Germany has no right to act as though she were Mahometan.

"We must keep our alliance with Germany until our aims are attained. Accompany the devil until you have crossed the bridge! When this war is over and Islam triumphs, woe to the jenebet Germans! Then Germany will appreciate the meaning of the prayer that every pious Moslem has to repeat daily.

"'Oh, Allah! destroy the giaours, Thine enemies, the enemies of true religion. Oh, Allah! make their children orphans and defile their abodes; cause their feet to slip; give them and their women, their children and their relatives, their brothers and their friends, their possessions and their race, as booty to the Moslems!'"

COST OF LIVING IN BRITAIN

Average is 47%, But in Berlin it is 83%, According to London's Latest Figures.

LONDON, Feb. 17.—According to statistics published by the British Board of Trade, the retail prices of food in the United Kingdom advanced on the average of about 1½ per cent. in January. Flour and bread increased in price about 6 per cent.

Taking the country as a whole and making allowances for the relative importance of various articles in the working class household expenditure the average increase in retail prices of food since the beginning of the war has been 47 per cent.

The Board of Trade states that in Berlin the general level of prices of certain more important articles of food was 83.4 per cent. above that of July, 1914."

Kaiser's Deeds Are Denounced By a German-Born American

Mr. Henry, of Chicago, Says Bureaucracy is to Blame for Plunging a Good People into War Which Will Set Them Back a Hundred Years

SPRINGFIELD, Feb. 17.—One of the strongest supporters of the Allies, in this city is Mr. Henry Helme, architect, who was born in Germany. Mr. Helme, who has offices in the Ferguson Building with his father and brother, is the designer of some of Springfield's largest business structures.

Mr. Helme told me he hoped the Kaiser would be banished. 'Germany is in the wrong in this war,' he said, "and she will rue the day she ever thought she had the slightest chance to win. The Germans in this country do their best to discourage the Kaiser and the whole brazen bureaucracy. They are to blame for plunging a good people into a war which will set back the German nation a hundred years."

"Look at the start Germany had over her enemies, and yet, after a year and a half of fighting, what has she accomplished? She has made her name a synonym for barbarism and deceit, and yet the shameful atrocities that have been perpetrated in the name of Germany are not the conscious acts of the German people, but of their contemptible rulers. No true German upholds for a second the murder of the Lusitania victims or the cowardly slaughter of women and children, which is the Kaiser's prized specialty. The best thing that can be said about the Kaiser is that he is insane.

"Like a caged wildcat, Germany is clawing at everything in reach. The Allies will have only just attained their finest fighting fettle when she lies prostrate at their feet. My heart aches for the German people."

Roumania Holds Key to Situation From Iron Gates To Black Sea

Control of The Danube Would Render Her Valuable Ally To The Teutons, But German Drive to Aid Turkey Would Have To Be Made Through Serbia and Bulgaria

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The possibility of Roumania siding against the Allies is attended with the danger of the Teutons using the Danube to push submarines and destroyers into the Black Sea. The Danube is navigable from Vienna to and through the Iron Gates for vessels of 1,000 tons, drawing not more than ten feet of water. The Iron Gates are at the junction of the Hungarian and Roumanian frontiers. For a distance of sixty miles before reaching the Iron Gates the Danube passes through a narrow defile in the Transylvania Mountains.

At the exit of this defile is a series of rapids which until 1896 barred the passage of all craft. These rapids were denominated the Iron Gates. In 1896, however, a ten-foot passage, navigable for 1,000-ton craft, was effected through the Iron Gates, and this piece of engineering connected the Black Sea not only with Vienna but with Prague, and the entire system of German inland waterways.

Below the Iron Gates, the Danube deepens, until a depth of eighteen feet is attained as high up as Braila. Just below Braila is Galatz, an important shipbuilding point, and one to which vessels of 7,000 tons are accessible. The lower reaches of the Danube, that is, below Galatz, are kept open to deep draught craft by constant dredging. This dredging is necessary, since the swift and turbid waters which flow from the north frequently form large shoals with great rapidity.

The Austrians have maintained for many years a fleet of monitors on the Danube, but owing to the neutrality of Roumania it has not been possible to pass these vessels through that portion of the Danube lying below the Iron Gates. If Roumania sides with the Teutons it may reasonably be expected that the Germans will make use of the Danube to reach the Black Sea with undersea craft and even armoured monitors.

Roumania a Fertile Country.

Roumania's wheat fields yield sufficient in normal times to take care of the wants of the entire United Kingdom. In general the Roumanian country is given over to agriculture, but along the lower Danube there are many industries and manufacturing plants. Roumania under the impetus of natural growth and need of expansion has long coveted the Transylvania territory to the westward. The danger to the Allies lies in the possibility that concessions in the Transylvania region may have been proffered Roumania by the Austrians as a reward for the former's aid.

Roumania has means of her own for supplying her army with munitions of war, but in the main the Balkan States are deficient in factories and arsenals for producing projectiles, artillery, and ammunition for small arms, as well as small arms factories. As late as 1913 Bulgaria was endeavouring to induce English and American interests to erect a small arms arsenal in that country. Serbia possesses a small arms factory largely equipped with American machine tools; but Roumania, Serbia, Bulgaria, and Greece have made a practice of purchasing field guns and fortress artillery from Europe.

The Serbian and Roumanian artillery is mostly of French make, the Serbian guns having come from Le Creusot and St. Chamond, while the Bulgarian artillery is almost wholly it is understood, of Krupp make. The Greek artillery and Greek war equipment has been largely purchased in France. In recent months the Greeks have made extensive purchases for their military services in the United States market.

The Balkan Peninsula is only one-fourth larger than the United Kingdom. This estimate includes Montenegro and the Austrian provinces of Bosnia and Herzegovina. Except a the cities and principal towns the population is scarce. The general character of the country is mountainous, with well defined valleys and watersheds.

Railways are not numerous, and those in operation are maintained largely as through means of communication with European points beyond the Danube. The Orient express runs from Constantinople to Paris. There also is through connection by the same express between Constanza, in Roumania, and Paris. The train from Constanza connects with the Orient express from Constantinople at Szegedin. The through trains to the Balkans all run through Budapest, and thence to Vienna.

The train for Constantinople follows the valley route from Belgrade to Nish, thence crosses to Sofia, in Bulgaria, and continues on to Adrianople and Constantinople. Salonica is reached over the Orient route by branching off at Nish.

The note of the Orient Express is the military note for any Teuton advance through Serbia toward Constantinople. If the German-Austrian forces propose crossing from Serbia into Bulgarian territory they will in all likelihood do so to the south-east of Nish.

When the Russians advanced toward Constantinople in 1878 they did so along a north and south line through the centre of Bulgaria. Both the north and south frontiers of Bulgaria are lined with mountain ranges and in crossing on the north the Russians had first to take Plevna. This place was held by the Turks with the greatest stubbornness. The southern range of Bulgarian mountains was crossed by the Russians at Shipka Pass. The Russians constructed a carriage road across the Shipka Pass, the highest point being 4,000 feet. The descent on the southern side is too abrupt for a railway, but the northern side is open to railway gradients.

The climate of the Balkans is hot in summer, and in many parts, particularly in the north, it is very cold in winter. By far the greater part of the peninsula has a full month of weather in the winter time in which the mean daily temperature is below the freezing point.

While the principal commercial products of the peninsula are agricultural, there are sections rich in minerals. This is particularly true of Serbia, where silver, lead, iron, copper and coal mines all are worked to advantage. It largely is due to defective communications and sparse population that more mineral territories in the Balkans are not worked. Greece is the only country in the peninsula where the mineral products take a chief place in the exports.

The chief cities on the peninsula are Adrianople, near Constantinople; Philippopolis, higher up; Sofia, the capital of Bulgaria; Nish and Belgrade, the latter the capital of Serbia; Athens and Larissa in Greece, and Yarina in Albania. Nish is an important place, due largely to the fact that it is the principal junction points of waterways on the peninsula.

In any drive down through the Balkans the city of Nish would be a natural objective. From Nish it would be a natural [illegible] Athens would be possible to control all the avenues of advance or approach of any opposing force coming from the south.

CHIEF SURE FIRE WAS SET

Believes Series of Blazes Were Begun in Reading Room.

OTTAWA, Feb. 17.—Under oath before the Parliamentary Fire Investigation Commission yesterday afternoon Fire Chief Graham maintained that the fire had been deliberately set. His opinion is that a series of fires were set by chemicals in the paper files in the reading room. His main reasons for this belief are the rapidity with which the fire spread and the several explosions which he is positive occurred. He denied ever giving an interview supporting the theory that inflammable liquid had been substituted in the fire extinguishers.

FAREWELL DINNER AND PRESENTATION

To Four Young Men of The A. W. Cressman Store Who Have Volunteered For Overseas Service

A farewell dinner was tendered four departing members of the staff of A. W. Cressman Co. last evening, at Hooper's Palm Parlours. The four young men who have enlisted with the fifty-second battery for overseas service, are Messrs. E. Raynor and G. Emory, from the men's clothing department; S. O'Brien of the carpet department, and Charley Telford from the Advertising Office. Mr. A. Newton, advertising manager and window trimmer, has also volunteered, but is not leaving for a few weeks. This makes eight men from the Cressman store who are now serving their King and country.

During the evening each of the young men were presented with wrist watches.

At 7 o'clock twenty of the male members sat down to dinner. Mr. Harry Cressman, in the absence of his father, Mr. A. W. Cressman, taking the place at the head of the table, and acting as chairman. The guests of honour had places on either side of him. After the good things had been partaken of a very happy time was spent in speeches and music. Remarks, in glowing testimony of the ability and splendid services rendered, were made by Mr. Harry and Mr. Fred Cressman, the latter assuring the employees who had volunteered for overseas services that on their return, if they so desired, their positions would be open to them. Speeches were also made by Mr. M. Hutchison of the Carpet Department, Mr. Bates and Mr. Schleuter. Two vocal numbers were also given by Mr. Douglas Carlisle, and recitations were contributed by Messrs. Schleuter and Raynor. Altogether a very pleasant time was spent, the young soldiers being assured of the hearty good wishes of every employee of the store for a safe return.

Shipped A Bale Of Supplies

The Peterborough Progressive Club has lately shipped to Miss Plummer of the Field Comfort Commission a bale containing 250 pair of socks. Of those 58 pairs came from the ladies of Bridgenorth and 7 pairs from the ladies of Central Smith.

Three bales have been forwarded to the Red Cross containing 800 pads 6 x 7, 480 pads 9 x 12, 200 pads 9 x 16, 400 compresses, 1500 sponges.

MISHAP TO SLEIGH PARTY

While returning from Indian River early this morning, a team of horses attached to a light sleigh filled with young people, ran away. The occupants were thrown out and a number of them sustained slight bruises. A part of the sleigh was located near the Albion Hotel, East City, while the horses were found on Sherbrooke street.

Norwood Register: Glimpses of khaki may be seen on every street in our village, morning, noon, and night, and "The Military" has now become a part of the village life. The platoon of the 93rd on its route marches through the town presents a most trim appearance, and is a sturdy-looking body of men. At noon the Company usually marches to the main corner of the Village where dismissal takes place, which attracts considerable attention on the part of the civilians. The sight of so many men in military attire swinging along our streets is indeed a strange one for a people who have known little of war. The realization that we are at war is becoming stronger and stronger, and a grim determination for the prmotion of our cause marks every life.

Mrs. William Conway, 386 Downie Street, has received the following interesting letter from Miss Mabel Douglas, nursing sister with the British Expeditionary Forces:

West Mudros, Lemnos.

Dear Mrs. Conway,—Christmas is as far away as ever again. I have time this afternoon, so I thought you would all like to know how I spent it. Well, we girls all decided that we would give our orderlies and N. C. O's. a good Christmas dinner, and we all felt they deserved it; and the officers thought the idea was good and they chipped in and helped us. We sent to England for our puddings and we bought turkey, etc., and gave them a good feed. We had the tables set in Ward 6. We had 145 men; we bought lots of red and green and yellow wrapping paper at the village stores and made chains like the little kiddies make at school and we were fortunate to get Chinese lanterns at the British Red Cross, and we made great big mottoes, cut out of the coloured papers. One was "O, You Canada" and "A Merry Christmas" and so on. We had lots of flags, and our tables lit up with candles, and you have no idea how pretty the long ward looked. We had the chains strung from one side of the Ward to the other, and really we didn't miss the "greens" at all. The M. O's. looked after the patients in the wards, and we waited on the boys. I had the head table, the N. C. O's—sixteen of them. Dinner was served at 6.30. My, the boys enjoyed themselves. After dinner they had toasts—one to the King, one to the Sisters, and one to the Officers, and then they sang songs — "Auld Lang Syne," "O Canada," and "The Maple Leaf," and one boy sang a solo, about mother waiting for her boy's return; we had several speeches, and the boys dispersed at 10 p m. We all enjoyed it so much; we washed the dishes and cleared the room, ready for the patients again after the boys left. Next morning, (Christmas), Capt. Khurnig administered Holy Communion to any Protestant denominations. Most of them were English Church, and poor me, was fixing up some presents for my patients. I had made a lot of fudge the day before and bought lots of nuts and oranges, besides what the Matron gave us, and when I got over to the tent where service was held, it was over, so I had the Sacrament with my patients in the Ward, and then at 10 o'clock a few of the girls, with Capt. Khuring, and a goodly number of boys, went from ward to ward, and sang Christmas hymns, and by the time we got to the last one I was hoarse. I felt sure that the patients appreciated our weak efforts. I went for a long walk in the afternoon. It was like a beautiful June day; we didn't need a wrap. I was down to the harbour to see the troops come in (Indian). It is only three minutes' walk, and in the evening we entertained the Officers to dinner in our Mess room. We had it decorated just the same, and it was a great success, but I enjoyed the boys the best; the joy of helping our boys who have done so much for us, and, believe me, the Orderlies have done their bit at the war. The Germans tried to give us a Christmas box—dropped two bombs on us, but both fell in the water. There was another aeroplane over us on Monday but both bombs they dropped did no damage, and one visited us again yesterday. This is the first time they have been visiting us. Of course it is the troops they are after. We do not feel at all nervous. I have great faith that I am coming back to you all, and won't it be lovely to meet you all again on Monday nights! It is rumoured we are leaving here and I guess we are; but I cannot tell you anything, but if we go and when we arrive in our new field I will cable Mr. Mulholland. I hope my boxes come soon. Brockville have sent me three and I have heard of about five more, counting yours. I would love to have them for the New Year. They will not only make me happy, but I will make so many more feel happy.

This is one perfect day—like a day in July. The rain and wind storms are few, not more than one a month and then we have lovely sunny weather. I have seen most beautiful sun-sets and sun-rises. I wish I could only paint. Last evening the sun-set was blood red. I never saw such decided lines of scarlet on the pale blue and gold sky. We went to the Village on our hours off and, coming back, we stopped so many times, watching the sun set behind the chocolate and amethyst hills. We are only realizing the beauty of the place, and have enjoyed it so much now the flies are away, and we are so well.

I had a 'snap' of myself taken among a crowd of Indian soldiers. If I can only get it developed I will send you one. That is the trouble here, to get some one to develop them; no paper on the Island; every one has used what they brought and their solution.

Excuse me for using my copying pencil. It is the handiest just now. Give my love to all the girls.

Your loving friend,
MABEL K. DOUGLAS.

The Havelock Standard says: Last night the local detachment were entertained at Trent River by the members of the Epworth League of that place. All report a most enjoyable time.

The total strength of the local platoon was raised to 42 on Monday by the addition to the ranks of Pte. "Micky" Hogan and I. A. Post of Oak Lake.

Mrs. Hester Mathison has presented the local platoon with two handsome brass bugles as the nucleus for a bugle band. The soldier boys appreciate very fully the kindness of Mrs. Mathison which is but another evidence of her well known generosity.

The "Valentine Party" held in the basement of St. John's church on Monday night for the soldiers was a big success, and all enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The members of the Girls' Guild were the fair entertainers and their efforts to entertain the boys were certainly appreciated. The basement was appropriately decorated with emblems of St. Valentine and a feature of the event was the artistically prepared valentines for the lads' guests. Each valentine contained the name of a soldier and each fair lady has to claim that particular willing boy to khaki as her partner for the evening.

The road is hard,
The end is far.

The Colonel's riding in his motor car,
Puffing at the end of a big cigar.
While we just tramp along.

Chorus:—
Tramp along, Tramp along,
Swing those arms and sing a little song,
Keep in step, keep in step,
Now, boys, show a little Pep.

The Colonel slams,
And the Major swears,
The Captains ball things up for fair,
The Adjutant goes right up in the air,
But we just tramp along.

Chorus: Tramp, etc.

At the end of each verse the Battery lets out a yell which sets the echoes rolling around the Mountain.

Certificates of qualification at the School of Cookery, Kingston, have been granted to Sergt. Cook H. Wride and Lance Corp. J. Bath of the 93rd Battalion. Incidentally it may be remarked that the quality of the meals served at the armouries is an endorsation of the certificates received from the Kingston school.

The Norwood Register says: A hint that the citizens are not giving the platoon here all the co-operation that perhaps they might, has reached our table. If there is ground for any contention of this nature it has entirely been an oversight. All are proud of the fact that Norwood can boast a platoon. But aside from this there is a pecuniary benefit to our town generally.

The forty recruits here mean a pay roll of over four hundred dollars each week. Such is worthy of ever reasonable concession, and if we are a live community the town should not lack in its generosity. Ample entertainment should also be provided the boys and in this our churches and other societies might render good service. The few weeks that the boys will have to spend in their home town before leaving for their arduous tasks, should be made as pleasant as possible. Let us co-operate in so doing.

Before leaving the topics we do not think it is too early a date to suggest that some plans be made by the village towards giving the platoon a fitting farewell on its departure.

A new system of payment of separation allowances to wives of married soldiers, etc., while their husbands are serving in Canada has been adopted by the government. Henceforth no separation allowance will be paid from Ottawa, but instead the wife, or widowed mother will be paid 60c. a day by the paymaster of the battalion to which her husband or son belongs. The result figures out about the same financially. For this year at the rate of 60c. a day the wife or mother will receive $237.90, whereas under the system of $30 a month payable from Ottawa she would have received $240.60—a net loss for the year of $2.10 or a monthly difference of 17 1-2 cents. In favour of the new scheme is the fact that the separation allowance will be paid as promptly as is the soldier's pay, whereas under the other system there were frequent delays.

The new system will not be adopted in the case of the soldier whose wife or mother reside in the United Kingdom. It will apply to the 93rd Battalion, but not to the 38nd, 33rd, 34th overseas batteries, the 58th, 77th and 80th battalions or the engineers' training depot Ottawa.

Mrs. Archie McBride has received a letter from her husband, Corporal Archie McBride of the 4th Battery, C.F.A., at the front, in which he asks that his hearty thanks be expressed to the ladies of St. Peter's Church for the Christmas gifts he received from them.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Two Peterboro Rinks To Play Bonspiel Final on Hard Ice

Main Series Sifted To J. E. A. Fitzgerald and W. H. Taylor Who Decided To Postpone The Game Until The Soft Spell Spends Itself.

THE CONCLUDING ROUNDS

W. H. Taylor's rink is the sole remaining obstacle to Jack Fitzgerald's duplication of his capturing the first honours of the local bonspiel. It was J. E. A. "Fitz" who swept and curled his way to the first prizes last year. He is up among the prizes again right now, but the two skips agreed to postpone the game until colder weather returns with keener ice. Fitzgerald's rink is certainly a good one. That statement needs no further demonstration, but at the same time Billy Taylor has to be considered. He has come just as far as Fitzgerald, and been through a series of trying contests. With both rinks on their mettle this big final should be a "hum-dinger," as Mr. Tooley would say.

The Third Round.

The third round of the primary games returned the following scores:
Giroux 12; Fitzgerald 15.
R. Hicks 6; McCallum, Cobourg 10.
J. H. Connal 14; Davis, Bobcaygeon 6.
Neale of Glanford 10; W. H. Taylor 15.

Semi-Final Round.

Fitzgerald 14; McCallum 6.
Connal 2; Taylor 9.

Final.

Fitzgerald vs. Taylor.

Ice Became Sticky.

With the rapid change in temperature yesterday the ice quickly developed a stickiness that seriously obstructed good curling. Any game resolved itself into a series of snipings, and in not a few cases the rings were kept open by this method of play, and the last stone counted. Dozens of them failed to reach the hog line, and just as many bounded against the back wall when the curler, unable to estimate the force required, delivered his stone with more than the necessary steam behind it.

The heavier going, however, did not eliminate the sharp contest for every end; the change was mainly in the method of getting them.

The rinks for the finals are as follows:

R. P. Best	G. W. Fitzgerald
Alex Archibald	Dr. Wightman
Harry Foote	Archie Moore
J. E. A. Fitzgerald	W. H. Taylor
Skip.	Skip.

BONSPIEL NOTES

George Giroux gave Fitzgerald a battle in the third round, but a six end proved his undoing, and proved a fatal setback.

Billy McCallum of Cobourg cut short Bob Hicks' flight in a close game. The Cobourg skip turned around and held on to Fitzgerald for a considerable distance, but his latter ends were practically thrown away.

What Birss of Brampton did to Morrow of Port Hope was a shame. Twenty to one was the widest score of the bonspiel. The Port Hope skip counted just one end.

This Glanford rink made a fine impression. There are only fifteen curlers in their club, although the membership is about 80. Glanford is a hamlet about ten miles from Hamilton over the mountain. Jack Knapman says he played there thirty years ago with most of the visitors. Skip Geo. T. Neale will certainly be welcome any time he comes this way.

Secretary Knowlson of Lindsay, wrote that a counter attraction, a military carnival, kept the Scugog Club at home. Lindsay curlers were missed, for they are usually battling somewhere in the neighbourhood of the prizes.

Ridpath of Lakefield is a heady skip, and under his tuition Lakefield should have some good curlers in a few years. This is the first year they have had ice. County Magistrate Langley vices for the Lakefield rink.

Ex-Mayor Bradburn of W. M. Lang's ring did the first real day's work yesterday in a blue moon.

Walter Oke, leading for Giroux, is the most ardent and industrious sweeper of the whole lot, and at the same time plays a good lead.

Eddie Hare of Oshawa and his rink are a credit to the Oshawa Curling Club. The skip was one of the smallest men in the bonspiel, but he has a stout heart. He never quit, but plugged along with a combination of perseverance, skill and determination that is bound to win curling games. Andrew Statler, his vice, registers with a little hop every delivery Hare makes.

Charlie Cheverill was in charge of the lunch room up under the roof and dispensed sandwiches, coffee, cheese, etc., etc.

"Billy" Campbell of Keene is the first outside skip I ever play against," said Mr. T. F. Matthews last night when some one remarked that they had been put out by Campbell.

Jack Moore carries the khaki into the prizes anyway. He was a conspicuous figure during the bonspiel, and had only one other comrade, a soldier on the Norwood rink.

Herb Martin went out in the first game of each round, but just the same he played as many of the others as he could get an eye on.

Forsyth of Claremont, dispensed a line of subtle comedy last night, of which the following is an example. "I'd a broke the world's record for jumping one time, only I lit too soon," or "I'd a been a big man by this time if I hadn't stopped growing," etc., etc.

W. H. Bradburn played a good second for P. Lang throughout the bonspiel. They've had three days on it, or thereabouts.

Jack Fitzgerald's is a dependable rink. He assembled it, coached it, of course with Harry Foote's assistance and any rink that defeats him are going some. It's a smooth working curling machine.

Eddie Hare of Oshawa And Wm. Lang Playing Off The Finals In The Consolation

Eddie Hare of Oshawa and W. M. Lang of Peterborough, began the final game in the consolation series at the curling rink this afternoon. They play sixteen ends on ice that is fairly good, but sticky and heavy enough to make sixteen ends a day's work. To get into the finals, Lang defeated in the consolation round, Field of Cobourg, Dela Fosse, Okt of Port Hope, Giroux and Matthews; Hare went farther in the main series, but in the consolation trimmed Needler of Millbrook, DeLany of Cobourg, Allen of Cobourg and Connal of Peterborough.

The two rinks facing each other this afternoon are:

Oshawa	Peterborough
E. Mickel	W. J. Henry
G. Evans	W. H. Bradburn
A. Sothard	J. J. Moore
D. E. Hare, sk.	W. M. Lang, sk.

J. J. Moore is none other than Jack Moore of Keene. He is now in the 93rd Battalion, and Skip Lang went out of his way to get him on his rink, not only for his services but also to give him a chance to play in the bonspiel.

The concluding games resulted as follows:

Third Round—

W. M. Lang—16. Giroux—8

T. F. Matthews—9. R. Hicks—7.

Morrow, Port Hope—11; Davis, Bobcaygeon—8.

Morrow, Peterborough—12; Allen, of Cobourg, 17.

Hare, Oshawa, 21; DeLany, Cobourg 3.

Birss, Brampton, 9; Neale, Oshawa, 7.

Fourth Round—

Lang, 15; Matthews, 12.

Morrow, Port Hope, 1; Birss, Brampton, 20.

McCallum, Cobourg, 18; Connal, Peterborough, 12.

Allen, of Cobourg defaulted to Hare of Oshawa.

Semi-final Round—

Hare, Oshawa, 9; Connal, 7.

Lang, Peterborough, 12, Birss, of Brampton, 5.

Hard Game to Lose.

Jim Connal lost a hard game last night, or rather this morning, for it was 1.30 at its close, when Eddie Hare of Oshawa, came from behind and with the score in the last end 7-6 in favour of Connal, got a three-end that sent him into the finals. Connal had the better of the argument all the way. Hare was on the defensive and on a number of occasions counted ends when the layout looked hopeless. By continuous plugging he kept close to Connal and snatched a win with his last two stones.

Hare had one in an outer ring behind several side guards. The other side of the rink was open, and Dick Davidson had placed one well into the centre. Hare took it out and lay two. Removing this, and laying shot, would have given Connal the counting position, but his shot missed by several inches. Hare did nothing with his second and Mr. Connal tapped in one of the guards with his last stone, giving Hare three. The ice was very difficult to judge for width and weight.

Hare Leading.

The Hare-Lang game showed a score of 12-8 for the Oshawa manigoing into the thirteenth end. Lang scored three in the twelfth end, brightening his chances considerably.

In the final this afternoon Skip W. M. Lang of Peterborough won the final from Skip Hare of Oshawa by a score of 15 points to 13. Skip Lang had with him as lead Assessor Wm. Henry, ex-Mayor Bradburn, second, and Lance-Corp. Jack Moore of the 93rd Battalion, vice-skip.

WINDSOR TO REFEREE CITY LEAGUE GAMES

Pte. Windsor of the 93rd Battalion intermediates will referee the City League games at Brock street rink tonight. Two good battles are on the cards and there promises to be excitement all the way. The Pennants and East City teams play the first game, while the Bachelors and Americans come together in the second. The first game is called at 7.30 o'clock and as there will only be five minute rest periods the double header will be over much earlier than usual.

TRENT VALLEY TEAMS TO PLAY IN PETERBORO'

Peterborough hockey fans are to get an opportunity of seeing a Trent Valley League game on Thursday of next week, when Campbellford and Havelock, who are tied for the honours in their district, will meet in a sudden death game at Brock street rink to decide the issue. Both teams are running excursions to Peterborough and there will be all kinds of fun around the Brock street emporium when Tommy Moffatt's braves meet the Railroaders. The Campbellford team are well known here by reason of the O.H.A. games against the two Peterborough teams.

NO HAMILTON TEAM IN CANADIAN LEAGUE

Outlook in Ambitious City Grows Worse --Shareholders Decline to Enthuse

HAMILTON, Feb. 16.—The Times to-day says:—The meeting of the Hamilton Cahadian League baseball club scheduled for last evening was again postponed, but in all probability it will be held some evening this week. The cause of last night's postponement was due to the fact that Acting President Ballentine was unable to be present owing to the death of his brother.

It was learned this morning from a director that even if last night's meeting had been held there would have been little progress made, as the directors who waited on the shareholders were unsuccessful in getting them interested in baseball for the coming season.

It looks as if Hamilton will have no Canadian League team unless some new men come to the front and buy over the club, which has a $6,000 deficit.

President Fitzgerald of the league is expected in town on Wednesday.

NO MORE RUGBY FOR HAMILTON TIGERS UNTIL WAR'S OVER

HAMILTON, Feb. 17.—The members of the Tigers are so busy with the formation of the new overseas battalion that they have forgotten about matters pertaining to sport and the result is that there was not time for the annual meeting last night. The club, however, has hopes of being able to hold it at a later date, probably on Tuesday of next week, when the annual statements will be presented and the officers elected. Being an officer of the football end of the Tigers this year will be a comparatively easy task for it does not look as though there would be any rugby played here next fall. Nearly every member of the Tiger team is in uniform now and those who are not will be before another season rolls round. Athletes and the public realize that the time has come when any man capable of playing rugby should be "somewhere in France," so that the grand old game will be drooped until after the ball has been carried over the kaiser's goal line.

The members of the Tiger team that won the Dominion championship last season will each be presented with a wrist watch as a souvenir of the season which was not the best in history from a standpoint of gates or high class football but which furnished some interesting games.

ADOPT BRITISH STYLE.

Garmans Changing Pattern of Their Steel Helmets.

British Headquarters, Feb. 16. — The new British battle helmet is giving highly satisfactory results. It is declared that various reports testifying to the efficient protection afforded by the new steel headgear have been received from the front, and is more than one officer is directly credited with having saved life.

I have been shown a helmet which a soldier was wearing when struck by a German sniper's bullet. The character of the "bash" renders it clear that the light steel crown served to distract the missile, which would doubtless otherwise have found its target in the man's skull.

It is hoped that before long all the troops in the trenches will be wearing the new battle helmets.

I understand that the Germans have adopted a somewhat similar pattern metal helmet of a light grey colour.

Many women are among the 120 volunteers who are forwarding blood for wounded soldiers to Dr. Alexis Carrel's hospital in Lyons.

Crucible sold up to 82 3-4 during the opening hour. War speculation were the centre of what little activity and price movements there were during the hour.

Meanwhile marine issues were active and strong around noon and United States Steel moved upward. Coppers also showed strength while railway stocks were heavy.

KNOWLEDGE OF DANCING COMES LIKE A FLASH

In the Woman's Home Companion is an article by a 60-year-old dancer which proves that old as well as young can learn to dance and to dance well. In it the writer speaks of the moment when the beginner first forgets his feet and sails over the floor like an aeroplane. It is a moment, he says, that comes most unexpectedly, and after you have been struggling along for weeks you suddenly turn the corner and begin really to dance.

"One spring afternoon at the school while we were doing the new canter waltz into which the Hesitation has finally resolved itself, and the big phonograph was sending forth the inspiring 'Chin-Chin,' I turned the corner. I felt myself moved forward by a new and mysterious impulse. I had ceased to count the time. I had forgotten that I had feet or that the smoothly waxed floor under me was a floor. I was dancing with a slender graceful young instructor, whom I was leading—actually leading—swinging her about on the turn as if she had been a feather duster and cantering up and down with a light, easy step, as though I were on air. I caught Martha's admiring glance from the seat which she had just taken, and I was not surprised at the end of my turn to hear her say in a rapt little tone:

"'You got it to-day, didn't you?'

"'Yes I replied proudly; 'I got it.'

"And when we reached home after that lesson and wound up the phonograph we did dance. The hard work we had been making of it was no longer work—it was play, and play of the most delightful order."

Frank Confessions By Recent "Grads" From Sing Sing Prison

Dramatic Recitals Full of Thrills—Safe Cracker for 21 Years Bares His History

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—For the first time in the history of prison reform men who have spent the greater part of their lives in correction and penal institutions recently addressed under their true names a large audience in Carnegie Hall. They gave brief accounts of their wrongdoing and told what they thought led to their errors. What perhaps was most appreciated about the talks was that none of the men addressed the gathering without injecting here and there a spark of wit to detract from the pathos. Thomas Mott Osborne and Frederick Dorner, principal keeper of Sing Sing, were other speakers.

The meeting was in an effort to induce men and women to lend moral support to one time prisoners. The banner with three red stars and the green stripes hung from the balconies. The stars are for the three prisons that have mutual welfare leagues—Sing Sing, Auburn, N. Y., and Chester Pa.

"Ex-Cons" as Ushers.

Men and women in evening dress were ushered to their seats by men who had forged, stolen and cracked safes for most of the working years of their lives. Each wore the badge of the Mutual Welfare League. On the platform were two men in evening dress, Mr. Osborne and "Sam" Warren, of the alumni of Sing Sing Auburn and Elmira Reformatory.

There was no prison pallor observed in Warren or in "Dick" Richards, chairman of the meeting. Warren looked like a fine full back on a good football team. Most of the men had a hard look about their eyes and mouths, but they did their best to soften that. They explained that it must be remembered that although some of them had been out of jail for two years it formerly was considered that two weeks "out" was doing pretty well.

Richards' twenty-seven years in prison has made him a good story teller. He was an "ex-con" he explained who had taken an academic course to the college, Sing Sing. In introducing Warren he said:—"Warren must have hesitated outside a clothing store and purloined that full dress suit".

Probably the most startling story, because of the way it was told, came from the lips of Evans, who was released from Sing Sing last Saturday. He was one of the judges of the Welfare League and quite recently, so Richards said, he refused to reveal to Justice Morchauser, in White Plains the confidence reposed in him by a fellow prisoner.

Reveals His History.

"You can play fifty-fifty with members of the league," said Evans. "You've got to be on the level. Now, I have a dear friend in the audience whom I have only seen at frequent intervals because of the time I have spent in prison. He is here to-night, as I said and up to a few days ago he was under the impression that I was straight and honest. What I am going to tell you is going to hurt my friend and it may hurt me.

"For twenty-one years I have been a safe cracker. I have opened safes from coast to coast and North and South. I have never until Saturday left a prison to do right or without hate in my heart. Stop! I may have hate in my heart for a keeper or so, but not because I have been punished. But I met Tom Brown (Thomas Mott Osborne's name in Auburn) and he shook hands with me with two fingers through the bars and from there on I decided to make a change, lead a new life. There are one hundred thousand convicts in the United States and there are one hundred thousand children growing up to take their places. The Mutual League is going to do a great deal if it can reach the correction institutions."

John Dale said he went to a protectory instead of getting better found out more than he ever knew before. He said that the dull boys are beaten and severely punished, the others being too wily to get into the bad grace of the keepers.

He Meets "Tom" Brown.

"I was trying to get something that did not belong to me out of another fellow's pocket at South Ferry, and away I went to Elmira," said Dale. "In that place every time I turned my head I lost thirty days. The result was that I spent two years there, and then I came home and went back—went back three times to Elmira. I had a notion that this mundane sphere owed me a living—it was a wrong belief. At fifteen I liked Shakespeare better than any novel, and do you think that if I'd been taught I'd have gone to State's prison 'Tom' Brown did not give me a hundred dollars or bread and butter. He taught me something, and he practised what he preached. He gave me moral support."

Harry Belasky, known once as the subway terror who always left the "passenger minus and himself plus," as Richards put it, spoke. He is twenty-three years old and has spent ten years locked up.

"I was trained by a Fagin to pick pockets," said Belaski, "and the result was that at twelve I found myself in the House of Refuge. The kindly looking Judge told me that it would be the place that would make a man out of me, and I think that he really bought that, too. But I kept on stealing after I left there, having benefited by knowledge I acquired in my first prison.

"Soon I got to Elmira, and there I got the spirit of revenge. At seventeen I was sent to Sing-Sing. I was the youngest prisoner there then. They had the old system when I went to Auburn, and I got that dark cell and bill of water and a bit of bread for six days and six nights. I have been out now almost two years and I have never been so happy as I am to-night."

Elmer McDonald began his story by saying that the last time he ever spoke before an audience was when he addressed the judge who sentenced him. He told of his experiences in a dark cell. Dillon, who was considered somewhat of a tough by even his companions, told of having spent twenty-one out of thirty in correction places or prisons.

He Began at Six Years.

"Yes, ladies and gentlemen," said Dillon, "I was punished when I was about six years old for something that I did not even know was wrong, and I have been punished ever since, till seven months ago. I have been in prisons in Iowa, New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, and New York. Once I had not been out of prison four months when I robbed my best and only friend, my aunt. I have been punished for laughing, and one Christmas morning I got five days in the cooler for singing in my cell.

"One night I decided to get free and got out of a window at Sing-Sing. They got me a day or so afterward in Tarrytown. We don't want kicks and beatin's. We want a pat on the back. If you get beaten all day long and half the night, can you blame us when brute force is used? Kind words go a long way."

Philip Abbey was another of the prison speakers. Sing-Sing's principal keeper praised Mr. Osborne for what he had done in that prison, and declared that in the old days he never would have ventured in to New York.

Mr. Osborne said that the prisoners thought the crowd outside a bunch of grafters who had been successful in keeping out of jail. He showed a face cage, a jill can, and a leather strap. The latter was used in the old days of Sing-Sing.

2 Dead 8 Dying After Dinner Of Whole Roast Pig

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Following a dinner at which a roastedwhole pig was the feature, two persons died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Far Rockaway, and last night eight others were reported to be in a dying condition, with little or no hope of saving their lives.

The dead are John Sabrizzio, a landscape gardener, and his youngest child, Mary, sixteen months old. The dying are the widow, Mrs. Camille Sabrizzio, their four children, Anna, fifteen; Joseph, four; Ralph, twelve, and Andrew, eight, and Michael Trestier, twenty-eight; Peter Perella, twenty-five, and Mrs. Josephine Caponi, thirty-one.

Sabrizzio purchased a live young pig from a Long Island farmer last week and without having it inspected by the health authorities prepared it for the feast on Sunday, to which Mrs. Caponi, Trestier and Perella were invited. They are neighbours of the Sabrizzio family, at No. 320 Remsen street, Far Rockaway.

All ate so heartily that nothing was left of the roast pig. Even the infant was allowed to eat the pork. Early that night, the ten who had been at the table became ill and physicians were summoned. All were sent to St. Joseph's Hospital on Monday and Tuesday Sabrizzio and the baby died.

Drs. Samuel Markowitz and Benjamin Saulter, of the hospital staff, diagnosed the disease as trichinosis, resulting from eating diseased pork or pork that had not been thoroughly cooked. The symptoms included blindness, swellings about the head and particularly the eyes, intense intestinal pains at first, followed by numbness and stupour.

The eight in the hospital last night had reached the stage of stupour, and the physicians said there was little hope of saving their lives.

If You Value Your Health Don't Kiss The Cat

Many men and women become so fond of cats, dogs and other dumb animals that they cannot resist caressing them, just as they would their own children. Women are particularly lavish in their affection for pets, and it is nothing unusual to see them take a cat or dog in their arms and half smother its face with kisses.

The sensible woman will risk her life and health in this way when she learns what a choice assortment of deadly microbes Professor Fiocci, a distinguished Italian chemist, has discovered in the saliva of cats and dogs.

It has long been known that a cat's throat and mouth are favorite breeding places for diphtheria germs. But Professor Fiocci found in the cat's saliva not only diptheria germs, but swarms of other minute bacilli that have proven extremely dangerous to human beings.

It is believed, however, that the cat's saliva is a greater menace to human beings than the dog's on account of the cat's habit of rubbing saliva over its fur with its tongue and paws. This habit, which used to be thought good evidence of the cat's cleanliness, results in the deadly germs from its mouth and throat being spread over the animal's body.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 12—More on the Price Question

OUR LAST TALK said the "Best is Cheapest." Here is how it actually works out. The house to house fakir sells you a pair of glasses for $1.00 to $3.00, may be gets you to the extent of $2.00. That's $2.00 gone, because they are sure to fail you in a short time, and the next peddlar finds you harder, and gets only $1.00. That's another dollar gone. The third man may have to give you a great bargain (?) and for 50c you have another pair of worthless glasses that you have been hypnotized into thinking suited your eyes. That totals $3.50, and still you have nothing of any use to you.

Then think of the privilege that is always open to you to step into a real, modern, comfortable optical parlor, where Dr. Fowler, a properly qualified eyesight specialist is always ready to test and correctly fit your eyes with genuine Pebblo Glasses at the lowest prices at which legitimate work can be done, and you find you have received a full 100 cents' value for every dollar, and have a guarantee worth while in the bargain. Surely the "Best is Cheapest."

WOMEN TRAMPLED ON IN TRAIN PANIC

Rush Hour Crowd Forced Gates Outward on Brooklyn Cars When "Shoe" Drops at Station.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. — Such a wild panic started in a crowded six car elevated train in Brooklyn when a "shoe" dropped from the third rail at the Marcy Avenue Station of the Broadway line, Brooklyn, causing a flood of sparks and fire, that passengers pushed the car gates outward while others broke the windows and climbed through to the station platforms. A score or more of women were trampled, were hauled out to the platform to wait for ambulances.

Just as the train bound for Canarsie, stopped at the station a "shoe", which picks up the current from the third rail, dropped from its supports and fell in such a manner that one end rested on the charged rail and the other end touched the elevated railroad structure. This connection caused a brilliant fire with a series of loud explosions.

Each car was packed with passengers, most of whom had been hanging to straps, and among them a panic started. They brushed aside the guards in the clamor for the exits and so great was their pressure that they forced the gates outward. Inside the cars women screamed and were knocked down by the men. They who saw no hope of reaching the doors broke the windows with their fists and crawled out on to the station platform.

Policeman Brown, Peterson, and Fater, in the streets heard the cries and hurried to the platform. They had to use their clubs on some of the men, who were crawling through windows and pushing at the gates, and when they had restored order to an extent they entered the cars and said that at least twenty-five women and young girls were lying on the floors of the aisles, where they had been knocked down and walked upon by the stronger passengers.

BULGARIAN CAMPS AT STRUMNITZA SHELLED FROM AIR

LONDON, Feb. 17—Thirteen French aeroplanes carried out a raid on the town and camps of Strumnitza, Bulgaria, yesterday, according to a Reuter despatch from Salonica to-day. The machines dropped 150 bombs, causing several fires, it is added.

The despatch states that the machines, although subjected to a severe bombardment, returned to their base untouched.

CZAR'S CONGRATULATIONS.

Extended to French Govt. for Rescue of Serbian Army.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—Emperor Nicholas sent the following telegram yesterday from the general headquarters of the Russian staff to President Poincare: "I have just received news that the Serbian army finds itself removed from all danger, thanks to the efforts of the French Government. I wish to address to you, Mr. President, my warmest and most hearty congratulations for the aid France has generously given to our valiant allies, so cruelly tried in the course of their heroic struggles against the common enemy."

The President replied: "Our military mission and our navy, which, in accordance with the British and Italian naval authorities, in spite of great difficulties, have accomplished the complete rescue of the Serbian army, will be very much touched by your Majesty's felicitations. France is proud to have contributed to the preservation, intact, of the valiant troops to have been obliged to yield momentarily to superior numbers, and who will co-operate with the allies in the liberation of their country."

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You can Bring Back Colour and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is mussy and troublesome. For 50 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use tonic called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw it through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hairs disappears, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant. You will also discover dandruff is gone and hair has stopped falling.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and look years younger.

HUN "VICTORY" AT RAVENNA

Being an Art Centre It Attracted Teuton "Air Heroes"

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Austrians observed last Sunday by an aeroplane raid on Ravenna. They say they destroyed the railway station. The Italians say that the basilica of Sant' Apollinare—whether Sant' Apollinare Nuovo or Sant' Apollinare in Classe is not specified — was damaged. There are no fortifications about, but Ravenna, when it had a harbour, was a station of the Roman fleet. Doubtless the Austrians were revenging old Dacian patriotism on the descendants of Augustus. In its naval prime Ravenna was a lagoon city, like Venice. Like Venice, an art city, it was sure to attract the Teutonic heroes of the air. Yet why should the Austrians seek to imitate their North German allies or masters in the destruction of incomparable monuments of civilization?

The remote and solemn city of the marshes lives in the memory of every visitor as a place apart. It belongs in its main historical constructions to the fifth and sixth centuries. There Christian architecture and art are seen in splendid or characteristic early examples—basilicas, mosaics, columns, cupolas, sarcophagi, screens, pavements — Byzantium by the Adriatic. Caesar and Trojan, Honorius and Stilicho, Justinian and Theodora, Theodoric and Ostrogoth, who has two fames, one historical, the other legandary; Belisarius the Exarchate, Lombards and Franks, Luitprand and Pippin and Charlemagne, have had their hour there. There is the mausoleum of Theodoric, the tomb of Dante. The pine forest, or what remains of it, it still haunted by Boccaccio's spectral huntsman.

That old, dead, undying Ravenna, desolate, melancholy, malarious, what has it done to the Austrians? Really, the Austrians should leave this sort of exploit to their sterner brethren, who "march with God," and like to show it by smashing cathedrals.

COLLAPSIBLE BRIDGES IN PHILIPPINES

Unique Structures Recently Built There Giving Every Satisfaction.

A so-called "collapsible" bridge has been designed by the bureau of public works for use in the Philippine Islands, where there are a number of streams carrying just enough water to be unfordable and subject to floods of extreme height and force, which carry down large quantities of brush and trees. It is necessary to provide some crossing for these streams, and yet money is not available for the construction of a structure permanent enough to withstand the extreme flood conditions, says the Engineering News.

The new "collapsible" bridge is essentially a series of pile timber bents, carrying short span timber girders and floor, which are attached to cables reaching to dead men on the shore. In general the girder and floor system is broken in the middle of the bridge, and the cables extend from either side of the river to a point midway. During a flood the floor and girder are torn from their insecure fastening to the bent and swing down stream, attached to the cables. After the flood has passed the floor system is floated up stream and placed again upon the timber bents.

One such bridge was recently built at Gapan across the Penaranda river, Philippine Islands, and is giving good service.—Exchange.

$2,000,000 A DAY IN MUNITIONS TO EUROPE

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 17. — American made war munitions now are pouring into Europe at the rate of nearly $2,000,000 worth daily, with the figures swelling rapidly as production increases. For a long time after the war began shipments were negligible, and not until the middle of 1915 did the millions of dollars' worth of war materials contracted for begin to move in considerable quantities.

Estimates made at the Department of Commerce to-day put total munitions shipments since Europe began to purchase for the present war close to $250,000,000. At the rate shipments are going now the next four months would see this total doubled even if the volume of production remained at a standstill, but production is declared to be growing faster now than at any time since American manufacturers began conversion of their plants into munitions factories.

A great part of the munitions output has been in the form of high explosive shells, more than $100,000,000 worth of which have left American shores. Powder comes next, with shipments estimated at nearly $100,000,000, and small arm cartridges are third, with $30,000,000. Firearms, including ordnance, exports are put at less than $20,000,000, with small increases shown. The heaviest month's fire-arms shipments was in January, 1915, when more than $2,000,000 worth went to Europe.

An automatic mileage recorder has been invented to be built into an automobile tire to show how far it is run.

Fiercest Battle Ever Was Fought About A Fortress

Turks Fought Desperately But One By One The Mighty Forts Were Taken By The Russians

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—The official messenger estimates the Turkish garrison at Erzerum as 100,000 men. It is also estimated that more than 1,000 guns were captured.

It is said there were 476 guns in the outer forts, 374 in the central forts, and 200 field guns at Erzerum.

GERMAN MARK DEPRECIATED.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The capture of Erzerum by the Russians has caused a record-breaking slump in the price of the German mark, according to despatches from Amsterdam.

TURKS LOSE HEAVILY.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 18.—More than 40,000 Turkish soldiers and 110 guns were taken by the Russian army of Grand Duke Nicholas when the Ottoman fortress of Erzerum was captured, according to despatches received here yesterday from Tiflis. In addition, the Russians took vast quantities of military supplies. An effort was made to destroy these supplies but the Russians moved too rapidly.

Part of the Ottoman troops defending Erzerum escaped, but fled in such utter rout that the Russian inflicted terrific losses upon the fugitives before they were rallied and strengthened by fresh forces that had marched from the west.

The Turkish losses in the conflict that raged for five days about the forts guarding Erzerum are said to have been in the neighborhood of 25,000 killed and wounded.

FIERCEST OF BATTLES.

Tiflis reports state that the battle of Erzerum was the fiercest that has ever been fought about a fortress in modern warfare. The Turks fought desperately, but one by one the mighty forts were taken by the Russians, who charged with the bayonet through breaches made by their artillery. Turkish gun crews were bayoneted as they were still working their weapons.

Within the line of forts, the Turks, under direction of German officers, had constructed an elaborate system of trenches. There they made their last stand in defence of the city, but from the time that the forts fell the issue was never in doubt. While a curtain of fire from the Russian guns prevented reinforcements being sent to the troops in the trenches, picked regiments of the Grand Duke's army drove forward.

FOUGHT IN DEEP SNOW.

Unable to retreat because of the storm of shells falling behind them, and overwhelmed by the fierceness of the Russian attack, the Turks fought on in their trenches for two days, but when their ammunition gave out great masses surrendered.

The Russians fought under the utmost difficulties, the ground being covered with deep snow, and the thermometer registering below zero.

HANS SCHMIDT ELECTROCUTED

For The Murder of Anna Aumueller—Died in The Electric Chair at Dawn To-day

OSSINING, N.Y., Feb. 18.— Stopping abruptly on the brink of death to express his last good wish to his mother, Hans Schmidt, the unfrocked New York priest, was shocked to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing at dawn to-day. He went to his death for having killed Anna Aumueller, cutting her body to pieces and casting it into the East river.

Through his attorney he has issued a statement last night denying that he had killed the Aumueller girl, and asserting that she died from the effects of an illegal operation.

RUSSIANS TOUR ENGLAND.

Will Take Home Their Observations of Britain's Work in the War.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 15.—A commission of prominent literary men from Russia left to-day for England, on the invitation of the British Government, to make a tour of inspection and to observe the war work being carried out in Great Britain, in order that, on their return to Russia, they may deliver lectures to the troops and civilians, giving their impressions of the part Great Britain is really playing in the waging of the war.

The commission includes Kemirovich Dantchenko, the veteran war correspondent; Russkoeslovo Yeguroff, the foreign editor of the Novoe Vremya; and Count Alexis Tolstoi, a leading novelist.

OBITUARY

THOMAS MEDD.

After some two years of decline in which he never left his room, our oldest native born resident passed away in his eighty-third year. We understand that the late Mr. Medd was the first child born within what is now included in the Corporation of Millbrook. More than four score years except for a few years in Toronto where the family moved in order that the boys might receive their higher education, Mr. Medd has been a prominent citizen of the community. In his young manhood days he drove the best turnout in the settlement and owned farms here and elsewhere. The south portion of the village is taken from his property. A most interesting conversationalist, his reminiscences of pioneer days were always full of "folk lore," and accounts of the warm hearted fraternity of the settlers. The passing of Mr. Medd turns a new page in the history of Millbrook, and reminds us that even this new country is taking on age, but for years and years to come, after Mr. Medd is forgotten his name and signature will remain on the title deeds of many properties in Cavan and Millbrook. Besides Mrs. Medd, two sons, Major Sydney T. Medd of the overseas force and Fred, a travelling representative of Montreal, are left to mourn his decease.

The funeral takes place to-day, to St. John's, Cavan.—Millbrook Reporter.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—The New York Americans have signed J. Franklin (Home Run) Baker. His contract covers three years. His salary is said to be $9,000 a year. The purchase price was $30,000. This means that Fritz Maisel will be shifted to the outfield. Baker was with the Philadelphia Athletics in 1910, 1911 and 1912, and was a sensational hitter for them.

PUT STOMACH IN FINE CONDITION

Says Indigestion Results From An Excess of Hydrochloric Acid

Undigested food delayed in the stomach decays, or rather, ferments the same as food left in the open air, says a noted authority. He also tells us that indigestion is caused by Hyper-acidity, meaning, there is an excess of hydro-chloric acid in the stomach which prevents complete digestion and starts food fermentation. Thus everything eaten sours in the stomach much like garbage sours in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. Then we feel a heavy, lumpy misery in the chest we belch up gas or regurgitate sour food or have heartburn, flatulence, water-brash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and drink while it is effervescing and furthermore, to continue this for a week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jads Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results.

Some vineyards in Italy are cultivated on the faces of almost perpendicular cliffs.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

A MILLION MEMBERS WANTED

LONDON, Feb. 17.—Destruction of every German influence in Great Britain, internment of all alien enemies, and capture of all German trade secrets are aimed at by the Anti-German League. This organization is increasing in strength daily, and has the backing of influential business concerns in England. It is attempting to gain a million members, and its aims are set forth in a manifesto which says in part:—

"Ten thousand seven hundred and twenty-nine Germans in London alone still uninterned! These are official figures, given by Sir John Simon in reply to a question in the House of Commons. How much longer is such a state of affairs to continue? Neutral countries consider us quite mad in regard to the alien enemy peril, and it is (amongst other things) the purpose of the Anti-German League to bring pressure to bear upon those who are responsible for such a crying scandal.

Driving Nails in Coffin.

"Every true Briton joining means another nail driven into the coffin of German influence in this country. A million members are wanted. Enroll at once, and help to raise the league's vigorous battle cry of 'Everything German taboo!' throughout the British Empire!

"Never before in England's history has the nation been faced with problems so grave and complex. We stand, or rather, shall shortly stand, at the parting of the ways. On the one hand lies a road to prosperity and Empire—a road we are opening at a sacrifice of blood and treasure, the like of which the world has never seen—on the other, the assumption of a policy of drift and apathy, which would again permit Teutonic leprosy to threaten our very existence.

League's Objects.

"Objects of the league:—

"1—To enroll 1,000,000 members who will take the anti-German pledge.

"2—To amend the law relating to alien immigration and the naturalization of Germans as British subjects.

"3—To influence legislation for a protective and, if necessary, prohibitive tariff on all German and Austrian-made goods.

"4—To investigate German patents, processes, and monopolies with a view to imparting knowledge and information to British traders, manufacturers, and others who desire to work same.

Financial Assistance.

"5—To negotiate financial and other assistance for British manufacturers who will undertake the production of goods hitherto made in Germany and Austria.

"6—To assist in returning to Parliament any candidates, irrespective of party, who will pledge themselves to support the objects of the league, and generally to arrange a series of lectures in all the great towns and cities throughout the country for the purpose of obtaining public support and approval."

Have You a Boy Problem? It cannot be solved by arithmetic. Solve it by feeding him Shredded Wheat—a natural food that makes his body buoyant with the energy and enthusiasm of youth. A muscle and brain-builder. Contains the life of the wheat, in a digestible form. Builds sturdy, robust boys and girls. Serve it for breakfast with hot milk. Made in Canada.

Sacrifices of War Seen as Blessings

Drive Through Serbia Has, to Some Degree, Remedied This Disadvantage.

VIENNA, Feb. 16.—Economic conditions in Austria-Hungary Germany, Bulgaria, and Turkey are described as satisfactory in a number of reviews of the year appearing in the Austrian press. Articles on the subject keep the war in mind, naturally, and whatever is said has the intention of the Entente to starve the Central Powers into submission as a background.

All writers agree in professing that the almost total cessation of import, due to Great Britain's attitude on contraband, has been a blessing in disguise for the Central Powers, though most annoying at times. Unable to import from overseas markets what formerly had come from abroad Austria-Hungary and Germany, the writers point out, mobilized economically shortly after the outbreak of the war. Utilization of home resources and prevention of waste, and later the partial withdrawal from general consumption of stuffs and materials needed to carry on the war, made the two empires economically self-contained. Science contributed much to this.

The result was that while the Entente bought in foreign countries, the Central Powers, unable to do so, kept the money which otherwise would have gone out of the countries. To-day the population of the two empires has become accustomed to frugality and self-denials which conditions imposed and those who judge the situation psychologically assert that the degree of asceticism which has been fostered in this manner has become an important causal agent of military spirit and strength.

Money Not Biggest Factor.

The economic scheme which the war forced upon Central Europe is not without its novel and interesting features. In the first place the theory that money was likely to be the biggest factor in a modern war has been exploded, say the writers. It has been proved that the capacity to resist economically is more important, a condition which pre-supposed both the availability of raw material and a good industrial organization.

Germany, it is pointed out, possessed the latter to a high degree and, ably supported by its scientists, the empire was in a position not only to obtain maximum results from its resources and stores, but to augment them, principally by the aid of its well-developed chemistry and physical sciences. Austria-Hungary followed suit, so that at the beginning of the year 1915 most channels leading to economic waste had been shut.

One of the most disquieting problems was that of metals for military purposes, notably copper, tin and nickel. The metals were needed in large quantities; copper for the guide-flanges of the artillery projectiles, and copper and tin together, in the form of brass, for shrapnel heads and rifle cartridges, while nickel was required for the shells or mantles of rifle bullets. Iron and steel were available in unlimited quantities. Much copper, tin, brass and nickel were, during the Summer, turned over for use of the armies by the population.

Thousands of tons were unearthed in the "metal campaigns." These are still going on, but with the taking of Serbia, and the opening of the road to Turkey, copper and tin are now no longer on the list of worries. Copper is produced in considerable quantities in Serbia, Bulgaria, and Turkish Asia Minor, the latter country also producing tin.

Chemicals and other substances for the manufacture of explosives never have been really scarce. This is especially true of cotton, one of the principal ingredients in tri-nitrocellulose explosives, of which guncotton is the best known. It is considered likely that the costly methods in which some of the chemicals were won, from the nitrogen of the air, for instance, will be superfluous as soon as transparent conditions from Anatolia have become normal. In that part of the Ottoman Empire many of the elements needed in pyrotechnic chemistry are found.

The food question, by reason of its magnitude, required much thought and attention, the articles say. No precedents were available. Mistakes were made, but in the end satisfactory results were obtained. Supplies were husbanded by restricting consumption, and speculation and "price driving" were prevented by fixing maximum rates for some articles, and making the "handling of necessities and commodities for profit" illegal and punishable with heavy fines and imprisonment.

War loans were made with little difficulty, say the reviews. The fact that little of the money so raised by the Central Powers' Governments went out of the country largely is responsible for this. Had Austria-Hungary and Germany been able to buy abroad, they might be in a different position to-day, especially since an unrestricted, or partly restricted, import would in no wise have been counteracted by export. With nearly 12,000,000 men under arms, German and Austro-Hungarian industries could not hope to supply their foreign purchasers in a measure great enough to maintain the balance of export and import of normal times. Imports, therefore, it is said would have caused detrimental financial drains. As one of the writers says: "England did us a great favor in cutting off our avenues of trade."

Fully 85 per cent. of the war loans remained in the two countires. The money has been spent for war material turned out in home plants and most of it has been paid out in wages. Rich and poor alike have subscribed to the war loans. Savings bank subscriptions and participation of working people show that the war loans keep more or less the same money in circulation. The surest barometer of leakage is the conversion of commercial securities, it is asserted, and this, while increasing a little with each successive loan, nevertheless has been slight.

Agriculture Bears Final Burden

The relation of war loans to present economic conditions of the Central Powers is likened to the first example one finds in textbooks on national economy, the case of the fisherman exchanging part of his catch for part of the food produced by the tiller of the soil. The example seems to fit with the exception that the fish in this case is not properly, but merely a loan, the interest of which the soil tiller must later pay if the capital cannot be returned from war indemnities.

Wages in Germany and Austria-Hungary have gone up two and three fold. This is due in the main to the fact that labor is scarce, and living on an average 75 per cent. more expensive. On the other hand, employment at skilled labor of unskilled men and women has made production more costly in many cases. One of the results of this is that as the lot of the working classes has been improved, as it undoubtedly has, the wealthy has seen their incomes dwindle. Wars on a large scale, says one of the writers, always have been great economic levelers, because the demands made upon all are of almost the same character. Society retraces its steps toward that primeval state in which the defense of the interests of the tribe lessened personal prerogative and privilege, a law which to-day is sending scores of would-be monopolists of foodstuffs and the like into the German and Austro-Hungarian penitentiaries.

Much comfort is derived from the fact that the debacle of Serbia has made the foodstuffs of Rumania, the Balkans, and the Ottoman Empire accessible. It is expected that the export of those countries, which the Central Powers are fully able to meet, will pay for the food and other supplies bought there. Economic loss will not ensue; on the contrary, new conditions will favor certain industries which have lain almost idle, and thus will contribute to the ability to carry on the war.

ROBBED OF 17 MILLIONS

General Goethals Tells of Land Deals in Panama Canal Zone.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Feb. 17.—"Who is responsible?" was the question the House Commerce Committee sought to solve in its investigation of charges by General George W. Goethals that the United States has been robbed of $17,000,000 in land deals in the Panama Canal zone. Testimony submitted by General Goethals laid the responsibility at the door of the joint land commission in charge of the settling of land claims under the Panama treaty. He said that attorneys prosecuting land claims were getting 50 per cent. of the awards made to claimants.

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

Sammis, the Elevator Boy

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

"I didn't stand in with the elevator boy," has been the wail of more than one tenant who has vacated his office for other than financial reasons.

The elevator boy—the elevator boy! If you have ever been a tenant of a skyscraper, then it is needless to tell you that he is the real boss of the shebang. It is good to meet a newcomer who knows it to be a fact, because it saves time and trouble to both parties. I was pleased when old Mr. Beerchamp took a room on the eighth floor and hung out a sign of "Commissions." He didn't lose a day in coming to an understanding with me. As soon as I was off duty he called me up and patted me on the head and said to me in a fatherly way:

"Sammis, I have been a tenant in several skyscrapers during the last ten years, and I know something of the power and influence of the elevator boy. Let us come to an understanding right at the start."

"Yes, sir."

"You are fatherless, Sammis?"

"I am."

"And you are making heroic efforts to pay off a mortgage and support your mother?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then permit me to be a father to you. That is, come to me for advice. Come to me when you want a quarter. Come to me when you are sad and the tears are ready to start. It needn't be known all over the United States that we have adopted each other, but our affections will be just as deep and profitable to each other. You look out for your adopted father—your adopted father looks out for you. Here's a dollar for the mortgage."

"I thank you, sir," I said.

"And now as to your understanding, Sammis. There is a Mrs. Beerchamp. She is a good hearted woman, but old fashioned in her ideas. She is also inclined to be jealous. She does not know the exact position of my office, and it will be just as well if she does not find it out. Not that I would deceive the good woman in any particular, but her presence would interrupt business."

"Yes, sir. I know. When a man's wife is sitting around the office he can't fix his mind on stocks and bonds and real estate. I've seen 'em try it, and they always fail."

"Exactly, my adopted Sammis, and here's 50 cents more on the mortgage. You have the head of a man on a boy's shoulders. Mrs. Beerchamp may call here some day."

"I understand, sir. Leave it to me to discourage her."

I thought there were tears in my adopted father's eyes as he put his arm around me and said that he had unbounded confidence in me. Everything went along as smooth as grease for a week, and then Mr. Beerchamp advertised for five typewriters. I don't know why he did it, as the kid in the office said business was very dull, but the elevator boy should not theorize when his adopted father's interests are at stake. He didn't put his name to the ad., but Mrs. Beerchamp dropped to it somehow and came down to see. There must have been at least fifteen good looking typewriters in Mr. Beerchamp's office when she struck the elevator at the first floor.

"Bub, I want to go up to the eighth floor," she said, as she shoved me aside and crowded into the elevator.

"What room do you want?"

"Never you mind the room. How many typewriters have answered that ad.?"

"You mean the subscription book agent's ad., ma'am? I think I have taken up three cross eyed girls this morning."

She made a cuff at my ear, but I dodged and started the elevator. Between the seventh and eighth floors I tried to bring about a "stick," but she grabbed me by the hair and said:

"No tricks, bubby, or there'll be a spanking match here."

I landed her at the eighth and saw her kick Mr. Beerchamp's door open. I had scarcely got down to the first floor again when the typewriters began coming down the stairs. It was about an hour before Mr. and Mrs. Beerchamp came downstairs. As they got into the elevator she said to him:

"The idea of an old jay like you acting in this way is a shame and a disgrace, and I tell you it has got to come to a stop. I wish I could have got hold of all of them. Oh, I'm on to your little rackets, and after this I either come down and sit in your office all day or you don't have an office."

Mr. Beerchamp, poor old man, sort of shrunk up into himself and hadn't a word to say in reply. He looked at me, however, and it was such a look of reproach and sorrow that I didn't sleep two hours that night. When he came down next morning Mrs. Beerchamp was with him, and I didn't get a chance till the afternoon to tell him that I had done my best to prevent the calamity.

"Yes, I believe you. You were loyal to your adopted father, but there are some things beyond us, Sammis—way beyond—and Mrs. Beerchamp is one of them."

Poor old Mr. Beerchamp! He is still with us, and so is his wife, but I can see that he is failing every day and cannot believe that he is long for this world. Some folks imagine that there is naught but hilarity around a skyscraper, but that there are also breaking hearts and shattered hopes you may take the word of Sammis.

After Forty Years.

York township some forty years ago issued a cheque for $100 and again in 1870 another one for $30. In whose favor the present officials do not know, because all the records were destroyed by fire in 1831. But just now Mr. W. A. Clarke, the Township Clerk, received word that the two cheques were lying as unclaimed balances at the Receiver-General's office, Ottawa. For some unknown reason they had never been cashed. The cheques will be returned to the township and may be kept as curios.

A PAIN IN THE BACK
COMES FROM THE KIDNEYS.

When a pain asserts itself in the back you may rest assured that it comes from some derangement of the kidneys, for were there not something wrong with the kidneys the back would be strong and well, and would be without a pain or an ache.

For backache, lame or weak back, there is no remedy to equal Doan's Kidney Pills.

They take out the stitches, twitches, and twinges, limber up the stiff back, and give perfect relief and comfort to all poor, suffering women who suffer so much from a weak, lame, aching back.

Miss Iva A. Ferris, Mill Cove, N.B., writes: "I suffered for two years from pains in my back. I tried several kinds of patent medicines, and was almost discouraged until I noticed your advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills. I thought it would not hurt to try them. I had only used two boxes before I noticed a great difference, and after I had taken four boxes I was completely cured. I would not be without them in the house. I can recommend them to all I know."

Doan's Kidney Pills are 50c per box, 3 boxes for $1.25; at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

When ordering direct specify "Doan's."

BACKACHE, LUMBAGO AND RHEUMATIC TROUBLES.

Dear Mr. Editor—I wish to state that I suffered greatly from backache, lumbago and rheumatic troubles. I used "Anuric," the latest discovery of Doctor Pierce for backache and kidney troubles, and I can cheerfully recommend the "Anuric Tablets" to anyone suffering from any of these maladies.

Yours truly,
J. P. GARNER.

NOTE: It is now asserted with confidence that these painful effects due to uric acid in the system are entirely eradicated. A new remedy, called "Anuric," has been discovered by Dr. Pierce, and is the cause of a drainage outward of the uric acid with which it comes in contact within the body. It will ward off backache, headache, and the darting pains and aches of articular or muscular rheumatism—of those diseases which are caused by too much uric acid, such as gout, asthma, sciatica, renal calculus. "Anuric" prolongs life because old people usually suffer from hardening and thickening of the walls of the arteries, due to the excess of uric acid in the blood and tissues.

Dr. Pierce, who is director and chief physician at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., has been testing this wonderful medicine for the relief of over-worked and weakened kidneys. The relief obtained by sufferers has been so satisfactory that he determined to place "Anuric" with the principal druggists in town where people could get his ready-to-use medicine. "Anuric" is not harmful or poisonous, but aids nature in throwing off those poisons within the body which cause so much suffering, pain and misery. Scientists assert this remedy is 37 times more potent than lithia. Send 10 cents for large trial package.

"Anuric" is building up a reputation as good as Dr. Pierce's other well-known medicines which have been proved reliable during nearly fifty years, such as Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription for the ills of women, Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, the liver regulator, and Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for red blood.

PILES Do not suffer another day with Itching, Blind, Bleeding, or Protruding Piles. No surgical operation required. Dr. Chase's Ointment will relieve you at once and in almost every case, 60c a box; all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Sample box free if you mention this paper and enclose 2c. stamp for postage.

HAD FURNISHED ROOMS.

And He Had a Sign Out to Let the Neighbors Know.

In a little settlement on the outskirts of Chicago two houses stand out more boldly than the rest. These two are the domiciles of two Italians of means, who, although being very ignorant men, vied with each other for the social leadership of the locality.

One day a newcomer, in search of temporary lodgings, attracted by a conspicuous sign in the window of the first of these two houses, stopped to the door to make inquiry.

"I see you have furnished rooms here," he said to the swarthy man who answered his knock.

"Ya," rejoined the foreigner, pointing to the furnished room sign, "dere's da sign."

"Well, if you have one that's suitable I'd like to rent it for awhile."

"We no rent da rooms," was the bewildering declaration. "I got my family in here, and dey take up all da house."

"Don't rent any rooms? Why, then, have you that sign stuck in the window?"

"I'll tell you. Las' week dat fellow next door hang such a sign in his front window, an' we'n I see dat I put one of da same kind in my front window, just to show da people dat he ain't only man in dis place dat have his rooms furnished!"—Judge's Library.

History of Cotton.

Prior to the middle of the eighteenth century cotton, so far as modern time is concerned, was practically unknown. It was grown only in the flower garden. When eight bags of the staple arrived in Liverpool in 1784 the custom house officers seized it on the ground that so much could not have been raised in America. In 1787 our first cotton mill was set in motion at Beverly, Mass. In 1793 Whitney invented the cotton gin, which rendered cotton raising profitable, and it soon became the leading crop of the south.

A South African Animal.

There is a curious looking animal in South Africa that looks for all the world like a piece of toast with four legs, a head and a tail. It resembles a pussy cat about the forehead and ears, but its nose is distinctly that of a rat, while its tail is not very dissimilar to that of a fox. This strange animal is called the aard wolf and doubtless dwells in South Africa because, judged by his looks, he would not be admitted into good animal society anywhere else.

WHY PEOPLE FEEL DEPRESSED IN THE COLD WEATHER

Why is tiredness and langour so prevalent just now? A physician explained that the cold of winter drives blood from the surface of the body to the liver. Normally one-fourth of the whole blood supply is in the liver, and when more blood is accumulated in that organ everything goes wrong.

No better remedy exists than Dr. Hamilton's Pills which are composed of such vegetable extracts as Mandrake and Butternut, and possess wonderful liver stimulating powers. It's a marvel the way Hamilton's Pills clear the blood of the poisonous humours. They put new life into worn out bodies, build up the appetite, bring back a reserve of nerve energy, tide folks over the cold days of winter and the depressing days of spring. For your health and body comfort get a 25c. box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills to-day.

SEEING THE FAR EAST.

It Should Be Viewed Through the Bible and "Arabian Nights."

The best books on the east, as every one knows, are the Bible and the "Arabian Nights," and yet I found most travelers were saturating themselves with snippity descriptions of monuments and places, with tabloids of history, with technical paragraphs on architecture and the ethnic religions, with figures about the height of this and the length of that or condensed statistics of exports and imports and the tonnage through the Suez canal and dates about the Pharaohs and the Moghals. No wonder they see nothing, know nothing, enjoy nothing and come home bringing a few expletives, adjectives and photographs which can be had for a small price in either New York or London.

The first thing to do in going to the east is to turn your education out on your desk so that you can get at the bottom of it, and there you will find the Bible and the "Arabian Nights" and the "Odyssey" and "Iliad" and "Virgil" and "Herodotus" and "Xenophon," and you will realize what a fool you were not to have devoted more time to them when you were asked to do so. Guide books can get you to the east, but they do not get you inside. It is temperament, not trains, that counts.—Price Collier in Scribner's Magazine.

An Ominous Symptom.

"A good wife is heaven's greatest gift to man and the rarest gem the earth holds," remarked Mr. Jarphly the other morning. "She is his joy, his inspiration and his very soul. Through her he learns to reach the pure and true, and her loving hands lead him softly over the rough places. She is"—

"Jeremiah," said Mrs. Jarphly solemnly—"Jeremiah, what wickedness have you been up to now?"

STRANGE OCCUPATIONS.

One Man Who Spends His Life Among Microbes.

What man leads the most peculiar modern life? The question is not an easy one to answer off-hand, but it is doubtful if anyone spends his days in a more strange manner than the bacteriologist. Day after day, week after week, year after year he works in the laboratory, into which only the privileged may enter, studying the microbes of disease. He may not open the window lest he infect the whole neighbourhood with typhoid or diphtheria, or any other diseases with which he is at close quarters all day. He encourages bacteria to multiply, and then through a microscope, or sometimes with the naked eye, he watches how they spend their time, in order that he may combat their deadly influence.

While the bacteriologist looks forward, the anthropologist looks backward. He is the man who dashes off to any place when he hears a deep excavation is being made, and hopes always that he will find a skeleton, and especially a skull, for he is never so happy as when he unearths human relics going back centuries.

The keeper of the old City Records at the Guildhall is another man who lives the most extraordinary life. In a cold basement office, into which the sun never penetrates, he spends his day carefully examining and tabulating the records of the past.

The plant doctor is akin to the bacteriologist, for, like the latter, he spends much of his time in the laboratory, not studying the enemies of the human world, but the enemies of the plant world, and he is very proud when, after diagnosing and treating the various ailments of flowers, he runs across, say, the enemy of a rose, and finds how it may be kept from doing harm.

Good Reason.

At Christmas the children of a certain English school tried to collect money by singing carols and snatches of hymns. Many complaints had reached the rector's ears of bands of youngsters scampering through the first verse of "While Shepherds Watched" and then violently ringing the doorbell. So he instituted inquiries on the next occasion he visited the school. "Why is it," he asked, "that instead of singing the hymn in a reverent way you scamper through one verse and then ring the bell?" Silence reigned for a short time. Then a shrill voice from a small boy at the back of the room was heard in explanation. "Please, sir, it's 'cause they always lets the dog loose at the second verse."

Hoaxing the Latinists.

Perhaps one of the best of the numerous class of sham Latin inscriptions was that which appeared some years ago in a Dublin paper. It was in antique "Latin," as follows:

I sabyile haeres ago, fortibus ea in aro. Nobile Thisbe forte trux, se vaticinem—pes an dux.

This purported to have been found near the site of a church dedicated to "the saint known to the old chroniclers as Uncatus Ambulabus."

I say, Billy, here a go!
Forty buses in a row.
No, Billy; this be forty trucks,
See what is in 'em,
Peas and ducks.

BURNABY'S MANUSCRIPT.

Nobody Could Read Explorer's Handwriting.

Sir H. W. Lucy, in the Cornhill Magazine, tells an amusing story of one of the worst writers on record. Here is what he says:

"It was stated at the time of Colonel Burnaby's death that he had left behind him the manuscript of a novel, for which there was considerable competition among the publishers.

"This is quite true. The manuscript, a bulky parcel, was handed to me with discretionary power either to publish it myself or to use it in connection with the proposed biography.

"Here a singular and, as it finally proved, a fatal obstacle presented itself. Familiar for many years with Burnaby's handwriting, I could not after diligent endeavor make out more than a sentence here and there on the crowded page of manuscript.

"Burnaby's writing was, possibly with the exception of Dean Stanley's, the worst I ever saw. It looked as if before sitting down to write a letter he had pulled a twig out of the hedge, mixed a little blacking, and then gone ahead.

"He wrote the whole of his 'Ride to Khiva' and his 'Ride on Horseback Through Asia Minor' with his own hand. But before they reached the printer they were fairly written out by a copyist.

"The hapless man used to make out as much as he could, then leave blanks, for filling up which he had to seek the assistance of the author. Sometimes there were more blanks in a page than words.

"Despairing of making anything of the manuscript of the novel, it was submitted to a publisher, who turned upon it his most skilful decipherist. Neither head nor tail could be made of the manuscript, and the intention of publishing the novel was consequently abandoned."

Alverstone as a Musician.

The late Lord Alverstone was passionately fond of music. For many years he was a prominent member of the choir at St. Mary Abbots Church, Kensington, and he played the organ like a professional.

He could sing a good song, and not infrequently did at the Savage Club, of which he was a member. In 1900 at the club he asked Robert Martin, of "Killaloe" fame, to sing "Ballyhooley."

"Divil a note will I sing for the Lord Chief until he sings, too," said Martin.

The Lord Chief Justice took up the challenge, and led the way with "The Heart Bowed Down" and the Judge's Song from "Trial by Jury."

Far Too Quick.

General Hugh L. Scott was talking about strategy.

"Too many strategists," he said, "jump at conclusions. They are too hasty. They begin a new movement before the old one is finished. Hence all manner of errors.

"These strategists are like the floor-walker whom a married man, having got separated from his wife in the crowd, approached and said:

"'Excuse me, but I've lost my wife——'

"'Coffins,' said the floor-walker, 'ninth floor back. Gents mourning, eleventh floor front.'"

Like Our Own Moon.

Observations made at the Lowell observatory on the varying brightness of two satellites of Saturn, viz., Mimas and Enceladus, indicate that these bodies rotate on their axes in periods identical with those of their revolution around the primary, i. e., they behave like our own moon, and probably like satellites generally.

Real Hunger.

Little Willie's mother sent him to bed without any supper.

At 8 o'clock, as Willie lay dismally in his little bed in the dark, his father appeared at the door and whispered:

"Son, could you eat some honey in the comb?"

"Jiminy, dad!" Willie answered. "I could eat it in the brush!"—Exchange.

Baff Murder Case Agent Located Outside State

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—District Attorney Swann announced that the police had located the man who is at the present moment the principal key to the murder of Barnett Baff, and although he is out of the State, steps have been taken to bring him here. This is the one who actually acted as the agent for the men who paid for the murder. Frank Ferrara, the chauffeur under arrest on a charge of homicide, has given additional information to the prosecutor and declared that on the night when the murderers received their money in Ippolito Greco's saloon, in East 107th Street, the man now under surveillance turned over the money to Greco personally for the crime.

Joseph and Jacob Cohen are wanted by District Attorney Swann to see whether they can give any information of the murder. They are members of the Live Poultry Dealers' Protective Association and are under indictment for attacking A. T. Pearson, representative of the National Car Lot Live Poultry Shippers' Association, and a friend of Baff.

When they were arraigned on this charge in December, 1914, Assistant District Attorney James B. Delehanty asked that bail be fixed at $25,000. He explained that his office had information concerning the Cohens which made large bail imperative. The bail was furnished in each case. About five weeks ago the bond was discharged and the two men were released on their own recognizance. The assault indictment are still operative.

James Moore, now in Sing Sing for attacking Pearson, was brought down from the prison yesterday and was before Mr. Swann for a long time. The District Attorney said that the man maintains that he knows nothing about the murder, but the prosecutor is certain that there will be a new element opened up here. Baff was always a leading spirit of the association, to which Pearson belonged, and they with Herbert A. Emerson were probably the most active in the market.

"Poultry Club" Warning.

Numerous letters were received by the District Attorney yesterday telling of a so-called "poultry club" among the West Washington Market dealers. Some of the writers declare Baff's death was arranged here a year before it was carried out. One letter, supposed to be anonymous, but which is declared to have been sent by some one in close touch with the ring, read:

"Judge Swann:—

"Dear Sir:—Before reading in the papers that the assassins were actually caught I knew that you were in the dark and you were fifteen months ago when Baff was shot down. I knew it was not the chicken pullers nor the Italian gangs that instigated the murder of Baff. I knew that Italians shot him down and killed him, but I also knew that they were hired by the Poultry Trust.

"The murderers of Baff are members of the Poultry Trust, and if you can get after a certain number of poultry dealers right in Washington Market that belong to a secret organization you will get the men that paid the money for the murder.

"Baff was their bitterest competitor, and it was decided a year before he was shot to have it done. At one of the meetings of the organization the members decided that the only way to save themselves from ruin was to have Baff murdered. The men that paid the blood money are dealers in Washington Market, and I could mention some, but no doubt you will get all that information from the confessions the assassins now are making.

"It was the poultry dealers that are still in the Washington Market today that had the personal grudge against him. Ninety per cent. of the dealers in the market had a hand in the murder and furnished the money. So it is up to you to get them.

"One dealer in Washington Market was quoted as saying to a friend soon after the murder:—'Well, he won't be able to lower prices of poultry any more. We are rid of him now all right and the plot will never be uncovered.'

"You are certainly on the right track now and all you have to do is to get each dealer that contributed the money and you will have all the guilty ones. You have my sincerest congratulations, and I trust you will be as successful in bringing the guilty ones to justice as Governor Whitman was in the Rosenthal case.

"ONE WHO KNOWS."

No warrants have been issued, and it is said that none will be asked until District Attorney Swann gives the evidence in the case to the Grand Jury. He thought he would be able to start that this week, but in the light of later developments he has deferred it until next week. It is believed a score of indictments will be returned.

Indications of Terror.

Indications that the instigators of the crime are terror stricken were seen to-day in an attempt to have Antonio Zafarano, brother of Joseph Zafarano, one of the men said to have been in the "murder car" released from the Bronx Prison on bail. He is held in $5,000 bail for his alleged connection with the abduction of Marie Klein, daughter of a clergyman. Judge Swann has blocked this by asking District Attorney Martin, of the Bronx, not to accept bail at present.

Antonio Impoluzzo, now in the death house at Sing Sing for the murder of Thomas Lo Monte last fall, sent word here yesterday that he would like to be questioned. It became known that Lo Monte was killed soon after he had written to the police that the Zafarano brothers were concerned in the murder of the poultry dealer. From other sources the police learned that Lo Monte's purpose in doing this was to further his own campaign to succeed Michaelangela Gullicci as leader of Harlem's Little Italy. Gullicci, was assassinated and Lo Monte's dream of power was cut short by his own murder.

Dandruff Soon Ruins The Hair

Girls—if you want plenty of thick beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

MEN AND ANIMALS.

The chief difference between man and the lower animals lies in man's capacity for sinning. Obviously he has no monopoly of the virtues. A dog may be faithful, an elephant may be kind and true, a cat is said to love home and fireside; the parental instinct of the penguin would put nine-tenths of the leaders of our best society to shame. It is not by possessing such attributes that animals become "almost human". It would be fairer to say that the man who possesses these traits in fine degree is almost animal. There is a horse of vaudeville fame, that reckons simple sums in addition, and answers a wide variety of questions, in my memory serve me; I will even allow him to write his own first name with his hoof in the sand. The show bills call him "human", yet we feel no sense of kinship as we watch the performance, even though we should grant him all the ratiocination his exhibitors claim. We simply say, 'What a wonderfully clever horse!" bestow a word of praise upon his trainer, and that is the whole story. I have seen a dog perform agile tricks with prompt obedience and obvious enjoyment, and to me he was still a dog. But when some canine friend hides on his wash day; when he steals the cat's milk and pretends he did not; when he slinks in at a door with every expression of eye and limp crying "peccavi," ah, then I say to myself, "There is something human about that dog."

TWENTY-ONE PERISH IN MINE FIRE

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 17.—Twenty-one miners are believed to have lost their lives Monday night when fire was discovered in one of the levels of the Anaconda Copper Company's Pennsylvania Mine. Nine bodies had been recovered Tuesday night and hope for twelve others, who are missing, has been abandoned.

Tuesday night the fire was reported still burning. A huge ventilating fan was installed at the airshaft at noon and since then has been driven at top speed.

General manager John Gillie expressed the belief that it would be possible to search most of the working some time Tuesday night.

NATIONWIDE PLOT IN POISONING OF PRIEST SUSPECTED

CHICAGO, Ill., Feb. 17.—With the arrest here of Joseph Allegrini, closest friend of Jean Crones, the chef who is wanted in connection with poisoning the bouillion at the dinner to Archbishop Mundelein, the police believe they have uncovered an anarchistic conspiracy of country-wide ramifications, which has for its object the wholesale destruction of churches, the assassination of priests and communicants and the dynamiting of public buildings.

The arrest of Allegrini is considered of the utmost importance. He was familiar with the missing Crones and was a daily caller at the laboratory where Crones prepared the six hundred grains of arsenic with which he poisoned the diner at the banquet last week.

In Allegrini's pocket Inspector Hunt found a technical drawing of a bomb, giving the implicit directions for its manufacture. He also possessed literature which leads the police to believe that the poisoning of those at the banquet, mostly priests, was the beginning of this amazing plot of death and destruction.

Letter Found on Prisoner.

A letter found upon the prisoner is said to give detailed information concerning the anarchistic conspiracy and may mention the connections the group had with anarchists in other cities. It is known that the Chicago police are communicating with the police of other cities, not only to obtain further information, but to prevent such an incident as that at the Archbishop's banquet and the destruction of church and other property.

"It takes about three months to fix up one of these things," referring to a bomb of infernal machine. "Then it is good enough to send a priest or any other religious man high in the air."

In tracing the connections of Crones who was assistant chef at the University Club where the Archbishop's dinner was given, the police found that Allegrini was his closest friend and was in his rooms much of the time. When detectives took him to Police Headquarters he was accompanied by his attorney, who protested at the proceedings. It seems that Allegrini, who seems to be well supplied with money, expected to be arrested and kept his attorney with him, but why he carried such papers and documents with him at the time is a mystery.

Both Allegrini and Crones had been studying chemistry taking a correspondence course, and Crones' rooms were fitted up as a chemical laboratory. From drawings and other papers found it is now known that the study of bomb making was the principal occupation in the laboratory.

Obtained Ounce of Arsenic.

Inquiry at the correspondence school in Pennsylvania developed the fact to-day that an ounce of arsenic had been shipped to Crones, he representing he was making certain experiments.

The entire chemical laboratory of Crones was moved from his rooms, at No. 2,201 Prairie avenue, to the rooms of the city custodian to-day. The bottle which contained the arsenic has been turned over to the city chemist.

It is known that Crones and possibly Allegrini had correspondence with the Bhesci group of anarchists in New York City which "planted" the bombs in St. Patrick's Cathedral and at Police Headquarters there and committed other outrages. The Bresci group, which has been under close surveillance by the New York police, had on foot a conspiracy for the destruction of all church property and of public buildings. Their official publication was Mother Earth, which is published by Emma Goldman. A copy of this was found in Crones' room, with notes in Italian on the margins.

Mrs. Cophie Bresci, widow of the assassin of King Humbert, from whom the group takes its name, has lived in the Italian district here for a long time. An effort to find her failed. It is not known that she has been active with the anarchists who sent her husband from Paterson, N. J., to kill the Italian King. After the Paterson authorities drove the anarchists out of that city they made their headquarters in New York where their activities have called for the closest vigilance.

The Chicago police have informed the New York police of the fight of Crones and the Bresci colony in that city is being watched for him.

CANADA'S WAR COSTS

$60,000,000 for Eight Months of War —Auditor-General's Report.

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Details of Canada's war expenditure for the first eight months of the war, aggregating $60,000,000, were given to Parliament in a fourth volume of the Auditor-General's report for the last fiscal year.

The Government spent $57,174 for special police for the Ottawa Government buildings and public buildings generally. The Thiel detective service with scores of operatives working for the Departments of Militia and of Justice, looking after spies and conspicuous characters generally, cost nearly $26,000. Internment operations cost nearly a quarter of a million.

Special trains for Ministers on war service cost over $10,000. The C.P.R. drew more than one million dollars for transporting troops. The Ross Rifle Company got $233,000 for rifles, etc., up to March 31, last. The total number of new rifles supplied up to that time is given as 14,000. The cost of Valcartier camp, including pay and maintenance of 35,000 soldiers, who were there during September and October, was $3,179,000.

The naval service expenditures charged up to war account totalled $3,098,125, including $405,000 for the Niobe, $206,000 for the Rainbow, $1,234,000 for the submarines on the Pacific Coast, and $378,000 for Royal Canadian naval volunteer reserves, and coast defence on the Atlantic.

The Department of Trade and Commerce spent $3,003,000 for Canada's gift of flour to the Motherland.

HAD SALT RHEUM ON HANDS.

Could Not Do Her Work.

Eczema or salt rheum is one of the most common of all skin diseases. It may centre itself on any part of the body, but there are certain places where it most usually begins, such as the hends of the elbows, the backs of the knees, the groove behind the ears, the scalp, on the palms of the hands, between the fingers, or on the soles of the feet.

It is, as a rule, not dangerous, but is very irritating and annoying to the sufferer on account of the terrible itching and burning sensation it causes.

It is impossible to eradicate this trouble from the system by external applications, as it is caused by the blood being in an impure state. What you need is a good blood cleansing medicine such as Burdock Blood Bitters. A medicine that will drive out all the foulness from the blood and make it pure and rich.

Mrs. Adelard Theriault, Theriault, N.B., writes: "Some time ago I was troubled with salt rheum on my hands, and it was so bad I could not do my work. I tried several medicines, but they all failed to help me. One day a friend told me to try Burdock Blood Bitters, so I got a bottle, and before I had taken it my hands were better. I am not afraid to recommend B.B.B. to anyone."

B.B.B. has been on the market for the past forty years, and is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

KAISER'S ACT CANCELLED.

He and Hindenburg Deleted From Pictures Under Morality Law.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 16.—The Kaiser and Field Marshal von Hindenburg, slated to be stars of the "cast" at the Chestnut Street Opera House, have terminated their engagements.

The Pennsylvania State Board of Censors has cut seventy-five feet of film showing the German Emperor "close up," and also eliminated Field Marshal von Hindenburg from the pictures, "with von Hindenburg at the front," now appearing at that playhouse. They have acted under the law prohibiting scenes that are "sacrilegious, obscene, indecent or immoral or tend to debase or corrupt public morals."

Fearing a riot, the board exercised what it considers strict neutrality. What, it argued, would happen if there were fifty Germans and fifty Englishmen in the house, and a German should yell "Hoch der Kaiser?" Well, riots corrupt public morals.

Here is a Certified Cure Of Chronic Salt Rheum

By Use of Dr. Chase's Ointment—Also a Bad Case of Eczema Just Reported Cured.

Eczema and Salt Rheum are different names for practically the same disease. Small pimples of vesicles form in groups, break and run watery matter, a crust is formed, itching is intense and the disease shows a strong tendency to spread over the body.

Whatever may be the cause, Dr. Chase's Ointment will cure, for it heals and dries up the sores and leaves the skin soft and smooth.

Mr. Geo. P. Compton, Brooklyn, Lot 61, P.E.I., writes:—"I suffered for two years with Salt Rheum. Though I consulted three different doctors and tried many medicines, it was all to no effect. A friend advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and I am glad to say that when I finished the sixth box the Salt Rheum was all gone. There can be no doubt that the cure was entirely due to the use of this ointment, and I want other sufferers from Salt Rheum and Eczema to know about it."

Mr. Geo. Hume, J. P., Brooklyn, Lot 61, P.E.I., writes:—"This is to certify that I know Mr. Geo. E. Compton and believe his statement to be true and correct."

Mrs. Allan Weber, whose husband is proprietor of the Manitoulin Woollen Mills, Sheguiandah, Ont., writes:—"I have had a bad case of Eczema on my right leg below the knee. I tried all kinds of ointments and liniments, but to no avail, and was pretty well discouraged. Hearing of how Dr. Chase's Ointment is curing Eczema, I decided to give it a trial, and I am glad to say that it made a complete cure. The sore healed up completely and I have had no trace of the old trouble for over a year."

It takes a little patience to cure a severe case of Eczema or Salt Rheum, but you soon obtain relief by using Dr. Chase's Ointment, and you can see with your own eyes the benefits obtained once the healing process sets in. THE FALL OF ERZERUM WILL HAVE A BIG EFFECT UPON ROUMANIA

Capture of Turkish Stronghold Will Have Political as Well as Military Results--Anniversary of the Inauguration of the German Submarine Warfare Causes Increased Vigilance in British Fleet--800 Vessels Have Been Sunk In the Year and 2000 Non-Combatants Have Been Murdered.

A SUMMARY OF TO-DAY'S WAR CABLES

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Despatches from Bucharest state that the capture of Erzerum by the Russians is crystallizing the decision of Roumania to intervene at an early date.

In Roumanian official circles in sympathy with the Entente it is stated that in March there will be a concentration of Russian troops in Bessarabia for the purpose of permitting Roumania to transfer troops to the Bulgarian frontier. This transfer already is in progress.

In the meantime the Allies are hastening the transportation to Salonica of Serbian, Albanian and Montenegrin armies, which with French and British troops, will make possible an offensive movement simultaneously with the intervention of Roumania.

SUB CAMPAIGN BEGAN A YEAR AGO TO-DAY

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—British ships within the war zone to-day are taking extraordinary precautions against submarine attacks, this being the anniversary of the inauguration of the German submarine campaign. Eight hundred vessels with a tonnage of 1,400,000, were sunk during the year with the loss of two thousand non-combatants, including 118 Americans. From 18 to 40 German subs. were sunk. England has declared a virtual blockade of Germany as a reprisal, and Germany has become involved in serious controversies with the United States.

GERMANS AND AUSTRIANS ARE PROPOSING PIRACY

Special to The Examiner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—Germany and Austria propose piracy, Senator Lodge declared in Senate to-day. It is inconceivable, he said, that the United States should accept their plan to sink armed merchantmen without warning. After citing precedents that arming merchantmen for defence has been allowed ever since the days of the Barbary Pirates, and to show it has been approved by the United States during the present war, he declared that to change this policy now would be to commit an unneutral act in favour of Germany.

Senator Sterling spoke on the resolution, declaring the United States cannot accept the principle proposed by Germany and Austria. "For many reasons I cannot believe the administration thinks of altering our well-defined position. Should it act otherwise, it would accept a humiliation and incur the danger of war from which even the boldest and most unscrupulous would shrink, and therefore such a course as has been discussed in the newspapers seems wholly inconceivable," said Lodge.

UTTER CALM ALONG WHOLE WESTERN FRONT

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 18.—The recent violent activity along the Western front has now almost entirely ceased. The War Office this afternoon reported an utter calm along the whole front last night.

Two Dynamite Cartridges Found In The Hold of British Steamer

MADRID, Feb. 18.—Two dynamite cartridges filled with enough explosive to blow a vessel to bits were found in the hold of the British steamer Rosenbank, bound from Baltimore for English ports, according to a Valencia despatch to-day. The Rosenbank is carrying a cargo of coal.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 18.—It is understood that several of the battalions which were to go to the front immediately have been found to be not quite up to war strength, and an order regarding these has been cancelled by Gen. Hughes.

Other battalions which are up to strength will be notified that they will take their places, but what regiments those are have not yet been made public.

British Ambulance Driver in Letter To The Examiner Says That a Cigarette is the First Thing a Wounded man Asks For

WANTS TO CORRESPOND

The Examiner is in receipt of the following letter from Driver Thomas Potter, Army Service Corps, 5th Cavalry Brigade, British Expeditionary Force. The letter is self explanatory:

Dear Sir,—At last I have a little leisure in which to write you a few words of thanks for your generosity in sending us a welcome supply of cigarettes and tobacco, for we received the same at a most opportune time, for I don't think there was a packet of smokes in our unit when your gift appeared, so you may guess we got the full value of them and in a very short time after they were distributed me and my chums were going about our duties in much more cheerful manner, for nothing makes a man more miserable than the craving for a fag when such a thing is unobtainable. It is the first thing the wounded ask for, a smoke.

Smokes For the Wounded.

I feel miserable if I have to go to the trenches at night without a few spare cigarettes in my case for the men that have been wounded, for I am an ambulance driver out here and I know what the poor fellows look forward to when they start the trying journey from the trenches to the dressing station, and it upsets me if I have to refuse them the fragrant weed for which they crave. I am proud to say I have made friends with two gallant sons of Canada who were wounded in the first gas attack at Ypres and I have promised them if spared when this job is finished to come over to your splendid country and try my luck, for I am a poor lonely civilian in peace time. Therefore I have no ties in the old country to detain me and their letters have filled me with a great desire to see for myself what a beautiful place it is. I would very much like to commence an exchange of post cards with one or two persons, if you could put me in touch wtih anyone who favours the idea. Sir, you would be doing me a noble kindness, for you can hardly imagine what a few lines means to us out here, and I feel like an exile when I see my chums reading their letters and there is very seldom one for me, for the only letters I get are from my wounded chums that I referred to in a previous part of this letter. I trust, dear sir, that I am not asking too much of you by making this request, for you have already done me and my chums a glorious service by providing us with smokes, and would not like to cause you any annoyance by trampling on your generosity, so I beg of you to forgive me if I am in

In Dr. Grenfell we have a life consecrated and devoted to the cause of humanity.

This may be gleaned from the fact he is now spending his vacation in France, ministering to the wounded and dying soldiers.

It is not surprising to find such a man at the head of one of the most successful missions in Canada.

The history of the mission is bristling with facts of great interest, which may be found in the Doctor's helpful book, "The Adventures of a Life."

He has caught the vision of the Master, and is endeavouring to carry out the divine command.

The people of Labrador cry "I am hungry," and he feeds them. "Thirsty," and he gives them drink. "A stranger," and he takes them in. "Naked," and he clothes them. "Sick," and he heals them. "Imprisoned," and he visits them.

Such a mission is deserving of the sympathy, prayer, and financial support of all who are interested in the work of the Kingdom. The work of the Mission is another among the many proofs of the power of the Gospel to uplift and transform society.

This work is just as needy as ever, and it is earnestly hoped that the friends of this Mission in Peterborough will realize that their opportunity remains the same as in former years. But the obligation has increased with the growing need.

Let us support it to the limit of our ability. The work of the Mission cannot be measured. It has to do with values for which we have no standard.

Let us give cheerfully, for upon such rests the benediction of love.

The concert in the Grand Opera House to-night will commence sharp at 8 o'clock, and the doors will be open at 7 o'clock. The rapid sale of tickets, of which 2,000 were issued, indicates a crowded house, and as no seats have been reserved the public is advised to go early. The Grand Opera House Orchestra will play from 7.20 to 7.45 o'clock.

The N.C.O's. and men of No. 8 Platoon had a pleasant surprise in store for their platoon sergeant, Sergt C. Payne, last night, when they presented him with a gold-headed stick and fountain pen, in recognition of the good feeling of comradeship and appreciation of the hard work he has put in to make No. 8 Platoon one of the smartest in the 93rd Battalion. Sergt. Payne, having returned from the actual battle line of this great struggle, the N.C.O's. and men of No. 8 Platoon realise fully what it means to have such a man for platoon sergeant. In replying Sergeant Payne thanked the men of No. 8 Platoon for their showing of comradeship, saying that he felt the men must have a lot of respect for him to make him such a present, and assured the men that he had as much for them and would always do everything within his power for No. 8 Platoon, and all the actual experience he had had of warfare was at the disposal of the men in No. 8 Platoon. He hoped it would be some advantage to them when they went overseas.

GRAND JURY MAY VISIT BACK COUNTRY

Chief Justice Mulock Authorizes The Grand Jury to Continue Their Investigations—The Presentment.

THE ASSIZES

This morning at the resumption of the Assizes, the Grand Jury presented to Chief Justice Mulock the following report:

To His Worship, Sir William Mulock:

May it please your Lordship.

We the Grand Jury of the Spring Asize of the County of Peterborough beg leave to report as follows:

With your Lordship we regret to note the several criminal cases brought before the Court but venture to suggest that such a state of affairs is one to some extent abnormal in the history of this district. With your Lordship we agree that something of environment and condition of living in the sparcely settled and unproductive districts is a factor in inducing a relaxation of moral observance and is to be regretted. Your Lordship's suggestion that this state of affairs can be amended is good and most worthy of consideration.

The War.

Before presenting our observations and recommendations we feel that we should refer to the topic that is uppermost in the minds and hearts of the people of Canada and of the Empire at large, this great world war. True it is that we as a Canadian people have as yet felt none of the misery and privation that has fallen to those countries in the scene of conflict. We have as a people, had our losses. Our gallant Canadians have proved on the battlefield that they are the peers of any nation as fighting men and have earned the encomiums of the highest military authorities. That a people unused to more than an perfunctory military training should rally to the support of the Mother Country and prove their worth on the hardest fought fields is phenomenal in all history.

We have had our losses. Trifling, as yet, to those compared with the sacrifice made by our Mother Country and by our brave allies. But we will continue to call to the colours of the Empire our best and send them forward until the war is won and a permanent peace secured for all time. Such a peace is a legacy which we propose to leave to our children, and we will spare neither men nor money until we have attained that object.

Peterborough's Share.

We call your Lordship's attention to the fact that Peterborough has enlisted from the city and district close at hand the largest number of men in proportion to our population of any place in Eastern Canada, east of Winnipeg. We are enlisting yet. We will go on and on until the end is achieved. The people of this district are the descendants of the early settlers who brought with them from the Old Land those attributes of British citizenship and loyalty that will ever endure, and their sons and grandsons in the present generation are worthily upholding the principles so dear and cherished.

It was our pleasure to visit the following institutions: The County Gaol, St Joseph's Hospital, House of Providence, House of Refuge, the latter a wholly county institution, and Children's Shelter. We are pleased to observe and to say so, that each of these we found them in charge of most capable and worthy superintendents, and in speaking to many inmates were assured that all were perfectly satisfied with the attention and care received.

Improvements.

Referring to the lighting of certain rooms in the County Buildings we strongly endorse Your Lordship's remarks and would suggest the changing of the antiquated one-drop carbon bulbs to the chandelier with Tungsten lamps. In the goal we found the lighting, heating and cleanliness most satisfactory. The ventilation also excellent. We respectfully put forward the suggestion that our citizens might send to and assist in keeping the corridors supplied with magazines and other literature of no further use in the homes.

Your Jurors have considered your Lordship's suggestions as to such matter as our careful attention might

SOME BREEZY GOSSIP OF LIFE WITH BATTERY

Gunner H. V. Crowe of Peterboro Who Enlisted With The 33rd Battery And is Now At The Front With The 17th Describes The Conditions

"IT'S A JOKE HERE"

The following is an extract of a letter from Gunner H. V. Crowe, who enlisted with the 33rd Battery, and is now in Belgium with the 17th Battery:

"I was in Flanders up to yesterday, but now in Belgium on the firing line. It is a joke here. We have stoves in our billets and dugouts, and homemade spring bunks to sleep on. We got this on account of relieving a New Brunswick Brigade for a rest. It is very quiet here as far as shelling the enemy goes, as we fire about 10 shells to their one. I was out collecting salvage wire to-day and having a look over the lines before the battery came up, and we could see the German positions, that is their trenches in the valley and on the side of the hill, very plainly. They can't see us on account of us being in a well concealed position behind a crest. We can walk about as we please, only when an aeroplane comes over when we have to stand still. It is all right on the road as it doesn't give the position away. This afternoon we saw an aerial duel, also the naval guns firing on a hostile plant. Geel they can dodge shells. The big guns are firing nearly all the time from one part of the line or the other, and the shells going through the air sounds like an express train going full speed over head. You hear a bang then a whirr, a kind of rumbling sound, a rushing of air for about 25 seconds, then they burst. Then when their shells start to come overhead we instinctively duck. The snipers are the only ones active in the daytime, but to-night the star shells are going up continually, and the machine guns are popping steadily, and we hear an occasional gun but not of the enemy.

I am still at my job as telephonist,

FRIDAY, FEB. 18, 1916

WHAT GOOD?

The Commission to inquire into the causes of the high cost of living has made its report, but to what good purpose? A few men have had a nice, fat job, and have compiled some interesting reading, as will be seen by a reference to the text of the report published in another column. Unless such a report forms the basis of some legislative action to give effect to the knowledge revealed, time and money have been wasted. We have had in Canada commissions galore, but when there have been reports what good purpose have they served except to occupy space in pigeon holes, except those commissions that have revealed crookedness and waste and unrighteous profiteering in the furnishing of war munitions and other war supplies. We have enough subjects for legislation and government action that are fairly throwing themselves on the faces of governments without spending thousands of thousands of dollars upon investigating commissions, whose reports have only academic value, or value as sedatives to insistence of public demand.

CANADA'S HAPPY PLIGHT.

Messrs. W. J. Gage & Company deserve a little free advertising for their patriotic optimism and enterprise. The company has issued a "business barometer." This consists of a collection of extracts from letters of its business clients in all the provinces. These letters are confessions of local business prosperity, all of a cheerful sameness of optimism, extending from ocean to ocean. Business is good and getting better, much in advance of the recent past. The publication of such letters is a good thing; nothing begets good times like talking good times, especially when there is substantial reason behind. We have a great country with great resources and a splendid spirit of enterprise. In a year of war, with inevitable distraction, we have evidence of growth and progress implied in a total yearly trade record of 1,200 million dollars. We are undergoing an apprenticeship in resourcefulness and enterprise that will serve us well when the war clouds roll by, and we are face to face with the problems of peace, which we will face and solve with the same courage and efficiency we have faced the problems of a time of war. Canada will come out of this war, to whose triumph she is so splendidly contributing with a new spirit of courage and resourcefulness, to deal with new opportunities and responsibilities arising from our more prominent place in the world. Canada, through her liberality in material ways, though her response to the call for fighting men, through their splendid and successful fighting against, theoretically, at least, the best soldiers of Europe, has come to bulk more largely in the eyes of the Empire of the world, and will be expected to achieve as much, proportionally, in the works of peace and world commerce as she has done in the stern work of war.

WEAKENING OUR OFFENSIVE.

If the Ontario government needs to be stimulated to bring in a provincial prohibition measure, it will, if it pays any respect to the largely signed petitions that will be presented to it, find its encouragement there. These petitions should give the government the courage that should come from overwhelming evidence of popular desire for prohibitive legislation. It may be urged and admitted that it is easy to get petitions signed. Some may have signed prohibition petitions from mere complaisance; but such persons are likely to be so indifferent that they will not "kick" and make trouble for the government if it takes action. If the prohibition petitions form, to the government's mind, a warrant for enacting prohibition, the matter can be arranged after the manner of Manitoba, which proposes a measure of Jedburg justice—hang a man and try him afterwards— pass prohibition and then submit it to popular vote for approval or rejection. Hon. Mr. Hearst, with a barnful of petitions stacked around him in the legislature, and with the high moral strengthening he will gain from the triumph of his horse-painting candidate in Peel, may pluck up courage to tackle the question, which Ontario is amongst the last of the provinces to face when it should have been the first. Ontario is the greatest recruiting ground of the Dominion. She has furnished the majority of enlistments; and she should be first in giving the aid to carrying on the war which would come from the removal of the handicap of the drink evil. We are enjoined to practice the greatest economy to avoid waste in order to strengthen our fighting forces of all kinds. Then why perpetuate one of the greatest sources of waste in this or any other country? Any course of action taken that tends to weaken our fighting strength is unpatriotic and treasonable. If a man openly condemns and discourages enlistment he is put in jail or otherwise disciplined. Yet we have the government fostering the drink evil which, measured by its economic waste, its impairment of the national morale, is an indirect, but one of the most potent and effective allies of the enemy in this war; does more to weaken our home line of defence and impair our aggressive capacity than ten times all the plotting and bombing of alien enemies. Sir Sam Hughes stands for the dry canteen. That is a splendid thing in its way; but we retain the wet canteen, with all its weakening influence, in the nursery of armies, the home and our social life. We are weakening our offensive at the base.

BEGINNING OF THE END.

We are weary of the war and ask when it will end. That nobody knows; and there is evidence that it is only beginning. Russian authorities say so, and in an interview with an Italian journalist, Lloyd George also said the war was "only beginning." But with these discouraging assertions there is this comfort that the beginning mentioned is the beginning of the end. The war so far has, on the part of the allies, been only a preparation. The war storm broke in August, 1914, with Germany prepared to the hilt and with the Entente allies, excepting, perhaps France, to a considerable degree, entirely unprepared. With all this unpreparedness, the allies stopped the first onrush of Germany, and the battling since on the part of the allies has largely been to hold their own, which they have splendidly done. The past eighteen months have been spent largely in preparation. At the beginning of the war Germany was far ahead of the allies, in the matter of men and munitions. That disparity has greatly disappeared and soon, if they have not now, the Entente allies will have an effective superiority in men and munitions, and money, as well as the other resources, necessary to successful campaigning. Lloyd George is a knowing man and doubtless knew what he talking about when he said:

"By next spring we shall have turned out an immense amount of munitions. We shall have for the first time in the war more than the enemy. Our superiority in men and materials will be unquestioned, and I think the war for us is beginning only new."

Great Britain has paid dearly for her too great faith in the influence of Christian civilization and the balancing power of national morality; but she is grandly measuring up, from centre to circumference of the Empire, to the suddenly created call of duty. We have had a score of months of dark days, but we are stronger now in the essentials of fighting and victory winning than we have ever been in our history. It seems to be true that on our part and on the part of our allies the war is only beginning and there is reason to believe that that beginning is the beginning of the end. We who live a few months will live in, perhaps, the most stirring times of the world's history.

AUSTRALIA'S BIT.

We are inclined to blow a bit sometimes about what Canada is doing in the war. Have we bothered to take note of what the others are doing?

Premier Hughes, of Australia reminds us that our sister Commonwealth has already sent overseas a total of 140,000 men, and has ready for despatch when called for 160,000. He expects that these and others will be at the front by June, when Australia's contribution will be not less than 300,000.

While our contribution shapes up well, Canada hasn't suffered as Australia has. The total casualties among the Australian forces is over 30,000. Ours have not been nearly as great. Our brothers from the island Commonwealth fought and died bravely in the Gallipoli campaign. But those tremendous losses have only spurred the Australians on to greater effort.

"It only served to harden our resolution to wage the war to a successful conclusion," declared Mr. Hughes.—Ottawa Free Press.

HOW THE GOVERNMENT ADAPTS THE EXPENDITURE TO THE CALL FOR ECONOMY

The one impression above all others to be gained from the Budget Speech of the Finance Minister is the extraordinary buoyance of trade which it reveals. Not the most optimistic Canadian would have been rash enough to believe a year ago that the estimated revenue would be exceeded by $30,000,000. This is indeed an extraordinary achievement, brought about by an extraordinary set of circumstances.

For one thing Canada was blessed with such a crop as few can hope to see again. Throughout the Canadian West the farmers, almost without exception, had double the yield of an ordinary crop. Some of the yields ranged as high as 70 bushels of wheat to the acre over whole farms. This, with the high price of wheat, has meant a remarkable influx of money into the West, and a corresponding increase in the purchasing power of the farmers. Moreover, this money has come no: as loans, but in payment for value received.

Then, again, the huge orders placed in this country for munitions of war have greatly stimulated business. These orders, be it noted, run over the whole gamut of our production. They are not confined to shells, but apply to the products of our forests; our mines, our fisheries, and our farms; they apply to our textile and clothing establishments, to our leather manufactories—in fact, they have given new life, either directly or indirectly to our whole business fabric. Quite possibly the present year will see an even greater benefit from war expenditures. We can, therefore, look forward with confidence to meeting a reasonable degree of taxation without seriously disturbing our economic life or frightening immigrants away by the debts that are being piled up.

At the same time, we must confess to disappointment at another phase of the Budget speech. The Government evidently have not yet learned the imperative necessity of economy. Sir Thomas White referred to their decision not to initiate new expenditures on public works, and announced as a result that seven million dollars had been saved on capital account as compared with last year! Seeing that the fiscal year has still another six weeks to run, and seeing that the Government has, up to the present year, been spending at least $31,000,000 per year more than was spent on capital account in the last two years of the Laurier regime, it is evident that precious little has been done in the way of economy, despite the statement that no new works have been initiated.

Sir Thomas White further stated that for the ten and a half months of the present fiscal year thirteen million dollars has been saved on ordinary expenditure, as compared with the same period last year. Seeing that the Government have been spending between $40,000,000 and $50,000,000 more per annum on ordinary expenditure than the Laurier Government ever spent, all that can be said about the "saving" that has been affected is that it errs on the side of excessive modesty. The pruning knife is still badly needed for the bloated expenditures to which the Government have committed themselves. There is no reason, whatever, why expenditures in these days of world war should be a cent higher than they were in the years of booming prosperity that immediately preceded the present administration, especially as "we are not initiating any new expenditures on public works." With a war expenditure that by the end of the present year will call for a permanent annual charge of $25,000,000 for interest alone and with the prospect that this charge will soon be doubled if the war continues beyond this year, the Government should exercise at least such a reasonable amount of economy as will lop off the $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 which they added to the ordinary expenditure as compared with the ordinary expenditure under the Laurier regime.—Montreal Herald.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE OF THE DARK PICTURE OF THIS WAR

Under the heading, "The Brighter Side of the Great War," the Catholic Record, of London, Ontario, has in its last issue a splendid article. Attention is called to the fact that previous to the war the race for commercial supremacy fairly saturated the minds of most men. The all mighty dollar was worshipped, bought and its influence counted for most in the success of this mundane sphere's activities. However, the conscience awakening events of the stupendous struggle has changed in many ways the people of the nations, included in the entente powers. It has affected Canada to a remarkable degree, to say nothing of France, Italy and Great Britain. Concerning Canada the Record observes:

And then the war broke out, and upon the spirit of the world a great change fell. The call to Canada did not fall upon deaf ears. Who that travelled across this continent in the early days of the war can forget these scenes of pathos and parting, when from Pacific to Atlantic the stream of recruits was rallying to the call of duty? Who can forget the cheering at the stations and the stalwart men of the prairies who boarded the trains, khaki-clad, bound for the front? Many were fresh from the fields where they had lived in tents and shacks and their fine color told of the outdoor life. Some of them will never return. Scarcely a place from Vancouver to Halifax but has lost some familiar face. Yet with their record of heroism before us, and with the knowledge of the world's dangers from which some of our boys were saved by an early death, who can help but feel that in God's providence it is all for the best:

"Those whom the gods love die young." So wrote the Greek poet. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord," says the apostle. That must be our comfort when we think of vanished faces, and of those now lying on the battlefield in the sleep of death whom we should love to see again. What better record could a hero have than to have fallen in battle for his country? What greater love can a man show than to lay down his life for his friends? Is there not something inspiring in the way the British Empire and its dominions have risen to duty in the present war in the fact of hardship, without a word of complaint? Letters from Great Britain seem all to breathe the same spirit of courage, self-sacrifice and dauntless purpose. The nation of shopkeepers has become a nation of heroes. And what heroines their women are! Their letters to-day show a spartan spirit that scorns the name of fear.

One soul won for Heaven is worth more than all the wealth this world contains. The war has brought many souls to Christ. Speaking on the war recently, the well-known Jesuit, Rev. Father Vaughan said: "I like to think that our losses here on earth have been God's gains up there beyond in Heaven. Listen to this and be satisfied I am telling you the truth: A young cavalry officer in the trenches, where, later on, he was blown to pieces wrote to a friend, saying "Tell mother not to worry, because but for this war she would never have had me with her in heaven; but this hell let loose has brought me to my senses and to my duties to God."—Catholic Record.

JUST GETTING INTO STRIDE.

"Don't waste your ammunition; the war is only just beginning," is the printed announcement on all boxes of ammunition being dealt out to Russian soldiers. If it goes on like this, Germany will have to withdraw the official announcement that the Allies are beaten.—Montreal Herald.

IT IS WORTH THE PRICE

There will be a new Canadian appropriation of $200,000,000 for war purposes. The new taxation will yield from $60,000,000 to $80,000,000. This means that prosperity will have to pay a large share of the burden. But prosperity, we hope, will be relieved of the anxiety and dread of German domination.—Toronto Star.

MR. FALLIS' OPPORTUNITY

Mr. Fallis has been very kindly dealt with by his party in Peel. His friends there took the view that he acted as any man in private life might have acted, and that he did so in good faith and with no intent that any man in business might not have entertained. His renomination in the party convention affords him a certificate of character which is all that he requires from a grateful constituency.

But Mr. Fallis has a duty to his party and to his country. He is not a private citizen but a man in public life. We have been waiting in the hope that he would recognize it before it was too late. He may have it in his mind now to do so. But there should be no delay. He should refuse to jeopardize the reputation of the Conservative party in Ontario by even appearing to set up a pretext which the foes of his party will be quick to use, and which less estimable members of his own party will be equally quick to seize on as a signal that the turn of the grafters has arrived.

We do not accuse Mr. Fallis of anything like that, but he must be aware of what the public think of Caesar's wife, and Mr. Fallis is in the position of Caesar's wife to the government of Ontario. Mr. Fallis could do no more patriotic act than so decline the nomination which has been so generously tendered him. He will do himself service by such a course of action.—Toronto World.

WEIRD MURDER TALE.

Undertaker Tells of Slaying Wife, Forging Papers and Burying Her.

New York, Feb. 18. — Harry A. Schroeffel, manager for the undertaking establishment of Philip Voelker, at 36 East Eighty-sixth street, is under arrest for wife murder with attending circumstances which the police say have rarely been equalled in police history.

The charge which Schoeffel afterward admitted, according to the police, is that early on the morning of December 29 he strangled his wife during a quarrel, and leaving her dead on the floor went calmly to sleep on the bed in the room; that on the following morning he carried the body into the undertaking establishment without the knowledge of his mother and brother, called in an embalmer as if she were a stranger, forged a death certificate, and later buried the body in Woodlawn Cemetery, and apparently thought no more of the matter.

It required only a short course of questions after Schoeffel had reached the Third Detective Bureau in East 126th street before Deputy Assistant Attorney Attorney Marsuko, backed by the detectives, announced that the man had made a full confession of the crime.

SCHOOLS ARE BLAMED

For Failure to Give Enough Attention to Body Development.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 18.—Ninety-nine per cent. of the men of the United States are deformed or physically disproportioned, according to authorities at the International Custom Cutters' convention.

According to the tailoring experts, the deformities and disproportions run about as follows:

Thirty-five per cent. of the men are stoop shouldered and flat chested.

Thirty-five per cent. are low shouldered.

Ten per cent are bow legged, more or less.

Ten per cent. are knock kneed in varying degrees.

Five per cent. are high hipped.

Five per cent. are high shouldered.

Farr L. Scott, president of the cutters, said the deformity occurs in the growing boy and before he comes to the tailor to be fitted. "Our present school systems," said Scott, "are top-heavy. Too little attention is paid to the development of the body. All attention, it seems is given to the development of the mind."

"If the tailors of the United States were to go on record in a body they would all favor military training for the youth of the nation. It doesn't matter whether they train with a gun or a broomstick, the military training is what they need to give proper formation to the body."

Scott said football, basketball and track work, while they develop the muscles, don't give a graceful carriage; and these exercises, also, he said, create bodily imperfections. Military drill, he said, gives a graceful carriage and helps to perfect the body formation.

FRENCH AVIATORS DROP LEAFLETS, NOT BOMBS.

According to the Frankfurter Zeitung, French aviators, instead of throwing bombs, are flying over German cities and dropping thousands of leaflets telling the German people that their hope of victory in the war is hopeless and that France cannot and will not be defeated.

In addition, the French are making use of thousands of toy balloons, each containing one of these leaflets, and these balloons are freed daily when the wind is favourable, so as to carry them over the border to Germany.

There are also being distributed copies of the French paper prepared behind the trenches, giving extracts from letters found on dead German soldiers in which the hopelessness of the German cause is dwelt upon.

It is believed that this method of distributing literature will have more effect on the minds of the German people than the throwing of bombs upon towns and cities.

DILUTED LIQUOR FOR BRITAIN.

London, Feb. 18.—The Daily Mail says: "The liquor Control Board is contemplating allowing the dilution of spirits by 50 per cent. of water. The manufactures are conducting experiments to overcome the cloudy effect of the dilution of whiskey by water. Brewers have been asked to experiment in the production of non-alcoholic beers."

If you want to sell something, it is easier to have the buyers come to you. If you want to buy something you save time and energy if the sellers come to you. It is quite possible to have your head save your heels, to have others come to you instead of you going after them.

An advertisement in the paper will accomplish the result. Give adequate particulars of just what your needs are, or what you have to offer and some person who wants what you have, either cash or goods, will look you up.

EXPECT TO TAKE TREBIZOND SHORTLY

Russian Forces Are Now Moving on The Important Turkish Black Sea Port—City of Baiburt Has Been Captured By The Russians—Turkish Civil Authorities To Be Executed.

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The Russian forces forming the right wing of the Grand Duke's Caucasus army are within fifty miles of the important Turkish Black Sea port of Trebizond. The ancient city of Baiburt, on the road from Erzerum to Trebizond, has been captured, and the Slavs are pushing on toward the Pontine Mountains, barring their march on Trebizond. The capture of Trebizond is expected within another fortnight. Advices from Petrograd to-day said it was considered certain that the Grand Duke would send a force against the city before pressing his campaign against the Turks to the westward. The Russian authorities already have taken steps to ameliorate the conditions of the Armenians. A tribunal will be established in Erzerum as soon as possible and investigations of Turkish atrocities against the Armenians will be begun at once. Wholesale executions of the Turkish civil officers responsible for the outrages are predicted.

KING GEORGE SENDS CONGRATULATIONS To CZAR

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 18.—On receipt of the news of the capture of Erzerum by the Russians, King George despatched the following message to Emperor Nicholas: "My heartiest congratulations upon the splendid achievement of your gallant troops in capturing Erzerum after such hard fighting, which I trust will have a far-reaching effect."

400 MILLIONS MORE AS WAR VOTE OF CREDIT

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 18.—New votes of credit amounting to approximately £400,000,000 will be asked by Premier Asquith in the House of Commons on Monday. New votes will bring up the total of the war appropriations to £2,062,000,000.

EMERGENCY DAM OUTSIDE DUTCH VILLAGE BURSTS AND FLOODS THE PLACE

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 18.—An emergency dam just outside the village of Purmerend burst to-day, and a great outcome of water is rushing down upon the town through the broken dyke. Alarms have been sounded throughout the surrounding districts, and the Burgomaster ordered all citizens to their attics.

MORE STRENGTH FOR FEEBLE OLD PEOPLE

If all the old people in Peterborough realized what Vinol will do for them, we would not be able to get enough of it to supply the demand. We quote from a recent letter received from Mrs. A. E. Carson of Kingston, N.Y.

She says: "I am 69 years of age, and had been ailing for a long time with indigestion. I got run-down, was weak, dizzy and could not sleep at night. I consulted two doctors, who said I had hardening of the arteries and at my age could not expect to be strong again. My daughter would give me no peace until I tried Vinol, as it had done so much for her. I have taken five bottles, and my health and strength have come back, so I am able to do all the house-work for my family of four, and I am recommending Vinol to all my friends."

The reason Vinol is so beneficial to old people is because it contains the very elements needed to replace declining strength with renewed vigor, viz.: the medicinal elements of fresh cod livers without oil, peptonate of iron, beef peptone, and a mild tonic wine.

It is announced that Harry Lauder's play, "The Night Before" which appears at the Grand to-morrow, matinee and evening, will return to the Royal Alexandra, Toronto, for the week of February 28. This is the first time that a return date has been played so soon in Toronto, and it is splendid testimonial as to what Toronto thinks of this splendid play and excellent company, "The Night Before" played Toronto only last week. There promises to be a record crowd at to-morrow's matinee performance, when "Boogie Tea and Scenes" will be served to patrons.

Result of Long Preparations

German Activity in The West Not The Result of a New Plan

LONDON, Friday, Feb. 18. — The correspondent of the Daily Mail at British headquarters in France, writing under date of Feb. 14, gives his reasons for believing that the cumulative German activity in the west is not the result of a new plan, but of long preparations.

The number of mines exploded—and balked—alone is a sufficient proof, he says. "Some of the mines have been in course of construction for three months. There also is proof that artillery recently has been brought from the east.

"The unprecedented increased intensity of recent aerographic reports evidently is intentional."

West African Campaign Ends

All Camerouns Conquered—German Commander Succeeds in Escaping

LONDON, Feb. 18.—The following official communication referring to the operations in the Camerouns region of West Africa, was issued tonight:

"A telegram dated February 16th, from Gen. Dobell (the French Commander in Camerouns) states that he has received information from Gen. Aymerich that the French have closed the frontier up to Ngoa and all east thereof. The Campo region column has a few miles to traverse to close the line from the sea.

"Active operations are now practically ended, and the conquest of Cameroon is complete, with the exception of the isolated position of Mora Hill. The German commandant, Zimmerman, succeeded in making his escape into Spanish territory."

which arsenal, which took place on Christmas eve. There was another big raid last week. They dropped bombs in a number of the eastern counties. Fifty-nine persons were killed and over one hundred injured. Considering that over two hundred bombs were dropped the damage was slight.

We have had no winter yet. It seems strange after the winters we get in Canada. Still I would sooner live in Canada than here. I think you would think the same if you were over here.

Word has been received from the Adjutant General's Department, at Ottawa, that Pte. John Sandback No. 112526, of the 28th Canadian Battalion, formerly of the 39th Battalion, is seriously ill with pneumonia in No. 1 Canadian General Hospital, at Etaples, France. February 14th is given as the date of his admission into the hospital. Pte. Sandback is one of the Peterborough boys who enlisted here a year ago and who went to England with that unit last Spring. He was afterwards drafted to the 28th Battalions and has been at the front for some time. Pte. Sandback lived at 319 McDonnel Street. His wife went to England some time ago.

The following signallers of the 93rd Battalion have returned from Kingston, where they were in attendance at the School of Signallers: A. Burrows, P. Wiley, F. Staunton, H. Fox, S. Martin and A. Knox. All were successful in securing their grade A certificates. On Monday the following members of the 93rd Signallers will leave for Kingston: Sergt. Ecobichon, Signallers F. Crowell, A. Edwards, C. McFaul, R. Woods, C. Ferguson, Quinn, S. Carpenter, P. Ecobichon and A. Thompson.

The Kingston Standard says: Brig.-Gen. Logie has gone on record in the press as being opposed to other Divisions recruiting in the City of Toronto, because he has ten overseas units to organize in his own Division. The 2nd Division is one of the most thickly populated in the whole of Canada, and recruiting easier as a consequence. The cities of Toronto and Hamilton have a greater population than the whole of the 3rd Divisional area under Colonel Hemming, and yet this Division has been given the task of contributing ten more units to the C.E.F. Already the Division has sent nearly 20,000 men in training for overseas service which is a big task for a Division with such a limited population. The 2nd Division under Brig.-Gen. Logie is filled with big and populous centres, from which it should be easy to secure plenty of recruits, and if the 3rd or any other Division does a little sheep-stealing from around Toronto there should be no complaint for the loss of the mutton.

Lieut.-Col Floyd, officer commanding the 130th Battalion, was in the city yesterday in conference with Maj. Hamilton, A.D.T.S. The colonel reports that his battalion is growing rapidly, and he expects in a few weeks to have his battalion up to strength. The 130th now has 625 men of all ranks on its roll.—Kingston Standard.

Kingston Standard: The 146th Battalion, through Lieut. James, formerly of the staff of the Ottawa Citizen, are appealing to the Kingston Old Boys in the capital city to join the Kingston Battalion. Another six hundred men are needed to complete the establishment, and every effort will be made to get these at the earliest possible date. It is the hope of the Battalion that as many Kingstonians as possible will join its ranks, so that when it goes to the front it may be well representative of the old Limestone City.

Kingston, Feb. 17.—According to figures given out to-day during the first two weeks in February there were 1,866 recruits secured in the third military division. This is 200 more than the previous two weeks showed.

WORKSHIP IS DESTROYED BY FIRE TO-DAY

A workshop belonging to the Dominion government, and situated near the C.P.R. bridge and the canal, was totally destroyed by fire this afternoon, the loss including a quantity of tools belonging to the workmen employed there who were engaged in building a scow. The blaze started when the stove in the building was set up. There was a quantity of oakum close at hand and the flames spread rapidly, so that there was no chance of saving any of the workmen's tools. The fire department had a long run to the scene of the blaze.

He Can't Cough Up Money He Swallowed

WINSTEAD, Conn., Feb. 18.—For some reason, as yet unexplained, Joseph Lanyer, a wood-chopper, when arrested in Litchfield by officers on a charge of intoxication, pulled $18 in greenbacks from his pocket, stuffed the money in his mouth and swallowed it.

Justice W. T. Marsh sentenced him to thirty days in jail and costs. Lanyer has tried in vain to cough up the money inside of him. If unsuccesful he must work out the costs, which will keep him in jail eight days longer.

Stephen Leacock Immense As A Reader of His Own Writings

Large Audience Started Laughing at His Von Boobenstein and Chuckled Steadily at His Droll Humour—A Satire on German Efficiency.

If yesterday Stephen Leacock was only a name under the title of certain books and magazine features, to-day he is regarded as an intimate friend by as many of his Peterborough admirers who could get within sound of his voice at the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall last night. The reference to their limited numbers follows upon the fact that not a few persons were turned away so great was the audience that filled all the extra seats and occupied the advantageous window seats. It is a rare pleasure to meet the author of books you have richly enjoyed. But when the author is a Canadian who has won literary distinction not only for himself, but also for his country, when the reader feels a certain indebtedness to the author for the many dull hours his writings have brightened, it was only to be expected that he would be greeted by a large number of his admirers.

At any time Peterborough would surely have welcomed Professor Leacock as cordially as it did last night, but on this occasion there was added to his reputation and his literary association the sacrifice of his time and his talent in aid of the Belgian Relief Fund. He came here under the auspices of the local branch of the Red Cross Society, only stipulating that while half the proceeds of the collection was retained by the Red Cross the other half was donated to the Belgian Fund. His expenses he paid himself. And while his patriotic efforts deserve special commendation, his humour strikes with the stronger effect of his personal presentation. The author of 'Nonsense Novels,' 'Literary Lapses' 'The Arcadian Adventures of the Idle Rich' and other books of a similar nature occupies a foremost position in a literary field, in which he has few contemporaries. Hence his reputation as an author preceded him; to that he left the welcome impression that his reading is as effective as his writing, and that the combination is altogether delightful

Dr. Leacock read two of his sketches, one a satire on German efficiency in which he introduced one of the Boobs of Boobinstein, a general in the German army, who had been head waiter at McConkey's, and in rich and rippling satire travestied the boasting efficiency that was made in Germany. The other selection was better known to the audience. "Behind the Beyond," in which he made sport of the modern problem play and incidentally humorously touched upon some of the foibles of the inner set in English-politico-social affairs. The Leacock satire is sheathed; it is padded, good humoroured, even kindly. It is always broad, but occasionally it dips to subtle depths. His humour as he read his sketches was unregistered by any expression on his part for which many in the audience must have been truly grateful, even though they had not anticipated any directions. Some might have been truly grateful for a movie register of what was coming, sort of an insert indicating the laugh lines.

For instance, one woman was overheard saying that she thought that it was "awfully silly." She could scarcely be numbered among the Leacock followers, and it is safe to say that there are no copies of "Literary Lapses," "Moonbeams," etc., in her sectional bookcase. In the German efficiency skit, Dr. Leacock dreamed that he awoke in Germany and immediately experienced the ultimate system that extends to everything in Germany. The whole countryside reflected it. The trees were all in regular lines and at regular intervals. To the last one they bore sign boards giving the name of the particular tree in whose branches song birds perched in regular rows along the well trimmed branches, and the warbling was in close harmony in which the German influence could not be mistaken. Just then a military motor rolled up with Von Boobenstein, who gleefully admitted that not only was he the erstwhile German head waiter in McConkey's, but there were five others, Max, Fritz, Karl and the others who had kept various and minute records which they duly forwarded to the German intelligence department. This included the daily humidity the width of King street, Toronto, the height of the C.P.R. building and other facts essential to efficiency, Karl had a topographical map locating all the breweries in Canada, which were so few that it was felt that Canada could never be invaded unless the invaders could use Milwaukee as a base.

Following this strain Dr. Leacock accompanied Von Boobenstein to Berlin, where there was not a sign of war, not one. The billboards announced Hamlet, East Lynne and Potash and Perlmutter in the theatres. The restaurants were crowded and were hazy with the smoke of the new Thannhauser cigars made out of the refuse of the tanneries. Imagine trying to blockade a people who could make cigars of such material. Imagine trying to get near them. The use of asphyxiating gas by the soldiers was a pure legend. It was merely the smoke from the German tobacco, especially the Thannhauser cigars. Well anyway in the restaurant Von Boobenstein invited the Herr Professor to dine sumptuously of steins of foaming beer, veal cards, bread coupons, soup cards, etc., beef certificates, with an affidavit for Yorkshire pudding on the side, lobster coupon with receipts for asparagus and so on down the menu card of similar unsubstantial stuff, part of the properties that create the illusion of Germany being untouched by war. Beer and the tannery cigars took the edge off and finally dulled the appetite of the diners.

And so on the doctor's satire reeled with risible references to the German fleet, the army statistics until finally he drew a gold pocket coin which he casually flipped in the air. Von Boobenstein saw it with almost apoplectic results. "Gott," "gott," he shouted. "Gife it to me, I know where I can buy real bread." And as that cry give us bread vaguely spread through the Doctor's dream he seemed to hear it coming from the whole of Germany from behind the grim mask prepared for visitors, "Give us bread." Then he woke up.

It is almost futile to attempt to report Professor Leacock and his kindly humour flashed with wit against a background of incongrous situations and actions satirized as effectively as he does it. There would be more satisfaction in reporting the audience, in its receptivity.

Mr. Duncan Walker presided as chairman and the musical programme consisted of a piano solo by Miss Jean Hill, vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Allan, and vocal solo by Capt. Maurice Park. A vote of thanks was passed to Dr. Leacock on motion of Rev. J. R. Webb, seconded by Mr. Robert Harstone.

Grand Jury May Visit Back Country

be directed to. In the matter of fire escapes at St. Joseph's Hospital, we found, as we have said everything in excellent condition with the exception of, that in our opinion, there are not sufficient fire escapes. This applies to the House of Providence. The one already installed at the hospital, is, as we view it, dangerous, being attached almost wholly to the wooden verandah and is only approached over the same wooden structure. At the County House of Refuge we found things in such excellent condition that we feel like congratulating the ratepayers of the county that their interests are so well looked after and such good value received. Members of the Council, who accompanied your jurors, expressed themselves as fully satisfied that the House of Refuge was not only a most meritorious institution, but a fine investment for the county, as well. No reasonable tax placed on the rolls should be objected to so long as so well expended.

Local Institutions.

The Children's Shelter, a city institution, but coming under the perview of your jurors, and supported to some extent by a grant from the county, is well worthy of a strengthened grant at the hands of the County Council.

We regret that time did not allow of our visiting the Protestant Home nor the Nicholls Hospital, but we are assured by those thoroughly conversant with the facts that these institutions are most ably conducted and a source of large good and service. Both are a sources of civic pride that is well sustained.

Referring back to the House of Refuge. We find there a most lamentable case that should not be longer thrust on the care of this institution. The facts are fully known to the wardens of the House, and while their consideration on humane grounds is large, this case should be placed in some suitable provincial institution for further care and treatment. Your jurors might go so far as to insist that this be done. The hospitality of the House is wide but it should not be imposed on.

Rural Conditions.

A further reference may be made to Your Lordship's suggestion as to by some enactment, more or less sweeping, close to further settlement and rural occupation the extreme northern district. Your Lordship is right in your assumption that the lands in that district are not suitable to adequately support a population in reasonable comfort, nor to afford the necessary municipal expenditure to provide what is necessary for the life of a people. Incomes are straightened. A bare living is all that is in many cases realized. All this makes for a degenerate people, when all the refinements and conveniences of civilized life are absent or cannot be provided. If we want a verile and aggressive people we must care very carefully that the younger years are spent in surroundings conducive to a decent moral life.

Your jurors desire to congratulate Your Lordship on the very able and considerate manner in which the duties of your high office are discharged. Our deepest respect is due to the judiciary of our country in its capacity as a safeguard that our laws, statutes and institutions shall ever remain inviolated. Your Lordship has our thanks for your admirable conduct of this sittings of this court.

Very respectfully,
H. W. STOCK,
Foreman.

Chief Justice Mulock made a stirring reply to during the course of which His Lordship alluded to the world conflict and the means, patriotic and otherwise, that are being made to alleviate existing conditions. His Lordship also referred to conditions existing in some parts of the North Country, and authorized the Grand Jury to continue their investigations should they deem it necessary.

Verdict of Guilty.

After being locked up all night, the jury this morning brought in a verdict of guilty in the case of Sandford Lindsay, whose trial on a charge of incest, was concluded at yesterday's session of the High Court. Sentence will probably be deferred until the two remaining charges against Lindsay, are heard, namely, that of causing the death of his fourteen-year-old daughter, and also of causing the death of an unborn child.

The case went to the jury late yesterday afternoon. When the Court resumed in the evening, and it was learned that the jury had not reached a conclusion, His Lordship directed that the jury be locked up until nine o'clock this morning.

Mr. D. O'Connell, counsel for the defence, moved for a reserved case or a new trial.

The charge against Mrs. Phoebe Lindsay of causing the death of an unborn child is being proceeded with. A volume of medical testimony was taken this morning.

the wrong by asking such a favour of you.

We are not allowed to put our address at the commencement of our letters, so I will comply with army regulations and give it you here, sir, for what it is worth, 23471 Driver Thos. Potter, Army Service Corps, 5th Cavalary Brigade, Field Ambulance. B.E.F. I am proud to be able to state that I have been out here since the 16th of August, 1914 and have had the good fortune to be able to do my bit in all the big battles from Mons to Loos and various minor places in between. In conclusion, please allow me to again offer you my sincere thanks for your ever generous gift, and believe me to remain,

ECZEMA ON THE HEAD.

Mr. Peterson, South Bay, Ont., writes: "For years I suffered a sort of eczema on the head. I tried four different doctors, giving each a fair trial, but the disease grew worse and spread to my arm. I got Dr. Chase's Ointment, and it has entirely cured me. I give you my name because I want other sufferers to know about this splendid Ointment."

Chocolate Brownies.

Beat ½ cup of melted butter, 1 egg and 1 cup of sugar to a light cream. Add 2 ounces of melted chocolate, 1 teaspoon of vanilla, ¼ teaspoon of cinnamon, ½ cup of flour and ½ cup of broken walnut meats, spread in a shallow pan lined with buttered paper and bake about half an hour. When done, remove the paper immediately and cut the cake in small squares.

Peaceful Belgium

EXPERIENCES ALL THE

Horrors Of The War

Will our citizens think over and try to realize the absolute need for assistance to the Belgian people? No form of beneficence is more worthy.

We are in debt to Belgium. A debt we can never pay. It is the last thing that we should repudiate. And if we do not give now we are encouraging a careless view of our responsibility.

The campaign to be put on next week is an appeal to your heart and your pocket. Make use of both and do Peterborough credit. A man is known by the company he keeps. Peterborough will be recognized as being of worth by the sum it will contribute.

What Belgium needs is food. Wheat, unground, not only provides food but work for the Belgians, and they are as anxious to work as to eat. One bag of flour, which costs in the neighbourhood of $3.00 in Canada, will support one Belgian family a month.

Do not be alarmed, do not hesitate because you may feel that your contribution will not get to the hands it is destined to help. The local committee will take scrupulous care that all moneys are well guarded. Be satisfied of that. The Montreal committee are the Wardens of the Fund, and the men at the helm are above suspicion.

Get ready for the canvass. Thursday to Friday of next week. Your contribution will not interfere with your requirements. It can be extended over a year, if necessary. You make the allowance, the collection will be taken care of.

To Make Married Men Enlist

British Authorities Will Want All the Young Benedicts to Get into Line

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Young married men who have not enlisted are soon to receive the attention of the War Office, which is considering the question of bringing pressure to bear upon them to induce them to join the army. All single men who attested under the Earl of Derby's plan have been called up, and the compulsory Military Service Act enrolls all other bachelors of military age who have not been exempted.

Married men, who attested under the Derby plan, will next be called to arms. Most of them are men between 30 and 40 years. There are large numbers of married men below 30 years of age who have not answered the appeal to take up arms, and the authorities are searching for a method to bring them into line.

Sir Edward Poynter, president of the Royal Academy, appealed for exemption for W. R. H. Lamb, secretary. He was told that women must be found to do the work.

WOMAN, FASTING, LIVES ON WATER FOR THIRTY DAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 18.—Water with a little lemon juice has been the only diet of Mrs. J. B. Baldwin for thirty years. Monday she will break her fast and drink a glass of hot milk and hopes in a few days to be able to eat a piece of dry toast.

"I began fasting to reduce flesh," says Mrs. Baldwin. "For the first three of four days I was pretty hungry; but I soon became accustomed to my water diet. When I began to fast I weighed 206 pounds, now I weigh 174. My temperature has been taken at intervals and found it normal.

"This is my first fast. Once I reduced thirty-eight pounds in nine days by eating nothing and taking Turkish baths.

BELGIUM RESTORED AND INDEMNIFIED

Allies Renew Agreement Not to End War Till This Is Achieved

HER HEROIC FIDELITY

HAVRE, Feb. 18. — The Allied powers, signatory to the treaty guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Belgium, have decided to renew the agreement not to end hostilities until the political and economic independence of Belgium is re-established and the nation is indemnified for the damages suffered.

This decision was communicated to the Belgian Foreign Office by the Ministers representing the Entente Allies.

The Russian Minister acted as spokesman, addressing the Belgian Minister for Foreign Affairs as follows:

"The Allied powers signatory to the treaties guaranteeing the independence and neutrality of Belgium have decided to renew to-day by solemn act the agreements made regarding your country, which has been heroically faithful to its international obligations. Consequently we, the Ministers of France, Great Britain, and Russia, duly authorized by our Governments, have the honour to make the following declaration:

"The Allied and guaranteeing powers declare that when the moment comes the Belgian Government will be called upon to take part in peace negotiations, and they will not put an end to hostilities without Belgium having re-established its political and economic independence and having been amply indemnified for damages suffered. They will lend their aid to Belgium in order to assure its financial and commercial restoration."

The Belgian Foreign Minister, Baron Beyens, replied:

"The Government of the King is profoundly grateful to the Governments of the three powers guaranteeing the independence of Belgium, of which you are representatives, for their generous initiative in making known to-day this declaration. I thank you heartily in its behalf."

By the treaty of London, signed November 15, 1831, the neutrality of Belgium was guaranteed by Austria, Russia, Great Britain and Prussia.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of The Examiner,—

Dear Sir,—In reading the satisfactory report of the Utilities Commission, I thought how much better it would have been if the statement had showed a water circuit through East City. Under the present system we have not a satisfactory service at all, being handicapped by weak pressure during lawn service, rusty water occasionally and during a period of repairing an insufficient supply. Even when this ward is warned to draw off a supply of water it is found inadequate, and as a result the old wells are resorted to with the possibility of contracting typhoid fever. It is a fact that if anything went wrong with the joints in the pipes in the centre of the river this ward would be completely shut off for a long time, both for domestic purposes and for fire protection. I see no complaint for such overslight, which allows one side of a city to get mains laid for miles to suit the convenience of ratepayers while another part of the city containing about three thousand population is completely overlooked in this matter.

There is another matter, too, in which East City has never had a fair consideration, and that is a street railway service. I attended a meeting of the ratepayers of this village over twenty years ago, when railway promoters promised us a street railway service if the franchise of the streets were granted. This the council and the ratepayers granted with great enthusiasm. When the first cars were put on we had the honor of having "Ashburnham" painted on them, as an encouragement—but they haven't come yet. Now we do not even have the "honor." Each year we hear of some extension. It is Jackson Park extension or Charlotte street, Monaghan Road, etc. Now we hear of the Byersville loop. But never a word of an extension to East City.

There is great need of a service on this side of the river with the Marble Works, saw mill, hospital, etc., to say nothing of what is called the "Wonder of Canada," the Lift Lock. And besides, hundreds of citizens are forced to walk long distances to work because we have no car service.

I think that it is high time for somebody to take up these two matters for the convenience and progress of this ward.

Thanking you for your space, Mr. Editor, I remain,

Yours, for an All-Around City.
ED. COURTNEY.

Yours, for an All-round City.

NEW FRUIT STORE

Carpenters and decorators have been engaged all week fitting up the corner store in the Market Arcade, corner George and Charlotte streets for a new fruit and fish store. The interior is being entirely remodelled and refurnished, the decorating work being undertaken by Mr. Hughson Johnson, the artistic decorator of College street. A lease of the premises has been secured from the City Commissioners by Mr. G. A. Pringle, well known in connection with the local fruit business for many years as principal salesman for Mr. W. A. Oke. Mr. Pringle will stock the store with personally selected lines of foreign and domestic fruit, and other table delicacies, as well as making a specialty of lake, river and sea fish. The store will likely be ready for business next week.

and I have quite a large switch-board to look after here (the battery office). I am up to learn the wires and switch-boards so as to have it off at my finger ends when our battery comes up. I will be up in the first line trenches to-morrow, and will be there for three days, then back here for three days' rest, doing nothing but sleeping. We do nine days' duty—four hours on and eight off. Three days at the office—thre days with the Forward Observing Officers—three days at the trenches, and three days' rest. That is not so bad. It is good experience. We rode up from our billets in Flanders, or as they say "Somewhere in France," and passed through villages all shot to pieces, but the people still hang around. One village especially, right near here, gets shelled every day, although there is hardly anything left but a few bare walls.

There is all kinds of mud here, and while I was out after stray wires, or rather abandoned lines, we had to cross through abandoned trenches half full of water, and about a foot of mud, also our reserve trenches and through barbed wire entanglements. They are the limit—just a big muddle of wires. I have a pair of rubber boots that were issued, and that helps sometimes when the mud isn't as far as the knees, but on the whole it is not so bad.

No, I haven't got your parcel or the one from the church. I guess someone else got it, like a whole lot of other parcels. I got one Star Weekly about a month ago and that is all.

I thank you for offering to knit a scarf, but it would be summer before it got here—and then it would only get too lousy to wear, but I am not yet, but not saying how long before I will be. You can send me some (sabadfiha) to help keep them away, as they say that is the only thing. My socks are hanging out fine, and I wear two pair in my boots, and three pair in my rubbers.

Well I must go and call my relief and then get to bed, 12 p.m. So good-bye, and don't worry as I am O.K., and will be back O.K.

HOWARD.

Houston May Be The New U.S. War Secretary

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—President Wilson is looking, not for a new Secretary of War, but for a new Secretary of Agriculture, according to the belief of persons close to the White House. This, they say, results from his having practically decided to give Secretary of Agriculture Houston the place resigned by Lindley M. Garrison. To-day the names of many prominent eastern and middle western attorneys were sugested as possibilities for Secretary of Agriculture, but nothing approaching confirmation was possible.

BULGAR AND AUSTRIAN ARMIES ARE JOINED

LONDON, Feb. 17.—The final struggle for the mastery of Albania has begun, according to despatches received in London. The Austrians and Bulgarians have succeeded in forming a junction and their combined armies are now in contact with Essad Pacha's army of Albanians, Montenegrins and Serbians which is defending Durazzo.

High Cost of Living Covering Fifteen Years Explained By Commission

Royal Commission's Report Tabled in The House of Commons – Increase of Gold Supply, Extravagance and Waste, Higher Standards, Inefficient Service for Lack of Vocational Training and Combines.

NINE CAUSES ASSIGNED

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—The long-awaited report of the Royal Commission appointed on December 20th 1913, to investigate the increase in the cost of living in Canada and its causes, was tabled in the Commons by the Prime Minister. There are two big volumes packed with interesting information, deductions and recommendations. The Commissioners, Messrs. John McDougald, Commissioner of Customs; C. C. James, Agricultural Commissioner; R. H. Coates, Chief Statistician of the Department of Labor, and J. H. Vincent, Deputy Minister of Inland Revenue, after spending two years on the task, have produced a report of over 2,000 pages.

Nine Cases Assigned.

In the main, they find that the increase in the cost of living during the past fifteen years, which has been practically fifty per cent. is due to the increase in the gold supply, which reduces the manifold forms of extravagance and wastage, public and private, individual and social; to restricted supply following upon disproportionate urban development as compared with rural development; to uneconomic methods of distribution and marketing of products, to higher standards of living by both rich and poor; to inefficient service and lack of vocational training; to the gospel of ease which has permeated the national life of the Anglo-Saxon race; to uneconomic household expenditures; and to the effect of mergers, trusts and combines.

Remedies Suggested.

Among the remedies suggested are the encouragement of land settlement; greater attention to mixed farming; increased production, with the standardization and improvement in the quality of farm products together with co-operation in their distribution; the extension of the parcels post system, and the making of good roads; cheaper and more accessible working capital, especially for the farmers of the west; and a comprehensive system of vocational training to promote greater efficiency of service in all lines, and a better understanding of the fundamental principles of production, marketing and purchase.

Gingerly Dealing With Production.

The effect of the protective fiscal policy and the remedy of wider markets for the farmers are treated somewhat gingerly and in a non-committal manner by the Commissioners. They state that the customs tariff is "a tax paid in part by the consumer and in part by the exporter. It cannot be abolished without having other taxes to take place. Whether any feasible and satisfactory system of taxation can be found to replace the customs tariff system is an unsettled question. It must be borne in mind that political economy is not an exact science. It is undeniable that protection with its corollaries does give the protected competitor a great immediate economic advantage over unprotected ones. Whether this pays or does not pay a protecting country as a whole or in the end is a question which we leave to the controversialista."

They Don't Blame the Tariff.

After dismissing in this way the main issue in Parliament between the two parties as to the underlying causes of the increase in the cost of living, the Commissioners go on to point out that according to their investigations the tariff does not seem to be the cause of the main advances in prices during the period under review—namely, the fifteen years since 1897. They note that the greatest advance has been made in commodities which are least affected by the tariff or on which the tariff rate has not been advanced during the period. In corroboration of this assertion they submit the following table:

Textiles, advance, 44 per cent.; imported foods, 23 per cent.; products of the farm (manufactured), 62 per cent.; products of the forest (raw), 77 per cent.; products of the mine, 46 per cent.

Only up to War.

The report only deals with the situation up to the time of the outbreak of the war, and no attempt has been made to consider the advance in prices under the abnormal conditions which have prevailed since then.

The investigations of the Commissioners cover the field of the Dominion, sittings being held at every important centre, and injury being made in each case as to the advance in commodity prices, in rents, and in the cost of service.

Cost of High Living.

At the outset it is pointed out that during the past decade or so the people have been demanding more and better things, that the standard of living has been raised in Canada as well as throughout the whole civilized world, and that perhaps the whole problem should be considered rather in the light of the "cost of high living." As an instance of this it is pointed out that during 1912 automobiles to the value of no less that $12,000,000 were imported or manufactured, less than 10 per cent. of these being for industrial use.

Vocational Training Lacking.

Under the heading of "Industrial Efficiency" the Commissioners point out that inefficient service, mainly through the lack of a proper system of vocational training, has been one of the notable causes which have brought about the recent advance in the price of commodities. They urge that teaching in public schools should be supplemented by practical courses in vocational training in all lines of industry.

Dearth of Farm Labor.

Another cause for the increase in the cost of living is ascribed to a dearth of farm labor at reasonable price. "In the Dominion," says the report, "we are proportionately working fewer hours than ever before, and we have a greater number of the inefficient and the idle in our midst."

Production Lags Behind Production.

Under the head of "production", emphasis is laid on the fact that in many lines of agricultural produce Canada has not by any means kept pace with the increase in population.

For instance, during the three year period ending with March 31, 1914, imports of mutton and lamb totalled $1,409,884, while exports totalled $115,362; imports of eggs $7,031,808, exports $464,883; imports of butter $4,982,401, exports $2,709,279.

Adulteration of Price-raising.

Another contributing cause for price advances is stated to be adulterations of foods. Manufacturers and retailers have sought to obtain a larger return for a smaller value. Instead of advancing the prices of products, in many cases the quality has been lowered or the quantity of the goods offered for sale at the same price has been reduced.

Waste and Extravagance.

A considerable portion of the report is devoted to the subject of waste and extravagance. There was waste in marketing, waste through purchase in small quantities, a tendency to get flavor or tenderness instead of nutrition, and sheer extravagance in the waste of cooked foods, etc. Poor storage facilities in the kitchenettes of modern city apartments, the tendency to buy new articles instead of repairing the old, wrong notions about food in regard to what is nutritive of economical, are declared to be general. "The wholesomeness of the monotonous fare of the fathers has been denied," say the Commissioners, "and the abundance of the modern table cited as evidence of our advanced civilization. Education in food value and the cooking of standard foods may lead to a wiser expenditure."

The Commissioners recommended that all packages containing food products should be required by law to be labelled distinctly, giving net contents by weight or measure.

And the Telephone!

Then, too, there is a tendency for housewives to give telephone orders, necessitating frequent retail deliveries for small quantities, thus adding to the expense.

Appalling Waste From Fire.

Among national causes of extravagance and waste are mentioned the appalling waste from fire, which is disproportionately large in this country, and is due largely to wooden buildings, poor construction and national carelessness. There is also the extravagance of public life, which has rushed into large unproductive expenditures for national undertakings, perhaps before they are actually required.

Increase of Rents.

In regard to rents, it is pointed that there has been an increase through the increased cost of building material and of labor, and through the more imperative demands for greater conveniences by all classes. Touching on the rental and housing problems, the Commissioners refer to the over-speculation and undue increases in the price of land during recent years.

Public Ownership, Single Tax.

The report advocates public ownership of all public utilities in cities and towns, such as water, gas electric light and street railways. The question of single tax is discreetly dismissed with the printing of a memorandum by the Single Tax Association without any official expression of opinion thereon by the Commissioners.

Cold Storage.

In regard to the question of cold-storage warehouses, and the effect on prices, the report declared that there is no good basis for the general opinion that the cold-storage companies unduly hold up prices to the consumer. It is pointed out that the stocks in these cold-storage warehouses are usually not nearly so great as is generally supposed. In all the cold-storage warehouses throughout Canada last February there were barely enough supplies to meet the requirements of the city of Toronto for six months.

Monopolies and Combines.

"There is no doubt," say the Commissioners, "that some prices are appreciably raised at times through the operations of monopolies, industrial combinations, mergers and trusts."

It is declared that the evidence in some cases shows that there may be a contravention of the combines act. As far as the 'meat trust' is concerned, however, it is declared that there does not seem to be any good ground for stating that the big increase in the price of meat is due to any monopolistic control of prices.

The real reason for the enhanced price of meat is ascribed rather to the lack of production. The Commissioners recommend a more equable system of marketing by live stock farmers, preventing over-marketing and under-supply at different times of the year. They also recommend public markets and abattoirs, with cold storage at each large centre, and a union stock yard at the railway terminals under independent management.

Industrial Mergers—Watered Stock

Some interesting figures are given with regard to industrial mergers between January, 1909, and January, 1913. During that period there were fifty-six big mergers, absorbing 248 individual companies, and resulting in an aggregate capitalization of $456,828,000. "One may safely conclude," says the report, "that a proportion of the securities issued by the mergers in Canada has been watered stock."

Clothing, Boots, Breadstuffs.

With regard to clothing, and boots and shoes, it is pointed out that the advance has been from thirty per cent. to forty per cent. since 1897, due mainly to the increased cost of production, of materials, wages, rents, etc.

With regard to breadstuffs and the enhancement of the price of flour the Commissioners declare that "exclusive wheat farming has been one of the important factors in increasing the cost of living for all Canada." As to flour prices, it is pointed out that Canadian flour is dearer than American or British flour, largely because of its better quality. Mixed farming and land steelement, with farm life made more attractive, thus keeping the boys on the farm, are recommended as the solution of the big problem of under-production.

Along with the increase in the cost of commodities, there was a similar increase in the cost of labor. Between 1900 and 1910, wages rose about thirty-five per cent. and between 1910 and 1913, about forty per cent. No other country in the world, says the report showed so rapid a growth.

Big Increase in Consumption.

There was also a big per capita increase in consumption. Wheat and flour consumption increased by one-half, and dairy products by thirty per cent., beef by ten per cent., pork by twenty per cent., eggs by twenty per cent. tea by twelve per cent. and coffee by one hundred per cent. The consumption of liquid increased since 1900 by sixty per cent. and of tobacco by sixty-six per cent. There were also big increases in the imports of silks, jewellery, perfumes and other luxuries.

The report, after summarizing the findings as noted above, gives a synopsis of the evidence taken at the various centres. Local conditions of marketing and importing are explained, and various expert opinions are quoted, with a view to securing more economic facilities of production and distribution. One final consideration is cited, namelyy, that it was the stoppage of in inflow of capital by the Balkan war that in reality led to the appointment of the present Board of Inquiry. That war had a world-wide influence in restricting the investment of capital. The result was a lessening of employment, causing the prevailing high prices to be severely felt.

CANADIAN SOLDIERS DELIGHTED WITH SMOKES

The supplies of tobacco being sent by Canada's Tobacco Fund (organized by the Over-Seas Club) are giving great delight on the other side.

The packages now being supplied contain fifty cigarettes, a large package of smoking tobacco, box of matches and reply post card. These are being manufactured specially by the Tuckett Tobacco Company of Hamilton and the Imperial Tobacco Company of Canada, at Montreal. The reply post cards arriving from the front show how much the Canadian manufactured tobacco is being appreciated. We quote two recently received:

Cleaned Out.

"I found on examining the packages that they contained Tuckett's Tobacco, of Hamilton, Canada, which is one of our favorite smokes. When this good news was spread round, I was cleaned out in a few minutes and the boys much enjoyed their smokes.

Quartermaster W. H. COX,
No. 2 Can. Field Ambulance."

Just What is Required.

"The Canadian Tobacco you have sent is certainly a great improvement over the former kind and is just what the Canadian troops require. If you can continue sending Tuckett's Tobacco like the last lot everything will be very satisfactory.

Capt. JOHN HUTCHESON
Comm., 3rd Can. Bn."

Contributions to Canada's Tobacco Fund will be received at the office of this Journal; may be paid into almost any Bank in Canada, or can be left with any postmaster.

If you would like to assist in this good work, and will communicate with Mr. Francis R. Jones at the office of the Over-Seas Club, Windsor Hotel, Montreal, he will supply you with a collecting book and with literature for distribution among your friends.

PENNANTS STILL LEAD THE LEAGUE

Murray St. Aggregation Won Their Third Victory Last Night Beating East City 1 to 0 in Overtime—Bachelors Beat Americans And Are Now in Second Place

LAST NIGHT'S SCORES.

Pennants	3	0	3
Bachelors	2	1	3
Americans	1	2	3
East City	0	3	3

In spite of the soft ice there were two hard-fought games in the City League last night, the Pennants retaining their hold on first place by handing a 1 to 0 overtime beating to East City, while the Bachelors moved up into second place by beating the Americans 6 to 3.

The East City—Pennant clash was a hard-fought game all the way, featured by the fine work of both goal keepers. Neither team was able to find the nets in the hour's play, and over-time had to be played. In the first five minutes of overtime Kennealley sifted a long shot into the nets, and the one goal was enough to give them the game. East City had several changes in their line-up, and the boys from across the river showed great improvement in their play, checking hard all the way. Kennealley, Mulhern and O'Brien were the stars for the Pennants, while Bassett, Cullen and McDonald were in the limelight for the losers.

The second game was a hammer and tongs affair, featured at one stage by a general mix-up. There was any amount of heavy body checking, some legal and a great deal more that could not be described in that manner. The first period was very even, finishing up with a 2-2 count. In the second period the Bachelors drew ahead and banged in two goals, while the Americans failed to register. In the last session the Americans made things interesting by getting the first goal, leaving them only one down but the Bachelors came through with a good finish, getting the last two goals. Barnett starred for the winners, doing some good work around the nets. Jackson and Richardson were the best of the losers.

The teams were:

W. M. Lang's Rink Overcame Big Lead To Win The Final Game

Exciting Contest Featured The Close of The Consolation Round In The Open Bonspiel—Hare of Oshawa Was Overtaken.

CORP. J. J. MOORE'S GOOD WORK

The final game in the Consolation series of the local Bonspiel will go down in the annals of the Peterborough Curling Club as a memorable contest. With only five ends to go W. M. Lang held the small end of the 13 to 5 score, yet in those last ends he piled up ten points and won out by 1 to 13, when it seemed that Eddie Hare of Oshawa had the game packed in the first prize club bags, and it was all over but the cheering. But "Pete's" come through with the final punch, performing a come-back that is not exactly common in the slippery game of curling. At that the result was in doubt right up to the last stone with which Hare attempted a draw shot to a fairly open centre that would have killed Lang's neighbouring three. It certainly was a great game all the way through, and Mr. Lang and his rink deserve every compliment for the persistent manner in which they fought for and overcame a very considerable lead.

While according the local curlers a full measure of credit upon their play, there remains the fact that Hare paved the way to his undoing in the second last end. It may be called the luck of the game, some would call it a fluke, but in any case it was unfortunate for Hare when with his last shot in the fifteenth end he brushed his own winner and moved it sufficiently to leave Lang lying one. Such shots happen with the best of skips and the ice was not conducive to nice curling. However, the Oshawa man was still one up and he had several chances in the last end, but failed to come through.

The score was as follows—take a look at the finish:

Peterborough	Oshawa
W. J. Henry	F. Michael
W. H. Bradburn	G. Evans
Corp. J. J. Moore	A. Statler
W. M. Lang	C. E. Hare

A Picked-up Rink.

This was indeed a game worthy of the finals. And an incidental feature is the fact that Lang gathered it together on Saturday night. There was no previous team work. They just got going as the Bonspiel progressed. Billy Henry played a stead game as lead, getting a big share of his stones in good position, considering the conditions. Ex-Mayor Bradburn showed his best curling of the season as second stone, contributing a lot of effective work. And while Skip Lang guided his rink and played a mighty good game himself, he owes a lot of his success to Lance Corporal Jack Moore of the 93rd Battalion. Jack was at home in the heavy going and plugged end after end, not only when his rink was winning but also when it was away down on the board and things looked blue. In the last end, for example, he made a beautiful shot that picked out a dangerous Oshawa stone and left the end in good condition for "Pete's" finishing touches.

After the game the four sweater coats were presented to the Oshawa rink by Mr. George Morrow, who congratulated the Oshawa players, and promised that if there was a bonspiel in Oshawa next year Peterborough would send four rinks to play. Mr. Hare made a neat reply, stating that he had enjoyed the bonspiel and had gone farther than he had expected. Andrew Statler, the Oshawa "vice," also spoke, remarking that the final game had been a contest and that he was pleased with the treatment received from the Peterborough Club.

Mr. Robert Hicks presented the club bags, with a nice compliment to Skip Lang and his rink, and the spirit they had shown throughout. Mr. Lang replied, giving full credit to his assistants, particularly to Corporal Moore, of whom he said that if proved as good a soldier as curler he would make it warm for the Germans. Ex-Mayor Bradburn admitted that the Bonspiel represented more hard work than he had been through in a long time, but he had enjoyed it, especially playing against the Oshawa rink.

Electrics Coach Now in Khaki With The Sportsmen's Battalion

Toronto, February 17.—Many well known hockey players, several from the ranks of the O.H.A. senior teams, have enlisted in the ranks of the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion. They have challenged the 31st Battalion to a game for the military championship. "Billy" Breen, the former coach and trainer of the Peterboro, Toronto Rowing Club, and T. R. and A. A. teams, who is now in khaki with the Sportsmen will manage the outfit.

JACK JOHNSON FAVOURS MORAN.

That Frank Moran will defeat Jess Willard for the heavyweight title when the pair go over a longer distance than 10 rounds, is the opinion of ex-champion Jack Johnson.

An Italian electrician claims to have invented a method for sending pictures by wire in their natural colors.

The Argentine Government is fostering experiments by farmers with rice and potato cultivation both by dry farming and irrigation.

FIVE YEARS AGO WILLARD STARTED

Sapulpa sports were mildly interested five years ago in a boxing bout which had been arranged for their amusement by a local promoter. The Oklahoma town—which is fourteen miles south-west of Tulsa and in the oil and gas region where Sinclair accumulated the kale which helped to keep the Federal League alive—wasn't and isn't any great metropolis, but it had more red-blooded hombres among its 10,000 people than most cities of a hundred thousand. Boxing was their favourite sport, and, although the affair arranged for February 15, 1911, brought together a couple of novices, a big crowd turned out to witness the bout.

Louis Fink was one of the principals, and the reception he got proved that he was the favourite of the crowd. His opponent was a great, towering giant who was introduced as Jess Willard. It was Jess' first appearance in the ring, and it was evident that he was afflicted with a bad case of stage fright. It seemed to the young farmer that Sapulpa's masculine population had suddenly grown to a million or so, and that the whole bunch was there to see him make a bally ass of himself. Jess would doubtless have given a lot to be back on the old farm. He was so nervous that he could scarcely get his gloves on, and there was a perceptible quaking of the giant's knees when the bell rang and Jess faced his opponent.

Sapulpa sports nearly laughed themselves to death during the bout. Jess was as green as the grass of his native Pottawatomie county, and Fink wasn't much better. At times they seemed to be determined to turn the bout into a wrestling match, and the perspiring referee worked overtime prying them apart. As the affair progressed, Willard gained in confidence. He discovered that although Fink had lambasted him with blows that were the best he had in the shop, he wasn't in the least hurt. Willard had a bad cold at the time, and often he stopped to blow his nose. Fink was an obliging chap, and calmly waited until Jess had finished the ceremony. Then Willard would call out, "Come on, Lou," and they would resume fighting. If the combatants hadn't been such novices, it would have seemed like the most barefaced hippodrome, but the fans knew they were in deadly earnest, and appreciated the naive exhibition to the fullest extent.

If anybody had suggested that big, green Jess was the coming champion of the world, he would have got the merry ha-ha. He was disqualified for fouling in the tenth round, so his first battle was recorded as a defeat. Jess has always insisted that he was not guilty of a foul, and that the referee had it in for him. As a matter of fact, Jess probably didn't know what a foul was at that period of his career, and the referee would have been well within his rights if he had disqualified both warriors in the first minute of the first round.

At that time the fans of Sapulpa, Tulsa and other eastern Oklahoma towns were wildly excited about Carl Morris. The engineer had knocked out the old veteran, Marvin Hart, in Sapulpa only a couple of months before, and a month or so afterward Morris put old Mike Schreck to sleep in the same town. Sapulpans looked upon Carl Morris as the coming champion, and Jess was dismissed from their minds as just an amusing rube who would soon go back to the farm and give up his ambition to become a fighter.

Jess landed only one solid blow in his first bout. That one swing knocked Fink clear out of the ring, and, if it had landed in a vulnerable spot, would have ended the argument. The result of that blow, and the fact that Fink's many punches hadn't hurt him in the least, decided Jess to keep on in the game. The following month he fought Fink again, in Oklahoma City, and knocked him out in the third.

Jack Britton Jabbed His Way To a Victory

Ted Lewis Made a Strong Finish, But Was Beaten.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Jack Britton, the Chicago welterweight, outpointed Ted Lewis, claimant of that class title, through the ten-round wind-up of the Broadway Sporting Club, Brooklyn.

Lewis, who seemed to be somewhat stale, put up a grand fight in the last round, when he jabbed and belted Britton with both hands, but this grand-stand finish could not begin to turn the tide of victory in his favour.

Britton jabbed his way to victory using his right hand very little, but he was deadly accurate with the left. Lewis appeared sluggish in his footwork and ducking. He could not keep away from Jack's left, especially when the latter had warmed to his work.

The bout, while spectacular, was not exactly appetising to the crowd, for both boys are long range maulers and depend more on skill and science than on sheer fighting.

EDISON WORKS ON HIS 69TH BIRTHDAY

Thomas A. Edison received world-wide congratulations on his Sixty-ninth birthday anniversary which he celebrated on Friday last. The celebration, however, did not interfere with his usual work in his laboratory. On Thursday night the Illuminating Engineering Society conferred upon him honorary membership in the organization. Mr. Edison is now the only man who enjoys that distinction.

HIGHLANDERS GET HOME-RUN BAKER

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The Highlanders have signed J. Franklin (Home Run) Baker. His contract covers three years. His salary is said to be $6,000 a year.

Manager Donovan announced that Baker will play at third base. This means that Fritz Maisel will be shifted to the outfield. The acquisition of Baker closes a deal that has been pending ever since the former idol of the Athletics quit Mack's team after the season of 1914. At different times he was reported to have been secured by the Chicago White Sox for sums ranging from $15,000 to $25,000.

Baker has always been a sensation. He jumped from an obscure, semi-professional club in 1908 into the limelight because of his prowess with the bat. It was Baker's wonderful hitting and run-getting powers that helped to keep the Athletics on top of the American league in 1910, 1911 and 1912.

WRITES HIS IMPRESSIONS

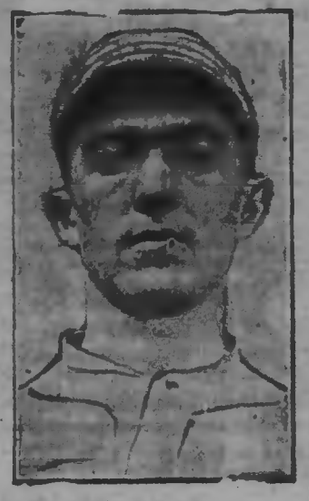
Sir Oliver Lodge Returns Again to Ancient Controversy Between Religion and Science.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Sir Oliver Lodge contributes to the seventieth birthday number of the Guardian his recollections extending more than fifty years, of the religion and science controversy.

"I venture to think," he writes, "that a few excellent and enlightened men among the theologians are going a little unnecessarily far in their most praiseworthy effort to lag behind no longer as a drag on progress. I feel sure that the ultimate position will not coincide with complete rejection of all that has been called miraculous — the intervention in human affairs of intelligences and powers not merely, and in the ordinary sense, human. I admit that this step is a great one, for once a step beyond humanity is taken there is no stopping short of the divine.

"If men are more than bodies, and if memory, affection, and character survive bodily death—as I and many others know that they do—and if telepathy, or psychic communications by other than bodily organs is a fact, then the gate is opened to a region not exactly beyond the material, but co-existent and continually interacting with it.

"Materialists will say that this opens the door to superstition. Very likely that is one of the dangers to be reckoned with and guarded against, but it also opens the door to a region acceptable to the intellect as well as to the emotions, a region not purely subjective and not solely spiritual, but intercalated with life more closely, more widely, more comprehensively than any except the very greatest teachers of old time have surmised."



J. F. (Home-Run) Baker, who has signed to play third base for the New York American League Club, who purchased his release from Connie Mack of the Athletics. Baker has signed a contract for the seasons of 1916, 1917 and 1918.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 12—More on the Price Question

OUR LAST TALK said the "Best is Cheapest." Here is how it actually works out. The house to house fakir sells you a pair of glasses for $1.00 to $3.00, say he gets you to the extent of $2.00. That's $2.00 gone, because they are sure to fail you in a short time, and the next peddlar finds you harder, and gets only $1.00. That's another dollar gone. The third man may have to give you a great bargain (?) and for 50c you have another pair of worthless glasses that you have been hypnotized into thinking suited your eyes. That totals $3.50, and still you have nothing of any use to you.

Then think of the privilege that is always open to you to step into a real, modern, comfortable optical parlor, where Dr. Fowler, a properly qualified eyesight specialist is always ready to test and correctly fit your eyes with genuine Pebble Glasses at the lowest prices at which legitimate work can be done, and you find you have received a full 100 cents' value for every dollar, and have a guarantee worth while in the bargain. Surely the "Best is Cheapest."

Break In Levee Maroons 1,000

Only One Motor Available for Rescue Work at Newellton, La.

NATCHEZ, Miss., Feb. 17.—An urgent appeal for help received here to-night from Newellton, La., where the Mississippi levee broke yesterday said that a thousand or more persons were marooned by the flood waters with only one motor boat available to take them to safety. Three negroes had been drowned, it was said, and outside the town itself about seventy-five thousand acres of farm land were inundated.

A third break within the last two days in the lower Mississippi levees was reported to-night from Ostrica, La., about seventy miles below New Orleans. Heavy damage was feared in the orange and truck farms in the water's path, but information reaching here was that there had been no loss of life.

Anthrax Victim is Greatly Improved

No Longer Drowsy, and Swelling on Shoulders Goes Down.

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Eugene Hiers, the anthrax patient at Bellevue, is in a greatly improved condition. He is no longer drowsy, the swelling which had spread from his right hand to his shoulder is less and his temperature dropped a couple of degrees.

"I'm feeling fine," he said "and my appetite is good."

Dr. Charles Norris, director of pathology at Bellevue, pointed out that Hiers' condition, despite the change for the better, did not mean that his recovery was at all certain, for anthrax will whisk a patient off just when he seems to be rallying from the treatment.

Dr. F. H. Fornell, in charge of the isolation ward in which Hiers is now lying, gave him further injections of the Eichhorn serum, 20 cubic centimeters at 11 a.m., and 35 more at 2 p.m., making a total of 140 cubic centimeters of the serum, which has been administered since Saturday.

NINE KILLED IN FIRE.

MEXIA, Tex., Feb. 18.— Search of the ruins of the Mexia Opera House, which collapsed last night, and of business buildings destroyed in the resulting fire, left the number of dead at nine. Nearly a score injured were reported resting easily. Three were killed in the wreck of the opera house which had been opened for an art exhibition by the city schools. Two doors away six men were killed in the Mecca Cafe. Loss $75,000.

WEDDING BELLS

McALLISTER—KENNEDY.

Fairview Farm, Emily, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Wednesday, Feb. 9th, when Eva Isabella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Kennedy, was married to Mr. Thomas G. McAllister, also of Emily. At 5 o'clock the bride who was given away by her father, entered the parlour, gowned in white duchess silk crepe, and carrying a bouquet of carnations and maiden hair fern. Little Bessie Bradburn, of Janetville, cousin of the bride, made a pretty flower girl, and was dressed in blue silk, trimmed with rosebuds. Wagner's wedding march was played by Miss Myrtle Kennedy, niece of the bride, whose dress was of pink silk trimmed with silk lace. The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Hie, Methodist minister of Dunsford, in the presence of eighty-five guests.

About 10 o'clock, amid showers of rice, they left for Lindsay, where they took the train for Peterborough and Monaghan. The bride's travelling dress was a tailor made suit of ladies' blue cloth and she wore a black hat with mink trimmings.

Those who attended the wedding from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. John Bradburn, Janetville, Mr. J. H. McWilliams and daughter Mrs. Preston, of Lakefield, Mr. John White, Monaghan, Miss Lizzie Currins, of Islay; Misses Maud and Zella Staples, of Fleetwood; Mr. and Mrs. Bert Courtney, Omemee; Dick Gray, of Maidstone, Sask., Lieut. Oliver Johns of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Beatty, of Watrous, Sask.

On their return the young couple will reside on Orange Grove Farm, Millersmith.

Owen Sound Woman Committed Suicide

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 18.—Mrs Anna Norton committed suicide last night by taking carbolic acid, The woman was separated from her husband, James Norton, for about three years and he with their two children boarded with a family named Livingstone. The suicide took place just outside of Livingstone's house, whither she had evidently gone about nine o'clock to see her children. Before they could be brought to the door the woman took about two ounces of carbolic acid and fell dead in the arms of her sister, who had come out of the house. Her maiden name was Berry and she came from the Bruce Peninsula. An inquest is being held.

To Peel Off Blotchy Rough or Chapped Skin

To remove roughness, chaps, freckles, blotches, or any complexion difficulty, the best thing to do is to remove the skin itself. This is done easily, painlessly and inexpensively done by application of ordinary mercolised wax, procurable at any drug store in the original one-ounce package. The wax absorbs the defective outer skin, a little each day, gradually bringing the second layer of skin to the surface. The pores are unclogged and the face breathes in the life-giving oxygen. The new skin is beautifully soft and spotless, bearing the healthy glow of youth. Just apply the wax as you would cold cream, only not rubbing it in. In the morning wash it off with warm water. It's the most effective complexion treatment known.

To remove wrinkles it is a good plan to bathe the face every evening for awhile in a harmless solution made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. There is nothing that will so surely erase the hateful lines.

Russians Captured 1000 Guns and Tons of Provisions

Canadians Have For Weeks Kept Foe on The Alert

Russian Transports Are Now Landing Large Forces On Armenian Sea Coast

Seventy Miles East of Trebizond, Encountering Only Feeble Resistance---Will March Westward Now Advancing on Trebizond.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Under cover of warships' guns, Russian transports are now landing large forces of men on the Armenian Sea coast, seventy miles east of Trebizond, encountering only feeble resistance. Petrograd despatches to-day indicated that these forces will march westward, joining the troops now advancing on Trebizond from the direction of Erzerum. The Turks are not expected to make a serious stand at Trebizond, the city being poorly fortified. The troops are being transported from Batum, where they have been held in readiness for several months. The fact that they were not used in the earlier stages of the Armenian campaign leads to the belief that the Grand Duke has under his command much larger forces than was at first suspected, and plans to push an aggressive campaign through Armenia, driving westward toward Constantinople, or to the southwest to join the British in Mesopotamia. If he decides upon the latter course he is expected to push forward at once against Diarbekr, 150 miles southwest of Erzerum.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 19.—Essad Pasha, who without authorization joined forces with the enemy by assuming the leadership of Albania, has been deprived of his rank and removed from the army.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Ten more groups under Lord Derby's conscription scheme will be called on March 15. These groups include unmarried men of 29 years and over.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—French troops have repulsed a German attack east of Loos, after a mine explosion. East of Armentieres the enemy trenches were severely bombarded by our artillery.

More Trouble Making Near Garden of Eden

British and Arabs Fight It Out Around Eve's Favorite Tree.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The Turkish official report continues to exaggerate the result of the recent fighting at Kurna, where a second relief force en route to strengthen Col. Aylmer on the Tigris was attacked by supposedly friendly Arabs, Kurna is the reported site of the Garden of Eden, and a tree still stands which is known as "Eve's" tree. Yesterday's official Constantinople despatch says:

"The enemy left many dead on his road of retreat. The enemy losses in that battle, as established up to to present, amounted to 2,000 men, and 300 animals."

The British official report puts the total British casualties at 373. The Arabs were subsequently dispersed, and two of their villages burned.

WATERY RASH ITCHED AND BURNED

On Arms. Would Tingle and Itch. In One Great Mass. Used Cuticura. Rash Disappeared.

Bo. Burton, Ont.—"My skin trouble started about seven years ago. My arms began to tingle and itch. A watery looking rash, very fine and close together, would break out every summer. It would itch and burn as the trouble progressed and it became worse when I scratched it. It looked ashy and scaly and in one great mass. My arms were so disfigured I could not wear short sleeves. I could not help scratching it all the time.

"At last I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used only two cakes of Soap and one box of Ointment and in less than six weeks the rash had all disappeared." (Signed) Mrs. Andrew Johnston, May 20, 1914.

HIS WOMAN DETECTIVE IS ACCUSED BY WIFE

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—The day after her husband and his detectives had broken into her hotel room at Asbury Park, finding a young man there, according to the testimony, Mrs. Lillian Close was strolling along the board walk when she saw her husband down on the beach combing the hair of Mrs. Edna Paquin.

Robert Close, who began the divorce proceedings, naming Henry Dougherty, assistant to the city auditor at Newark, as a detective on the Paterson police force. Mrs. Paquin, who is named in Mrs. Close's counter action, was long a friend of the family, and was employed by Mr. Close as a detective to watch his wife while posing as her friend.

"When Mrs. Close went to Asbury Park last summer I was employed by Mr. Close to go with her and watch her," Mrs. Paquin testified yesterday in the trial of the actions before Vice Chancellor Lewis, at Paterson. "Mr. Dougherty was stopping at another hotel at first, but he took his to read houses several times and after many drinks Mrs. Close and Mr. Dougherty would hug and kiss each other.

"After two weeks Mr. Dougherty moved to the same hotel and got a room on the same floor. That first night I saw Mrs. Close leave her room in her kimono and enter Mr. Dougherty's room. Then I lighted two candles in my front window, which was a signal for the detective to come up. They did so, accompanied by Mr Close, broke into the room and found them together."

Mrs. Close testified that her husband put a pistol to her head and threatened to kill her. She said that her relations with Mr. Dougherty were entirely proper and that she had merely gone to his room to have him fix a gold bar pin that had been broken.

"After we were arrested and released in court," the wife continued, "I was walking down the boardwalk the next day when I saw Mrs. Paquin on the beach and my husband was combing her long hair and patting it.

"When I returned to Paterson I followed my husband on several occasions to the home of Mrs. Paquin. He usually took fruit or flowers to her, which was more than he ever did to me."

The case will continue next week.

Voice of the People

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—On reading the present-day newspapers of this country, one is struck by the prophetic optimism displayed along the line of new industries, and great industrial development generally. The government; the press saying to the capitalist, be prepared, we will assist and protect you. "Perfectly right and legitimate." What is labour doing in order to be prepared that it may partake of the benefits that might accrue; Government may help the capitalist, but labour must help itself by making itself felt and heard. I believe here is the chance for the Trades and Labour Council of making itself a very much more important and influential body. Under its present system it has done surprisingly good work for the under-paid workingmen of the country. Now, at this time, I believe it could be made the incubator for organized labour conditions that would help make the life of workers more tolerable, both locally and nation-wide. Having a labour candidate for all public offices, such as aldermen, provincial and federal M. P's. Failing this, worry the existing members with deputations, and keep at it until notice must be taken for the mutual benefit, protection, and improvement, such as shorter hours, higher wage, better working conditions. A code of improved labour laws must be made to meet this industrial revolution. We have the older countries' experience to base our claims upon. Even under the Federal Government of our cousins across the border, it is unlawful for any officer of the government or any contractor for public works to allow labourers or mechanics to work more than eight hours. The health of the employee is jeopardised by long hours of labour. Fatigue from long hours endanger the life of the employee. Therefore the public, especially at smelting and refining works bakeries, cotton and woolen mills and most factory work, besides, how it would relieve the unemployed question. The labouring class must acquire a consciousness of their own existence, for the commodity of the labourer, which is labour, is not protected. All the government does is to help increase the working man's only commodity and so reduce its price, not as the commodity he buys with his labour in order to exist. They are taxed. We must fight for a protective tariff on labour; prohibition of wage reduction, on account of fines for breakages; discount for payment of medical attendances, relief funds, and suppress the existing form of premium work as at present employed in some establishments. This is no impossibility. Already a number of States across the border have enacted laws tending to give special protection to, and encourage trade unions, thus making it unlawful for employers to discharge an employee for joining a trades union or council.

Labour should have a religion of universal well being: Improvement of social conditions, development of personal character essential to emancipation from social and moral bondage. Why social differentiation and social relationship on the labour question. A just distribution of labour, (less hours, etc.); regulation of labour by formal legislature; on general industrial health, safety and freedom for the worker; combination for regulating the relations between master and men, and for imposing restrictions on the conduct of an industry or business. There should be a labor congress annually to gather statistics, evidence to connect the course of wage, the study of profitable employment for the aged and less capable. Combination by men begets combination by master, which tends towards settlement by treatise or laws providing means of arbitration, in dispute, by a regular state board, in which both employers and employed would be represented with an agreement of status quo pending settlement, and failure to carry out the decision or verdict, to be treated as contempt of court. A judicial enforcement of labour laws.

To my mind, in the industrial revolution conditions will be so materially altered that trades unions in their present form must undergo profound alterations, or decay. This is a new country with natural resources and, therefore, can have natural monopolies which do away with all bolstered difficulties in the way of the practical workings of the above mentioned conditions. True protection on labour. Is the government rendering labour scarce? No; for no duty is put on labour. Federal governments encourage labour from Europe to Canada. Do not firms send agents abroad to fill up the supply of labour in our own market, and so in case of a bid for higher wages; or discontent, their places are filled by the immigrant glut of the labour market. The cure: A protective tariff on labour.

I see the following in Feb. 12th Evening Examiner, Peterborough, by F. P. O'connor. "When the war is over the struggle will probably be succeeded by a large emigration of men and women to the new world, and brighter possibilities."

Labour must act if this glut of the labour market is to be avoided; immigration restrictions should at once be brought before the Legislature, with organised labour showing a strong front. Remember that labour can have the majority vote at all elections. I would also advocate that occasional lectures be given to our children at their respective schools on political economy, in order to create an understanding interest in our legislation.

OTTAWA, Feb. 19. — General Sir Sam Hughes announced that it had been found that several battalions which had recently been ordered for overseas service were not ready owing to the officers in charge having allowed them to become under strength and not having them properly trained.

Attempts have been made to borrow men from other regiments. This will not be permitted.

These battalions will be left at home and others which are at full fighting strength and well trained, will be substituted.

Dr. Lee conducted the funeral services. He was laid to rest in the family plot in the Presbyterian cemetery. The Traction Trust

Suggested by GEORGE BRONSON HOWARD, Author of "Snobs," "God's Man," Etc.

SYNOPSIS.

Dudley Larnigan, district attorney of New York, attacks the liquor and vice trusts. He is killed by an agent of a secret society, the committee of fifteen. His son, Bruce Larnigan, is elected district attorney and takes up the fight. Bruce is in love with Dorothy Maxwell, whose father is head of the insurance trust.

Bruce Larnigan is decoyed to an evil resort in an effort to frame him up. He beats the conspirators by having the police commissioner present. A fire starts in a tenement across the way. Larnigan saves the children of Dow, one of the conspirators. This man agrees to expose the trust. He is murdered by the gang.

BRUCE LARNIGAN'S crushing defeat of the tenement house trust, resulting in the murder by the graft syndicate itself of Anton Dow, who was about to give Bruce evidence against the fifteen, served to show Stanford Stone and the remaining members of the graft syndicate that in Bruce they faced a foe far more dangerous to them than his murdered father had ever been.

Stanford Stone, the secret head of the powerful graft syndicate, had despised Bruce in the beginning. Now he was beginning to fear him. And the fact that he was in love with Dorothy Maxwell, the girl who was Bruce's fiancee, only increased his determination to get rid of Bruce.

It was impossible for Stanford Stone to work in the open. It seemed to him vitally important to hold secret his own connection with the graft syndicate. Even Bruce Larnigan was so far from suspecting it that after the death of Anton Dow he confided many of his plans for the future to Stone.

"Dow's death is unfortunate," he told Stone. "He was a villain, but he was about to turn over a new leaf. He would have been a useful witness too. However, I have other irons in the fire. I am more and more convinced that all the graft in this city (public utilities) is a centralized system with one man dominates all the corrupt elements. I can't strike at any particular form of graft, no matter what it may be, without weakening that great central power."

"That sounds reasonable," said Stone sympathetically.

"Now, for instance," said Bruce, "I am planning to look into the operations of the traction trust. I am convinced that whole organization is riddled with graft and that the city is being looted right and left in connection with the new subways. I haven't got all my evidence yet, but I'm going after it. And I may need your help."

Dorothy Picked Up the Dictaphone Receiver.

"I am at your service," said Stone. "As I've told you before, I feel, as a public spirited citizen, that it is my duty to uphold you in the fight you have undertaken."

But no sooner was Stone alone than his face was transformed and twisted by hate and malice. Without delay he sent for Amos Black, one of his confidential agents. He told Black that Larnigan must be killed.

Black was one of a number of characters of the underworld through whom Stone worked at times.

Through man and women known to him he got into touch with Bruce Larnigan's chauffeur. This man, seemingly respectable and actually faithful enough to Bruce, had a dark spot in his life. Black managed to learn of this and so got the man Bonner into his grip. He arranged to have Bonner drive Larnigan through the park while gunmen were planted there.

Stanford Stone by means of a dictaphone was able to keep in close touch with Black's movements, since he never for a moment trusted Black.

Gin Pills brought speedy relief. But let Mr. Conklin tell the story:—

"... I think it is only right that I should give you an unsolicited testimonial as to the benefit which I received the last couple of weeks by using Gin Pills, which I believe were manufactured by your Company. I might say that I was troubled for over three weeks with a pain in my back, and tried a number of remedies without any benefit. Dave Scott, our night police reporter had also been troubled the same way and on my telling him what was wrong with me he said, "Why don't you use Gin Pills, I have used a box and one half and after that the pain has left". He said, "You take this other half of the box and get another box and you will be all right".

Second Box of Gin Pills Cured Him

"I am glad to inform you that before I used the second box I felt myself all right again and the pain has left. I don't know whether this will be of any use to you, but I certainly think these pills are wonders.

On the day after his conversation with Bruce, however, Stone, listening over the dictaphone nodded with approval. Bruce he knew was coming to see him. Afterward Bonner should be able to take him through the park. And then—the graft syndicate's most dangerous enemy would be removed!

Bruce arrived while Black was still discussing his plans. With him was Dorothy Maxwell.

"We're not really together, Mr. Stone," she said gayly. "I'm looking for papa. I thought he might be here."

"I'm sorry he isn't, Miss Dorothy," said Stone. "But if you'll call up Boyd Penrose's office I think you'll get him. I'll take Larnigan outside while you telephone."

Dorothy smiled her thanks. She was left alone and by pure accident picked up the dictaphone receiver. To her horror and amazement she heard Black giving the final orders for Bruce's murder. Her heart almost stopped, but she managed to control herself and heard enough to put her in possession of all the details of the plot. Then, schooling her features, she went out and joined Bruce and Stone.

"I think I'll go straight home. I can't reach papa," she said. "Coming, Bruce?"

He nodded a farewell to Stone and went down with her. At the curb she seized his arm.

"Bruce, where are you going?" she asked tensely.

"To see an old friend—Jim Stevens," he said. "He's a newspaper man, and we're going to pull off a stunt together."

"Let me take you there," she urged. "Please, Bruce! Send Bonner home alone. I want to show you how my new car runs."

He thought nothing of her request and was glad to yield. Bonner, startled and dismayed, saw what had happened, and at once, instead of going home as he was told to do, he hurried to Black.

"Damn!" said Black. "Well, we'll have to get those fellows and plant them near Larnigan's house. Come on; take me through the park. It's riskier, but that can't be helped."

Bonner obeyed. They hurried into the park, and at the fatal spot, as Black stood up, a volley rang out. The gun men had mistaken their employer for their victim. Black fell dead!

Meanwhile Dorothy had waited for Bruce during his talk with Stevens and had then driven him home. They found Mrs. Larnigan in tears. The holder of the mortgage on her house had arbitrarily refused to give her more time, and her lawyer had told her that he had found no one willing to take it up, good as was the security. Bruce saw in this a plot on the part of the fifteen to punish him. But Dorothy, without telling him of her intentions, determined to save him.

"Everything will come out all right," Dorothy assured Bruce.

She had some property of her own, and she went straight to her father and asked him to advance her a large sum on certain securities. He laughed as he did so, giving her the money in cash.

"What do you want it for?" he asked.

She told him, and, though she saw the startled look that came into his eyes, she did not know the reason nor that it was Roger Maxwell's insurance company that had threatened to foreclose on Mrs. Larnigan's house. Yet it was true—she had unwittingly defeated a plan concocted by her father and Stanford Stone.

Maxwell said nothing to Dorothy of the truth. Perhaps he dared not. Perhaps it was because just after he learned what she meant to do Bard Penrose, his old friend, and his daughter, Mabel, one of Dorothy's best girl friends, were announced. Penrose was head of the traction trust. He and Maxwell had many interests in common. And in the course of the talk the incident of the mortgage seemed to be forgotten.

It was the next day that Bruce and his friend, Jim Stevens, the reporter, went to work on the new subway, having decided that therein lay the best chance they had to secure first hand evidence of an incontrovertible sort against the trust. Nor were they wrong. In a very short time they discovered the truth of what they had suspected—that a city inspector was being bribed to pass an inferior grade of cement in the construction work.

"The graft in that might run to millions!" said Jim, appalled. "And the danger—my God! The whole thing might collapse at any minute!"

"Get the facts down—and print them," said Bruce. "I'll stay here to get more evidence if I can. I don't think they suspect us yet."

Stevens obeyed. But at the office of his paper instead of being praised for his enterprise in securing a wonderful story he was bitterly attacked by his managing editor. Stevens had not known it hitherto, but his paper was a tool of the graft syndicate and was preparing at that moment to launch a bitter attack upon Bruce Larnigan. The story Stevens turned in was torn up. He himself was summarily discharged.

But that, as it turned out, was a false move, for it only aroused the fighting blood of Stevens. He went from newspaper to newspaper, until finally in the office of the Independent he found an editor with courage enough to face the consequences of defying the trust.

"They may smash us," he said, "but Larnigan is in the right, and we'll back him up. We'll begin by printing your story and putting you on our staff. Go out and get as much more stuff of this sort as you can."

A new danger threatened, however, for Stanford Stone had been in the office of Stevens' paper talking to the managing editor when the reporter made his report. Unseen by Stevens, he had heard everything and so knew that Bruce, in disguise, was working as a laborer in the subway. At once he saw a chance to crush his enemy. He went to Penrose, and the two concocted a new scheme for Bruce's destruction.

Bruce, suspecting nothing, was pleased by the praise that Kelly, ostensibly

"Everything will come out all right," said Dorothy.

the foreman of the work, but actually the personal representative and graft collector of Penrose, gave him for his work.

"Sure, an' you do well for a greenhorn," said Kelly. "I'll be afther raisin' your pay and givin' ye better worrk to do."

Bruce grinned his thanks. He was disposed to like Kelly and to believe that the man did not understand the rottenness of the work that was being done. Kelly, as was afterward to appear, was a good actor wanted on the job he held. He refused, in spite of Penrose's urgency, to be hurried.

"You'd be wantin' him to smell a rat," he said. "He's no fool, that lad. He takes careful handlin'—such as he gets from me. Lave it to me, Misther Penrose. I'll see that he goes to kingdom come. Lave it to Kelly!"

Day by day Kelly saw to it that Bruce got better work and more important to do. He praised him, encouraged him. And he did lull Bruce's suspicions, so that when at last he was ready to strike Bruce trusted him.

"It's to-me yez learned the blastin'. That's the worrk that pays!" said Kelly. "Take this dynamite cartridge, now, and carry it into the tunnel. The place to set it is marrked wid a red cerruse. The hole the driller left is there. Ye see, ye carry the wire along. Then when yez come back ye report and make the contact—and biff! Aisy does it—see! Don't be droppin' that stick!"

Bruce obeyed, working his way into the tunnel. But above, when Kelly came out, Penrose was waiting by the electric switch.

"Aisy does it, sorr!" said Kelly. "Give him time to get the end and start back. Then I'll touch the switch—and good night Larnigan!"

"Splendid!" said Penrose. "Here, I must get my girls out. They're inspecting the work. I don't want them to take any chances."

Dorothy and Mabel, indeed, were near by. And Dorothy had recognized Bruce. She had an accomplishment that few of her friends suspected—she could read lips. And so, though out of hearing, she knew what Kelly and Penrose had said. At once into the tunnel after him.

"Come quickly! Tell you!" she screamed. "Stick and run! Don't know!"

Bruce obeyed. Together the street. And just as of the tunnel there was a blind them. Bruce had a But the blast had an quences, for the rotten way, the street fell in, and rose, sitting in his auto[illegible] on his death.

In fact I rately recommend and use suy- na, mental science, new thought of Christian Science in a vast number of such cases. When the real sufferer comes, the one that puts off the visit to the doctor, fearing to know the truth, another and more difficult problem is presented.

Knowledge of the true condition is not going to change it or kill you and even if the doctor does mention surgery, you do not have to undergo an operation unless you are willing.

Give the doctor half a chance and the cure may be an easy matter, but if you conceal part of the facts and many of the symptoms you only hinder his work. Some trifling symptom that to you may be unimportant might mean much to him. After you have once told him all about your case, let him do the rest, don't watch for symptoms and pains, watch for and confidently expect a complete recovery.

It's not necessary to run to the doctor every time you sneeze or have a pain in your 'left hind' foot, but if the sneezing persists and you chill or perspire freely without apparent cause or some of your joints persistently refuse to work properly and severe pain is felt frequently in a certain place, then by all means ask the doctors, he knows and he may save you much suffering and expense.

Dear Doctor: Will you please give the formula for preparing the compound gentian with directions for using?

J. V.

(Answer). The formula for Compound Gentian is as follows:

Gentian, two ounces; prickly ash, two ounces; wahoo, two ounces; balmony, four ounces; dwarf elder, four ounces; golden seal, four ounces.

The crude herbs should be procured. Make an infusion by using one ounce of the mixed herbs to a pint of water. Boil and strain. To this may be added sugar to taste. The dose is two tablespoonfuls after each meal.

The above is the simplest way of preparing it. To make a syrup would necessitate special utensils and would be very complicated, therefore I will not take the space to go into details regarding its manufacure here. Full information is given in the Home Health Club Book, Vol. 5 as to that. Some of these ingredients are now rather high priced and it is therefore just as economical to use the Compound Gentian in tablet form.

Dear Doctor: In a recent club note I noticed your remedy for canker sores in the mouth. I will give you mine, believing it is quicker and surer. Burnt alum, pulverized and applied a few times, will kill the sore. Try it. J. T.

(Answer) I thank you for your contribution. Burnt alum has been used by many to advantage for canker sores, and on several occasions, though I do not think very recently, this remedy has been given in Club notes. It will help in a good many cases perhaps, but there are others wherein a more extensive treatment is needed to bring about a cure. It is for such more complicated cases I made the suggestion you referred to.

Choice Recipes

Pork Chops Stuffed.

One pound of pork chops, two slices of stale bread, one small onion, one-half of small green pepper, butter the size of a hickory nut, two tabespoonfuls of milk, one cup of tomato sauce; bake in slow oven 30 minutes. Crumble bread fine, mince onion and pepper; add spinch of salt, then wet with milk; put in a spoonful of this on each chop which has had the bone removed roll up and fasten with toothpicks, place in pan and pour tomato sauce over them. This is as delicious as pork tenderloins.

Chocolate Charlotte.

Soak a quarter of a package of granulated gelatine in one-fourth of a cupful of cold water. Whip one pint of cream and put it in a bowl, which should be placed in a pan of ice water. Put two squares of chocolate in a small pan with two tablespoons of sugar and one of boiling water and stir over a hot fire until smooth and glossy. Add to this one-half cup of hot milk and the soaked gelatine, and stir until the gelatine is dissolved. Sprinkle a generous half cupful of powdered sugar over the cream. Add the chocolate mixture and stir gently until it thickens. Then pour into a wet mould lined with split lady fingers. Chill thoroughly before serving and garnish with whipped cream and pistachio nuts.

Note: Use level measurements.

Deviled Ham Rolls.

Make light, rather rich pastry, roll thin and cut into squares of about 4 inches. Spread upon each square a small quantity of deviled ham, leaving about 1-2 inch around the edge uncovered. Moisten the edges with cold water and roll each sheet of ham and pastry compactly, pressing the ends together, and bake.

Bran Muffins.

Sift one cupful of whole wheat flour with three teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt and add two cupfuls of bran. Dissolve one teaspoonful of soda in one tablespoonful of boiling water and add one and one-half cupfuls of thick sour milk and one-fourth cupful of molasses. Stir the liquid into the dry mixture, add one-fourth cupful of butter (melted), beat thoroughly and bake in hot, buttered muffin pans for about 25 minutes.

CRUDE THOUGHTS FROM THE EDITORIAL PEN

Be a Worker! Talk up Go-to-Church! Get Your Neighbour to Go!

Go to church. Be a worker in the go to church campaign.

This Go-to-Church movement is a campaign more important than all the presidential campaigns. In a presidential campaign you get worked up to a high pitch of enthusiasm, exhorting and advancing arguments for your favourite candidate. Here is a chance for you to display your enthusiasm and argumentative powers. If you go to church your work is not finished. You can do a great deal more.

Get your neighbour to go. Talk up the go-to-church movement. There are many effective ways in which you can do this. Sandwich your talk about the baseball scores with a few remarks about the Go-to-Church movement. Make an occasional engagement for "after church Sunday." Now that the Go-to-Church movement has had a healthy start keep it moving. Don't let it die out. Whenever an item in the newspapers on increased church attendance or the Go-to-Church movement strikes your eye, call your neighbour's attention to it.

Always be quick to rush to the defense of the church and church-going. There are always to be found in every community persons ever ready to make a joke of the church and churchgoers and the church-going movement. Go after these persons. Don't let them get away with it. If you can't convince them that the church and church-goers are all right make them cease their insults. There is too much fun poked at the church these days. Even the church-going man is tempted to join in the laugh which greets some cheap joker who attacks sacred things. Honour to the man who rebuffs the cheap wit. Secretly his fellows will admire him for it.

GO TO CHURCH next Sunday.
GO TO CHURCH every Sunday!
Be a missionary by getting your neighbour to GO TO CHURCH.

The lover demands love for love, joy for joy and life for life. He gives that he may receive, and all his rights and privileges are most jealously guarded. If he offers himself unreservedly, he demands all in recompense. Not so the father and the mother. They give from the pure joy of giving, and demand nothing in return. They know they are endeavoring their child for a life apart from their own, yet they spare no pains and yield him freely to his destiny, satisfied if he shall have made the most of what is in him. Only one who has been blessed with children can realize the sublime unselfishness, the infinite patience, the exquisite tenderness, the unfailing courage and devotion of true fatherhood and motherhood.

We passed a little three-year-old girl the other day, when she accosted us as follows: "See the beautiful flowers I am gathering; ain't they beautiful?" All about her were noxious weeds, sticks and stubble, but she was gleaning out from among them the early wild violet, to her so beautiful, and noxious things were left unnoticed. I thought how much better and different life would seem if we, like the little girl, would just gather the beautiful things, things pure and lovely, and not dwell or think on the dark and impure and distorted blotches of life; for as a man thinkest, so is he.

THE KETTLE ALWAYS HOT

There's many a house of grandeur,
With turret, tower and dome,
That knows not peace nor comfort.
And does not prove a home;
I do not ask for splendor
To crown my daily lot;
But this I ask—a kitchen,
Where the kettle's always hot.

If things are not at all shipshape,
I do not fume nor fret;
A little clean disorder
Does not my nerves upset.
But one thing is essential,
Or seems so to my thought,
And that's a tidy kitchen
Where the kettle's always hot.

In my Aunt Hattie's household,
Though skies outside are drear,
Though times are dark and troubled,
You'll always find good cheer;
And in her quaint old kitchen,
The very homeliest spot,
The kettle's always singing,
The water's always hot.

And if you have a headache,
Whate'er the hour may be,
There's no tedium waiting,
To get your cup of tea.
I don't know how she does it,
Some magic she has caught,
For the kitchen's cool in summer,
Yet the kettle's always hot.

Oh, there's naught else so dreary
In any household found
As a cold and cullen kettle
That does not make a sound.
And I think that love is looking
In the hearts in such a spot,
Or the kettle would be singing
And the water would be hot.

If a woman would be healthy she must have some healthy object to live for: and what more worthy object for a wife than to look well to the ways of her household, and find health and cheerfulness in helping her husband in a mutual interest to lay by something for the years to follow when feeble hands and tottering limbs forbid profitable employment. Such a course pursued by men and women would prevent the great demand for almshouses, homes, and charities of all sorts. "The righteous are not forsaken nor his seed found begging bread."

ALWAYS TOO BUSY.

Are we too busy to live to-day? Is that the reason we put off living until to-morrow? There is a friend whom we should like to visit. The days, the weeks, the years go by and we have not called. The friend is taken away. We have put off the visit too long; we were too busy.

There is pleasure to be found in a little trp to the country. It would rest the husband and be a holiday for the children. But we are too busy. There is a hundred little kindnesses we should do if we only had the time. The chances pass, the time never comes. We are too busy for the kindnesses. We are too busy to-day. We are too busy week in and week out. There is time for everything if we place the most important thing first. We are too busy over trivial matters to get the real good out of living. When we get over our hurry, some day we shall live as we wish, we cheat ourselves into believing. But the day never comes. We come, we pass, and we never know the joys of life. We have been too busy to live. Too busy—always too busy.

Homes are beautiful only when there are equal rights; when the husband, wife and children respect and admire each other; where there is confidence and trust; and this can never be when the wife and daughters are reduced to the condition of paupers and beggars. If the evil exists in the home there should be a readjustment of affairs, and each member of the working firm be allowed his or her share of the income. Then the home business will not be robbed of the concentrated efforts of its partners, nor will the girls and women be looking elsewhere for work that will yield a cash return.

ARE YOU EDUCATED?

A professor of the University of Chicago has evolved a series of test questions for the educated which he avows are the best evidences of a real education. If you can answer "yes" to all the questions you are truly educated, the professor says. Here are the questions:

Has education given you sympathy with all the good causes and made you espouse them?

Has it made you public spirited?

Has it made you a brother to the weak?

Have you learned how to make friends and keep them?

Do you know what it is to be a friend yourself?

Can you look an honest man or a pure woman in the eye?

Do you see anything to love in a little child?

Will a lonely dog follow you in the street?

Can you be high minded and happy in the meanest drudgeries of life?

Do you think that washing dishes and hoeing corn is just as compatible with high thinking as playing a piano or playing golf?

Are you good for anything yourself?

Can you be happy alone?

Can you look out on the world and see anything but dollars and cents?

Can you look into a mud puddle by the wayside and see a clear sky?

Can you see anything in the puddle but mud?

WALKING FOR HEALTH.

Out, girls! Out into the open, this glorious fall weather. Never mind the wind, never mind the rain. Put on old clothes and rubber shoes, but get your daily walk, be the weather what it may. Dress loosely and comfortable, wear easy shoes, hold your head well up and your shoulders well back, breathe deeply, till your lungs completely, hold the air a minute or two, then breathe it out. Do this in regular time, so many steps while you breathe in, so many more while you hold it, then just a step or two while you breathe it out. Talk fast as though you were obliged to reach a certain place at a given hour. This is one royal road to health and beauty. It is good for the circulation the lungs and the nerves. Exercise gives even pale faces a becoming flush. Deep breathing expands the narrow chest; change from close reading or sewing gives the lack of lustre eye back its sparkle. Pure air and peace are the balms for smoothing out ugly lines.

The habit of letting every foolish or uncharitable thought, as it arises, find words, has a great deal to do with much evil in the world. Check the habit of uttering the words, and gradually you will find that you check the habit of thought, too.

Parents should be cautious about giving their children permission to stay out of school. Every day out is a day lost to the school work—they cannot make it up. They will soon be behind and want to stop school—and find fault with the teacher—say she is partial etc., when all the time the parents are to blame.

Every good citizen of this town should take a special local pride in all that pertains to home. The schools, the churches, the amusements, the business, pleasures, the picnics, the celebrations, in fact everything should be looked on by our own people as just as good as can be gotten up elsewhere. The town that says "we can," will always succeed.

CAT'S SOCIETY NOT OF VALUE, COURT RULES

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 18.—Judge Pat R. Parker has determined that a cat's society isn't worth anything. He allowed Mrs. Sadie Richardson $900 damages for the loss of Philo, a long-haired Persian, that was killed by the fumes of a disinfectant intended for bugs. The court, however, made it plain that the damages represented the value of the cat and did not include any compensation for the loss of the cat's society, association and companionship, for which Mrs. Richardson asked $900 additional.

The suit was brought against H. Schoenfeldt, a fumigator, who received $1 for the job of exterminating bugs in the bedroom of Mrs. Richardson's apartment.

SPENT COUNTLESS NIGHTS UNABLE TO REST OR SLEEP

Was Run Down and in Terribly Nervous Condition—By Using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Gained Regularly

In this letter is told once more the story which comes from many thousands of women. It is the story of exhausted nerves, of a run-down system and of all the accompanying misery of sleeplessness, headaches and loss of energy and vigour.

But there is a silver lining to this cloud. There is the light of new hope and courage which comes with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

This letter is so representative of the kind we are daily receiving that you can judge from it what you might expect from this treatment under similar circumstances.

Mrs. Conrad Schmidt, R. R. No. 1, Milverton, Ont., writes: "Two years ago last spring I was run down, had nervous prostration, and was in a terribly nervous condition. I could not sleep or eat. Could scarcely count the nights that I passed without sleep, and if I did eat, had sick headaches and vomiting spells. My limbs would swell so badly that it hurt me to walk. I would jump up in bed, awakened by bad dreams; in fact, I was so bad I thought I could not live, and started to use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food without much hope.

"It was not long before I began to improve under this treatment, and I can truthfully say it has done me a world of good. It took some time to get the nervous system restored, but I kept right on using the Nerve Food regularly, and gradually gained in health and strength. I have a fine baby boy now. He weighed 12 lbs. at birth, and though my friends were anxious after the condition I was in, I got over that fine, and now weigh 120 lbs. Before using the Nerve Food I was a mere skeleton."

You are not asked to expect miracles from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. But if you are willing to feed back your exhausted nerves to health and strength you can depend absolutely on this great food cure to produce the desired results. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

DONT SCOLD, MOTHER! IF THE CROSS CHILD IS BILIOUS, FEVERISH

Look at Tongue! If Coated, Clean Little Stomach, Liver, Bowels

Don't scold your fretful, peevish child. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with sour waste.

When listless, pale, feverish full of cold, bad breath, throat sore doesn't eat, sleep or act naturally, has stomachache, indigestion, diarrhoea give a tablespoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul waste, the sour bile and fermenting food passes out of the bowels and you have a well and playful child again. Children love this harmless "fruit laxative," and mothers can rest easy after giving it, because it never fails to make their little "insides" clean and sweet.

Keep it handy, Mother! A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Remember there are counterfeits sold here, so surely look and see that yours is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Hand back with contempt any other fig syrup.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S COAT.

By Anabel Worthington.

Smart coats are now made either to match the costume or to be entirely different from it, and one of the latest ideas is to make them of satin. This kind of a coat would go with any cloth or wash material which might be used for the waist and skirt.

The coat shown is exceptionally stylish. The peplum is entirely separate and distinct from both front and back. The closing is down the front, which is plain at the top but quite full at the waist line. Here there is a belt across the centre and two points overlapping the peplum at each side. In the back the cut is straight across, but the peplum is very circular so as to ripple gracefully at the edges.

The neck is finished with a high collar, which turns over a little at the top. The sleeves are plain and full length, finished with a fancy strap cuff.

Such a coat as this will be very handsome if made of cloth or satin with a handsome braided design in the back, and it may also be made of some of the new clothings in bright colors to wear with wash dresses.

The coat pattern, No. 7,610, is cut in sizes 34 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 1⅞ yards of 54 inch material.

This pattern can be obtained by sending coats to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

FOKKER MONOPLANE GIVES VICTORY TO THE GERMANS IN AIR FIGHTS

Machine Designed by Dutchman Inflicts Heavy Damage on Allied Aerial Craft Because of Its Great Speed and Ability to Manoeuvre Quickly, Writes C. C. Grey.

(Special Dispatch.)

LONDON, Feb. 12.

Fleet of the new German Fokker machine on aerial warfare is the subject of an illuminating article in the Daily Express by Mr. C. G. Grey, editor of the Aeroplane.

"There was a time," he writes, "when people on the ground, and even persons in the flying services themselves, regarded flying as being quite the safest work in the war.

"Those who have studied the casualty lists have noted the increasing number of casualties in the Royal Flying Corps as well as in the Royal Naval Air Service. Of course, to a certain extent the increased number of casualties is due to the enormously increased number of people flying, but it is also largely due to the increased skill of German anti-aircraft gunners and of German aviators, as well as to the improved quality of German aeroplanes.

"Although the British aviators on active service are well able to hold their own against any opposition, it is an undeniable fact that at any rate on certain sections of the lines they do not hold the absolute command of the air which has been claimed for them by people only partially acquainted with the facts.

"Dominance in the air, like dominance on the ground, swings, pendulum-like, now to one side and now to the other, and doubtless in due time our own flying people will gain the absolute command in the air and will hold it, but the mere fact that losses have increased so much of late and that hairbreadth escapes have been so much more frequent than they used to be shows that a strenuous effort must be made not only by the authorities controlling the flying services but by the manufacturers of aeroplanes and their employes—especially their employes—to build aeroplanes in sufficient quantities and of such quality as to give our aviators the material they require for their work.

Dutchman Designed Fokker.

"Those who have seen a good deal of the fighting in the air lately tell me that the greater part of the damage done by German aircraft is not being done by the big German battle aeroplanes, but by the little Fokker monoplanes. The designer and builder of these machines is a Dutchman, Mynheer Fokker, who has, however, lived for many years in Germany and, somewhat naturally, is entirely German in his sympathies. He learned to fly several years ago at the Johannisthal Aerodrome in Berlin, where he constructed weird and wonderful unpalatable aeroplanes, which certainly flew uncommonly well, long before the scientists in this country had produced unpalatable machines, or stable aeroplanes, as they are properly called.

"There was at one time some question of Fokker machines being imported to this country by one of the services, but despite their flying qualities they were so badly made that the officers who examined them were unwilling to take the risk of recommending them.

"The latest Fokker machines are very far from being unpalatable. They are built entirely under the control of the designer, and it is this same controllability, coupled with the fact that they are fitted with enormously powerful engines, which makes them as successful as they are.

"The power of the engine enables them to outclimb and outpace almost anything else in the air, while their extreme controllability makes it possible for them to outmanoeuvre the unpalatable machines, which are, by reason of their stability, less quick in answering their controls.

Fires Through Propellers.

"The Fokker monoplane is almost a copy of the French Morane monoplane, and is very similar to the little fast racing Morane machines flown by the late Mr. Gustav Hamel at various places in England, and by Messrs. Brock, Carr, Noel and other well known pilots at Hendon before the war. It is also fitted with a German copy of the Gnome engine.

"A machine gun is fitted along the top of the engine cowl, and it fires straight through the propeller. Occasionally the machine gun is operated by a passenger, but as often as not the pilot flies alone, and aims the machine gun by steering the machine to suit.

"The favorite method of attack adopted by the Fokker pilots is to let one of the Allies' machines pass them and then to attack from behind, flying straight at the tail of the enemy machine, so as to get the pilot, passenger, engine, tanks and everything else in line. The attack is made either from above or below, according to how the height of the machines happens to be when the pursuer gets close to his victim.

"The pilot on a machine which is very quick in answering its controls can escape by doing a sharp turn and compelling the Fokker to shoot past him, and of course if, as in some machines, the passenger sits behind the pilot he may be able to bring his machine gun to bear on the pursuer just as soon as the pursuer gets within a range which is dangerous to the pursued machine.

Skilful Pilots Needed.

"When the pursued machine is big and heavy on its controls the pilot of the Fokker always has the advantage in being able to fly quite close up underneath the tail of his victim so that the gunner on the bigger machine cannot fire at him without firing through his own tail and probably blowing his own controls to pieces.

"Naturally it is only particularly skilful pilots who can handle these small high speed monoplanes, and it seems that the supply of such pilots is smaller in proportion in Germany than in most other countries. Nevertheless, the results have shown that a sufficient number of such pilots has been forthcoming to make things very unpleasant for any of the Allies' pilots who do not happen to be mounted on aeroplanes of very much better quality than those which suffered for general surprises until even a few months ago.

"Happily, French and British manufacturers do not allow their designers to remain idle, and there are already aeroplanes in existence in this country which will give even the best German pilots on the fastest Fokker monoplanes quite a nasty jar when they meet, but probably the Germans also will retaliate in due course with something better than they have now got, so it is up to British and French constructors to work their brains and for the employes to work their hands at full pressure if this country is to gain and hold the command of the air."

France to Organize Theatre to Entertain Soldiers at the Front

Regular Performances To Be Given in the Military Encampments Behind the Lines by Theatrical Companies, Dramatic Artists of Paris Offering Services Without Pay.

(Special Dispatch.)

PARIS, Feb. 12.

"In the trenches," writes a contributor to the Paris Figaro, "diversions are not wanting; attacks, counter-attacks, bursting grenades, exploding mines and all that. But in the military encampments the hours are long, existence dull. The authorities, who think of everything, have prescribed many kinds of exercises, morning and evening, to make time pass more quickly, yet this seems not to be sufficient.

"What is it, then, that these irritable fellows want? Attend the premieres at the theatres? But the defence of our country makes that infeasible. Still, we don't like to refuse anything to those men who are facing death for our sake. And since they cannot go to the theatre, the theatre will have to go to them.

"We announced a few days ago that the authorities had designated certain encampments where regular theatrical performances are to be held. The initiative in this movement was taken by Mr. Emile Fabre, and it enjoys the benevolent patronage of both General Joffre, commander-in-chief, and General Gallieni, Minister of War.

"Mr. Jules Truffier, the amiable secretary of the Comedie Francaise, has recently traced the history of the army theatre. Its origin dates from the time of Alexander the Great. This empire builder seems to have had an idea that his conquests would not be complete unless he brought along three thousand histrionic artists from Greece to Echatana. If we pass forward a few centuries we find that Maurice of Saxe, Marshal of France and commander of its armies in Flanders, followed the Macedonian's example. In a letter to Favart, directing him to bring a theatrical troupe to the armies in the front, the Marshal wrote:—'I am persuaded that you will prove no efforts in getting together an excellent company. But you must not think that I look upon this merely as a means of amusement, because by [illegible] of my political programme and entire confidence into the plans of my military operations.'

"There is preserved an autograph note written by General Bonaparte from Egypt in 1798. With characteristic briefness he demands shipped to him some artillery requisites and, in addition, 'one troupe of comedians, one ballet corps and three or four marionnette shows for the common people.' It is then quite natural that our soldiers of 1914, 1915, 1916 also should be given an opportunity to enjoy a play now and then.

"As already stated, Mr. Fabre took the first steps for the organization of the 'Theatre at the Front' before any committee had been appointed to lay schemes for the work. Then dramatic artists of Paris came to him with cheery promises, like 'We are with you,' 'You can count on us' and 'Of course, we will not accept any pay for our services.'

"Soon we will see theatrical companies, such as the wealthiest managers could not afford to assemble, take train for some little town in the north or east, where they will alight and be driven in big automobile busses to some army camp. There they will play on an improvised stage to an audience composed exclusively of men from the firing line, a dirty, helmeted and happy crowd. They will be treated to enlivening plays, by Labiche, Tristan Bernard, Courteline, &c. Some famous singer, or charming prima donna, will sing the 'Marseillaise' and the soldiers will join in the chorus of the refrain.

"It will be beautiful, grand. And people at home who like to go to the theatre can enjoy themselves without any pangs of remorse, now that they know that the soldiers are also going to have their theatrical entertainments."

Prague Editor's Three Wishes Are Peace, Union and Light Taxes

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 12.

Wilhelm Keller, of the Prager Tagblatt, the most influential German newspaper in Bohemia, displays on the first page of that newspaper three wishes that he has for this year. They are:—First, peace; second, the union of Germans and Austrians, and, third, sparing the people from heavy taxes after the war. Regarding peace, Herr Keller writes:—

"It may seem rather incongruous to speak of peace at this time, but if a good fairy asked me how far my most cherished wish it would be that of peace. Of course, our enemies act as if they were not even giving to the prospects of peace a mere thought, but no doubt in their innermost hearts they desire it as strongly as is expressed by Goethe in one of his works:—

"'Sweet peace, come, oh come!'

"Surely we indeed shudder at the thought of the well known remark, 'If you want peace, then prepare for war,' and the corollary to that is 'Arms engaged in war, forged not peace.'

"But as I hope and trust, that 1916 will as light as peace's" bring peace to us and with it the meal will be born from the faces of Messrs. Grey and Poincare—peace that will make impossible any industrial warfare and lead to a strong commercial union between Germany and Austria. In this respect the words of Friedrich Ludwig Jahns, spoken a hundred years ago, apply strongly now:—

"The morning of the new German world has just begun. And for this world we will all work together, no task is too small and no sacrifice too great to make for our people and our Fatherland."

"My second wish is for unison of mind and sympathy between Germans and Austrians.

"This is a wish perhaps even more important than the first, and it is a wish that a whole lifetime has not realised.

"My third wish is for as light a tax as possible after the war in order to place [illegible] on the people.

"Of course, more sacrifices await the people after the war, and these they will be willing to met, but I wish that our [illegible] responsible and careful consideration of the question of taxes to make the burdens [illegible] as light as possible."

Gorizia Lives in Cellars; No House Remains Whole

City of 30,000 Is Reduced to Few Hundred Inhabitants, Who Pass Their Days Underground, Where Constantly Dropping Shells Present the Least Danger.

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 13.

Herr Josef Pogany, special correspondent of the Berliner Tageblatt and a writer of some prominence, tells of a trip he has just made to the war stricken city of Gorizia, near the Italian frontier. In graphic style, Herr Pogany writes a description of life in the wrecked city.

"Of the thirty thousand inhabitants of Gorizia," he says, "only a few hundred remain. These live, eat and sleep in cellars. There is no longer any life above ground. Every day more shells explode in the city and every day some of the old inhabitants return. But there is now a new Gorizia.

It is Gorizia underground. Every man, woman and child lives in a cellar, very much like the early Christians lived in the catacombs. And as the early Christians were aroused in their sleep by the [illegible] of wild beasts, so the present inhabitants of Gorizia are kept awake by the incessant explosion of shells. They all have gone back to a primitive mode of living. Occasionally a woman is seen in the street who ventured out to obtain some food. Not only the citizens, but all the officials of the city have 'buried' themselves in the earth. They occupy the cellars under the public buildings. The director of finance has a desk and a mattress next to it. Next to him is the desk of the health officer, wash bowl, table and sofa—all in a comparatively small space. The school inspector manages to exist here with the building inspector, and there in one corner is a typewriter with a young woman busily writing. In another cellar are the clerks, bookkeepers and kitchen. Of course, the officials must eat, and so a kitchen is absolutely necessary. "Despite this monotonous existence the officials of Gorizia abound in good humo[r]. They laugh, joke and sing in the candlelight and take their situation philosophically.

"The Italians bombard the city day a[nd] night. Of the twenty-five hundred house[s] and buildings in the city not one has escaped damage. All the church edifices have been wrecked. Not a glass pane remains whole. The city gas works, too, have been wrecked, and twelve hours' darkness makes Gorizia, like the Rue[de] lightless, black city of Maupassant['s] novel.

"While I was in the city only four [or] shells fell. One 305 centimetre shell exploded in front of a coffee house, making a big hole the width of the street. The was filled with water during a rainstorm and the inhabitants named it the 'Lake of Shells.' In the long closed coffee house the billiard table danced like some spirit ridden thing, while the billiard balls [and] the cues flew in all directions. [Then] away another shell exploded and kill[ed] many residents, who had remained standing. Their heads, arms and legs were thrown in all directions and the street ran red. Blood still can be seen in the red earth and, like the drop of blood in the fairy tale of the king's daughter, it seems to say, 'And I, too, was once upon a time a young, handsome person!' Gradually the merciful rain is obliterating its traces.

"But the Italians are paying for the wanton slaughter of the civil population, for out there beyond the Gorizia bridgehead they are having heavy losses. The battle changes from day to day, and just now Oslavia is the centre point of attack. All those residents of Gorizia who live and sleep in their cellars no longer fear that the Italians will ever succeed in breaking through."

GERMAN WINS HIS SEVENTH AIR BATTLE.

(Special Dispatch.)

BERLIN, Feb. 12.

The Krefeld Zeitung prints a letter from an eye witness of a battle in the air between Lieutenant Immelmann and two British aviators. This was Lieutenant Immelmann's seventh victory since the beginning of the war.

"Today, for the first time," says the letter, "I have seen how an aeroplane of the enemy was shot to pieces and brought down to the earth. The machine fell two metres from my sleeping room, and just missed falling on a stone wall. It was horrible to see.

"I had just joined my company in the street when we saw two aeroplanes above. We thought then that they were French or British. One aeroplane was following the other, and constantly shooting at it. Then we saw both machines gradually come to a sudden halt. We heard the clatter of machine guns, and [it] [was] [evi]dent that one was aiming at [the] [other]. [Both] aviator in collars [were] [impressive]."

[illegible] bear by. Suddenly what looked like a small, dark object fell from one of the machines and plunged down to the earth. It was a human body. The machine careened and quickly [pi]ltered, fell with a loud crash.

"The aviator fell in the garden in the rear of my house. The other aviator, the machine was still alive, but died shortly after we reached him. We saw then that the wrecked machine was British. The dead aviators were Lieutenant [Ro]berton Tuder and Lieutenant Hobbs. The former, who had fallen from the [sky] while high in the air, had a [bad] wound in his head.

"By this time the other machine [had] flown down, and as we noticed the [black] colors painted on it there was a [cry] from the populace such as I have [never] heard. It was Lieutenant Immelmann who was the victor in this battle, the [hero] since the beginning of the war. He [fights] alone, and takes all the risks.

"Our regiment buried the British [aviators] with all military honor, and the [German aviator now] a wreath. It was [very] impressive."

OUR DAILY SHORT STORY

A Worse Place Than Up In the Air

By JOHN Y. LARNED

One evening at a social gathering I was introduced to a young woman—a widow—whose expression on meeting me was, to say the least, surprising. There were recognition, astonishment, pleasure, all mingled with something like wonder. It occurred to me at once that I must have met one with whom I had been connected in the past. My assurance is by no means of a low order, and I determined not to assume the defensive.

"Can it be," I hazarded, "that I have met a friend of my youth?"

"No."

"I have it. We were in Switzerland together last summer."

"We were not."

"Strange," I said, assuming a thoughtful tone and expression, "that I should remember a person distinctly and yet cannot call up the circumstances"—

"I don't believe you remember having met me at all."

I smiled and confessed that I did not.

"Never mind where we met," she said, pouting.

"It wasn't up in the clouds sailing in aeroplanes, was it?"

"Worse."

"Upon my word, you speak in riddles! Please explain."

The lady changed the subject, speaking on ordinary topics. Curiosity led me to retain the acquaintance I had formed, and I asked permission to call. But my affairs were in bad shape at the time, and, being much worried, I failed to avail myself of the permission granted. Matters went from bad to worse with me. The fact got whispered about that I was in financial difficulty, and I was pressed on every side for payment of accounts for which there were no funds ready. One morning the mail brought me a letter from John Simpson & Co., a firm doing the same kind of business that I did, stating that they had been made aware that I needed funds to tide me over difficulties and that they would be happy to advance what I required.

It is needless to say that such generosity surprised me. I had known and done business with the concern, but had no idea that it took any interest in me. I called on Mr. Simpson, the head of the firm, and offered to make a showing of my affairs with a view to proving that a loan of $20,000 for a year would pull me through. But I could furnish no security. I was informed that I would hear from him within twenty-four hours, and the next morning's mail brought me a check for the amount I needed. No receipt to be signed was inclosed; nothing was said about a showing up of my accounts; no time was specified for payment. Twenty thousand dollars were handed to me just as if they belonged to me. I called on Mr. Simpson at once for an explanation, but got no satisfaction.

"You go on doing business," he said. "You have the good will of your competitors and business men generally. Don't bother your head about the money advanced. Are you sure it is a-plenty?"

I assured him that it was.

Being set up on my feet, my mind was more at ease, and I resumed my social connections. One morning I was passing a shop where women's goods are sold just as a lady alighted from an auto. I recognized Mrs. Carmody, the lady who remembered me, but whom I had failed to remember. Conscious of my neglect of her permission to call upon her, I felt embarrassed; but, pulling myself together, I spoke to her, told her that a pressure of affairs had prevented my availing myself of the honor she had done me, etc.

I left her, thinking of the mystery concerning her. One thing especially puzzled me. When I had facetiously suggested that we might have met up in the air she had replied, "Worse than that." What did this mean? I resolved to get it out of her and to call upon her at once for the purpose.

"Now," I said to her when we were seated tete-a-tete in her drawing room, "I confess that I cannot remember you at all, and I wish you to relieve my curiosity by explaining what you meant by saying that we had met in a worse place than up in the air."

"Can't you think of a worse place than that?"

"No."

"Down under the water."

The expression on my face caused a burst of laughter that was both tantalizing and becoming.

"You and I," she continued, "were on board the Titanic together on her last trip. We both went down or were sucked down with the vessel. I clutched some one under water. It was you. When we came up I was bereft of my senses. You unstrapped some life preserver and gave it to me. I clung to it till I was picked up."

In time I married the widow, who was wealthy, and she turned over to me the management of her affairs. One day while looking over some old papers of hers I came upon her check for $20,000 payable to John Simpson. Then I knew who had advanced the money that had saved me from financial failure. I went to my wife, embraced her and covered her face with kisses. She wished me to explain my sudden demonstration of affection, but I paid her for keeping me in ignorance of where we had met by withholding my knowledge of the check.

DEATH SURPRISED HUN.

Correspondent Tells of a Gruesome Night Vigil.

An English correspondent at the front writes:

"There is a good deal of competition when volunteers are called for, and the other day when the volunteers were wanted for cutting the German barbed wire entanglements it would have done your heart good to see the men step out for it. A little later volunteers were wanted for "listening post," which means crawling out after dark as near to the German trench as possible and listening for any possible movement or excitement signifying an attack or what not. This time I was a selected one, and my smattering of German was useful.

"During the day a shell had fallen about fifty yards to the right of our trench and had excavated the ground till it looked like the crater of a volcano, and I marked it down for my post for the night.

"Crawling out at nightfall and carefully avoiding the wire, I slipped into the hollow. It was about thirty feet across, by eight or nine deep. I slid noiselessly down and crept up the farther side, when I could distinctly hear the Germans talking. They were saying 'Good night, Friedrich—good luck, Friedrich!' and the next moment I saw a tall dark shape coming directly for my crater. He was obviously a tall, massive man, whom I could scarcely hope to overpower without noise. I could have shot him easily, but the report would have started firing everywhere and all sorts of confusion. He came directly on, and I was funking a bit and honestly did not know what to do—run or stay! But fate settled it all for me. The German set his heel in the side of the crater and came down about three-parts of the way, where he halted, and in the dark I could discern him raising his night glasses to his eyes. He was within two yards of me scanning the farther side of the crater! I was crouching with my rifle ready, and as he raised his arms my bayonet took him four or five inches below the arm-pit. The German never moved, but stood stock still. Then his glasses fell to the ground, and to my astonishment he sat down quite naturally, stretched his feet, and with a soft bubbly sort of sigh lay back. I waited a few minutes and then crept over to him—he was stone dead.

"But it was a gruesome vigil—waiting there for daylight. About half an hour before dawn I crept back carrying the German's rifle, which I found was fitted with telescopic sights, but unfortunately he only had twenty cartridges on him and our ammunition won't fit. We heard afterwards that he was a famous sniper and had accounted for a good many of our men."

"Did you learn any French while you were in Paris?" asked Bildad, meeting Slithers shortly after his return from Europe.

"Oh, a little," said Slithers. "Not very much, though. I got so I could say cigarette in French."

"Good!" said Bildad. "What is cigarette in French?"

"Cigarette," said Slithers.—Harper's Weekly.

Taking Away From the Subject.

When Frederick Robertson of Brighton, the great preacher who had written much about Tennyson's poems and for whom the poet had a high regard, first called upon him, "I felt," said Tennyson, "as if he had come to pluck out the heart of my mystery, so I talked to him about nothing but beer."

How Fat Folks May Become Thin

By Elizabeth Thomas.

Perhaps you are suddenly becoming stout, or it may be that you have been putting on weight for years. In either case the cause is the same—lack of oxygen-carrying power of the blood. This trouble occurs in adults of both sexes and all ages, but it may be overcome very easily and without any of the privations that most people imagine necessary to reduce their weight.

Simply go to your druggist and get some oil of orlisse capsules. Take one after each meal and before going to bed. Weigh yourself so as to know just how fast you are losing weight. Wonderful results have been accomplished by this inexpensive recipe, but be sure to get the genuine oil of orlisse in capsule form. It is sold only in original sealed packages. Any large druggist can supply you, or a large size box will be sent on receipt of $1.00. Address D. J. Little Drug Co., Box 1508, Montreal, Can.

Three Nails!

When you cut your nails, in all probability you attach no importance to the particular day on which you do so. In the old Saxon times, however, people were extremely superstitious on this point, and no doubt this trait inspired the following verses:

Cut nails on Monday, cut them for health;
Cut them on Tuesday, cut them for wealth;
Cut them on Wednesday, cut them for a letter;
Cut them on Thursday, cut them for something better!
Cut them on Friday, you cut for a wife;
Cut them on Saturday, cut for a long life;
Cut them on Sunday, you cut them for evil;
For all of that week you'll be ruled by the devil!

Although the last two lines are somewhat drastic, they are little less modified in the other version, that goes:—

A man had better ne're been born
Than have his nails on Sunday shorn.

To Keep Peerages Alive.

Means are to be adopted to prevent British peerages from becoming extinct in cases where the only male heir has given his life to his country. In the ordinary course succession to a peerage is limited to direct male descendants of the last or of a former holder of the title. But by "special remainder," as the provision is called, the nearest of other male relatives will now be given the title. There are now at least 200 heirs to peerages in the army and navy, and a large number of these have already fallen.

Enlivened the Scene.

The first night I sang Falstaff at Covent Garden, said David Bispham, Beerbohm Tree—he is now Sir Herbert, of course—helped me to make up for the part. He had played the famous role himself, and he was anxious to have my make-up above reproach, for we were great friends.

In those days—it was more than a dozen years ago—papier mache noses were not in use as they are today. Falstaff's huge, bulbous nose had to be built up out of "nose paste"—sticky stuff, very much like putty.

If I do say it myself, my make-up was a work of art. But my costume was so heavy—I was padded out with a dozen suits and a huge stomacher—that I was perspiring copiously long before I made my first entrance. However, the applause I received when I went on made up for my discomfort, until in the midst of my most important song I felt my nose slipping from my face! I tried to put it back, but without success. In spite of everything I could do it fell to the stage in full view of the audience. A titter began in the orchestra chairs and soon grew into a roar of laughter, for in my efforts to kick the paste nose out of the way my foot slipped on the sticky stuff and I fell flat on the stage floor!

A Consolation.

A young woman who was in the habit of visiting in a New England village encountered a rural neighbor in a city store.

"How's your wife, Mr. Green?" inquired the young woman graciously.

"Why, don't you know," said Mr. Green, "I lost her three months ago."

"Oh," said the shocked young woman, "I didn't know! I beg your pardon, Mr. Green, for my inquiry."

"Well," said the disconsolate widower, "it ain't as bad as it might have been. I've got good help."—Exchange.

Could Never Do It.

A story which Lord Alverstone was fond of telling concerned an admirable portrait of himself painted by the Hon. John Collier. "A friend of mine, looking at this portrait," he said, "remarked, 'Do you think you would like to be as wise as Collier has made you look?' 'I should,' I replied. 'Well, you can't,' promptly returned the friend."

GIANT AIR DREADNAUGHT FOR THE ALLIES

The rate at which aerial navigation is being driven ahead by the European war is next to unbelievable. When the war broke out there were but few aeroplanes in use, and they were mostly for demonstration, training, or experimental uses. They were still considered unstable, and in many ways uncertain in their actions. A very large prize had been offered and at least one serious challenge had been made for it. The great Wanamaker aeroplane was the challenger and had been specially constructed to meet the untried perils of the trans-Atlantic trip. It was far larger and far more powerful than any aeroplane known, up to that time. It was considered a wonder. It could carry four passengers with necessary fuel and other supplies for the trip. That is only about eighteen months ago. And now, we are told that the Allies have building, and near completion, a number of aeroplanes of such size, power and radius of action as to make that one a very small affair, by comparison. These latest ones can carry a crew of twelve men and a load of three thousand pounds. Their high power engines are capable of driving these enormous air vessels at a speed of 110 miles per hour continuously, and they may travel six hundred miles from base and return. They are armed with small cannon, 9 centimetre calibre, and these cannon are specially arranged so that there is no recoil when they are shot. They are double barrelled and the barrels point in opposite directions. They are fired at the same time, and the rearward barrel discharges a shot of sand instead of steel. Thus, the two recoils neutralise each other.

This giant has three nests of planes one above the other, and nine very powerful propellers all driven at the same time.

It is especially intended to carry large loads of very high power bombs to points far behind the enemies' lines, and cause great and lasting damage.

It would not be surprising to see a regular Transatlantic air fleet develop out of such battle planes as these.

It is almost certain that one of the results of the war will be thoroughly reliable Transatlantic air navigation.

Dame Fashion May Cause Strike of Girls in Sandusky

SANDUSKY, O., Feb. 18.—Girls employed in ice cream parlours, confectionery stores, post-card stands, and restaurants threaten to resist what they consider an attempt by their employers to tell them what they shall wear. The trouble started Saturday, when a girl lost her job in a down-town restaurant because she insisted on wearing a skirt which, in the opinion of her employer was "too short."

"I'm afraid some of my patrons might object," said the employer, "and you'll have to put a ruffle on it or quit."

The girl quit. Fuel was added to the flame when a server in an ice cream parlour lost her job because she refused to wear waists a little higher at the neck.

Much talk of girls organizing a union is heard. If they do Madam Fashion will be to blame.

HUMBLE STEAM TRAWLER HAS BECOME MISTRESS OF THE SEAS THROUGH WAR

Lowliest of Vessels, Because of Ability to Deal With Submarine Peril, Takes Rank as One of The Allies' Most Valuable Fighting Craft—Now Clearing The Mediterranean of Undersea Enemy.

One of the strange ironies of the great war is that the lowliest of all the steam vessels has usurped the place of the battle ship and the armored cruiser. The fishing vessel, which was so much looked down upon not merely by the war ship and the transatlantic passenger vessel but even by the freight carrier of modest proportions, now is filling one of the most important roles in the whole conflict. Its officers and crews declare at present it is mistress of the seas.

It was the submarine that led to the employment of the fishing vessel as a necessity, and the fishing vessel is really responsible in great measure for the ending of the career of the submarine in its most dangerous mission.

The story has still to be told how Great Britain overcome the worst of the submarine menace and many accounts have been offered how it was done, most of them based on conjecture. But it was the lowly trawler which worked havoc among the German submarines and led to their destruction or their being scared off from the most desirable water routes.

In the Mediterranean to-day the trawlers rapidly are making short work of the submarines which caused so much trouble a few weeks ago. The French government has undertaken the policing of the Mediterranean with trawlers and that sea now practically is alive with them.

They operate in twos and threes and fours, low down on the waves, the plaything of the billows, rolling, pitching and veering, seemingly the most inoffensive craft that floats.

Their old home ports were Dunkirk, Boulonge, La Rochelle or Arcachon for six months in the year, when they were engaged in the modest task of fishing for herring or codfish, and the other six months found them far north at Iceland or in the fogs of Newfoundland.

Romantic Role in War.

The majority of them, despite their steam engines, never were too proud to hoist a few rags of various colored canvas when the occasion seemed favorable for propulsion purposes. They had been regarded by their greater brethren in the deep sea navigation business as just a shade better than sailing vessels, but not quite in the rank of steamships. The only arms they carried were harpoons, hatchets and hooks.

"Now, all that is changed. Those who thought romance had gone out of war, and had sighed for the good old days of the running down of enemy craft and the use of the grappling iron and all the old time implements for the violent boarding of an adversary craft will find it all realized in the operations of the modern trawler, exalted to the ranks of warships.

Forward they carry two imposing 65-millimetre guns and aft a 47-millimetre gun. Some of the larger fishing boats, whose tonnage runs to several score, the being provided with 100-millimetre guns. Wireless telegraph apparatus is supplied to each of them and a battle pennant floats proudly from the masthead. They are now painted a horizon blue. Their holds are veritable arsenals, filled with instruments of destruction. Naval officers command them and armed men serve as crews.

The trawlers are divided into little squadrons and recently it was decided to give them an official battle title. They are to be known as "scouting auxiliaries."

Cover the Mediterranean.

They are to be found everywhere in the Mediterranean, says Mr. Andre Tudesq, in the Paris Journal. They are at the threshold of protected harbors, where they operate as outposts. They are in all the straits, which they close up as soon as the sun sets; and in the open sea they are constantly patrolling.

Without them protective nets are practically of no value and the strings of mines are chiefly valuable for scaring purposes. The trawlers are the real mobile defences.

On the Mediterranean routes and in the convolutions of the archipelago they are seen suddenly to appear; they had been hidden by a Homeric island, where they have been watching suspected vessels, or in some inlet, where they have passed the night waiting for a submarine to come along looking for supplies. At other times they are busy convoying the great transports of troops, munitions and provisions. Other squadrons of trawlers come up to meet them while they are fulfilling this service and they change guard, as it were and move off to new duties.

Hunters of adventure, sentries of the straits, blockade keepers, dragers of mines, safeguards of convoys, chasers of submarines, the trawlers are also able to turn corsairs at times. They descend upon large sailing vessels that are out for no good purpose and the trawler then perpetuates the purest of naval traditions.

On the rare occasions when a battle cruiser goes out to bombard the enemy's coast the trawler is of supreme importance. In the shadow of the great vessel, while its turrets are pouring out fire and flame and death from 8 inch and 12-inch guns the trawlers are in perpetual motion, circling around, holding out their nets, watching for submarines and protecting the floating fortress.

The Trenches of the Navy.

Mr. Tudesq describes them as the trenches of the navy. The glorious field armies of Europe had had to descend with their superb accoutrements into muddy trenches and coves in order to make war under new conditions, and the great fleets have had to find a form of trench behind which they may fight on the sea, the trawlers being these movable trenches.

Some of the trawlers already have covered themselves with glory and will have a place in the history of naval warfare.

The North Capern, which boarded a large Turkish brig, on board which thirteen officers and twenty-one soldiers were passengers, is one of them. The Adrien, which went aground in one of the ports of Anatolia and fought against an enemy twenty times superior in number and, after two hours of fighting and manoeuvring, succeeded in getting afloat and in making off, although torn with shell on all sides, is another.

The Marie Frederique one afternoon in December sank a submarine which was about to launch a torpedo against a freight steamship. The Paris II. is probably the most famous of all the corsairs, as she has the record of the longest fight made by any vessel in the Mediterranean during the war. Her fight was with one of the new Teutonic submarines, armed with 100-millimetre guns, and it lasted for two hours and three-quarters.

Mr. Tudesq tells of trips he has made while studying the operations of the armed trawlers in the Mediterranean.

"I had the honour," he says, "to cruise in the zigzag fashion for a fortnight on board more than one vessel and to share the fatigues, the hazards and the joys of the sea. We plied unceasingly between the islands of the archipelago, along the coast of Tripoli, crossed over to Rhodes and toward Cyprus, and we passed down the coast of Anatolia, and along that of Egypt.

The Mother Ship.

'My first trip was made on board the Corse. This steam vessel, which had her origin at Hull, was not a trawler, but acted as mother ship for the trawlers. She had at one time been in the express service between Newhaven and Dieppe, then was employed along the coast of Spain and finally spent some years on the Morocco line.

"The French government bought her and armed her and an officer of great ability was put in charge, as she had to give aid and comfort in many ways to the very important fleet of trawlers and to direct their operations. The officer explained to me that the programme outlined for him comprised three chief duties:

"First—To guard the sea routes. As at the front on land, so in the Mediterranean and in the Aegan, there are routes which are constantly aimed at by the enemy and passages which are inevitably followed and islands which are like intrenched camps. The trawlers patrol night and day these special routes and passages and, according to the term used in the French navy, they "rake" them over.

"Second—To watch suspected coastlines and to maintain the blockade of enemy coasts. If one examines the map it will at once be seen how broken is the coast in the Mediterranean with all kinds of bays and inlets and gulfs. Therein are hidden the deposits of petroeum and supplies of all kinds. These have to be destroyed.

"Toward evening watchers on the hilltops are ready to signal to submarines to come in and take refuge for the night, and it is the duty of the trawlers to keep these submarines away from their bays, to worry them and to run them down mercilessly. The trawlers are like a pack of hungry beagles eager for the chase.

"Policemen of the Sea."

"Third—By an untiring surveillance and by continued activity to prevent the transfer of supplies in the open sea. The trawlers have been described as the policemen of the sea.

"The submarine, cut off from its shelter, from its provisions and its gasoline, is doomed to a miserable end. Its raids will be in vain. It may leave in the morning with its accumulator batteries charged, with its cases filled with provisons, from Cattaro, in the Adriatic, or from Constantinople, coming out through the Dardanelles, and if the patrol duty is strictly carried out by the trawler on the sea and along the coast the submarine will return to its home port.

"The commander of the force explained to me why it is that the submarine fears the trawler. First of all the trawler is a small unit of little importance, which is really not worth the wasting of a torpedo; again, it is almost impossible to torpedo her. She is without a deep keel and is of a very light draft, so that it is almost impossible for a submarine to strike with a torpedo. The trawler, therefore, armed to the teeth herself, makes light of the risk of being torpedoed.

"Nor can the submarine successfully reduce the trawler with its guns. At this game the submarine has too much to risk. The heaviest guns the the submarines carry of a 100-millimetre calibre, and against these trawlers can bring into action the fire of its 47 and its 75-millimetres, and the larger trawlers even of 100 millimetre guns.

"It is easily understood, therefore why the submarine recognizes that it at last has met its master in the trawler, and it is not without reason that naval officers are so eager to do service on board the humble trawler, as it gives to them an opportunity for active work of a desirable kind. Nor is there justification lacking for the assertion that the humblest of all steamships, the former fishing vessel has finally come into her own by becoming of supreme service in the defence of Great Britain and France and their allies."

It is Illegal to Sell Mince Pie Containing Spirits in ARIZONA

ARIZONA, where a Prohibition amendment to the State Constitution has recently been passed, is the first State to attempt shutting out liquor completely, the law being so framed as to make it practically impossible for anyone legally to obtain it. Where other Prohibition States, such as Maine and Kansas, allow it to be shipped in from the outside for personal use, merely forbidding the local sale, the law of this State provides that liquor shall "not be manufactured in or introduced into the State of Arizona under any circumstances," anything and everything containing alcohol for food or beverage uses, for sacramental or medicinal purposes, being barred out by the officials. A little while ago, for example, the State Attorney General was asked for an opinion as to whether it was legal to sell mince pie and plum pudding containing alcohol, and he declared it was not.

What Could Be More Ridiculous?

THIS shows the ridiculous side of the matter; but there is a very serious side when one considers that wine, that is, the fermented juice of the grape, is deemed by various great Churches as absolutely necessary in the celebration of the Holy Communion. The priests of these Churches, therefore, in their efforts to obtain wine, will find themselves, under this regulation, classed as lawbreakers. Whether this is consistent with the Federal and the State constitution, which guarantee religious liberty to all, it is not our purpose to discuss.

BISBEE "REVIEW"
JAN. 2, 1915

Arizona is a dry State in name only. It is, in fact, an intemperate State. Enough of hypocrisy! Arizona is guilty of false pretenses when she permits her name to be heralded broadcast among the standard bearers of temperance. Prohibition in Arizona has not prohibited.

And This is the Goal of the Prohibitionists

THE point is that Arizona approaches more nearly than does any other State the ultimate goal towards which prohibitionists, by their own confession, are working in Ontario and elsewhere. It is, in fact, the ideal at which they are aiming.

Yet, sad to say, that this thoroughgoing legislation is proving to be absolutely ineffective is evident from the newspaper clippings herewith. The Bisbee "Review," which worked to obtain it, comes out flatly against such prohibition.

JEROME "NEWS"
JULY 2, 1915

We are inclined to the opinion that the chickoloth "Close the Saloons" wop for Prohibition in Arizona. But the same situation has developed here which has arisen in other States, wherein it was found, following the election, that prohibiting laws meant more than was taken for granted in the pre-election conception of the amendment. No well-informed man or woman can afford to close his eyes to the situation. Beverages containing alcohol are being introduced into Arizona, and the result is that, owing to greater ease in shipment because of the lesser bulk proportionately larger amounts of spirituous beverages are being consumed than was formerly the case when both spirituous and malt beverages could be obtained.

MERCHANTMEN HAVE THE RIGHT TO ARM FOR SOLELY DEFENSIVE PURPOSES

United States Will Take That Position and Will Ask Germany for Assurance that her New Campaign Will Not Violate The Pledges Given in the Arabic and Lusitania Cases ---Will Not Warn or Prohibit Her Citizens From Travelling on Merchant Vessels Which are Armed For Defensive Purposes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—With the initiation of the proposed new German undersea campaign against armed merchantmen only ten days off the American policy to-day assumed a definite form. The Administration opinion seemed to be approching these definite decisions: Germany will be asked for a formal assurance that her new campaign will not violate the pledges given in the Lusitania and Arabic cases. The United States will maintain the right of merchant vessels to arm for solely defensive purposes.

The United States will contend for the right of passage of the neutral and non-combatant passengers and freight on armed merchantmen.

American citizens will not be warned against, or prohibited from travelling on armed merchantmen. The United States will not declare any inflexible governing what constitutes "defensive" armament.

The United States will not join with Sweden or any other country in a joint action regarding the new German decree, or relating to other belligerent interferences with neutrals' rights.

The Administration has practically decided to send formal notes to both Germany and Austria outling this Government's objections to the new decree. This document is in course of preparation.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Germany has said her last word on the Lusitania matter, and will not prepare another note dealing with that question, it was definitely indicated in official circles to-day.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.—Reports that the United States will not submit to Germany's new policy of torpedoing all armed merchantmen, have aroused indignation in Germany. The Cologne Gazette, which has close relations with the German Government, declares Germany will not curtail the rights of her submarines on account of reckless neutrals who insist on travelling on belligerent ships.

The other newspapers express the greatest astonishment at the news from Washington, because in earlier despatches from Washington they had been led to believe that the American Government, having first proposed the disarmament of belligerent merchant ships, would agree fully to the Austro-German proposals.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—"If this unfair propaganda is not ended, certain ambassador will be shipped back home." This declaration was reported to have been made this afternoon by an United States high official who is in a position to make the suggestion good.

Taken with other events of the day, it made clear that a serious clash between Secretary of State Lansing and German Ambassador Bernstorff is threatening. Bernstorff, by logic of the situation revealed, is the ambassador that is said to be in danger of being sent home because of his statements regarding the United States' "changed" attitude regarding the Lusitania. "There has been no change," said a high official to-day, explaining Secretary Lansing's attitude, "and Germany understands it perfectly well. The steps taken in the Lusitania matter have been comparatively simple.

Albania's Capital Is Surrounded By Enemy

Special to The Examiner.

VIENNA, Feb. 19.—Durazzo, the capital of Albania, is now completely surrounded by Austrian troops. The surrender of a few thousand Albanian insurgents who failed to escape to the southward is expected within a few hours. A few Italian officers who remained in the city to direct the resistance of Essad Pasha's irregulars, fled several days ago, and it is believed no Italians are in Durazzo.

Many Troop Movements Among Enemy In West

Special to The Examiner.

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 19.—In the course of the last six days great German troop movements have occurred in south and central Belgium, says a despatch from the frontier. Long trains with artillery and infantry were running along the railroads to the west and south, and some small detachments were transported by way of Louvain, Waverne, and Gembloux, to the southeast. Louvain still is a strong point of support of German strategy and many conferences of high military officers are held there.

Changes in The Reid Store

Will Make It One That Will Compare Favourably With Many in the Big Fashion Centres—Some of the New Features

Radical changes are taking place behind closed doors in the store of the Reid Company. The late fire made a complete overhauling a matter of necessity, and the firm is sparing no expense to prepare a metropolitan store, with every modern convenience for its customers, when it again opens its doors for business. The entire interior has been completely renovated and decorated. A new heating and lighting system is being installed, and the store fittings are to be the "New Idea" wardrobe system for garments, all new and of the latest Broadway styles. Three new private fitting rooms will be part of the equipment on the ground floor, as well as a beautiful ladies' rest room, equipped with telephone, city directory and magazines. The best markets of Montreal, Toronto and New York have been searched for the newest and most correct ladies' apparel, and the stock will be equal to the best that can be found anywhere. Reid's will cater to Juniors, Misses and Ladies, showing the highest grade clothes, made up in the latest styles, and at the lowest possible prices. Every modern idea possible is being incorporated, and the store will present, on opening day, a model interior that will be a credit to the city, and would compare favourably with the establishments found in the largest fashion centres.

NEW GERMAN LOAN.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—The Hungarian Minister of Finance has concluded arrangements with a group of German banks for a loan of 150,000,000 marks. The loan will be covered by 5 per cent. treasury bonds, redeemable in 2½ years.

ASSIZES HAVE BEEN ADJOURNED UNTIL SPRING

Jury Returned a Verdict of Not Guilty in the Case of Mrs. Lindsay—One Year For Charles Stevens

JUDGMENT FOR ALIMONY

The Assizes have been adjourned until April 25th, when the Grand and Petit Jurors will be required to again give their attendance. Under the direction of Chief Justice Mulock, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Mrs. Pheobe Lindsay, who was indicted on a charge of causing the death of an unborn child. The charge of causing the death of her fourteen-year-old daughter, Lily May Lindsay, has been traversed to the adjourned sitting of the court; also a similar charge against Sandford Lindsay. The latter was convicted on the incest charge and sentence deferred until a later date.

One Year.

Charles Stevens, who was found guilty of an attempt to commit criminal assault, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment.

In the alimony case of Mrs. Florence Ferguson versus Edward J. Ferguson, plaintiff was awarded alimony amounting to twenty dollars a month, together with costs.

Mrs. Ferguson was represented in Court by Mr. F. D. Kerr, while Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the defendant. Chief Justice Mulock congratulated both counsel for the plaintiff and defence upon the efficient manner in which they conducted the case.

His Lordship placed no credence in the accusations by Ferguson towards his wife.

THE WEATHER

The thermometer this morning was down to 12 degrees below zero, and in addition there was a strong breeze blowing which made the weather seem exceedingly cold. At noon it was three degrees below zero, and while the wind had moderated to some extent, it was still cold enough. The cold spell will likely be short-lived.

Makes Delightful Porridge.

Many women who have purchased a package of Dr. Jackson's Roman Meal disregarded instructions to make the porridge without stirring. They made a poultice instead of a delightful porridge. The flax oil in Roman Meal has been changed into a tasteless and odorless resin by driving oxygen out of it by electricity. If stirred while hot this resin again takes up oxygen from the air, becoming linseed oil, and making the porridge taste of linseed. The family will not eat it, and are deprived of the very best food on earth, and the most delicious if made properly. In justice to your family try it again and make the porridge as directed on package. At grocers' 10 and 25 cents a package.

Germans To Disregard All Rights of Neutrals

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Maximilian Harden, the noted German publicist, according to an article printed by the London Times to-day, warns the United States and other neutrals that unless the Allies agree to the terms of peace within the near future Germany must disregard neutral rights in the fight for her own salvation.

"No stars and stripes," said Harden, "will protect a ship in the war zone." Harden declares that six months ago the Germans would have been content only to defend their Empire, holding and using what they had conquered.

The Ladies' Aid and the Red Cross organization of St. Paul's Church presented the 93rd Battalion with some two hundred pies this afternoon. Needless to say the generosity and thoughtfulness of the ladies was very much appreciated.

Paymaster-Sergeant Oswald E. Curtis of the 111th Battalion, Galt, is home for the week-end, the guest of his father, Mr. Edwin Curtis, at the Brickyard.

Nine recruits have arrived in the city from Peterborough for the 53rd battery. These men were secured by the Belmont club and are the first instalment of a large number which the club intends sending to the artillery in Kingston.— Kingston Standard.

So far 1,210 Ontario soldiers have returned from the war, according to a statement made at the Provincial Soldiers' Aid Commission meeting held in the Parliament Buildings. Four hundred and seventy-seven of these came to Toronto, 104 to Hamilton, 51 to Ottawa, 40 to London, 27 to Kingston, 24 to Windsor, 18 to Stratford and the same number to Peterborough. It was intimated that there were thirty branches of the organization, 17 of which were being looked after by local branches of the Patriotic Fund.

That there are more positions open than men to fill them was stated by Chairman W. D. McPherson, K.C. Some jobs, he said, had been refused on account of pay not being considered adequate.

Military news

Mr. J. C. Balsdon, Lakefield, has received the following letters from his son, Pte. Fred Balsdon, of the Machine Gun Section of the 21st Battalion, who was wounded a short time ago somewhere in France:

January 23rd, 1916.

Dear Dad,—A few lines to let you know that I am getting some better but very slowly. You will likely have received the letter from my officer telling you all about my being wounded before you get this.

Support for Dr. Grenfell's Splendid Work

"We have been obliged to close for the winter all the Labrador hospitals." Extract from one of Dr. Grenfell's letters.

We are informed that in Peterborough this winter there have been fewer calls for poor relief than for years previous.

Does not this suggest to us that in gratitude to God for His blessings, we should make a special effort to assist His poor of the bleak northland.

The history of the missionary work of the Christian Church during the centuries recounts nothing more Christlike in sacrificial service than this ministry by Dr. Grenfell and his co-labourers to the needy and helpless of the Labrador wilds.

This call is surely compelling. Let us link ourselves up with the noble effort to re-open these hospitals and renew again the ministry to the suffering destitute people of these bleak and barren regions.

Christ said: "Heal the sick."

NEW INSTRUMENTS WERE PRESENTED

PTE. R. L. BUTCHER
A Peterborough boy with the 77th Battalion. His home is at 486 Bonacord Street.

Event Was One of The Most Enjoyable Concerts of the Season at the Grand Opera House Last Evening.

AUDIENCE WAS LARGE

The beautiful set of instruments provided by the citizens of Peterborough for the Band of the 93rd Battalion were presented last evening by Mayor Duffus at a most successful concert in the Grand Opera House. The event, which was arranged by Mr. John H. Renwick, was a grand success from the double view point of attendance and artistic merit. The size of the audience was a demonstration of the interest the people of Peterborough take in the 93rd Battalion, as well as a tribute to the ability of Mr. Renwick in arranging concert programmes. At 7 o'clock, when the doors were opened, the lobby of the theatre was crowded to the street, and at 7.30 the ground floor and balcony were crowded, so that the gallery had to be opened to accommodate the later arrivals.

The presentation of the instruments took place near the close of the programme. The curtain was lowered for a few minutes and when it was raised there was a mass of khaki on the stage, the officers, band and a number of non-commissioned officers and men of the Battalion standing rigidly at attention.

Mayor Duffus, in making the presentation, referred most eulogistically to the Band of the 93rd Battalion, as well as to the efficiency of the battalion as a whole. He thought that in undertaking the task of raising a complete battalion Peterborough deserved the greatest credit, in view of the fact that this city held the enlisting record for Eastern Canada in proportion to population. His Worship paid a warm tribute to Lt.-Col. Johnston and to speakers of the Patriotic League and other organizations who had assisted in the formation of the battalion. He was sure that no act that he would have to perform during his term of Mayor would afford him as much pleasure as the presentation of the instruments to the Band of the 93rd.

In receiving the instruments Lt.-Col. Johnston took advantage of the opportunity to thank the citizens not only for their generosity in this case, but for their uniform kindness and interest they had displayed at all times in the battalion. The Commanding Officer of the 93rd told of the difficulties that had been experienced at the commencement, but said that all these had been overcome, and the Band had progressed until on Thursday Col. Henming, the Officer Commanding the district had remarked: "This is the best C. E. F. band I have heard." Lt.-Col. Johnston paid a sincere tribute to Sergt. Hughes, the Bandmaster, and the applause that followed, both from the audience and from the members of the Band showed that the services of the capable leader are appreciated on all sides. Speaking of the 93rd Lt.-Col. Johnston said that it was going to be filled in Peterborough County. The machine-gun section, signalling section, pioneer section, bands and three companies were filled, and he was confident the balance of the Battalion would be completed quickly.

The concert was varied and altogether enjoyable. There was not a dull moment anywhere and the audience was very appreciative.

The Band contributed four numbers to the programme and each was a gem, the playing of Sergt. Hughes'

Cheer and Weep Over War Films To be Seen Here

Pictures Taken on The French Line Exhibited at Embassy in Washington

APPEAR IN PETERBORO'

Distinguished Gathering at Capital Wonders at Realism of Views

When the French official war pictures, which will be exhibited on March 2nd, 3rd and 4th at the Grand by The Evening Examiner, were shown at the French embassy in Washington, there were scenes of great enthusiasm. The New York World, which exhibited these pictures in New York, prints the following despatch, regarding their appearance at the embassy:

Tears and cheers greeted the official French war motion pictures, last night at a private presentation before Ambassador Jusserand and a distinguished company at the French embassy. It was the first time the films, loaned to the World by the French Government, had been exhibited in this country, and the spectators were deeply stirred when it was seen that the pictures show the war as it is, with all the horrors but with all its inspiring episodes, its pathos and its glory.

For one and a half hours more than a hundred of the most distinguished diplomatists and high officials in Washington and their wives made no attempt to conceal their emotion, as battle scene after battle scene was projected upon the screen, and they saw everything they could have seen if they had really been present at the French front. The guests included members of the supreme court and the cabinet.

In one picture alone, 120,000 men were shown—more men than there are in the entire American army—and as they passed, infantry, cavalry and artillery, with all the traditional spirit of the French soldier, men were moved to cheer and women to weep.

Bursting Shells Close to Camera.

Some of the scenes were so realistic that it did not seem possible that the operators who took them could have survived. In the bombardment of the Hartmann - Weilerkopf in Alsace, which has changed hands more often than any other position in the war, and one slope of which is held by the French and the other by the Germans, the shells could be seen bursting in turns over the trenches and in "Peterborough Presents Possibilities Unsurpassed."

SATURDAY, FEB. 19, 1916

A MATTER OF UTILITY.

If there are, as is more than probable, good grounds for Mr. Courtney's statement of the water service situation in "Ashburnham," as the old residents love to still call "East City," and if the Utilities Commission would live up to the letter of its efficient title, it had better look after the matter without avoidable delay. If through scarcity, or lack of adequate supply of the best city water in the province, the Ashburnham people have to drink water from typhoid tanks, euphemistically called wells, the Utilities Commission would be unlike itself, untrue to its record. One human life is worth more than the cost of uncountable miles of water main. We are sure the Commissioners will do the right thing. They practically endorsed the advocacy of the Examiner of the auxiliary steam plant, and we are sure they won't ignore the injuntion of the Examiner to listen to the "Voice of the People," as expressed through Mr. Courtney in his moderate and reasonable letter printed in last night's Examinr.

LAUGH AND DO GOOD.

Stephen Leacock's laugh-making lectures are not by any means altogether a laughing matter; they overtie a serious purpose. Being a scholar, he is obviously not of the material money makers are made of. It is to be assumed that he is not overburdened with this world's goods, and is mighty glad t sell his books. But while he might be making more books and more money he is giving his time and talent and money, too, for the cause in which we are all interested. He is going from place to place giving readings of his literary works—for a consideration—but he gets no personal benefit other than a satisfied conscience, and the consciousness of doing his duty and a little more, in doing something in the interests of Red Cross work or as noble an object, the Belgian Relief Fund. All the receipts from admission fees to his lectures are net gain for these funds. He not only does not make a charge for his services, but he actually pays his expenses, thus giving with both hands and a whole soul—actually coining the gold of his heart into money to gladden heavy hearts and light stomachs; and, in the process lightening the burden of our war laden lives with the laughterous uplift of his "most excellent fooling." "Laugh and grow fat" is a good thing; but laugh and do good is a better, and "going about doing good"—on Gospel terms—after the model of a certain good Man, is best of all.

EDUCATION THROUGH THE EYE.

To-day's instalment of the excellently interesting "Literary Rambles" of Mr. Dela Fosse, Public Librarian, concludes with an important practical suggestion. With our complicated educational machinery embarrassed with a multiplicity of subjects, it seems superfluous to add more. But utilising the moving picture film would not be so much adding another, as embodying two or three in one, or making many others easier to teach and learn. With the moving picture film applied to the study of history, travel, art, mechanics, and nature study, these subjects would, in part, "teach themselves." The object lesson, the appeal to the eye, is the surest way to fix attention on a subject; to fix facts in the mind. A glance at a map will teach more o. geography than hours of vocal description. A medical student might thoroughly commit to memory a standard work on anatomy, like Gray's, but all his knowledge of the human anatomy would not be worth a fig unless he joined it to the object lesson afforded by dissection—unless he, himself, uncovered and saw the muscles, nerves, and blood vessels in situ, and noted their mutual relations. As a rule, what the eye sees the mind holds. This is the tercentenary year of Shakspere, and in St. Louis it is to be celebrated on the moving picture principle. "As You Like It" is to be presented with our own Margaret Anglin as the peerless Rosalind. The play is to be presented in the open, in a public park. We shall have the forest of Arden; and those present will have revealed to their eyes in an unforgettable way, the scenes that we associate with the forest life that was "more sweet than that of painted pomp." When we study the great educational value of the moving picture film we can discover in its use in imparting real instruction and conferring "a real benefit an offset to its undesirable features in the way of capturing too many stray pennies for purposes that are not instructive, and, when diverting are sometimes, degenerative in tendency. Isn't the matter worth thinking of? The moving picture film's best quality consists in the use we make of it — as Dickens' charming Captain Cuttle says, "the bearings of this observation lays in the application on it."

A WORK OF DISINFECTION.

When we see how wicked and immoral some persons possessed of much money are, we cannot perceive the relationship between morals and money, or what money will buy. The lack of money or means for decent living are, nevertheless, the starting point of the horrible conditions, revealed by the Lindsay trials at the assizes this week. In some of the northern parts of the country there are conditions—happily of a sporadic, but, nevertheless, far too great, prevalence—which have attracted the attention of Sir William Mulock, the presiding judge. What was brought out at the trials mentioned was enough to lead the grand jurors, in their elaborate presentment, to refer to the matter, and lead them to endorse his Lordship's suggestion that certain districts should be closed to settlement. He is right in assuming that the responsibility for the sordid story of vicious immorality which he had to hear, is greatly due to the conditions of living. Some parts of the north country are so unsuited to agriculture that getting a living by farming is almost an impossibility. There is a perpetual and unprofitable and unresponsive struggle with rocky, rough scant, soil, in which none but the bravest and most capable and courageous can overcome, and survive, without moral deterioration that comes from utter discouragement and fruitless struggle to make a decent living, or any living at all. Under such physical conditions prevail the moral or rather, immoral, and vicious conditions of which the Lindsay cases are a result and a type. While many resist the corrupting influences of chronic poverty and disheartening struggle, there are moral weaklings that succumb, and things go from bad to worse, one generation more degenerate than another.

It is not necessary to go into details; the circumstances are as notorious as they are discreditable to a civilised community. Individual and local philanthropy cannot cope with the conditions. The only effective way, as suggested by Sir William Mulock, is the drastic way of depopulating some of the northern districts. From the beginning they were unsuitable for settlement; only fit for growing timber. Something wise and humane would be done if the government looked into the matter and provided for transporting to some of the fertile, vacant public lands of the province the whole population of some districts, giving them in exchange for their unproductive holdings, new farms, and judiciously helping and guiding them in their new homes. Such an enterprise would, outside of removing conditions that lead to degredation, and a thriftless, criminal population might be easily managed, and the province the gainer. The province would have settlers for its unoccupied areas who could make a living from the land, and would be encouraged to habits of thrift under the stimulus of reward for their hard work. The vacated lands would revert to the government and be reforested, and, in time, would be a source of wealth and profit, instead of being agencies of slow starvation, as is the case of many of the present miserable occupants, and a breeding ground for crimes such as brought down fire upon the critics of the plain.

In course of time these reforested and doubly regenerated lands would not only be a source of profit to the government, but give Peterborough and district the benefits that attend forest areas—more equable climate, more regular rain fall, and more constant water supply for our power-producing streams. Then some of the districts of the north country would send down to us benefits, instead of the sordid stories of filth and vice that polluted the air of the court room at this week's assizes. A work of disinfection is called for.

A DEMAND FOR MORE REVENUE FROM WAR CONTRACT PROFITEERS

When Sir Thomas White was framing his proposals to make big business pay its share of war taxes he might easily have been more severe on the men and companies that obtained war contracts. The more one studies the new taxes the more the opinion is forced home that the profiteers from the misfortune of war should not be placed in the same class as those who carry on ordinary trade or manufacture.

The company that has carried on business during peace times and war times has had to struggle for its market, face keen competition, and expend an enormous amount of energy and money in many ways. It has taken its place as part of the community providing permanent livings for many useful citizens. On the other hand the market for the munition men is born of tragedy and sorrow and comes calling for material. About all the competition consists in the rate that the product can be turned out. The munition company is here to-day and perhaps gone to-morrow. It will never have a permanent place in the community. While extremely necessary at present the munition concern is an industrial negative.

If it is fair to tax ordinary companies a quarter of everything above a "fair normal profit" then it is fair to take more from those who secured fat war contracts. Three quarters of everything above a "fair normal profit" must be pretty good picking for the profiteers, judging by the scramble there is to secure these contracts, and judging by the hearsay evidence of big turnovers.

Then again there is the broad argument—why should some privileged men be allowed to grow rich when other people are straining every nerve to make things go besides contributing to various patriotic funds?

We think that Sir Thomas White could well have taken another slice from the munition profits without impairing in the slightest the efficiency or output of these plants.

Another point, why was the farmer left entirely alone? Was it because there is already grumbling in the west about lack of credit and lack of market facilities? The farmer to-day and particularly the eastern Canada farmer is getting immense prices for his produce, as city people know, and he isn't taxed anything extra. True he is told what a fine investment the government war loan is and his township council asks him to contribute a dollar or so to the patriotic fund. But the farmer could contribute something more, particularly the Eastern Canada farmer, though of course we recognize the impossibility of differentiating between East and West.

Sir Thomas White is still "nibbling" at the business of securing ample funds to carry on the war. He "nibbled" in his last budget. He "nibbled" when he raised only $45,000,000 by loan in the United States. He "nibbled" when he asked for a domestic loan of only $50,000,000 and got $100,000,000. He is "nibbling" now, for this method will upset, we fear, the entire commercial fabric of the country, and all it will produce will be a paltry $50,000,000, according to his own estimate.

If the financial policy of the government, as outlined by Sir Thomas White, is a fair indication of the manner in which their general policy is framed then it must be admitted that, as yet, the government of the country has not realized the advantage of planning on a large scale and putting its plans into effect, unit by unit, thus insuring continuity of policy.

LITERARY OR AESTHETIC VALUE OF PEOPLE'S PAGEANTS

Throughout the United States the tercentenary of Shakespeare is to be celebrated during the week of June 4th in the production of masques, pageants, dramas, etc. Whatever form the celebration takes, the fact that the citizens of the great Republic are showing such an appreciation of the Bard is an indication that a love for the beautiful and best in our language, in spite of the growth of materialism on the one hand and spuriousness on the other, is ever uppermost in the minds of the common people. What is especially encouraging to those who love Shakespeare is the spontaniety of the masses who have come forward to help in securing the success of the great celebrations. Cities and communities will vie with each other in the richness and gorgeousness of the pageants and masques, and the elaborate productions of the plays.

As an example we have before us a programme of the St. Louis celebration, and the reading alone makes us wish we were fortunate enough to be present. The production, Shakespeare's beautiful "As You Like It," will take place in a natural emphitheatre in the centre of the city's Forest Park. Our Margaret Anglin is to take the part of Rosalind, and she will manage the production with the aid of seventeen professional and two hundred local artists. What a treat is in store for the people of St. Louis. They will listen to Shakespeare, through the magnificent voice of Miss Anglin, speaking to them in praise of their own sylvan surroundings. They will see old English folk dances, and listen to beautiful choruses. Was anything more conducive to create a love of the beautiful and a pride in city achievement?

We often wish that some such production would be given in Canada; not necessarily Shakespearean, though even the great bard should not be impossible. Pageants, masques and dramas, depicting the history of Canada, the growth of the local community, are all possible in the open air of Canada, with its thousands of beauty spots, and the many dramatic societies scattered throughout the country. As well as taking the minds of the people from the cheap and trashy productions that are continually being given in badly ventilated places, miscalled theatres, the preparation and production of national or local pageants are invaluable as educational mediums. We throw out the suggestion that the newly formed Civic Improvement League, or some other national organization, should take up the matter. —Municipal Journal.

If you want to sell something, it is easier to have the buyers come to you. If you want to buy something you save time and energy if the sellers come to you. It is quite possible to have your head save your heels, to have others come to you instead of you going after them.

An advertisement in the paper will accomplish the result. Give adequate particulars of just what your needs are, or what you have to offer and some person who wants what you have, either cash or goods, will look you up.

FIGHTING IN FRANCE

CHILDREN'S MATINEE SAT'RDAY AFTERNOON 10c

ADMISSION: 15c - 25c - 35 BOXES 50c SEATS RESERVED

Never before in the world's history has it been possible to see fighting men in the day-by-day struggles of a great war.

These OFFICIAL Motion Pictures take the spectator instantly to the very battle line, where more men are under arms than make up the total of the entire population of Ontario.

There is action and atmosphere in every film, for the cameras were carried to the Front by soldier operators, who risked their lives in order to make a picture record of all phases of the conflict.

That four of this gallant corps were wounded is not to be wondered at. The important fact is that they, like the others, performed their unique duty in the interest of this new kind of record keeping by means of which we may now SEE HISTORY even as it is made.

They fought it out at Champagne with the great guns. You see it in the pictures—the artillery in the foreground and a shell thrust into every breech, two a minute, and far away you see the earth open in great pits where the explosions do their work.

Again at Metzeral you see it. Always in this long-range killing, it is the weight of the heavy shells which counts. But now and then, to give variety to the method, suffocating gas is loosened in the hope that it may stifle as it rolls over the trenches. Odd sight, this, to see a wave of asphyxiation coming and to know what its mission is. War is full of variety. Every picture presents something which to one unfamiliar with the modern killing methods seems to be about the limit. Air scouts? Yes, in the pictures, and you see how the bombs about to be dropped from the skies are loaded in the armed craft. Trench life? Yes. Here men hauling hand grenades. At another point a first-line defender laid low by a shell and receiving the hurried first-aid. Go along the line with the official cameras and you see it all.

Imagine yourself privileged to follow the zig-zag of the trenches from King Albert's war-battered land across France to the Swiss border, and you get an idea of the sight-seeing tour upon which these OFFICIAL Motion Pictures take you.

The stopping places are many, and whether it be along the dunes of Flanders or down in the Alsatian forests, on a battlefield or in the trenches, it is war's gruesome problem working itself out, and you see it all.

It was this fact which so impressed the allied diplomats in Washington when, on Thursday, Nov. 18, they were the guests of the French Ambassador at a private exhibition of these French Government Official Motion Pictures in the French Embassy.

These are the ONLY Motion Pictures

Belgium Equal To Great Power

Allies' Declaration Places Her on Same Footing in Peace Negotiation

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The declaration of the Entente Allies to the Belgian government that hostilities would not be permitted to end without Belgium having re-established its political and economic independent and that Belgium would be called upon to take part in the peace negotiations, is explained by the Temps to-day as designed to enable Belgium to take a direct part in the peace negotiations as an independent Power and thus be released from the limitations imposed by the international guarantee of Belgium's neutrality agreed to in 1839.

The Belgian government, says the Temps, through her own envoys will now have a voice in determining her national future and in regulating the new order of things arising in Europe. The newspaper adds that the suggestion for the declarstion came from the Belgians.

LITERARY RAMBLES

To those who are unacquainted with the backwoods, save in the pages of Cooper and the later romancers of the same school, it may come as a sort of revelation to be told that not every household in the wilds depends for its living on hunting and trapping, and that in very many there is culture of a distinctly high type. Thirty years ago there was more than one district in Ontario which was held by many to be almost entirely outside the pale of civilization, a sterile and storm-swept Ultima Thule to whose repellent bosom none would attempt to fly for shelter save criminals or fools and from which none but ravening beasts of prey could hope to draw a living. To-day these same regions are filled with people whose possessions proclaim a well-won victory over the forces of Nature. Their fields, their gardens, their orchards are productive, and the herds and flocks that wander through the woodlands or graze in the pastures furnish unquestionable evidence that the days of tribulation and privation have long been safely passed. But, it may be asked, what has all this to do with literature? Well, let me tell you. Years ago, it was my fortune to be cast a good deal in the company of the typical backwoodsman. It was in a district newly opened to settlement and so remote from stores that it entailed periodical journeys from twenty to thirty miles by ox-team or afoot to obtain provisions for the sustenance of oneself or one's wife and family. It may be well supposed that men situated such as these had not much time to devote to literature. Some of them never read, just as any man in cities and towns never read simply because their tastes lie in other directions. But there were many who did do so and who fell with the greatest avidity on any little scrap of print that came in their way. Even patent medicine almanacs would be devoured from cover to cover and all the little jokes interspersed with glowing tributes to the merits of this or that panacea be treasured up in the memory, to be unloaded, perhaps on unsuspecting mortals at the next raising or logging bee. But the greatest boon of all was the weekly paper. In those days, the weekly editions of the Globe, the Mail and the Montreal Witness had a great vogue in the backwoods districts. It can be easily seen why it should have been so. For the small sum of one dollar a year the post brought to these sequestered mortals the news of the world and all the leading topics connected with their progress of their country. But beyond this, they imbibed a variety of knowledge to which they simply could not have obtained access in any other way, for apart, from political and local items there are in the ordinary town or village weekly pages devoted to miscellaneous matter which often contain very valuable and interesting reading. The amount of knowledge that the press has been enabled by such means to convey to the public passes all comprehension.

The mind of men will probably never be able to evolve a greater influence for good than was let loose by the invention of printing but many powerful auxiliaries to it in the line of education have been discovered and among the greatest of these will soon be proved to be the Moving Picture Film. In Iowa a Moving Picture library has just been started for purely historical purposes. One can only faintly conjecture how far-reaching in its effects such a departure may prove. For one thing, it will certainly serve to render palatable a study that has always been regarded by children as of the dry-as-dust variety for it does not require the keen eye of prescience to assert that once an unpalatable study is made palatable the public will turn to it with gladness. Even if the Moving Picture film does no more than tone down the appetite for fiction it will have proved its title to recognition.

Now, if a start could be made in Peterborough along the line of accumulating films dealing with history, geography, travel, art, and mechanical inventions the student of the future would derive the greatest benefit from their use. There are few in these days of enlightment who in this particular would be disposed to echo the words of Sir Boyle Roche, who on a memorable occasion in the Irish Parliament gaven vent to the words "Mr. Speaker, why should we do this thing for the benefit of posterity? What has posterity done for us?" After the lapse of say, ten or twelve years, enough pictures would be in the possession of the library authorities to enable them to have exhibitions at stated intervals which would prove a perennial source of pleasure and profit to the student. It is a subject that is, at any rate, worth considera-because swollen glands or inflamed membranes often affect other tissues and lung trouble easily follows.

As Nature's corrector of throat troubles the pure cod liver oil in Scott's Emulsion is speedily converted into germ-resisting tissue; its testad glycerine is curative and healing, while this wholesome emulsion relieves the trouble and upbuilds the forces to resist tubercular germs and avert the weakening influence which usually follows.

If any member of your family has a tender throat, get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion to-day. Physicians prescribe it to avert throat troubles, overcome bronchial disorders and strengthen the lungs. No harmful drugs. Always insist on Scott's.

tion, not the least important feature about it being that by starting such a collection, Peterborough would be in the van for Canada and the Empire. There is nothing more certain that that such an innovation will be made in the near future, somewhere, and why should not Peterborough have the credit or making it?—F.M.D.

Saturday Market Quotations

"Fifteen below" proved too strenuous for Mr. Farmer this morning, and, as a result, the outside market was very thinly attended.

Beef and pork were the chief offerings, the former at its usual price of 10 cents for the front quarters and 12 cents for the hind quarters. Pork showed a tendency to climb upward, acting in sympathy with the prices packers were paying for hogs last week—$10.00 a hundred. It was quoted at 15 and 16, and 17 cents, the majority asking the former.

Lamb brought 18 and 22 cents.

One load of mixed wood was offered at $4.50 per cord

Some household effects were auctioned off at sacrifice prices. One very good stove, and some fair bedroom furniture were a few of the offerings.

In the Inside Market.

Butter and eggs, as usual, were the most numerous articles upstairs.

Butter was on the ascendancy while eggs were on the decline. The former was quoted all the way from 35 to 38 cents, the majority selling at the lower prices. The latter ranged between 28 and 30 cents, the higher quotation prevailing. The cold weather, no doubt, will have the effect of enhancing the price of "hen fruit."

A few chickens were offered at varying prices, from 50 to 75 cents a bird.

One lone turkey graced the benches and was held at $3.50; it tipped the scale at 14 pounds.

Oranges sold at 15, 30 and 40c. a dozen; and grapefruit, six for a quarter.

Celery commanded 15 cents a head

Home-Mad Cooking.

The votaries of the Red Cross were much in evidence this morning. One branch known as the Kitchener Red Cross Club, had a table of home-made delicacies, with Miss Garrow in charge.

At the other end of the hall the ladies of the Canadian Kitchener League had samples of their culinary art for sale, and, in addition, served hot tea and coffee, to say nothing of "hot dogs."

SIR JAMES WATSON'S OPINION CONSIDERED MOST VALUABLE

You catch a little cold to-day, and by to-morrow it has reached the throat, next day the lungs are affected and you wish you had used "Catarrhozone" which kills colds in five minutes. In the first place Catarrhozone soothes the irritated membranes and relieves congestion,—then it cuts out the phlegm and destroys the germs. It enables the blood to retain a natural supply of oxygen, lung-food, and vitality. In any cough bronchitis or Catarrh, it's guaranteed to positively cure. Beware of dangerous substitutes offered under misleading names for genuine Catarrhozone which is sold everywhere, large size containing two months treatment costs $1.00, small size 50c; trial size 25c.

HER LITTLE BOY HAD PNEUMONIA

NEARLY LOST HIM.

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP SAVED HIM.

The slight cold, the irritating cough, the tightness of the chest, if not attended to, will sooner or later develop into some serious lung or bronchial trouble, and our advice to you is that on the first inception of a cough or cold "GET RID OF IT."

Mrs. H. Washburn, Gaspereaux Station, N.B., writes: "I thought I would write and tell you just how much I appreciate Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, for I would not be without it in the house. Twice my little boy, now four years old, has had pneumonia, and nearly died, but since using Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup I have kept him clear of even a cough. I often say that if it had not been for "Dr. Wood's" I would have lost him."

"My little girl, ten months old, is subject to bronchitis, but when she seems to be stuffed up and has difficulty in breathing I give her a few drops of Norway Pine Syrup every two or three hours, and in a very little while she is all well, in fact, on the first signs of a cold or cough we all fly for "Dr. Wood's'."

You can procure Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup from any druggist or dealer, but be sure and get "Dr. Wood's" when you ask for it, as there are many imitations on the market.

The genuine is put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25c and 50c.

STUNG

THIS is the story of a man in an Indiana town. He sent to an out-of-town house for his bathroom outfit. When it arrived—several weeks later—no plumber in the Home Town would take the job of tapping the main and connecting the pipes. So he hired an unlicensed "jack-of-all-trades" to make the connections. This fellow did a poor job, naturally the connection leaked, and the city officials had him arrested for tapping a water main without a license. If you wish to verify this story, just write to the Mayor of Rochester, Ind., and he will tell you it is true. But what concerns us is: Are there any of our citizens who, for the sake of a FANCIED bargain, will risk sending away from home for goods so easily handled by the home dealer? And for less money than the out-of-town concern charges for the same thing?

A Finer Canada After Passing Through Trying Fires of War

President Falconer's Optimistic Outlook Expressed in Address To Normal School Students Last Night

That a nobler and purer Canada will emerge from the present age with its testing sacrifices for our ideals was the hope and prediction strikingly expressed by Dr. Falconer of the University of Toronto in a deeply thoughtful address delivered at the Normal school last night under the auspices of the Students' Christian Association We shall have made too large a contribution for civilization to be satisfied with the life and the visions we held previous to the epoch which had its beginning in the summer of 1914. The church, politics and business will be affected by the keener sense of service and values which will come with the new life. Men who have braved much and endured much in a great cause will be impatient of pettiness. Hence petty, mean and small things must have no place in our lives. There must be a cleaning out of the old thoughts and ideas, replacing them with the new ones which will gradually issue with the passing of the thick, black cloud which has threatened those things we hold most dear. The attention that has been centred upon the strong spiritual forces called up in this war was impressively dealt with by Dr. Falconer. The soldiers are not of the old mercenary type, nor even regulars. They are the very pick of our manhood. They were entire strangers to war, they are from all walks of life. But the individual says to himself, "the spiritual things must be maintained and the only way to maintain them is by force. Therefore I will go." There have been innumerable proofs that there are spiritual issues which outlast the individual and in which he really finds himself. The lecturer mentioned Corporal Gordon Galloway, one of the brightest students of Toronto University, recently killed in action with the 28th University Battery.

The religious and spiritual elements mean more to the present generation than they did to its immediate predecessors. The war has emphasized their importance to the individual and to the nation. Their influence will be more strongly asserted under the new conditions to come.

Not as Studious.

In his preliminary sentences Dr. Falconer said that the University students during the past two years have not been working with the usual application. Their minds are not on their books. There is manifest restlessness. The young men have been considering very carefully the things before them. The women are realising the serious view of life set before them.

The old feeling of security and content has given place to doubts and fear of its security. Every day we eagerly scan the papers and ask ourselves how long will this last. A heavy down pressure is upon us. But though the intellectual results are not being secured as before, the students are getting educated as never before. The society of the world has been threatened with a complete overturning. Men have asked themselves if it is possible to continue their well regulated way as of old. And through it all our civilization and what it means has been clearly presented to us. We have come to feel that the gates of progress and civilization have not been so secure as we had thought. If our ideal of moral force and suasion were defeated we would go back to armaments and the idea that might is right. But we believe that righteousness is a more powerful force, and we desire that the things for which we stand, law, order, righteousness shall prevail. Hence after the war these will be dearer to us than ever. To those who did not actively engage in the war, Dr. Falconer urged them to fight morally to resist the disintegrating forces that have set in.

Mr. Duncan Walker presided. Miss Dorothy Allen sang charmingly, and a piano duet by Misses Morrow and Rannie also delighted the large audience. A vote of thanks was moved to Dr. Falconer by Mr. Dearborn, seconded by Mr. Jos. Wearing.

At the conclusion "O Canada" was sung as you rarely hear in these parts. Mr. S. J. Keyes threw all three verses on the lantern screen and this beautiful hymn was sung with a feeling it deserves, but seldom receives. Most audiences are patriotic enough. They'll "stand on guard for thee" as long as the music lasts; but the Normalites sang the entire song and sang it beautifully. Then with the changed key of the National Anthem, Mr. Keyes threw on a slide of King George. That student chorus was a compensation for battling a biting wind that all but held the northern hill against all comers. And the little touches of realism were most commendable.

Peaceful Belgium

EXPERIENCES ALL THE

Horrors Of The War

Will our citizens think over and try to realize the absolute need for assistance to the Belgian people? No form of beneficence is more worthy.

We are in debt to Belgium. A debt we can never pay. It is the last thing that we should repudiate. And if we do not give now we are encouraging a careless view of our responsibility.

The campaign to be put on this week is an appeal to your heart and your pocket. Make use of both and do Peterborough credit. A man is known by the company he keeps. Peterborough will be recognized as being of worth by the sum it will contribute.

What Belgium needs is food. Wheat, unground, not only provides food but work for the Belgians, and they are as anxious to work as to eat. One bag of flour, which costs in the neighbourhood of $3.00 in Canada, will support one Belgian family a month.

Do not be alarmed, do not hesitate because you may feel that your contribution will not get to the hands it is destined to help. The local committee will take scrupulous care that all moneys are well guarded. Be satisfied of that. The Montreal committee are the Wardens of the Fund, and the men at the helm are above suspicion.

Get ready for the canvas. Tuesday to Friday of THIS week. Your contribution will not interfere with your requirements. It can be extended over a year, if necessary. You make the allowance, the collection will be taken care of.

Rise of Food in Britain 47 P. C.; Soars Elsewhere

Increase in Germany 83 Per Cent, in Austria 82 Per Cent and 82.8 Per Cent in Russia

LONDON, Feb. 19.—According to statistics published by the British Board of Trade, the retail prices of food in the United Kingdom advanced on the average of about 1 1-2 per cent. in January. Flour and bread increased in price about 6 per cent. Taking the country as a whole, and making allowances for the relative importance of various articles in the working class household expenditures, the average increase in retail prices of food since the beginning of the war has been 47 per cent.

The Board of Trade states that in Berlin the general level of prices of certain more important articles of food was 83.4 per cent. above that of July, 1914.

In Vienna, it is declared, the general level of food prices was 119.9 per cent. higher than that of July, 1914.

A Russian special food conference has issued in Petrograd a report on the increase in prices during the war. In comparison with the average prices for 1913, the report shows the following increase averaging 82.8 per cent as follows:

Wheat, 62 per cent.; wheat flour, 51 per cent.; rye, 79 per cent.; rye flour, 81 per cent.; buckwheat, 123 per cent.; millet, 101 per cent.; meat 37 per cent.; butter, 95 per cent.; salt, 143 per cent.; and sugar, 58 per cent.

YOU CAN'T FIND ANY DANDRUFF, AND HAIR STOPS COMING OUT

Save Your Hair! Make It Thick, Wavy Glossy and Beautiful at once

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment. A 25 cent bottle will double the beauty of your hair.

This Week's Market Report

Proposed Budget Does Not Effect Teas—The Sugar Situation

The following comment on the market situation as regards food stuffs appeared in Canadian Grocer this week: —

The budget came down Tuesday, and despite all prophecies to the contrary, there was no tax on tea. For several weeks before the budget in each of the last 34 years some have predicted a tax on tea. Never once has this materialized. These men have advanced all sorts of arguments —some of them apparently sound—why there should be a tax on tea, and in the case of the budgets brought down in the two war years, they have been almost positive in this direction. The Government did not bother itself with predictions either one way or the other, but has adopted other ways and means which it believes will bring in the needed revenue Teas, therefore—already very tightly held—are not strengthened at all by any tax.

The Sugar Market.

The position of sugar is interesting. The New York Market on raws is now higher than at any time, with the exception of one occasion since war was declared. This, on the face of it, seems a little difficult to understand, because the British Government is not now buying to any appreciable extent. France, however, is still placing large orders, and what is even more important in the situation is that refineries are caught short in their supplies of raws. So far as we are concerned in Canada this condition also exists. Sugar men say, quite frankly, that the market is about 75c below what it should be. They admit that with the exception of one or two, refiner's stocks or raws in Canada are very high. Were it not for competition there, would have been an advance this week, and before this gets to press higher prices are not at all unlikely.

The situation in spices is further complicated by the embargo placed by Great Britain upon exports of its Eastern dependencies. All spices were firmly held, by reason of freight troubles, and this embargo was not needed to make a strong market. This latter, however, is now doubly strong, and Montreal reports advances in several lines.

Potatoes are higher again in New Brunswick, Winnipeg and Vancouver, but steady in Montreal and a little lower in Toronto. New-laid eggs are easing off rapidly under heavy receipts and plenty of eggs in the United States.

Old License Plates Now Dangerous

Police May Start in Any Day To Check up Neglected Ones

Although well over two weeks has passed since the new motor car licenses became available, car owners in Peterborough have been somewhat slow in applying for them. Usually the police are lenient to the extent of about two weeks, that being the unofficial time limit customarily recognised, and it is not likely that the officers will "wink" much longer at the old license plates.

Kansas Overrules Old Babylon Law

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Feb. 19.—The Supreme Court has declared void a Mabylonian law of 2185 B.C., which provided that the child of an adopted person had no rights as an heir after the death of the parents.

Louis Bernero, not quite 11 years of age, was held by the court to be the heir to property said to be worth about $2,000,000.

The court announced a new doctrine in that the natural child of an adopted child inherits from the adopting parents.

THE ACUTE PAIN FROM NEURALGIA

Permanently Cured Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

A clever medical writer has said that "Neuralgia is a cry from the nerves for better blood." In other words, neuralgia is not a disease—it is only a symptom, but a very painful one. Neuralgia is the surest sign that your blood is weak, watery and impure, and that your nerves are literally starving. Bad blood is the one cause—rich, red blood the only cure. This gives you the real reason why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure neuralgia. They are the only medicine that contains in correct proportions and elements needed to make rich, red blood. This new, rich blood reaches the root of the trouble, soothes the jangled nerves, drives away the nagging, stabbing pain, and braces up your health in other ways as well. In proof of these statements Mrs. A. T. Oulton, Little Shemogue, N.B., says:—"A few years ago my mother was an intense sufferer from neuralgia, which was located in her face, head and shoulders. The pain, especially in her head, was intense. She doctored for some time without getting relief and there seemed to be no ceasing of the pain whatever. Instead it seemed to be extending and her whole nervous system became affected. Finally she decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking them for a while the pain in her head became less severe, and of course this was a great relief to her. Under the continued use of the Pills she felt herself growing better and stronger each day until she was no longer a sufferer and was completely cured, and has felt no symptoms of the trouble since."

You can get Dr. Williams Pink Pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Cheer And Weep Over War Films

This picture also showed the actual use of poisonous gas. The German trenches were quite plain, like the bars of a huge gridiron, and from them could be seen rising the thick clouds of smoke, never more than ten or twelve feet from the ground, which rolled slowly over toward the French attackers.

Another most impressive scene that brought home more vividly the enormous quantities of guns and ammunition in use was a film showing a movement by one hundred batteries of the famous French three-inch field gun, the terrible "Soixante-Quinze." The sight of these six hundred cannon, with the ammunition limbers and horses passing at full gallop, electrified the spectators.

10,000 Feet of Film for Champagne Battle.

Most impressive of all were the wonderful pictures of the recent advance in Champagne, where more than ten thousand feet of film was employed to tell the whole story of the battle more vividly and more truthfully than could any war correspondent or historian.

First the great preliminary bombardment, showing every kind of gun in continuous use, from the "seventy-fives" to the huge naval guns and heavy mortars. There were guns everywhere, over every piece of ground where one could be placed, and they fired so uninterruptedly that shells fell upon the German lines at the rate of twenty a second. The picture shows it in a way that no description can.

Then there was the advance of the French infantry, and as the troops go forward in columns of two and then deploy one realizes how much of the spectacular has been taken from modern fighting by the intensive machine gun fire, and what nerve is needed to advance in the face of what must seem like certain death.

Never has the devastation of war been shown as in these pictures. The whole Champagne front as it passes on the screen loogs like a huge machine shop, fifteen miles long and three miles broad, that might have been destroyed by fire, with an infinite variety of twisted ironwork and concrete and barbed wire and overturned cannon, all utterly destroyed and swept away by the hail of high explosive shells.

21,000 German Prisoners Pass.

Then came the results of victory, results that cannot be questioned or denied. 21,000 unwounded German prisoners passing on the screen, and at the sight the spectators could not restrain their joy.

And here, too, was one of those little touches of comedy that must relieve the horrors of war. The German prisoners were so numerous that to lessen the chances of any of them running away, one could see little French soldiers passing from rank to rank and cutting the buttons off the trousers of their prisoners, who, bagged in the huge, cumbersome breeches of the German uniform, had to hold up their pants with both hands in order to march along.

During the entire presentation of the thirty odd thousand feet of film, Mr. E. Alexander Powell, war correspondent, through whom the French Government presented the films, gave brief explanations of the various phases of the battles portrayed, and roused the company to a high pitch of enthusiasm by his vivid descriptions of the fighting he had seen and the heroism of the French army.

This Morning's Police Court

Couple of Fines Handed Out To Local Delinquents

In this morning's police court, Vincent Killen pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct in a local hostelry. It appears that the top of a plate glass show case was broken in the melee. The accused was fined five dollars and costs, amounting in all to thirteen dollars and seventy-five cents and in addition ordered to pay ten dollars as a compensation for the damage to the show case.

"Next time you get drunk you had better count the costs before hand," was the Magistrate's parting admonition.

William Miles was assessed two dollars and costs on a charge of drunkenness. He was given the option of a meal ticket good for fifteen days in the county gaol, together with the promise of six months at the Guelph prison farm should he again appear in police court.

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL IN WINTER

Winter is a dangerous season for the little ones. The days are so changeable—one bright; the next cold and stormy, that the mother is afraid to take the children out for the fresh air and exercise they need so much. In consequence they are often cooped up in overheated, badly ventilated rooms and are soon seized with colds or grippe. What is needed to keep the little ones well is Baby's Own Tablets. They will regulate the stomach and bowels and drive out colds and by their use the baby will be able to get over the winter season in perfect safety. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Sock Money For Daughters Of The Empire

Russel McLean, of Toronto, baritone vocalist, who has taken a position on the teaching staff of the Conservatory of Music is to help the 57th Chapter, Daughters of the Empire, to get money for yarn to knit soldiers' socks. Mr. McLean will on Monday night, Feb. 28th, give a vocal recital in Conservatory Hall, assisted by the Conservatory orchestra. Just now, as for months past, the specialty of the Daughters of the Empire, is socks for soldiers. They have knit stacks of them and are at work yet; but they need money to buy yarn for knitting. Mr. McLean, who is a soloist with a splendid record, has generously offered to give a recital for the benefit of the socks yarn fund and in conjunction with the orchestra, will give a musical entertainment of a high and enjoyable character. It is hoped that patriotic citizens will note the date, and combine patriotism and pleasure in the interests of a good cause.

CAPTURED OFFICERS TO RECEIVE PAY

Arrangement Entered Into Between France and Germany.

PARIS, Feb. 18.—Under the terms of an order issued by the War Office, as published in the army organ, La France Militaire, German officers who are prisoners-of-war in France are to receive each month pay equal to that of French officers on leave, as previously fixed in the French army regulations.

Similar treatment is to be accorded French officers who are prisoners in Germany. This arrangement has been reached through negotiations between the French and German Governments.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE WATERWORKS DEPARTMENT SHOWS DEPRECIATION IN PUMPAGE

This is Accounted For by the Abundant Rainfall During the Summer Months—The Maximum Rate of Demand Was Higher—Ten Members of the Department Have Enlisted—Two Have Made the Supreme Sacrifice.

DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

The annual report of the activities of the waterworks department for the year ending December 31st, 1915 has been submitted to the Utilities Commission by Mr. R. L. Dobbin, waterworks superintendent.

The total pumpage for the year has been about 15 million gallons less than the preceeding year, which is accounted for by the abundant rainfall during the summer months.

The maximum rate of demand was higher during the year than in any previous one, reaching a rate of 5½ million gallons per day on June 26th at 7:20 p.m. At this time the pressure at the Pump House was 100 lbs. and at the Office on Hunter Street, 30 lbs. This drop in pressure is a strong indication of the inadequate size of our feeder mains.

Pumping Station.

During the spring of the year, repairs were made to the Racks in front of the Canadian General Company's Power House, which were damaged during the previous winter by frazil and anchor ice.

In June a contract was let to the DeLaval Dairy Supply Company for the supply and erection of a complete Steam Pumping Unit of 6 million gallons per day capacity, as an auxiliary standby in case of ice troubles, such as were experienced during the fall of 1914. The installation of this unit is not yet complete, but is capable of fulfilling all ordinary requirements.

This has been an extraordinary winter for ice troubles on account of the mild weather in December and January, and the consequent large flow of water in the river, and practically no ice has formed on the forebay.

The steam plant has been used on the following occasions.

December 10th, 1915, from 7.15 a.m. until 10.00 a.m.; Dec. 26th, 1915, from 11.00 a.m. until 2.00 a.m.; December 29th, 1916 from 9.45 a.m. until 11.30 a.m.; February 4th, 1916 from 8.00 a.m. until 12.00 a.m.; February 11th, 1916 from 8.00 a.m. until 11.30 a.m.

Distribution System.

The principal work done on the Mains during the year, was the taking up of the old 8 inch main on Hunter Street from Aylmer Street to Belmont, and the laying of 8 inch pipe in its place. The 8 inch pipe was found to be almost as good as new, although in the ground for 25 years, and it was cleaned and relaid on Chamberlen Street.

The number of new services, 137 was considerably less than in 1914, and is the lowest since 1908.

During the year 44 Valve chambers were replaced, 16 of these in concrete. The majority of these repairs were necessitated by paving operations.

Gate Valves were set on six hydrants in the centre of the city, thus avoiding the necessity of shutting off important Mains in the event of any of these hydrants needing repairs.

All the Gate Valves in the system were located, and sketches made of their positions, which will be incorporated into a book. This will make it much easier to find these Valves when they are covered up by any means.

A Ford car with express body was purchased in the spring, and was used to a very considerable extent. Not only was it cheaper than horse hire, but it was much more convenient and quicker.

During the year the Department suffered a great loss by the death on July 21st, of its Chief Pumping Engineer, Thos. Scott. He had been in the employ of the Water Works since its construction in 1882, and was operator at the Pump House for the last 17 years. During this time he had always proved himself a faithful and efficient employee.

Ten men from the Department have enlisted since the beginning of the war, of which number two have made the supreme sacrifice, and given up their lives for their King and Country.

Trades and Labour Notes

By The Official Scribe

The regular meeting of the Trades and Labour Council was held on Wednesday evening, Feb. 16, with President Chas. Hammacott in the chair.

The roll call showed a good attendance of degates, and credentials were read from two new delegates from the Textile Workers.

A communication was read from the Premier of Ontario, in reply to the secretary's letter, re abolition of Property Qualifications for the holding of municipal offices. Petitions along the same line will be forwarded to the Ontario Government as soon as possible.

Bros. L. Humber and R. Mitchell were elected auditors in place of Bros. C. M. Browne and A. J. Sharpe, resigned.

Bro. Thos. Williams, of the Hod Carriers' and General Labourers' Association, who went overseas with the 9th Mounted Rifles, was reported as returning home soon.

The following committees were elected for the ensuing year:

Municipal and Legislative Committee—Bros. Mitchell, Crowe, Frost, Humber and Carroll.

Label Committee—Bros. H. Frost, D. Wires, H. Rew and V. Hall.

Educational Committee — Bros. Ahearn, Sharpe, Flannery, Hammacott and Myland.

Considerable discusion took place on the abolition of property qualifications for holding of municipal offices, and it was urged upon the various local unions to fill out and mail, without delay, as large a number of petitions as possible. These to be forwarded to the Provincial Premier and the member for this riding.

An article from an Ottawa paper, bearing on the action on conscription by the Trades and Labour Congress of Canada, was read. The opinion was expressed by some members that conscription meant not only military conscription, but industrial conscription as well, as after the war is over the big interests will endeavour to dominate labour. The question of some union men patronizing unfair barber shops was also brought up, and union men were urged to look for the card.

Adjournment was reached at a reasonable hour. Next meeting March 1st.

DAME NATURE HINTS.

When the Food is Not Suited.

When Nature gives her signal that something is wrong it is apt to be with the food. The old Dame is always faithful and one should act at once.

To put off the change is to risk that which may be irreparable. A man says:

"For years I could not safely eat any breakfast. I tried various kinds of breakfast food, but they were all soft, starchy messes which gave me distressing headaches. I drank strong coffee, too, which appeared to benefit me at the time, but added to the headaches afterward.

"A friend persuaded me to quit coffee and the starchy breakfast foods and use Postum and Grape-Nuts instead. I shall never regret taking his advice.

"The change it worked in me is wonderful. I now have no more of the distressing sensations in my stomach after eating, and I don't have headaches. I have gained 12 pounds in weight and feel better in every way.

Grape-Nuts makes a delicious as well as a nutritious dish; and I find that Postum agrees perfectly—never produces dyspepsia symptoms."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Roquro Moroi, first Embassy secretary at the Foreign Department, has been appointed Consul-General at Honolulu.

Elegant Banquet At St. John's School-House

The Boys' Bible Class Entertained The Girls' Bible Class

A MOST ENJOYABLE EVENING

A very elegant banquet was tendered in St. John's schoolhouse by the young men belonging to Mr. Charles Ray's Bible class, the guests of honour being the young ladies of Miss Grimith's Bible class. The tables were most generously supplied with choice viands, salads, pastry and sweets, which were partaken of and much appreciated by some forty to fifty guests.

At the conclusion of the repast addresses were delivered by the Rector, Canon, the Hon. Major J. C. Davidson, chaplain to the 83rd Battalion, Mr. Scadding, the Sunday school superintendent, and Mr. Charles Ray, the leader of the Boys' Bible class.

The latter gentleman referred in a most sympathetic manner to the severance for the time being, of the Rector's active ministry in St. John's church, stating that the Canon was not only in time of peace, one of the most energetic workers possible, and he had thrown himself heart and soul into the work of the Bible classes, and now in time of war, although necessarily he is unable to devote quite so much time, yet he has taken the most lively and active interest in the Sunday school's welfare. Mr. Scadding followed, with a few well chosen remarks in which he eulogized Mr. Ray's good work among the youths.

The Rector laid great stress on the question of games for young people and his views were later put into practical operations; great amusement being derived from various games indulged in. The fun went fast and furious and there were signs portending a continuance of such enjoyable evenings.

Great credit is due to the boys of the Bible class who prepared the spread without any outside assistance and who well looked after the comfort of their lady guests. It looked as if some of these lads would certainly be handy men when the time comes for them to lead some of their lady guests to the hymeneal altar.

All too soon the pleasant evening passed away and it was with some considerable regret that the time arrived for the parting of the ways and the requests to see their fair partners home which followed the hearty rendering of the National Anthem.

ROOSTER HAS FEAST ON OWNER'S $300 DIAMOND

LATROBE, Pa., Feb. 18.—A $300 diamond looked so good to a handsome barred Plymouth Rock rooster here at a poultry show that he stretched his neck through the bars of his pen, plucked the diamond and swallowed it as the owner gazed in amazement. One peck took the diamond from its stud.

The owner sought the superintendent and the chicken's crop was opened. There the sparkler was found grinding up the meal for chanticleer. The diamond was returned to the owner, the rent was sewed up and the rooster is now as bright as ever.

Too Few Graduates For The Positions

Demand For Book-Keepers And Stenographers Greatly Exceeds Supply

In conversation with an Examiner representative, Mr. J. A. McKone, manager of the Peterborough Business College, stated that the demand for qualified bookkeepers and stenographers was much greater than the supply. So far, he had managed, by placing every graduate who has come through the College in both lines of work, to barely satisfy the numerous calls that have been coming in, but he now finds himself in such a position that it will be a months before any more of the present students will graduate.

It looks like a most opportune time for young people, especially those with a fairly well grounded public school education, to take up a Business College course, as no other such small investment will make their earning power so great, and the openings are ready waiting.

Corporal Galloway Is Reported Killed

Son of Secretary of Bureau of Industries; Was a Brilliant Student.

The first Canadian reported killed in the recent German offensive on the western battle-front is Corporal Gordon G. Galloway, a Torontonian who went away with the 26th University Battery. His father Mr. W. O Galloway, Toronto, secretary for the Bureau of Industries for Ontario, received a telegram from Ottawa notifying him of his son's death from a gun-shot wound on February 10th.

Deceased was twenty-one years old and was a brilliant scholar. He was born in Toronto and educated at the old Borden Street School, Harbord Collegiate and Toronto University. When he matriculated he was known as "The Prince of Wales Boy." He was a brilliant mathematician, winning numerous scholarships. Only the fact that he enlisted stopped him from taking his degree. In 1915 he was the chief contender for the Rhodes Scholarship.

The late Corporal Galloway enlisted in March, 1915, and underwent a course of training at Kingston and Valcartier. He went to England last August and left for the front on January 16, 1916.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts of Bladder Bothers You Drink Lots of Water

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts, which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.

Opportunities Before Rural School Teachers

One of Principal Topics Discussed At Normal School Students' Conference

The great opportunity for rural school teachers to make the schools centres of influence not only in education, but also in social intercourse, in assistance to the religious life of the communities and generally helpful in the various movements the people are interested in. This was one of the main points brought out at the Normal School Students' Conference this afternoon. Mr. R. F. Downey of the Central School, read an instructive paper this morning on Practice Schools and the Normal Students. Five students discussed rural depopulation. Inspector Broderick spoke on problems before the rural teacher, and A. Mowat's address considered the city school teachers. Friday afternoon the subject was Church Life in Country Communities. Among those who gave addresses was Rev. P. J. McGuire of Ennismore.

The teacher, he said, should be a man of irreproachable character; he must teach by example as well as by precept, and this outside, no less than within, the school precincts. During school hours he takes the place of the parents of the children entrusted to his care; and there devolves upon him, therefore, the duty not only of imparting a sound secular education, but also of inculcating love and fear of God, charity, truthfulness, honesty, purity, manliness, patriotism, and the like virtues. The teacher should be possessed of good sense, and where there are children of different religious beliefs, should exercise great prudence never to impose his own religious convictions upon others.

The school should be made homelike, and be always a model of neatness. Father McGuire eulogized the nobility of the teaching profession, and insisted upon the need of painstaking effort and continued study on the part of the teacher, if his work was to be successful. The address, which was warmly applauded and highly appreciated, both by the principal and staff of the Normal School, and by the teachers-in-training may be regarded as an indication of the interest that will be taken and the care that will be used to make the Ennismore Schools models for the imparting of knowledge, refinement, and virtue.

Mr. Duncan Walker, Principal of the Normal School, presided.

New Winged Visitor, The Evening Grosbeak

Many persons have, this winter, noted the presence of a variety of bird that is new to them. These new or rare birds are found feeding in mountain ash and sumach trees, and other trees whose seeds remain in winter. From the descriptions given these birds are the evening grosbeak, akin to his soberer-plumaged cousin, the pine grosbeak (so often mistaken for the robin), but more ornamental in plumage. The males of the evening grosbeak are gorgeous in rich yellow on back and breast, contrasting sharply with their black and white wings and black tails. They have strong curved beaks like the common grosbeak, and of a paler yellow than the breast.

Mr. Sam Wood of the Globe, whose Saturday nature articles are as classical in their literary quality as authoritative and instructive in their facts, says of the evening grosbeak:

The evening grosbeak is a bird of the west, much less likely to range to the eastern lakes than his purple-mantled cousin. The habit of nesting low in trees or bushes seems in conformity with a heavy, terrestrial aspect. Though large of body, he seems smaller than the robin on account of his shorter tail and wings. This little flock may have learned something of the menace of civilization. They lack that tolerance of interference familiar in those making their way to the city in past years by wilderness routes. Their small flock divided in protest at the interruption of their feast, some going to the sheltered valley to the northward, and some moving toward the more travelled thoroughfare. Southern excursions are not sustained by the home-making impulse, so they are uncertain and irregular, but the dreariness of winter makes the strangers all the more welcome.

Can Life be Lengthened?

THIS is a problem that for centuries have engaged the attention of the world's greatest thinkers. Recent research and experience have conclusively proved that Total Abstainers Live Longer than non-abstainers. The reason for this, and the consequent reduction in rates of insurance extended to applicants of this class by that old-established Company, THE MANUFACTURERS LIFE, is well explained in an attractive little booklet issued and entitled "Total Abstainers vs. Moderate Drinkers." This may be had on application. A post card will do. It is interesting and will place you under no obligation. Write to-day

GERMANS FORCED TO TAKE COSTLY OFFENSIVE TO PLEASE PEOPLE

Underfed Population and Approaching Financial Crash Have Caused Them to Attempt to Press For a Decisive Victory in the West—Attacks All Viewed With Calmness By The Allies

By T. P. O'Connor

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Parliament reassembles in a curiously mixed mood. On one side the Ministry, especially Mr. Asquith, is more powerful than ever. On the other side the daring and immunity of the Zeppelin airships and the exaggerated accounts of the success of Germany in breaking the blockade through Holland with iron ore have produced a good deal of popular unrest. This has been fanned into flame by the shrieking appeals of the Daily Mail and the excitable extremists.

Joint Council.

More reasonable people criticise the Ministry in a calmer way by recalling many moments of indecision and tardy action. These criticisms are disappearing under the knowledge that the Allies have at last come to a common understanding regarding their objects. They are reaching the point when the joint military and political council meeting in Paris will subject all military and political movements to a single direction. The visit of the French premier, M. Aristide Briand to Italy, following the frequent visits of Mr. Asquith and Mr. Lloyd George to Pahis, have now made such unity of direction certain.

The change in the Russian premiership is another favorable point; as many people in England have felt great misgiving at the triumphant position of the reactionaries, symbolized in studied insults to the Duma.

The Outlook.

With all these things are the preparations for making the next few months decisive. But here there is a difference in the outlook of the Central Powers and the Allies. As time evidently fights on the side of the Allies there is less inclination among them to force the issue by early and risky big advances with inevitably gigantic losses, with uncertain results.

The Germans, on the other hand are confronted with the growing discontent of the underfed population, including hundreds of thousands of widows, and with an approaching financial crash, seem to press recently for some decisive victory on the western front.

This strategy is viewed with calmness and satisfaction by the Allies, who disregard a small advance into the first or second line of trenches in the confident knowledge that such advances are costly to the enemy with daily diminishing power in men, and that they will be easily arrested when they pass the first front.

A Big Advance.

As things look now a big advance of the Allies is more likely on the eastern front than on the western. The recovery of the Russian army, their growing supply of ample munitions, no longer are doubtful. At the same time indications point to Roumania entering the conflict on the side of the Allies when the Russian advance begins in the spring and the expedition to Salonica has justified itself by the steadp pressure it is exerting on the Bulgarian and German armies, and as a threat of joining this big concentrated advance when the right moment comes.

A growing sense of this peril in the east among the Germans is indicated by the practical abandonment of the long trumpeted attack on Egypt. Thus in England to-day are two sentiments. On one side is the growing sense of the immensity of her task, and consequently the necessity to put forth all her resources, with the equal necessity of economizing her resources. On the other side is the confident hope that her enemies have already reached their zenith and must begin descending, while she and her allies are only now getting to their top note with a big superiority of men, money and munitions, which this year brings. The beginning of the end for Germany must be expected within the year. Some prophets, especially those who are in Switzerland, and have gained inner knowledge of German internal conditions believe the decision must come by July. Another view is that the war will last until the late autumn, especially in view of the Allies' growing faith in time and attrition rather than in big rushes as decisive factors.

The Irish members returning to Parliament from Ireland bring hopeful news regarding Ireland's attitude.

The success of the party in warding off conscription for Ireland has silenced the voice of faction. Though well paid emissaries of Germany still try to stir up mischief Ireland stands strong behind Mr. Redmond and his policy.

You can be of course in many parts of France without realizing that she is passing through one of the most cruel wars in her history. In Paris you are struck, of course with the loneliness of the streets where people pass in units instead of in hundreds. There do not seem to be many empty shops as at the beginning of the war, and there is even a certain approach to the normal.

Hotels Closed.

I ran down to the south for some days to get rid of a troublesome attack of insomnia, and there bathed in sunshine and with the indescribably beautiful scenery still as in olden times, one might imagine that the world was the same as in those now apparently remote days before Germany sent millions to fight and destroy one another. But here again, there is an enormous change. I always choose Monte Carlo by preference from the other cities on the Riviera because I find the climate so excellent—not assuredly because I want to gamble, a passion that never had the least attraction for me. It is the old Monte Carlo, so far at least as the general setting is concerned; but what a different Monte Carlo from that with which the whole world is familiar. The greater part of the hotels remain closed. Some of them are turned into hospitals, and that area immediately around the Casino, which used to be perhaps the most crowded and liveliest spot in Europe, is painfully and sadly empty. The Hotel de Paris has a few of its old clients; but agan if you go there at the hour of afternoon tea or dinner, where you meet almost everybody in Europe, you find a yawning desert. But curiously enough, the tables are not only going, but at some hours of the day you find people in large numbers in pursuit of the fickle fortune of the roulette table of trente et quarante. But the shadow of the war nevertheless is over Monte Carlo as well as over every other place. Now and then a great singer attracts a large audience to the Opera House; now and then a good play brings a number of people, and you might forget if you did not take a glance at the audience and realize how many women were there in black and if you did not see a wounded officer on his crutches limping along to his seat with everybody of course trying to help him—you might forget but for these things that there was a great war.

Military Hospitals.

All around the coast you find military hospitals. The Riviera is evidently regarded as the best air for convalescence with the result that there are many British as well as French soldiers scattered among the hospitals. I attended a little gathering of French officers who were at a panic on Mont Argel, the new Golf Club that was founded some years ago on the beautiful mountaintop above Monte Carlo. I was on these links—was it a few years or a few centuries ago?—with Lord Reading, then Sir Rufus Isaacs and Mr. Lloyd George. It was as near, I think, as Mr. Lloyd George ever got to the fascinating and seductive capital of the gambling center of Europe. I don't believe that he was ever induced even by curiosity to enter the gaming rooms. In this he is in the same tradition as Mr. Gladstone, who never, in spite of his many visits to the Riviera, which he found an excellent remedy for the insomnia which now and then attacked him, could he be induced to enter Monte Carlo, though he drove around it now and then. The golf ground at Mont Argel was, when I visited it last, as rough that a game there might be called mountain climbing rather than golf. Great improvements have been made since, and it now seems to me quite a good course; and the air is superb. It reminds me a little of a golf course in Switzerland, for you look up from the smooth grass of the greens to snowclad mountains in the near distance. It was in the club-house that the picnic took place, and there were some fifteen wounded officers present with a large company of friends who had come to do them honor. It was the first time that I had met so closely so many French officers, and I was quite delighted with them. Most of them were quite young fellows, and most of them really handsome. There were just one of two—a colonel and a major who were older. How can I describe the ineffable charm of their manners? They were all gay, they all chaffed each other, they all seemed quite free from care. But when a foreigner, like myself, spoke to them, they immediately became the serious, dignified, courtly gentlemen that might have appeared in the drawing rooms of Versailles in the days of Louis XIV. Slight, muscular, alert, they suggested the swiftness and endurance of the greyhound.

The Wounded.

I have described the wounded officers as gay, and so they were. But one could not help noticing the expression on their pale faces the mark of the terrific strain through which they had passed. There wasn't a murmur; I never even heard an allusion to what they had suffered; but their faces spoke what their tongues refused to mention. One and all they discussed the future with confidence. I didn't meet a human being in France who entertains the least doubt as to the necessity of continuing the fight to the bitter end and as to the certainty of final victory. The strain is terrible on France, but France is bearing it with universal fortitude.

I paid a visit to the hospital at Mentone, it as one of the monuments to the outbursts of devoted affection to France which this war has created in so many English minds. It was in a splendid and spacious new hotel, with marble floors, great halls, beautiful and spacious grounds. An Englishman named Cochrane had spent thousands of pounds of his private fortune in installing it, and all the nurses—or nearly all—were English women whose quiet, silent, undemonstrative women who are the flower of the earth and ideal nurses. Here the patients were nearly all from the ranks. Most of them were sunning themselves on one of the numerous verandahs; but some were still confined to bed. Again there was the same sweetness of manners, which is such a charm in all the population of France without distinction of class. Many of them were playing cards on their quilts—horribly stained cards, I must say—which forced me to send them some new packs a few days later. Cards, I may say, are now rather a dear luxury in France. They have gone up several times in price, and as there is a heavy tax upon them, the Government takes enormous precautions to see that they are not passed from hand to hand. The clubs at Monte Carlo and elsewhere, where there are little games of bridge, are compelled to return one or two cards from each pack so as to make them useless for further play. One pathetic figure of a man in the hospital at Mentone, who looked like an artisan, still haunts me. He was playing patience all by himself, and evidently had been badly wounded. But he looked so patient and he smiled so sweetly on us as we spoke with him—and he so lonely!—that I could have broken down with pity, with sympathy and with affection.

Lord Waleran, once an active politician, but now compelled to live on the Riviera because of his health—is one of the guardians of the hospital. He has just lost his eldest son, but though you could see heavier lines on his worn face, he went through the day's work for these French soldiers as though nothing had occurred to darken his own innermost life.

New Conscripts.

I have been reading in the papers on the morning of the day on which I write these lines, of the departure amid joyous songs and cheers and tearless farewells of the new conscripts of eighteen to the training barracks. It is but one of the many signs of that cheerful, indomitable spirit with which the Frenchman or the Frenchwoman confronts the difficulties of life. But I protest that what most brought home the spirit of France to me was a visit to a Cinema show in Paris. In the midst of other films there came one which professed to give a picture of the soldier who is back with his family on a few days' leave. It was a screaming bit of farce from the first picture to the last. There was the crowd of relations, more or less absurd, hugging the returned hero until he was almost suffocated. Above all, there was the mother-in-law, that classic and inevitable figure of all the farces from the beginning of time—fussy, interfering, domineering, foolish, and, of course, tumbled about by everybody, and finally overcome, and compelled to leave her daughter and her son-in-law without her untimely intrusions. Not a tear, not a moment of sentiment, still less of sentimentality, from the first moment to the last; and the audience just screaming with laughter from the first film to the final. It was very silly, and very undignified and frivolous even; but what a lesson in the courage with which France can laugh at every thing; can laugh even when its heart is full and the widows' weeds proclaim to everybody how many homes have been darkened by heroic deaths of the loved ones in the trenches.

BANISH BILE!

A bilious condition of the system is the result of inaction of the liver, often causing severe headache through the eyes and temples, culminating sometimes in nausea and vomiting, which is frequently followed by a bilious diarrhoea.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, when taken as directed, stimulates the peptic glands of the stomach and increases the contraction of its muscles from above downward. This action is communicated to the intestines and increases the flow of the intestinal juice, thus stimulating the ducts of the liver to pour out the bile, when it can be carried downward by the laxative action of the Salt, instead of remaining to clog up the liver and flow back into the stomach.

Thus, if a person who is subject to Biliousness and Bilious Headache will use Abbey's Effervescent Salt, the natural action of the Stomach, liver and intestine will be kept up and no bile can accumulate in the system.

HOW YOU MAY THROW AWAY YOUR GLASSES

The statement is made that thousands wear eyeglasses who do not really need them. If you are one of these unfortunates, then these glasses may be ruining your eyes instead of helping them. Thousands who wear these "windows" may prove for themselves that they can discard, with glasses if they will get the following prescription filled at once: Go to the Warne Drug Company, or to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets; fill a two-ounce bottle with warm water and drop in one Bon-Opto tablet. With this harmless liquid solution bathe the eyes two to four times daily, and you are likely to be astonished at the results right from the start. Many who have been told that they have astigmatism, eye-strain, cataract, sore eyelids, weak eyes, conjunctivitis and other eye disorders, report wonderful benefits from the use of this prescription. Get this prescription filled and use it; you may so strengthen your eyes that glasses will not be necessary. Thousands who are blind or nearly so, or who wear glasses, might never have required them if they had cared for their eyes in time. Save your eyes before it is too late. Do not become one of these victims of neglect. Eyeglasses are only like crutches, and every few years they must be changed to fit the ever-increasing weakened condition, so better see if you can, like many others, get clear, healthy strong magnetic eyes through the prescription here given. The Talmas Drug Co., of Toronto, will fill the above prescription by mail, if your druggist cannot.

PRESENTATION TO MR. ROBT. LONG

By Employees of the Examiner at Noon To-Day - To Reside in Toronto

At noon to-day the employees of the Examiner assembled in the newsroom to say farewell to Mr. Robert Long of the Pressroom, who is leaving the beginning of the week for Toronto, where he will be engaged in munition making in one of the factories there.

An address was read by the business manager, Mr. R. M. Glover, while the presentation of a handsome club bag was made by Miss Lottie Whaley. The address was as follows:

To Mr. Robert Long.

Dear Bob,—We your fellow employees of the Examiner office have learned with regret of your intention to leave Peterborough. During the fifteen years you have been associated with the destinies of the Examiner press room, your genial manner and unfailing good nature have made you a friend to us all and your departure will leave a gap in our ranks that will be hard to fill. We appreciate your desire to do your bit for the Empire by taking up the task of making munitions, but are sorry that it requires your removal from among us. We ask you to accept this gift as a mark of our esteem and affection toward you and trust that you will remember your friends in the Examiner.

Mr. Long made a suitable reply, thanking his fellow employees for their kind remembrance and assuring them of his regret in severing his happy associations with them.

THE WORLD OF SPORT

THE 93RD BATTALION TEAM BEATEN AT BELLEVILLE 11 TO 3

Soldiers Lose the Round to Fast Easterners by a Majority of Ten Goals —Simmons Again Starred For The Bay of Quinte Team

The 93rd Battalion team is out of the running, losing last night at Belleville by 11 goals to 3, which gives the Easterners the round by a margin of ten goals. That the better team won is conceded by even the most ardent soldier supporter. The 93rd tried hard last night and although they succeeded in scoring the first goal Belleville soon drew away. It was 4 to 2 at the end of the first period and 7 to 2 at the end of the second. The Belleville forwards did some deadly shooting and Simmons, the big defence man, was a barrier to the Soldiers. Capt. Widdifield, the 93rd's goaler, had a busy night and shows the signs of it to-day. His arm is in a sling as a result of a hard shot. A Belleville despatch says:

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 18.—(Special.)—In the second game of the round between the 93rd Battalion, Peterborough, and Belleville intermediates, the visiting soldier team was defeated by 11 to 3, Belleville accordingly win the round by 16 to 6. The home forwards and defence were very aggressive and got by the 93rd defence many times. Line-up:

Referee—J. Moxon, Toronto.

"GLAD" MURPHY THE FAMOUS ATHLETE DEAD

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—William Ewart Gladstone Murphy, the famous flying wing of the Argonauts, and recently adjudged as the best all-round athlete in Canada, died in St Michael's Hospital yesterday afternoon from injuries received in the second half of the opening 'Big Four' Rugby game on Rosedale field on the afternoon of Oct. 9th last. At the time he attempted a flying tackle of Sammy Manson, of the Tigers, and missed, alighting heavily. In striking the ground Murphy shattered the vertibrae at the base of the skull, and from the first no hope was held out for his recovery.

Sorrow at the death of the young athlete, cut off in his prime of youth will not be confined alone to the sporting fraternity. A fine speciment of young Canadian manhood, and of engaging and unassuming manners, "Glad" Murphy, as he was familiarly known, was a universal favourite with all who knew him. As a leading member of the Argonaut Club, he was not only famous for his prowess and skill on the Rugby field, but was also prominent as an oarsman and hockeyist.

Since the Rugby accident "Glad" Murphy had ben in the hospital a helpless invalid. The fact that he lived so long was due solely to the splendid physique which he developed on the athletic field. From the time of his admittance to St. Michael's Hospital the authorities considered that his demise was only a question of time, but notwithstanding this, every effort was made to save him, several delicate operations being performed by eminent surgeons.

A peculiarly sad feature of the tragedy was the fact that the game which cost "Glad" Murphy his life was the last that he intended to play and that he consented to appear with his old team with great reluctance. Having a brother at the front, "Glad" was preparing to follow him and was fearful lest he should suffer any injury which would disqualify him from taking his course in aviation. At last, however, he yielded to the entreaties of his friends, and consented to play.

Murphy might be termed a physical and moral giant. He was adjudged by the Interprovincial Rugby officials last Fall as the most useful man to his team in the Union. Besides this he had also achieved a splendid reputation as an oarsman and a hockey player. For four years he played on the senior O. H. A. runners-up with the Argonauts and St. Michaels, and was one of the strongest and ablest defence men in the game. He was with the Argonauts in the finals in 1911 and with St Michaels in 1913, 1914 and 1915. As an oarsman he was in the Argonaut senior eight, winners of practically every regatta which they were entered. He was also in the last Olympic eight and in this form of sport was known as a leader.

Born and educated in Kingston "Glad" Murphy made his bow in the world of sport at an early age. Selecting banking as his profession, he became connected with the Dominion Bank and in the course of his career was moved to various branches of the institution. Wherever he went he was a favourite and was considered to be one of the strongest supporters of the local sporting teams, whether it was hockey, baseball, rowing or Rugby. It was in hockey and Rugby, however, that he achieved his greatest fame and the regret at his untimely demise will be felt wherever his fame was known for he was of the finest type of Canadian, a sportsman. He never lost his temper nor forgot that he was a gentleman.

Instruments Presented

organization indicating beyond a doubt that the Band of the 93rd is in every way worthy of the magnificent set of instruments with which the generosity of the citizens has made it possible to provide them. Their opening number was the ever popular overture "Poet and Peasant," which was brilliantly played the band making the most of the many possibilities offered by Supper's beautiful overture. The storm of applause that followed the crashing finale left no doubt as to the feelings of the audience. Equally as effective was the Band's rendition of the selection from "William Tell," which was their second offering of the evening. It may be surmised that a "William Tell" number would provide an awkward proposition for most of the overseas bands, but the band of the 93rd played it with a confident ease and a sureness of attack last evening that made the selection one of the features of the evening.

"Motor Ride," a descriptive number with some amusing incidental effects, was cleverly presented, and the audience found the number enjoyable that an encore was demanded.

The Band's final number was the march "Relief Column," played in co-operation with the 93rd Buzle Band. The two bands combined most effectively and the stirring march was greatly appreciated.

The Chorus.

The Peterborough Patriotic Chorus under the direction of Mr. John H Renwick, added materially to the enjoyment of the evening. The chorus is well balanced, and capable, evidencing careful training. The chorus was heard in a series of stirring numbers, including "The Minstrel Boy," "The Jolly Men of Mutiny," and "The Soldiers' Chorus" from Faust. The latter, which was given by request, was delightfully sung and was probably the chorus' best number.

A saxaphone quartette from the 93rd Band, composed of Bandsmen Smith, James, Keale and Needham contributed a most enjoyable number, "Love in Idleness." The playing of the quartette was a surprise in view of the short time the bandsmen have been practising on their instruments, new to three of the quartette.

Bandsman Gilbert, whose ability as a trombone soloist has been demonstrated on several occasions while he was a member of the band of the 57th Regiment, played the solo 'Asleep in the Deep" in masterly fashion. The accompaniment by the Band in this number was worthy of mention.

Miss Mignon Telgmann won a triumph in her violin solo, Liszt's "Rhapsodie No. 2," which the talented young artist played with a brilliance that earned her a storm of applause. She was forced to give an encore before the audience would be satisfied.

The vocal solos were all enthusiastically received. Miss Etta Kemp scored heavily in her singing of a number of verses written by Mrs. De Harvey of Peterborough, and sung to the air of "Bonnie Dundee," the regimental march of the 93rd Battalion.

Miss Kathleen Moore sang very effectively the pretty number "A Posy From Over the Sea," from "San Toy." Two of St. Quentin's patriotic songs were splendidly sung—"His Majesty" by Miss Charlotte Hanson, and "Hail, King George," by Mrs. J. H. Renwick, the patriotic chorus assisting in each case.

Little Jack Clayton, son of Sergt. Herb. Clayton of the 59th, brought down the house in his singing of "Good Luck to the Boys of the Allies," "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall" and "Keep the Home Fires Burning".

Mr. T. Stratton's impersonation of Harry Lauder was one of the gems of the evening. His first number "He Was Very Kind to Me" convulsed the audience, and his recall number "The Picnic," was equally effective, the audience demanding a second encore.

A number that scored very highly was the quartette "The Marseillaise" sung by Messrs. Edward Jones, John Anderson, Asa Huycke and Charles Thorpe. The four voices blended beautifully and the spirited rendition of the stirring French national anthem roused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and the quartette had to return and sing the number again.

Miss Pearl McKee presided at the piano for most of the numbers, and her playing was an added factor in the success of the event. Mr. Devey played for Miss Moore's solo. Mr. Renwick was musical director. The orchestra of the Grand played an attractive programme before the concert began.

Military News

We were going out to shoot up a German ration party and had to cross an open field. When about half way across the Germans opened fire on us with their machine gun and we had to lie down but they did not get any of us that time. We tried to make for the shelter of a hedge but they opened fire again and just as we reached the top of a little knoll they got two of us, a fellow by the name of Smith and myself. Smith was shot through both legs and I got it in the left side. I was operated on and the bullet taken out of my left breast. It was a close call for me as an inch lower and the bullet would have lodged in my heart. Such is the fortune of war.

Where I am now is more like home, a nice soft bed to sleep on and three meals a day. I do not know how long it will be before I am us again but I guess it will be some time. News is scarce in a place like this. I have not been able to look around the hospital yet as it was near midnight when I received here. I must say good-bye for now and remember me to all around home.

The Employed Boys' Club will have their annual outing to the toboggan slide on Monday night, February 21. The boys will meet at the park at 7:30 o'clock and will return to the building about 9 o'clock, where a bean supper will be served. All Employed Boys of the Association are invited to be present.

The Junior Boys' Bible Club had its largest attendance this morning. Twenty-three boys met for Bible study at 9 o'clock.

The boys tests in the gymnasium are proving very interesting. Some 35 boys are taking the tests.

The men's meeting Sunday afternoon will be addressed by Mr. Joseph Wearing at 4:15 o'clock. These meetings have been having a very good attendance and have been helpful to all men who have been present. As Mr. Wearing has a message of special importance to young men, we trust that the attendance to-morrow will be a record breaker.

The Biggest Grant Ever Made In House

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The ninth vote of credit for the prosecution of the war, which Mr. Asquith intends to ask for on Monday, will be the biggest grant ever made by the House of Commons. It will be for $2,100,000,000. "If we are going to spend $750,000,000 a month as would appear from the provision about to be made for April and May, two full years of war will have required votes for $11,920,000,000 over and above the large sums furnished from revenue."

How The Russians Captured The Turk Fort

Special to The Examiner:

PETROGRAD, Feb. 19.—The first story in detail of the capture of Erzerum by the Russians reached Petrograd semi-officially to-day. It shows a complete co-operation of the Russian troops over a wide area, which made useless resistance on the part of the Turks. Apparently the Turks realized the fall of Erzerum was inevitable and withdrew most of their forces before the final onslaught, leaving the garrisons of the widely separated forts to their fate. The five inner forts made only a feeble resistance, their garrisons beat a hasty retreat into the city and followed the bulk of the troops, which already were on the roads leading westward. Only the rear guard took part in the fighting of the last day. Signs that the evacuation was under way was observed immediately after the fall of the fort.

The Russians are hastily repairing the small damages done to the fortresses against the possible attempt of the Turks to retake them.

No news has been received of the fate of Ekved Pevzi Pasha, commander of the Ninth Corps, who was in charge of the defence of Erzerum.

It is reported that reinforcements from Thrace were on the way to Erzerum, but that they were five or six days distant when the city was surrendered.

They Read The Examiner All Right

An evidence of the drawing power of the advertising in the Examiner is embodied in a complaint from Mr. R. C. Braund, whose special offerings have been appearing in these columns lately. It appears that an item of tea, which is quoted at 33c in the advertisement, should have read 36c, and so many have demanded the tea at the lower price, erroneously printed in the paper owing to a typographical error, that Mr. Braund wished the attention of the public to be drawn to the way the mistake occurred.

Splendid Exhibit of Starrett Tools

In the North Window of the Peterboro' Hardware Store To-day

The Peterborough Hardware Store is showing in their north window today a splendid and varied line of Starrett mechanics' tools. The tools are valued at six hundred dollars.

Starrett tools are made by skilled mechanics, in mdern factories, equipped with every up-to-date machine and appliance obtainable for the production of the highest grade of tools and instruments of precision. The parts of tools are carefully tested at every stage of their manufacture, and each completed tool is rigidly inspected before shipment. They have long been recognized as the standard for accuracy, workmanship, design and finish. They are preferred by skilled mechanics with whom accuracy is a matter of pride as well as of livelihood.

Every tool is warranted accurate and satisfatory. The L. S. Starrett Co. will esteem it a favour if customers will notify them of any tool proving defective in material or workmanship. The same will be gladly replaced. The tools are not warranted, however, against breaking or against the results of improper usage. No tool on which a name has been stamped will be replaced or exchanged.

David C. Crowley Of Saginaw Spent Early Days Here

Left Peterboro When He Was Twenty-Two—Was Prominent Contractor and Hotel Man

SAGINAW, Mich., Feb. 18.—David C. Crowley, a prominent and active citizen of Saginaw for half a century, died on Wednesday morning at 5.40 at the family home, 420 North Washington Avenue, of kidney and heart trouble, having been ill in bed only ten days. The death removed a picturesque figure from scenes that have known him long and ends a career of sustained activity covering the last fifty years.

Mr. Crowley was born at the pretty town of Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 17, 1844, and grew to manhood there, coming to Saginaw October 1, 1866, and remaining a resident for the rest of his life. Like many others who came here in those days he devoted himself at the start to lumbering activities, in which he was no novice, being employed for about four years by the late Newell Bernard. He then engaged in the hotel business, opening the Crowley House on Hamilton Street which under his management became one of the best known hotels in Michigan, as well as a rallying point for many of the political and municipal activities of the west side. Mr. Crowley conducted the house, which is now the Schuch Hotel, for thirty-three years, and no man in Saginaw county became better known than he or more popular.

Enters Contracting Business.

While still in the hotel business he formed a partnership to carry on the work of sewer construction, the firm being known as Crowley & Lawson, and doing a large share of the west side work in this line. After quitting hotel life, Mr. Crowley formed another partnership with his brother Patrick, the firm engaging in business as paving contractors, under the title of Crowley Bros. They laid a large number of pavements, so that between hotel keeping, sewer construction and street paving David Crowley had considerable to do with public affairs.

Outside of his business concerns, he was also very active in politics, being a Democrat, and one to be reckoned with in all campaigns, into which he entered with zest. He served as acting mayor of Saginaw City, as it was then known, for some time, and also served on the water board and in the council as alderman. He was a candidate for sheriff some years ago, and though it was not a Democratic year, his fighting qualities and personal popularity enabled him to make the contest a very interesting one.

Although born in Canada, Mr. Crowley was a typical Irishman, and he was a prominent member of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. In religion he was a Catholic, and a faithful member of St. Andrew's Church. It was in this church he was married, Jan. 11, 1875, to Margaret O'Conner, who survives him, with one son, Chester Crowley, of St. Louis, Mo. There also survive two sisters and one brother, all resident in Saginaw: Mrs. P. J. McCarty, Mrs. George Ochsenbahl, and Patrick Crowley.

FOWLER'S PEBLO GLASSES

EYE TALKS SERIES

No. 12—More on the Price Question

OUR LAST TALK said the "Best is Cheapest." Here is how it actually works out. The house to house fakir sells you a pair of glasses for $1.00 to $3.00, may be gets you to the extent of $2.00. That's $2.00 gone, because they are sure to fail you in a short time, and the next peddlar finds you harder, and gets only $1.00. That's another dollar gone. The third man may have to give you a great bargain (?) and for 50c you have another pair of worthless glasses that you have been hypnotised into thinking suited your eyes. That totals $3.50, and still you have nothing of any use to you.

Then think of the privilege that is always open to you to step into a real, modern, comfortable optical parlor, where Dr. Fowler, a properly qualified eyesight specialist is always ready to test and correctly fit your eyes with genuine Peblo Glasses at the lowest prices at which legitimate work can be done, and you find you have received a full 100 cents' value for every dollar, and have a guarantee worth while in the bargain. Surely the "Best is Cheapest."

The teachers of the King George School, East City, held an informal reception yesterday afternoon in honour of Capt. Maurice Park, their Principal, who is connected with the 59th Battalion, and leaves next month for service overseas. A presentation was one of the pleasing parts of the programme.

Agony of Leg Sore Stopped by D.D.D.

Woman Tells Pitiful Story

"I am the mother of 12 children. I took a varicose ulcer on my leg at the birth of last child five years ago. I used every ointment that is made. I was laid up for nearly five weeks with a doctor attending me who did nothing but treat those kind of things.

Doctors told me to lie in bed, but where there is a big family one cannot do that. Then I heard about D.D.D. and as I used to tear my leg at night until it was a bleeding mass, I determined to try a bottle. I can't tell you the ease it gave me. I never used to sleep for the pain. Many a time I nearly fell with the dizziness in my head from want of sleep.

Now my leg is healed up, thanks to the blessed D.D.D. I never expected it to cure. I only got it to take away the terrible itch. By degrees I saw the big sore getting smaller."

MRS. STILL, 292 N. Weston Rr., West Toronto, Ont.

Come to us and we will tell you more about this remarkable remedy. Your money back unless the first bottle relieves you.

Germany Has Reached Limit

Finds it No Longer Profitable To Take Offensive on Land

"CANNOT LOSE"

THINKS THAT ALLIES WILL BE SOON WILLING TO CONCLUDE PEACE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 18.—In a recent speech the Imperial German Chancellor indicated that Germany would make no more offensive moves on the land but would sit tight holding the territory conquered by her forces with the intention of using her territorial gains as a basis for trading when peace negotiations were undertaken.

An elucidation of the Chancellor's statement was obtained here yesterday in an authoritative quarter. In making his announcement the Chancellor was repeating the views of the German General Staff, which has concluded that it would be a waste of men and money with commensurate strategical gain to take the offensive on the land.

It is the understood purpose of the German government, according to what was said here yesterday, to depend mainly in the future on the activity of her submarines in harassing enemy commerce. A possible exception to the plan of sitting tight may be found in the event of an uprising in India or circumstances which would make it desirable to attempt to conquer Egypt. But even in that case it would be Turkey that would bear the brunt of battle.

NO SEPARATE PEACE

Germany, was putting no faith, it was indicated, in the reports that a separate peace with Belgium could be arranged. Nor would Bulgaria, Germany's ally be willing to accept a separate peace unless she were bought by the cession to her of a considerable portion of Serbia and it is not credited in Teutonic circles that the Entente Allies would consent to that.

With regard to Belgium it is the professed Teutonic view that should that nation make peace with Germany and the German forces be withdrawn from Belgian territory, King Albert's government would feel obliged to call on Germany for protection from Belgium's present partners in the great war.

All that is said here is meant to show that the Berlin government either never made peace proposals to Belgium, or if any overtures were made they were quickly withdrawn.

Germany continues to repeat the slogan, "We can't be beaten on land," which suggests "and we can't win on the seas," an expression that has not been denied by some prominent Germans.

CANNOT LOSE THE WAR.

Confidence is supreme in Germany that the nation cannot lose the war and among the German people and the government this feeling is augmented by a belief that Great Britain is suffering keenly in an economic way.

Germans profess to be certain that when the Entente allies realise that they cannot crush Germany they will initiate negotiations for peace. In some quarters the opinion prevails that this realization has already come tom any people in the British Isles.

Germany, it is claimed, is self-supporting, more so now with the victories towards the east, than she was at the beginning of hostilities. The conquered territory in that direction is safe, Germany believes, and with the Allies unable to break through the western front, the Teutonic Empires have a vast area upon which to draw for supplies that will outlast the storm of the Entente governments and their ability to pay for supplies bought abroad.

Turkish Front Broken In Two Places By Rapid Drive of Grand Duke's Army

PETROGRAD, Feb. 21.—The Turkish front has been broken in two places and three Turkish army corps have been separated by the rapid westward drive of the Grand Duke's Caucusus army, according to despatches received here to-day. Otie Turkish army forming the left wing is falling back rapidly on Trebizond. The Eleventh Turkish army corps floundering in the snows west of Erzerum is trying to reach Erzingan, while under harrassing attacks by Slav pursuers. A third Turkish corps on the right wing has been isolated from the armes to the north and may be cut off and captured.

Despatches to-day reported the capture of the Armenian town of Pasur Akhrin southwest of Mush by the Russians' left wing.

Turkish reinforcements for relief of Erzerum, not knowing fortress had fallen, marched into the city and were forced to surrender.

12,000,000 Franc Subscription to French Loan an Ordinary Trifle

Amusing, and at the same time indicative of the spirit of France, is the story related by Rene Bures in the Figaro, and which concerns a subscription to the French national loan. It appears that in a certain small town, the name of which is not given for obvious reasons, a man of ordinary demeanour and clothing, with nothing to distinguish him from the great majority of his fellow-men, walked into the branch of a Parisian bank. The single employee stepped to the wicket.

"I wish to subscribe to the loan," said the stranger.

"How much?" the clerk demanded, indifferently.

"Twelve million francs," was the answer.

The clerk gagged. Finally he recovered himself and saw that the man was not joking. Neither did he have the air of a madman.

"How much did you say?" he sparred.

"Twelve million francs."

The clerk had heard of persons insane upon but one subject and he knew that to cross them meant courting danger.

"Just a moment," he stuttered. "I—I'll call the manager." And he hurried into the private office, not forgetting to lock his cash drawer. The manager, on hearing the story, came out with a jump. He stared at the customer. His clothes were neither too old nor too new; he wore a derby hat. Altogether he looked like an everyday man, surely not a man to hand over twelve million francs.

"A subscription?" coldly questioned the manager, buttoning his frock coat. (All French bank managers and hotel clerks wear frock coats.)

"Yes," and the stranger fixed his gaze on the manager. The latter began to wilt a bit.

"And you want to subscribe—how much?"

"I said twelve million francs," with a trace of irritation.

The manager pulled his necktie straight, fumbled—with his cuffs, and looked around for an exit.

"But—that is, I mean to say—such a sum, you understand"—His voice trailed away and then he mustered his courage. "Have you got twelve million francs?"

"Certainly."

"Er—here, with you?"

"Of course," and he pulled out a sheaf of certificates of deposit and handed them over. The manager turned them over to the clerk, who spoiled three receipts before he managed to fill one out properly, while the manager hovered at his shoulder.

The mysterious stranger was simply a very wealthy man, whose name is well known, but who prefers to dress and live very simply. His name is withheld.

Life Sentence For Woman Spy

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The case of a woman spy who was recently sentenced to death, but whose sentence was commuted to penal servitude for life, was announced in the House of Commons to-day by Mr. Herbert L. Samuel, the Secretary of State for Home Affairs.

The woman was found guilty in a criminal court, the Home Secretary stated. An appeal was dismissed but the sentence was commuted. Her activities were discovered six days after her arrival in Great Britain, and her correspondence was interrupted in the interval between this time and her arrest. She was not a British subject.

This is the first time since the beginning of the war, it was stated, that a woman has received so severe a prison sentence in England for espionage.

WITH OTHER COUNCILS.

Money By-Laws.

At the meeting of the Haldimand County Council the Council passed by-laws granting $12,000 to the Canadian Patriotic Fund for 1916 and also eight-tenths of a mill on the equalized assessment, or $9,359 to the 114th overseas battalion.

The Private Bills Committee authorized the city of Montreal to borrow two million dollars, payable in twenty years, to face the present situation of the metropolis.

St. Helena Ready For The Kaiser

Prague Newspaper Says Island Has Been Put In Readiness for His Reception.

The Prager Tagblatt prints a despatch from Salsburg telling of the arrival there from India of German missionaries, who had stopped en route at St. Helena, and there learned that preparations had been made for the German Kaiser in the same way as for Napoleon a century ago.

"There arrived in Salsburg," says the Prager Tagblatt, "fifteen Capuchin monks, who declared they had been missionaries in India, but were ordered to leave the country. They explained that the British feared the introduction of German kultur in India and German influence through the missionaries. Therefore all German missionaries were expelled or interned.

"The monks left India on November 14, and the return journey was made through Calcutta, Ladoa, Kapstadt, St. Heneia, Gibraltar, London, Bliesingen, Cologne, Munich and Salsburg. With the monks also came 500 German and Austrian men, women and children who were missionaries of the Protestant faith in India.

Search For Bottle That Held Poison

Chicago Police Declare They Have Found Drug Clerk Who Says He Sold Orpet an Empty Container

CHICAGO, Feb. 18.—Search for the bottle in which was carried the poison that caused the death of Marion Frances Lambert, Lake Forest High School girl, was continued by detectives who are endeavoring to establish a connection between the girl's death last Wednesday and the mysterious absence from Madison of William H. Orpet, University of Wisconsin student. The assertion by the police that a drug clerk in Madison had admitted he sold Orpet an empty bottle, and the finding of poison crystals in an ash heap in the cellar of the Orpet home, are the principal developments of the past 48 hours in the Lake Forest mystery.

A gardener on the McCormick estate, of which Orpet's father is caretakes, is said to have admitted putting the poison in the ash heap. This was explained by the elder Orpet by the statement that the poison had been used to kill insects on shrubbery, but that its inferior quality had rendered it useless.

State's Attorney Dady of Lake county said to-day he was ready to present his evidence to the coroner's jury. Orpet continues to reiterate his innocence.

GET IT FIRST—NOT LAST

When a cold grips your system it is convincing proof that your condition is weakened—remember that. It is risky indeed to simply trust your strength to throw it off, because neglected colds have brought more serious sickness than any other one thing, while weakening cathartics and stimulating syrups are often depressing and dangerous.

The one best treatment for any cold—the one so often relied on when others fail, is the powerful blood-nourishment in Scott's Emulsion, which feeds the very sources of bodily strength to suppress the present cold and generate strength to thwart further sickness.

Get Scott's first, not last—and insist on the genuine—always free from injurious drugs. No advanced prices.

Conservation

Conservation stands sentinel over the natural resources of our country, and forbids wanton destruction of forests, mines and animal life.

Conservation multiplies the by-products of industry, and changes waste into profit. It is conservation that turns rags into miladi's dainty note paper.

It is conservation that gathers together worn out garments, discarded sheets, carpets, and similar objects which have served their useful purposes. In the General's big roofing mills, these are macerated, saturated, sterilized and beaten into pulp, which finally comes out of the rollers in one continuous sheet of clean, strong roofing felt.

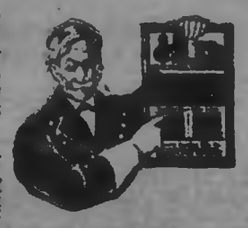
It is then thoroughly saturated with the General's own blend of soft asphalts and coated with a blend of harder asphalts, which keeps the inner saturation soft and prevents the drying-out process so destructive to the ordinary roofing. This explains why

Certain-teed
Roofing

out-lasts other roofings also why the General can safely guarantee it for 5, 10 or 15 years, according to ply. Experience has proved that CERTAIN-TEED will out last the period of guarantee.

The General makes one third of all the rolls of roofing made in America. Because of this enormous production, and the economies due to cheap power, modern machinery and favorably located mills, the General is able to make the best roofing at the lowest cost.

CERTAIN-TEED is made in rolls; also in slate-surfaced shingles. There is a type of CERTAIN-TEED for every kind of building, with flat or pitched roofs, from the largest sky-scraper to the smallest residence or out-building.



CERTAIN-TEED is sold by responsible dealers all over the world, at reasonable prices. Investigate it before you decide on any type of roof.

British Debt is Tripled, French Doubled, in War

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The British national debt is now more than three times what it was at the beginning of the war.

An announcement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer to-day states that in 1914 the public debt of the United Kingdom was 708,000,000 pounds, or $3,540,000,000. At the end of the fiscal year of 1915-1916 it has reached $11,000,000,000.

The Chancellor's statement places the war expenditure of Germany up to the end of 1915 at $7,500,000,000, which is just about equal to the British expenditure.

France, according to the statement, voted credits amounting to $6,200,000,000 between August, 1914, and December, 1915. This doubles the French national debt, which was nearly twice the amount of the British debt at the beginning of the war.

CRISCO
For Frying—For Shortening
For Cake Making

There are three things about Crisco that make it convenient to use in the ordinary kitchen.

It can be kept in any part of the kitchen without becoming too soft or too hard—thus it saves valuable space in the refrigerator and near the stove.

It keeps indefinitely without turning rancid.

It comes to a proper heat for frying without giving off any of the smoke or smell that so often makes cooking an unpleasant process and leaves odors in the kitchen.

General Von Falkenhayn Is The Biggest German Now

Mr. Hendrick Hudson, a neutral who has returned recently to France after a prolonged visit in Germany, has contributed a very interesting article to the Paris Temps, from which the subsequent passages are quoted: "General von Falkenhayn, who was placed at the head of the great General Staff when Field Marshal von Moltke fell into disgrace immediately after the battle of the Marne, is at the present hour the most powerful man in Germany. In regard to his antecedentst one knows that Von Falkenhayn, while a young officer, was obliged to give up his military career on account of having run scandalously into debt. He left for China, where he obtained employment in a commercial house.

"When the expedition against the Boxers was organized in 1900, Von Falkenhayn was permitted to re-enter the army service, because of his valuable knowledge of the country in which the military operations were conducted. Since then he has risen steadily in rank, but he has not been able to shake off his previous reputation.

"Maximilian Harden, the well known journalist, was unsparing in his criticism of General von Falkenhayn's selection as Von Moltke's successor. In his publication, the Zukunft, he declared that it was a bad policy to intrust the fate of Germany to a gambler, even if he were a good one at the game. This bold utterance caused the suppression of the Zukunft for the whole week.

"Von Falkenhayn's power rests on the extraordinary influence he wields over the Kaiser, which is altogether inexplicable to those intimately acquainted with the German ruler. 'Our Emperor has been hypnotized by this general, said a prominent German. 'He is a victim of the dominating spell which the latter has managed to cast over him.'

"Being extremely jealous of his authority, General Von Falkenhayn keeps away from the General Headquarters all persons whom he suspects of trying to gain the confidence of the Kaiser. Many court officials have on different occasions tried to get audiences with their sovereign only to be invariably rebuffed by Von Falkenhayn. Sometimes the refusal is very curt and ungracious. In other instances diplomacy requires that some thinly veiled excuse be given. The Chief of Staff then usually informs the petitioner that His Majesty is just getting ready to depart for another front, but that he will grant the desired audience on his return to headquarters. This promise, however, is never kept. It is by such means that Count August zu Eulenberg, Grand Marshal of the Imperial Court since 1890, has been prevented from seeing Emperor William for several months. The isolation of the Kaiser is an important factor in the plans of the militarist party. The ruler does not learn any more of the real situation and events than General von Falkenhayn designs to let him know. William II is to-day actually the prisoner of his own military camarilla."

CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY

Famous Invalid Succumbs to Exposure at "Jubilee" of Illness Last Week.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Miss Mollie Fancher, famous bedridden invalid who last Friday celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of her illness, is dead at her home, No. 169 Gates avenue, Brooklyn.

Death came Friday morning. A niece and nephew were with her.

At the time of her jubilee Miss Fancher was in better health than for many years, though she had but a short time before recovered from the grip. She caught a cold during the celebration and her heart became affected.

Miss Fancher was prominent in Brooklyn society as a young girl. In February, 1866, she fell from a horse and received injuries that kept her confined to her bed for the rest of her life.

Miss Fancher was extremely anxious to live to celebrate her jubilee. About a year ago she entered into a compact with Dr. Burr Burton in which she agreed to obey implicity his instructions regarding the care of her health and the conservation of her strength if he would do all in his power to keep her alive.

To round out the full fifty years as a helpless invalid was the one ambition of her last months, and she frankly said she did not care how soon after the jubilee death might come.

Two parrots and a canary had been Miss Fancher's constant companions for years.

PREPARED FOR A DASH.

GERMAN VESSELS INTERNED AT TENERIFFE TOOK ON COAL.

MOBILE, Ala., Feb. 15.—Eleven German steamers laid up in the Canary Island ports have been secretly armed for commerce raiding and are preparing to make a dash for the open sea, according to a statement made by Captain F. E. Magone of the American schooner Edward D. Murdock, who says that he delivered 2,100 tons of coal to German agents in Teneriffe, and saw it loaded into the bunkers of the interned German vessels.

66,449 PATRIOTIC WOMEN OF FRANCE VOLUNTEER NURSES

There are now 66,449 women in the French Red Cross volunteer army, equipping 1,500 hospitals with an aggregate of 118,000 beds. The Red Cross flag now flies above 298 buildings in Paris alone.

The Society for Aid to Wounded Soldiers the largest of the three Red Cross organizations and the originator of the work in France in 1866, expended 22,000,000f. ($6,400,000) during the first seventeen months of the war. The society has operated 190 hospitals with 67,000 beds, and given a total of 21,000,000 days' care to wounded soldiers. Besides three hospitals the society maintains a hospital of 300 beds at Salonica, ninety-three refugees established in the sixth and twentieth military regions in France, seventy infirmaries in railroad canteens.

The cost of maintenance of hospitals varies so much that it is difficult to establish average cost per capita per diem, but as near as can be calculated this society has brought its cost down to a little more than three francs (sixty cents) a day.

The Union des Femmes de France, the second in importance of the Red Cross societies, has 28,446 nurses, equipping 855 hospitals, with 29,000 beds while the Association des Dames Francaises has 16000 nurses, in 350 hospitals, with 22,000 beds.

Nurses Killed by Shells.

The mortality among the Red Cross nurses has been remarkably heavy considering the character of their work and the immunity they are supposed to enjoy under the international regulations. Twenty-two members of the society for Aid to the wounded soldiers have given their lives to the cause, some of them killed under shell fire, others carried off by contagious diseases. The nurses of this society have received sixty-three epidemic medals, sixty war crosses and one cross of the Legion of Honor.

The first Red Cross victim of the war was Mlle. Susanne Gilles, who fell at Luneville with her chest torn by the fragment of a shell that burst inside the hospital ward where she was attending wounded. The next was Mlle. Cagnard, at Cambrai, who is declared to have been shot point blank by a Prussian soldier firing into the hospital through the window. During the bombardment at Rheims, seven women of the Red Cross became victims of the bombardment, including Mme. Fontaine-Faudier, Mlle. Causse and five Sisters of Charity.

Many women of the Red Cross give attention to men at the front who have no one to remember them at home. One member, Mme. Richelot, the wife of Dr. L. G. Richelot, is godmother to nine hundred soldiers, which constitutes a record to date.

Replacing Voluntary Nurses.

Regarding the state of mind of wounded soldiers now in the hospitals after sixteen months of war, Mme Perouse, president of the Union des Femmes de France, said: —

"They support their sufferings admirably and are much more anxious to return to the front than were the wounded in the hospitals last year at this time. They talk about active service with an enthusiasm that is contagious.

Mr. Justin Godart, Under Secretary for War, in charge of the sanitary department of the army, has just replaced voluntary women of the Red Cross serving as nurses in some of the military hospitals by paid independent nurses. The choice of nurses outside the three Red Cross organizations developed considerable comment, but there was in this no reflection on the devotion of Red Cross nurses, neither does it bring their efficiency into question. Paid professional nurses are more adaptable to military discipline, which must prevail in all military establishments.

Most of the women who devote themselves to hospital work are from well to do classes; they are necessarily so, since they are required to give not only their time and sometimes their lives, but also their money to the cause. Some of them pay largely for the privilege of serving the country as maids of all work; others pay more dearly for the privilege or working as surgeons' aids and as nurses. Few of them were before the war accustomed to the hard work of housekeeping, and some of them have learned its most elementary principles in the hospitals.

70,000 BLINDED BY ROCK.

Austrians Suffer From Splintered Stone in Isonzo Fighting.

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The Balkan correspondent of the Daily Mail, in describing conditions in Vienna, says that there "as everywhere else in the Teutonic war zone, the food question is the chief topic of conversation." The humorous side of the situation, the correspondent says, is that while the people in Turkey expect to get food from Austria and Germany, the people in Austria and Germany expect to get food from Turkey.

At one of the largest hospitals in Vienna the correspondent visited two halls filled with wounded, who were blinded by rock splinters caused by high explosives on the Italian Isonzo front. There were 70,000 Austrians blinded within six months owing to these rock fragments.

The Austrians are confident that in addition to the new port of Antivari on the Adriatic they will secure Venice and northern Serbia. The despatch concludes with the declaration that despite the victories in the Balkans the ancient hatred of the Prussians is just as strong in Austria today as before the war.

BEHEADING OF THE CHRIST COMPANY

How This Leads to Divine Glory and Blessing.

Revelation a Book of Marvelous Symbolisms—Pictures, Truths, and Facts Covering Entire Gospel and Millennial Ages—History of True and Apostate Church, Crushing of Truth, Its Gradual and Final Rise, Complete and Violent Overthrow of Evil, Reign of the Christ, and World's Final Testing, All Foretold — Wonderful Call of the Church and Their Ultimate Glory.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 20.—Pastor Russell was here to-day and delivered a discourse of great power and interest. We give a condensed report of his address. His text was from Revelation 20:4: "And I saw the souls of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God. . . . And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years."

The Pastor referred to Revelation as a beautiful, symbolic book picturing very much truth. He said that the chapter from which his text was taken contained in itself several pictures in few words covering the entire Millennial Age. Satan's binding at the beginning of the Age is first shown; then the judgment of those who are sitting upon the thrones of earth, which judgment has now begun; then the exaltation of the true Church to reign with Christ. The governments of the world, while capable perhaps of giving some blessing, are not satisfactory and must soon give place to the new Government under God's dear Son, which will bring blessing to all the families of the earth.

A brief mention is made respecting what shall occur at the close of the thousand years of Christ's Reign. After men have been made perfect, they must be tested, while Satan shall be "loosed for a little season," prior to his destruction. Then going back to the beginning of the Millennium, the Revelator depicts the Great White Throne, before which all the world, the living and the dead, are to be brought for judgment, for trial, during that thousand years. They shall receive the wonderful opportunities of the glorious Kingdom of Christ.

How These Souls Are "Beheaded."

But the Pastor's subject related to a part of Verse 4. He declared that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the word soul signifies person. Through arrogance, doctrines, this word has come to have attached to it a wrong meaning, as being something that people possess rather than something that they are. St. John the Revelator was given a vision of the persons who would be beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God. He was given a foreview of what would be their portion—first of sufferings, then of glory and reward. Their reward would be to live and reign with Christ. These were a special class, who had been beheaded for a certain reason. The word "beheaded" here is symbolic. All the true Church were to be beheaded. We know that Christ and the majority of the Apostles were not literally beheaded. And but few of Jesus' followers have been beheaded literally.

The Bible shows, said the speaker, that God has appointed that those who come into Christ shall renounce their own headship, their own will, and receive instead the will of Him whom God has chosen to be their Head—Jesus Christ. They are to be members of Christ's Body. "God hath given Him [Jesus] to be the Head over the Church, which is His Body." (Colossians 1:16; Ephesians 1:22, 13; 1 Corinthians 12:27.) Jesus is the great Mediator for the world. During this Gospel Age God has been preparing a Church class, who are to be the members of the Body of this Mediator and to be associated with Him in His great future work for mankind. The first members of this Body were the Apostles. These freely gave up their lives in the Cause of Christ. They gave up their wills, submitting themselves to the will of God—they were beheaded.

Down through this present Age members have been added to Christ, first from the Jews, then from the Gentiles—from every nation, kindred and tongue. The only way that anyone can become a member of this anointed body of Christ is to present himself a sacrifice to God, first trusting in the sacrificial merit of Jesus. He is our great Substitute, who has redeemed us from the death penalty resting upon Adam's race. Accepting Him thus, and presenting ourselves to God through Christ, His merit is imputed to us and we are accepted as joint-sacrificers with Jesus, who then becomes our Head. We are thus beheaded. Our own will is dead. So all during this Age there has been a little company of people who have taken a course different from that of the remainder of the world, different from that of the apostate systems. These become sons of God. They are dead with Jesus as human beings, and are begotten to a new, a spiritual nature.—Colossians 3:3.

What This Beheading Signifies.

The Pastor emphasized the importance that all those who make a consecration of themselves to God understand clearly that they are thus renouncing all the hopes and ambitions of the world, for the far grander and Heavenly hopes now held out to those who become disciples of Christ, who deny themselves to take up their cross and follow Him. The question for each one who has made this choice is: Am I faithfully following in the footsteps of Jesus? Jesus gave up His will wholly to the Father. He said, "I came not to do Mine own will, but the will of Him that sent Me." We are to follow His example, to walk in His steps. We are to lay down our lives for the brethren, as He laid down His life.

The losing of our heads, our wills, does not mean that we actually have no will, but that our wills are fully submitted to God's will. Whatever we see to be contrary to His will for us is to be wholly relinquished. We may be sure, said the Pastor, that our Saviour when on earth, being a perfect man, had a will, a strong will; but that will was entirely submitted to the will of His Heavenly Father. "Not My will, but Thine, be done," was His expression. "The cup which My Father hath poured for Me, shall I not drink it?" He said.

Because our Lord Jesus fully gave up His will to God and was obedient even unto the ignominious death of the cross, the Father highly exalted Him, giving Him a name "far above angels, principalities, and powers and every name that is named." (Ephesians 1:20-23.) And we, His Church, if faithful to our Heavenly Calling, are to be exalted with Him, and under Him as our Head. The Bible presents a beautiful picture

Pastoral Comments on Hymn of Consecration.

The Pastor gave a beautiful, running comment on a popular hymn of consecration, by Frances Ridley Havergal: "Take my life and let it be, Lord, acceptable to Thee." Yes, he said, we are acceptable to God through Christ. Thus only can we come. We give Him our whole life. "Take my hands and let them move at the impulse of Thy love." Yes, but our hands are imperfect, and it is only through Jesus that our work is acceptable to God, that our hands may glorify Him. "Take my feet, and let them be swift on errands, Lord, for Thee." Yes, we wish Him to use our feet in His dear service. Gladly will we hasten on errands of love for Him. "Take my voice, and let it bring honor always to my King." Yes, we wish Him to take our voice. But our words are very imperfect. Our brain and our tongue are faulty. But the Father says, "I will cover you with the merit of Jesus. He was perfect, and I will credit His perfection to you. Your voice may have sometimes been used to slander another; the tongue has great power for evil as well as good. But now you have submitted that voice, that tongue, to Me, I will make it a power for good."

"Take my lips and let them be moved with messages from Thee." Yes, dear brethren, that is the thought. Let the blessed Message of salvation and grace overflow our lips to God's praise and to the blessing of others. "Take my silver and my gold; nothing, Lord, would I withhold." The Lord answers, Yes, dear child, I will take this which you give to Me. I do not need your gold and silver; for "all the silver and the gold are Mine, and the cattle upon a thousand hills." But I will receive it as a mark of your love, as an indication of your devotion to Me.

"Take my moments and my days; let them flow in ceaseless praise." We often fear that our moments may not always praise the Lord as they ought, and our days are not always just what we would like them to be. But our Lord lovingly answers our troubled hearts and says: "I know even better than you do how imperfect you are in word and deed. But through Christ I receive you and accept your imperfect works and endeavors. He will make up for your unavoidable deficiencies." So we take courage and strive and our days and hours and moments may indeed bring glory to our King who so loves us and whom we so love. His arrangement for us in Christ is so wonderful.

"Take my will and make it Thine." Ah, yes! that is the very first thing to be done. "It shall be no longer mine." We wish our will to be the Lord's, and His alone. If we have any self-will God cannot use us. "Take my heart, it is Thine own." Yes, we have consecrated our heart with all its impulses and affections to the Lord. "Thus in me Thyself enthrone." Our heart shall be His royal throne forevermore.

"Take my love, my God; I pour
At Thy feet its treasure-store.
Take myself—I wish to be Ever, only, all for Thee!"

This is indeed our sentiment. The doing of all this is a life-work. While our consecration was the work of a moment, yet the fulfilling of it is the work of our entire lives. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." So while in one sense our beheading, our decapitation, is an instantaneous matter, yet we must continue to keep ourselves beheaded even unto death. Then we shall live and reign with Christ a thousand years, and be His associates in all His glory and honor forevermore. Glory, honor, immortality! Wonderful, wonderful! If such a prize does not appeal to our hearts, what would? When we see the loyalty and courage manifested by the soldiers of the warring nations across the sea, how they are willing to go down to the valley of death for their kings, not knowing even what they are fighting for, how loyal should we be to our Heavenly King—we who have hopes so glorious held out to us, who have a King so infinitely worthy of our zeal and loyalty? Our King does not say, "Go!" He says, "Come!" Gladly will we be beheaded for the witness of Jesus and for the Word of God.

ENGAGEMENT IN CHINA

Government Forces Are Combatting Revolutionary Troops.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 19.—Two Chinese newspapers here received cablegrams from Hong Kong to the effect that European papers in Hong Kong report an engagement between Government forces in Kwantung under General Lung Chi Kwong and revolutionary troops. The rebels, who, according to the cablegrams, were equipped with machine guns, killed many and captured about 1,000 Government troops.

HOW IT FEELS TO BE HIT BY SUBMARINE'S TORPEDO

Graphic Account of the Sinking of the Persia by One Who Was on It

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Lord Montagu of Beaulieu, upon his arrival at Southampton badly wounded from injuries received when the Persia was sunk in the Mediterranean by a torpedo, gives to the London Times the following graphic statement:

"I am really returning from the grave," he said, telling his story.

"The voyage of the Persia was very successful until she was torpedoed, and every one on board was very comfortable and happy, nearing home. About 11:10 a.m. on Thursday, the 30th, as we were sitting down to luncheon, there was a terrific explosion just abaft the main saloon. It blew out parts of the walls of the dining saloon, and the smell of the acids in the torpedo at once told me what had happened.

The passengers all of whom had been previously assigned to certain lifeboats, tried to reach their appointed station. When I got to mine, which was lifeboat No. 6 the ship was keeling over so badly that it was found impossible to launch any of the boats on that side. I climbed up with great difficulty to the starboard side, trying to pull with me my secretary, Miss Thornton, who happened to be near.

Saved by Waistcoat.

Within three minutes after the torpedo struck the ship was on her beam ends, going down by the stern. I was swept off my feet by a rush of waters and in a few seconds found myself in the ocean and under water. It seemed that I would never come up. As the great ship went down, I was sucked along with it, striking my head and body several times with great violence either against parts of the ship or wreckage. I don't know which.

I wore a Gieve waistcoat, which has more buoyancy than an ordinary life-preserver. Thus, while I lost unconsciousness from blows on the head received under water, my waistcoat promptly brought me to the surface. When I recovered my senses and looked around, I saw the sea covered with struggling human beings, very little wreckage, and no sign of the Persia.

"Only three undamaged boats were left afloat; these only partly filled. I swam about fifty yards toward a boat floating upside down. Eventually I managed to climb up and get astride of the keel. From this position, I saw a boat half filled, a short distance away, and shouted for help. As frantic cries were rising on all sides, I make no complaint that mine were not heeded.

Two Die in Lifeboat.

"Twenty-six persons wearing lifepreservers of some kind eventually caught hold of the capsized boat, but several of these were too weak to hold on. A big wave occasionally knocked us all off. One of these righted the boat and nineteen of us eventually managed to scramble into it. She had a hole in her bottom so that she barely floated.

"All the afternoon was spent in this precarious situation. Several times we were swept by great waves out of the boat, and I owe my life to Alexander Clark, a Scotch second-class passenger, who helped me to climb back into the boat once when I was exhausted. I could not have survived without aid.

"Before the night was gone, two of the survivors died from exhaustion. As their bodies were washed about in the boat, we finally threw them overboard. The night seemed interminable. At dawn the next morning there were eleven left in the boat. We saw a two-funnel steamer several miles away and hoisted a piece of torn flag on the one oar left in the boat.

Fight to Keep Awake.

"But the steamer passed westward within three miles. The rest of the day we saw nothing. The sun in the middle of the day became very hot. The second night was very cold.

"I think we all during that night gave up hope of being saved. My Scotch friend remarked philosophically as the sun went down, 'I guess that's the last sunset we shall ever see.' We both found it a great struggle to keep awake. The tendency to drowsiness was almost irresistible, but to fall asleep, we all knew meant the end.

"We capsized one more during the night. One of my fellow-sufferers yielded to the temptation to drink salt water, as we had all been without food for thirty-six hours. He promptly went out of his head.

"Just before dawn of the second night we saw the masthead lights of a steamer far away to the eastward. I at first thought it was a star. Presently I discerned her sidelights, which showed that she was coming nearly straight for us. When she got closer we started shouting in unison. I led the others by calling: 'One, two, three! Shout!'

Rescued by Steamer.

"When the ship was half a mile away, she ported her helm, stopped her engines, and appeared to be hesitating. We knew then that, like other ships, she expected a ruse and dared not approach. After sometime she came nearer. We heard a shout from her bridge. Then her steam whistle was blown. If you have ever known what it is to escape from the very jaws of death, you know how we felt.

"The ship proved to be the Alfred Holt's steamer Nedg Chow, Captain, bound from China for London. We had to be lifted on board like inert sacks with ropes tied under our arms. On board we found nothing but kindness.

"I have been asked by many how long I could have held out. I don't know. But I know how I had determined when the end became certain to end my suffering. I did not want to show weakness to my fellow-sufferers, but I decided when I reached the limit of endurance secretly to let the air out of my Gieve waistcoat and to slip quietly overboard and drown when the next big wave came.

"I would rather not speak about the thoughts which occur to one facing death in this way for a long period. I can tell you they naturally centre around home and the people you love."

Headaches, sleeplessness and tired, draggy feelings soon disappear when you restore vigor to the exhausted nerves by using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Final Effort of Germany on Franco-Belgian Front

That the Franco-Belgian front will be the scene of the final effort of Germany to win the war, and that soon, is the opinion of the French officer who, under the nom de plume of Polybe, has since the outset of the war written many excellent critiques for the Figaro. He warns France to beware and to prepare for the inevitable.

"From day to day," he writes, "Germany tries more nervously to work from her victories to victory, which is still another thing.

"She has searched for a decisive action on the Yser and the Aisne, on the Vistula, on the Niemen, on the Dwina, and on the Vardar. Victorious or defeated, she has always found her goal still far beyond her. Through all the points of the compass she has searched. Where is the path of triumph toward peace?

"Since Britain has fortified both banks of the Suez Canal and filled the valley of the Nile with troops there is no longer talk of the 'classical' expedition into Egypt.

"The other eccentric and fabulous expedition into Mesopotamia is gaining nothing. The Turks are breaking their teeth before Kut-el-Amara. The great line from the Elbe mouths to the Persian Gulf is slowly sinking, like the value of the mark.

"What does the German General Staff expect to get from the operations upon our line at Saloniea? Fatigue and politics have retarded the assault. The Bulgars are practical persons, who will not willingly work for the King of Prussia without reimbursement. Are the Germans going to work for the King of the Bulgars?

"The war is halted in Russia, mired in the marshes of Pinsk, frozen before Dvinsk and Riga. In August it was believed in Berlin and Vienna that Russia was at the end of her resources. The colossus was about to fall. Our days were numbered.

"In the springtime, whose first crackings will be heard soon under the Livonian glaciers, will Hindenburg be able to resist the Russian offensive? He will need all his strength and energies with an army that is exhausting itself day by day.

"The decision, then, will be sought by Germany along our own front. There she will make her most powerful effort, with all her strength. Logic points to that. To-morrow? The day after? She tried our Champagne front yesterday and found it strong. The day before yesterday the Flanders soil was a bog. Let us sharpen all our swords. Let us keep all our powder dry. Let us look the inevitable in the face. We can regard it with calmness."

French Censors Make Mistake of Allowing a Harmful Publication

Almost since its first establishment the military censorship in France has been constantly denounced for its suppression and distortion of news despatches relating to matters connected with the war. In a late issue of the Gaulois, Mr. Charles Chenu launches an attack on the French censors from an entirely new view, charging the authorities with having failed to quash news which should never have been allowed to appear in print.

"During last summer," he writes, "a well informed newspaper of large circulation published a picture of a farm with this legend beneath, 'The farm of Berthouval, where our soldiers from the trenches are taking a well earned rest.' It passed the censors all right, but somehow a copy of the newspaper got into the hands of the enemy, and two days later Berthouval's farm was showered with immense shells, which caused an appalling loss of lives. 'What are the censors thinking of?' wrote one of the survivors to me. 'Of every other thing,' I answered him. Of course, if the editor himself had thought of the possibility that the newspaper might come before the eyes of the invaders, he would have suppressed the picture on his own initiative, censor or no censor.

"Another example of careless censoring:—

"It is all very well to give close attention to everything that may help to diminish the privations and discomforts of our troops, to inquire about their needs and to provide means for alleviating them to whatever extent this can be done. If they need fuel at some camp it should be made known, yet not with comments like those below, which I am repeating after one of our great newspapers:—

"'It is necessary that the charcoal which is sent to furnish warmth for the soldiers in camp or in the trenches be apportioned in such fashion that the greater part of the supply will not be placed at the disposition of the officers, who are undoubtedly ignorant of the fact that some of the fuel used in providing them with little luxuries was originally intended for their subordinates.'

"This paragraph failed to draw the censors scissors into action. But what would the man in the street think when they read the story? The common soldiers would conclude that if they feel cold, it is because their officers have it too warm, and if their feet get numb and frostbitten it is in order that their superiors shall be able to bask in summer temperature. Little more provocation would be needed, especially if fanned into flame by some malcontents, to disturb the sacred bonds of mutual confidence which should bind officers and soldiers together."

That He Could Depend on Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to Cure Many of the Common Ills of Life

Living eighteen miles from a drug store Mr. Carr found it necessary to keep in the house some treatment to regulate the action of liver, kidneys, and bowels.

To the habit of keeping these important organs active by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, when required, he attributes the good health of his large family.

Here, surely, is evidence of the value of these pills as a family medicine to protect the members of the family who use it from the common ills so many of which arises from constipation of the bowels and torpid condition of the liver and kidneys.

Mr. James Carr, Maynooth, Ont., writes: "About 19 years ago I received an envelope containing two of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I was doctoring at the time with two doctors, and as they did me no good I used the Pills, and by the time I had finished one box I was cured of the pain in the back and shoulders.

"We have great confidence in Dr. Chase's Medicines. I have a family of ten children and have never had a doctor in the house for any of them. We live eighteen miles from a drug store and find that these Pills cure nearly all the ordinary ills by regulating the liver, kidneys and bowels. That we are all well and sound I attribute to their use and I have recommended them to hundreds and given away many a box because I believe there is no medicine so good."

By awakening the action of liver kidneys and bowels Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cleanse the system of poisons and remove the cause of biliousness, headaches, backache, lumbago, kidney disease and rheumatism. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

EXAMINER PATTERN SERVICE

LADY'S MORNING SET.

By Anabel Worthington.

7608

These natty sets are taking the place of the wrapper, the fitted house dress and even for bungalow use for the early hours of the day. The set consists of cap, blouse and skirt.

The cap is in one piece, with a band revers outlining the face. This may be faced with a trimming material.

The blouse is of the middy type. It is cut in one piece, with the short sleeves in one with the body of the garment. It is slipped on over the head through the opening of the neck and the centre of the front, and the neck is trimmed with a sailor collar of moderate size. Patch pockets are placed at each side of the front above the hem, which hangs well down on the hips.

The skirt has four gores. It is fitted in front and is gathered in the back. Here tapes or elastic may be used so that the garment may be adjusted to the figure both with and without corsets.

Even quite thin lawn is used for these sets, but even more popular are crinkled crepe in flowered and striped designs and gingham, chambray, &c. All are bordered with a plain color in contrast or to match the figure of the goods.

The set pattern, No. 7,608, is cut in sizes 34 to 42 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 5¼ yards of 36 inch material, with ½ yard of 36 inch goods to trim.

This pattern can be obtained by sending 10 cents to the office of this paper.

When ordering remember to give your name and address as well as the number and size of pattern required, and age of a child.

Price 15 cents, or 2 for 25c.

Russian Military Surgeons Arrested

Implicated in Plot to Obtain Exemption from Military Service.

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—"A Russian newspaper publishes sensational disclosures concerning illegal exemptions from military service," says the Overneas News Agency. "The secretary of a recruiting committee at Petrograd and a large number of military surgeons have been arrested. They are charged with having accepted amounts ranging from 10,000 rubles up in each case.

"The Russian press also reports that a Moscow committee for the relief of refugees received 200,000 rubles from the Government in December of 1915. The president of the committee, Prince Troubaskoy, stated later that 200,000 rubles more was sent to the committee in December and 700,000 rubles in January, but that this money never reached its destination. The leakage has not yet been explained.

"This corruption, together with the reactionary policy of the Russian authorities, caused a strong opposition movement among members of the Duma. After the downfall of Premier Goremykin, the new Premier, M. Sturmer, attempted to calm the storm by meeting the party leaders individually. Most of these leaders declined to receive him. He then invited the leaders to afternoon tea in order to establish harmonious social relations, but this move was equally unsuccessful, as was demonstrated by the recent convention of the party leaders."

ROUMANIAN RESERVISTS RECALLED FROM GREECE

Paris, Feb. 17—A Havas despatch filed at Athens yesterday says the Roumanian Consul at Salonica has invited all reservists remaining in that city to return to Roumania immediately.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and abundant with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair fell out or took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, ready to use, for about 50 cents. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural colour and beauty to the hair, and is splendid for dandruff, dry, itchy scalp and falling hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it is so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and abundant.

Rider Haggard Aids Welding of Empire

Lord Curzon Among Those Back of Project—Canada on his Itinerary.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—Sir Rider Haggard has left England on a trip around the world, with a mission from the Royal Colonial Institute to investigate the chances for empire-building after the war. His plan, backed by the institute and its important officials, including Lord Curzon, is to prevent the emigration to foreign countries of soldiers and their families after the war, and to direct steady streams of the war veterans to the British colonies—South Africa, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, and the many insular colonies—thus recruiting the population with a sturdy and intelligent class, and holding them within the British Empire.

It is the latest phase of the imperial movement, which seeks to bind together the mother country and the oversea dominions into a vast confederacy.

Sir Rider talked with the Associated Press correspondent just before starting on his trip. While he is one of the interesting literary figures of England, he is besides a Justice of the Peace of his home town in Norfolk and a student on land settlement, unemployment, and agriculture, and this qualification led to his choice as Commissioner.

He will go first to South Africa, then eastward to the Straits Settlements, Australia, New Zealand, and will be in the United States and Canada next Summer or Fall, going from the Pacific to the Atlantic.

"I am going to inquire," said Sir Rider, "into the possibilites of the British Empire, with reference to land settlement and employment of ex-service men after the war. It is obvious that, during the turmoil and change of conditions resulting from so great a struggle, a large number of men will become dissatisfied with their former employment.

"I am going merely to inquire and report, and to form my own conclusions from what I see. That, I think, is a useful work, since it is foolish to put off such investigations till the war ends, when there would be great difficulty in dealing with the matter. Indeed, the problem of land settlement is one which cannot be tackled in a hurry. My conclusions will be embodied in my report to the Royal Colonial Institute, and perhaps in a book on the landed and other resources of the Empire." Referring to the class of war veterans who would go out to replenish the colonial empire, Sir Rider said: "Such men as are being considered as possible emigrants would, of course, taken as a whole, be of the very highest class, soldiers and sailors who had been under discipline and shown themselves to possess the best qualities of manhood. Any portion of the colonies should be proud to see such men and their womankind arrive as an addition to their population, and I am quite sure many parts of the Empire will welcome them. There is another thing I am sure will result, that the Empire will cease to be so fond of admitting Germans and other foreigners within its gates, and will prefer to stick to Anglo-Saxons."

OUR SPLENDID VINOL

Quickly Stopped Mr. Clark's Hang-on Cough.

We have seen right here in Peterborough such wonderful results from the use of Vinol in such cases, that we agree to return the money to anyone who tries it and does not get the same result Mr. Clark did. He says: "I used Vinol for a chronic cough and hard could which it seemed impossible to get rid of. At nights I would cough violently so I couldn't sleep. I learned about Vinol through a friend who had used it at the house where I am living, and the result of its use in my case was that the hard cold was soon well and the chronic cough disappeared in very short order." F. J. Clark, 9 Pearl St., Amsterdam, N.Y.

It's the tonic iron, the extract of fresh cod livers without oil and beef peptone contained in Vinol that makes it such a successful remedy for chronic coughs, colds and bronchitis. Try it on our guarantee.

German Birth Rate Is On The Decline

Race Suicide has Not Been Confined to the Poorer Classes.

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 19.—The declining birth rate in Germany which was attracting attention before the war, is receiving more serious consideration at the present time in view of the losses sustained in the field.

The subject was brought up today in the Budget Committee of the Prussian Diet.

A representative of the Ministry predicted that unless a radical change should be made, Germany would soon be in the position of France, with deaths exceeding births.

The speaker also referred to the high rate of infant mortality. He also said one of the gravest hindrances to the growth of the population was the increase in the number of premature births caused deliberately, an evil which was not confined to the poorer classes.

The Minister of Education said he recognised the seriousness of the situation. He informed the committee that the Government already had taken the matter under consideration and was conferring with specialists in an effort to devise ways of remedying the evil.

Everyone Should Drink Hot Water in the Morning

To feel your best day in and day out, to feel clean inside; no sour bile to coat your tongue and sicken your breath or dull your head; no constipation, bilious attacks, sick headache, colds, rheumatism or gassy, acid stomach, you must bathe on the inside like you bathe outside. This is vastly more important, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do, says a well-known physician.

To keep these poisons and toxins well flushed from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, drink before breakfast each day, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from your pharmacist. It is inexpensive and almost tasteless, except a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. Drink phosphated hot water every morning to rid your system of these vile poisons and toxins; also to prevent their formation.

To feel like young folks feel; like you felt before your blood, nerves and muscles became saturated with an accumulation of body poisons, begin this treatment and above all, keep it up! As soap and hot water act on the skin, cleansing, sweetening, and purifying, so limestone phosphate and hot water before breakfast act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels.

Sheerness is Pivotpoint In English Blockade

Port is Strategic Nerve Centre of Great Britain War Fleet.

"Sheerness is the pivot point in the English blockade of the North sea and control of all the channel waters," according to a war geography sketch just given out by the National Geographic society. "This port, situated behind a powerful shelter of fortification on the southern shore of the Thames' estuary, is the strategic nerve centre of the great English war fleet, as regards its campaign in West European waters. Portsmouth, it is true, is the first naval port and arsenal of Britain, and the threads directing war upon the seas run from this port to every quarter of the world. However, it is at Sheerness and neighboring Chatham, that the battleships, destroyers, scout cruisers and torpedo boats have their base for the patrolling of channel waters, for the closing of the seas to the north, and for guarding the troop and munitions communications from Dover and Brighton to Calais and Boulogne.

"The garrison town and seaport are situated on the Isle of Sheppey where the Medway estuary joins with the Thames, 51 miles east of London, and joined with the metropolis by the Southeastern and Chatham railway. Thrown around the port are a chain of formidable modern fortifications, opposing such armament as would make attack by an enemy fleet almost impossible. There are also extensive barracks here, and acres of warehouse space piled high with naval stores. Residences for the admiral of the home fleet and other naval officers constitute the most important part of the city.

"The dockyard of Sheerness equipped for the carrying out of all kinds of naval repairs, covers about 60 acres, including three basins and large modern docks. The harbor is a spacious and excellent one. Sheerness is primarily a war harbor, with little importance as a place of trade. It has fallen once before the attack of a hostile fleet, but that was before the days of formidable ordnance, when the Dutch Admiral De Ruyter captured the fort of Charles II at Sheerness on July 10, 1667. It is unthinkable that De Ruyter's achievement could be repeated to-day in the fact of the town's mighty up-to-date defenses."

Stomach Was Bad.

Could Eat Hardly Anything.

When the stomach gets out of order the whole system seems to become affected in one way or an other. The breath becomes foul, the tongue furred, the appetite becomes disturbed, nausea and vomiting occur, there is a rising and souring of food caused by the acidity of the stomach, and the stomach and bowels become distended causing flatulency. Unless these symptoms are met with immediately, dyspepsia or some other serious trouble is liable to follow as a consequence.

That grand old remedy, Burdock Blood Bitters, has been on the market for the past forty years, and we claim, without any fear of contradiction, that there is not another medicine on the market to-day that can compare with it for the cure of all disturbances of the stomach.

Miss Lillian E. Phillips, Pleasantscop, N.B., writes: "My stomach was so bad I was in pain and misery. I could eat hardly anything. I had been treated by skillful doctors for it, but they did me no good. I was giving up in despair when I happened to hear of Burdock Blood Bitters. You can't think how fast it helped me, for I had only taken two bottles before I was better. I will recommend your medicine very highly to all my friends and sufferers."

Burdock Blood Bitters is manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PREVENT SPREAD OF CHINA REVOLT

HANKOW, Feb. 17.—Every precaution is being taken by the Chinese government to prevent Hankow and the neighboring cities of Wuchang and Han Yang from falling into revolutionary control. Strict guard is kept over the Han Yang arsenal, northern troops having been placed in charge of this important arms and ammunition centre. Big guns have been placed on Tortoise hill and Serpeant hill at Han Yang, which command all three of the cities. These two hills overlook both the Yang Tse and the Han rivers, which join at this place and make it possible for the force holding them to control all river traffic as well as the land situation.

Have to be Quiet.

Since the Yunnan revolt became known in Hupen province, there have been many executions of rebels and their agents at Wu-Chang, the capital of Hupeh province, which lies across the Yang-Tse from Hankow. Executions have also been frequent at Hankow and Han Yang. Consequently there is little discussion of the political situation in public places by the common people and the local vernacular newspapers print virtually no news concerning the revolution excepting official telegrams and despatches supporting the monarchial movement.

In spite of various rumors of revolutionary activity, the government appears to have very good control of the situation. Troops have been scattered along the Yang Tse river in such a way as to prevent the great watercourse from falling under the control of revolutionaries.

Movements Slow.

Shallow steamers of the Sino-Japanese Steamship Company have been employed by the government, together with Chinese steamers, for the transportation of troops up the Yang-Tse to I-Chang. From that point wooden boats must be used to Chung-King. From there, the troops will enter into the province of Kwei-Chow, going overland. Already the first division of Hu Pehs troops have started up the Yang-Tse and it will be joined by the third division of the northern army. Transportation is extremely difficult both on the upper Yang Tse and overland from Chung-King to Kwei-Chow province. Consequently, the movement will be slow and the troops will not be able to carry heavy guns. However, they are amply provided with rifles and cartridges.

It is apparent that the Chinese government is directing its military operations so as to surround Yunnan, and prevent the revolution from spreading, rather than in an effort to enter Yunnan and actually suppress it.

For the pacification of the public in Hu Peh and Sze-Chuen provinces, through which the expeditionary forces will pass in making its way to Kwei-Chow province, military officers have issued notice that all purchases made by the officers and soldiers will be paid for in cash and that no boats or cargoes will be commandeered by the army without payment. A military transportation office has been established at Hankow especially for this purpose, with branches at I-Chang and Chung-King. In previous military movements the public has suffered very badly at the hands of soldiers of all armies, and consequently the government thought it advisable to allay fear concerning the action of the expeditionary force.

ARTILLERY OPERATIONS WERE LIGHT ON THE WESTERN BATTLE FRONT

Enemy Attempted, Without Success, Two Attacks With Grenades --- Squadron of French Aeroplanes Bombarded Munition Depots in The Region of Dieuzepy---Projectiles Dropped on Luneville, Dombasle, and Nancy---Little Damage Was Done.

A NEW WAR LOAN

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The War Office gave out the following report this afternoon:

"Operations on the part of the artillery on both sides were light over the whole front, except to the north of Verdun, where there was some activity in the Artois district, to the northwest of Hill No. 140. The enemy attempted without success two local attacks with grenades.

"A squadron of five French aeroplanes bombarded the munitions depots of the enemy at Chateau de Martincourt and at Azoudanga, southwest and southeast of Dieuzepy.

"German aeroplanes dropped some projectiles last night on Luneville, Dombasle and Nancy. They caused only a small amount of damage."

Deadlock Over Sub. Disputes Approaching

Special to The Examiner:

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—A deadlock between the United States and Germany over the submarine warfare disputes approached to-day. That the issue over Germany's new decree to sink armed merchantmen without warning would be outlined clearly this week was believed in Administration quarters.

State Department officials privately admitted to-day that if the despatches from Carl W. Ackerman, the United Press correspondent giving advance indications of Germany's probable attitude are borne out, the two governments will reach an impasse.

Officials make no attempt to disguise the gravity of the situation, but say the crisis will not be reached for several days, not until the formal communications between Germany and Washington definitely outline the positions of the two governments on the arming of merchantmen.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Proclamations calling up group one under the Derby recruiting scheme for service before April were posted to-day.

Ask Government To Prepare For Attack

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—With Germany's new submarine campaign against all armed merchantmen but nine days' distant, the London newspapers to-day called upon the Government to take prompt steps to combat the new crusade of frightfulness.

"We are forewarned, let us see that we are forearmed," was the slogan.

A warning was issued at the same time that another raid by Zeppelins may be expected to follow the Sunday attack by German seaplanes, on east and southeast coasts of England.

From Paris came reports of an attempted attack on the French liner Chicago by a German commerce raider, increasing the belief that the Germans are planning spectacular demonstrations on the sea and in the air.

The fact that the French liner Chicago, making only sixteen knots an hour, found no difficulty in escaping the supposed German raider near the Bay of Biscay, indicates that the German is a comparatively slow-going craft that will be easy prey for an English cruiser. A few hours before the strange craft ordered him to heave to last Thursday night, the Chicago's captain received a wireless warning him that an enemy raider was in the vicinity. Without attempting to establish the identity of the stranger he signalled full speed ahead, and rushed into Bordeaux.

Greek Cruiser To Arrive At Durazzo

Special to The Examiner:

PARIS, Feb. 21.—The Greek cruiser Helle has arrived at the Albanian port of Durasso to protect Greek residents in that city and in surrounding districts, in case the Bulgarians should succeed in entering the city.

Russians Occupy The City of Bitlis

Special to The Examiner:

ROME, Feb. 21.—The Turks are evacuating the Armenian City of Bitlis, southwest of Lake Van, according to Petrograd advices to-day. The Russians, the despatch stated, have followed up the conquest of Mush and Achlat by occupying all the region around Lake Van.

Bitlis is the capital of an Armenian Vilayet and has a population of about 30,000.

London Believes Wilson is Responsible

Special to The Examiner.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—London newspapers generally agreed to-day that President Wilson is responsible for the reported estrangement between Secretary of State Lansing and Ambassador Bernstorff. Headlines over Washington reports took the view that Lansing's new attitude toward Bernstorff has been dictated by Wilson because he feels he has been embarrassed by the stories emanating from the German Embassy.

A New War Credit Of Two Billion Dollars

Special to The Examiner:

LONDON, Feb. 21.—Premier Asquith this afternoon introduced in the Commons the Government measure for a new war credit of two billion dollars.

The voting of these credits, the Prime Minister stated, will raise England's total war expenditure to $1,782,000,000. According to unofficial estimates all belligerents in the European war have spent, since the beginning of hostilities, about forty billions.

Accurate estimates from several of the belligerents are unavailable, but it is generally believed that Germany has spent about 8½ billions, and France about 7½ billions since the beginning of the war. Italy's expenditures in December were estimated at more than six hundred millions.

A SATURDAY NIGHT FRACAS ON GEORGE STREET

Culminated This Morning in a Couple of Contributions To The Civic Treasury—Aftermath of A Chicken Chop Suey Supper

POLICE COURT

All the fighting men are not in khaki. Two would-be pugilists visited the New York cafe, George street, on Saturday evening about nine o'clock and after partaking of a chicken chop suey, invited Wing Hong, the proprietor, out on the street for a fight. He declined with thanks, whereupon, it is alleged, one of the men threw a pickle bottle at him. Some high explosive language followed, after which the police appeared on the scene and the curtain was rung down until this morning, when it was raised, revealing a police court scene, with Police Magistrate Dumble on the bench. The two men, who gave their names as James Carrol and John Arrowsmith, pleaded not guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct. They were defended by Mr. H. R. Armstrong of the legal firm of Gordon and Widdifield, while Mr. Joseph Wearing appeared for the inoffensive Chinaman. Lee Yu acted as interpreter for the latter, and with a little coaching on the part of Mr. Wearing and a manifestation of patience on the part of the Court, managed to extract from Wing Hong a fairly lucid account of the fracas. Lee Yu said that Wing Hong was not only a Chinaman, but a Christian, and was therefore qualified to take the oath in the conventional manner. "Hong," he explained, was a family name.

The Evidence.

According to the evidence, the prisoners entered the restaurant about nine o'clock on Saturday evening in a somewhat lubricated condition. They ordered chicken chop suey and by way of desert broke a few dishes and showered verbal abuse upon the proprietor. This the latter resented. The prisoners replied with a few more expletives, despite the fact that a number of young ladies were in the restaurant at the time. One of them picked up a pickle bottle and hurled it at the man with disastrous effect, as evidenced by the cuts which he exhibited in court this morning. The value of the broken dishes was estimated at three dollars.

Throughout the proceedings, Arrowsmith sat with his countenance wreathed in smiles. Magistrate Dumble removed the smile with a five dollar fine and costs, amounting in all to eight dollars and seventy-five cents. Carroll will have to pay a similar amount.

Peaceful Belgium

EXPERIENCES ALL THE

Horrors Of The War

Will our citizens think over and try to realize the absolute need for assistance to the Belgian people? No form of beneficence is more worthy.

We are in debt to Belgium. A debt we can never pay. It is the last thing that we should repudiate. And if we do not give now we are encouraging a careless view of our responsibility.

The campaign to be put on this week is an appeal to your heart and your pocket. Make use of both and do Peterborough credit. A man is known by the company he keeps. Peterborough will be recognized as being of worth by the sum it will contribute.

What Belgium needs is food. Wheat, unground, not only provides food but work for the Belgians, and they are as anxious to work as to eat. One bag of flour, which costs in the neighbourhood of $3.00 in Canada, will support one Belgian family a month.

Do not be alarmed, do not hesitate because you may feel that your contribution will not get to the hands it is destined to help. The local committee will take scrupulous care that all moneys are well guarded. Be satisfied of that. The Montreal committee are the Wardens of the Fund, and the men at the helm are above suspicion.

Get ready for the canvas. Tuesday to Friday of THIS week. Your contribution will not interfere with your requirements. It can be extended over a year, if necessary. You make the allowance, the collection will be taken care of.

ANOTHER QUOTA OF 52ND BATTERY LEAVES FOR KINGSTON

Artillerymen Are Given a Send Off by the 93rd Battalion This Morning---Peterboro Soldier is Wounded---Monster Parade and Kit Inspection for The 93rd---To-day's Orders and General Military News.

Another detachment of artillerymen recruited in Peterborough for the 52nd Battery, C.F.A., C.E.F., left on the morning G.T.R. train to-day, for Kingston, and in spite of the severity of the weather, there were many out to say good-bye. The artillerymen fell in at the Armouries, and were escorted to the station by the 93rd Battalion, headed by the Bugle Band, the frosty weather making it impossible for the brass band to play. The battery men were given a hearty send off.

The 93rd Battalion was occupied with a muster parade and kit inspection this morning, and as a result there was no drill.

A set of light drums for the 93rd Bugle Band arrived this morning, and the members of the band are as tickled as a boy with a new toy. The drums are of a deep pattern and very handsomely decorated. They will add both to the appearance and the playing ability of the band.

Quartermaster-Sergt. Goodhouse, musketry instructor, was a visitor at the Armouries this morning.

Owing to alterations in the barracks at Kingston, the signallers of the 93rd who were to have gone to Kingston to-day will not leave until next Monday.

Word has been received from the Adjutant-General's Department that Pte. Albert Daniel Storey, of the 4th Battalion, formerly of the 39th Battalion, is officially reported admitted into No. 26 General Hospital at Etaples on Feb. 10th, suffering from a gunshot wound in the leg. Pte. Storey enlisted in Toronto, but his relatives live at 666 Concession St., and he has a brother, Pte. Fred Storey, in the 93rd Battalion here. He was transferred from the 39th Battalion to the 4th some time ago.

A Local Minister Favors Conscription

Rev. R. G. Peever Declares His Belief in the Principle At Recruiting Meeting Last Night—Returned Soldier Tells of Life at the Front.

PRISONER IN GERMANY

Last evening's recruiting rally at the armouries was featured by a straightforward declaration in favour of conscription from Rev. R. G. Peever and a breezy description of life at the front and behind the German lines by Pte. Arthur Gibbons, a member of the Queen's Own Rifles, Toronto, who was for four months a prisoner in the hands of the Huns. There was a large attendance, but it was noticeable that men of military age and fitness were few, the audience being made up largely of the fair sex and of men beyond the maximum limit for active service.

The band of the 93rd Battalion was in attendance and played a sparkling programme, including the selection from "Lohengrin," the overture to "The Bohemian Girl," and the song selection, "A Perfect Day."

Mr. Asa Huycke sang "Somewhere in France" in fine voice.

Rev. R. G. Peever of George street Methodist church, whose son is overseas with the Queen's Battery, was chairman and his opening address was a strong expression of belief in conscription if considered necessary to save the Empire. In beginning Rev. Mr. Peever pointed out that the Sunday evening recruiting rallies served a dual purpose, of bringing the people of Peterborough into the home of the 93rd Battalion and of creating an atmosphere in favour of recruiting, and the speaker said that he was heartily in accord with these objects. This year would be a memorable one, remarked Mr. Peever, and in the days to come, people would have to discuss the war with their children and grandchildren and to talk of the 93rd Battalion and of the share they had had in its formation. It was the duty of everyone to consider his or her relationships to the great question of the Empire's need. Mr. Peever told of the letter he had received from his son telling of his enlistment. "He is overseas now," remarked the speaker, "and I would not bring him back if I could."

"I hate militarism," said Mr. Peever. "I have seen it in Germany, I have seen it in France and I have seen it in Switzerland, and I hate it, but in the past six months my views have undergone a change." He went on to point out the need of all doing a proper share and emphatically expressed the opinion that the British empire, colonies included, should conscript if necessary, its manhood to fight for the defence of the empire and the principles of liberty.

The speaker's remarks were loudly applauded.

Life at the Front.

Pte Arthur Gibbons of the 3rd Toronto Battalion, lame probably for life as the result of a German explosive bullet, aided and abetted by careless German surgeons, was enthusiastically received. The youngster —he is only nineteen now—and looks younger —gave a graphic description of life at the front. In simple, straightforward language he told of the conditions. He passed over with a word or two the hardships of Salisbury Plain and went on to describe the first entrance of the 3rd Battalion into the trenches. They were told that they were to occupy reserve trenches and it was not until bursting shells and whizzing bullets caused them to ask some questions that they found they were on the firing line itself with the Germans only eighty-five yards away.

The speaker described how the troops go into the trenches at night, running a few yards until the German star shells burst, then dropping to the ground until the illumination is over and repeating the process until the trenches are reached. He told of how rations and mail are brought into the trenches and of how most of the work, such as listening post, repairing para.

DEPUTATION WILL WAIT UPON THE CITY COUNCIL

Peterboro Health Association Will Present Their Claims For a Grant of One Hundred Dollars a Month—A Charitable Work

SPECIAL MEETING

A special meeting of the City Council has been called for this evening, when matters pertaining to a number of special assessments and the proposal to make a grant to the Belgian Relief Fund will be discussed. A deputation representing the Peterborough Health Association will wait upon the Council with a view of obtaining a monthly grant of at least one hundred dollars, making a total annual grant of twelve hundred dollars. The organization will undertake to raise another thousand dollars, so that the work of the Association may continue without interruption. Last year the Council made a monthly grant of fifty dollars. Members of the Association claim that much of their work which is of a charitable nature, would devolve upon the city, whereas, as it is now, work of this nature is undertaken by the Health Association. There is little doubt but what the Council will make a grant of some kind. The assessment in connection with the Grand Opera House will also come up for discussion.

SHIPPED A BALE OF HOSPITAL SUPPLIES

The Peterborough Progressive Club has shipped a bale to the Bidborough Court Hospital, at Tunbridge Wells, Kent, England, containing the following articles: 18 day shirts, 18 night shirts, 19 pyjamas, 7 caps for bandaged heads, 27 slings, 13 covers for hot-water bags, 12 pillow cases, 6 sheets, 19 small pillows, 3 pairs of blankets, 6 round pads, 166 mouthwipes, 138 handkerchiefs.

I. C. S. OFFICES ON CHARLOTTE STREET

The office of the International Correspondence School is still at 160 Charlotte Street, and the representative is there on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, both day and evening, to interview all who are interested enough to call.

Big House For Daddy-Long-Legs

"Daddy Long Legs" will play to one of the biggest audiences of the season at "The Grand" to-night. The company arrived at noon to-day, travelling direct by C.P.R. from Chicago, where they left yesterday. Kingston and Ottawa will be the only other Canadian cities played by this company, and from Ottawa the company go direct to New York for another run. Patrons who have not yet called at the Box Office for their reservations are reminded that these will be held until 7.30 only.

The upper gallery doors will open sharp at 7.30, and admittance will only be allowed through the regular gallery entrance. The curtain will rise at 8.15 sharp, and the management would respectfully ask patrons to make it a point to be in their seats before that time so as not to disturb the presentation of the play. Stage hands have been busily engaged throughout the afternoon in unloading the scenery and getting it in readiness for the presentation of the play.

WORTH THE PRICE.

It is stated that a marriage license in the Province of Quebec costs the applicant $8.00, besides the giving of a bond for $800, and the names of two sureties, who are householders. This makes marriage a comparatively costly matter in Quebec, but in that province marriage seems to be worth the price—it means something to Quebec, the children following the average marriage, range in number from 5 to 25, whereas in Ontario, with the marriage fee at $2, the addition to the population via the stork route, is almost a negligible quantity in modern times. The high cost of marriage in Quebec is a compliment to the quality of the marriageable maidens. A girl must be of pretty good quality, and the lover must be pretty severely smitten to induce a tentative investment of $8.

"HANDS ALL ROUND."

We have many evils in Canada due to the undue exaltation of the party spirit, and now is the time to remove them. The war has put both great parties upon common ground. They have agreed to give truce to partizanship, and the outlook is hopeful for great results. The debate on the budget is generally the great fighting period, of a session, when party acrimony is let loose on both sides. This session of parliament is an exception. We have the chief speaker on the Opposition side criticising the budget with a lack of party animus—with the dignity and moderation we expect from the judge on the bench, in summing up a case. He made a plea for the greater prevalence of honest methods in our administration and treatment of public affairs, lack of which has been largely due to the essential evils of extreme partizanship as expressed in the patronage system. He made an able plea for the abolition of the patronage list. He was followed, in reply, by Sir George Foster, the senior member of the cabinet, in point of years and of public service. Sir George instead of justifying, as would have been done at any other time, the patronage system, and resenting the criticisms and condemnation of it as an element in the bedevelment of the administration of public offices, agreed with the Opposition speaker and joined with him in the plea for honesty in the management of public affairs and in condemnation of the patronage system with its inevitable evil results. Mr. McLean, the first speaker, took the ground, that as a party man, he was expected to take; Sir George Foster took the ground that as a party man, he was not expected to take or might not have taken in other times. In taking this position, he struck the most hopeful note for the amelioration of political conditions that has ever been sounded. He practically effaced himself for the moment, and in this regard in question, spoke not as a partizan minister, but as a patriotic public man. He inferentially condemned his own party, for its relations to the patronage evil, even if he lapsed into the puerility of the tu quoque style of argument in respect of his political opponents. The patronage evil is all the worse, if in past times both parties showed a weakness for it. The Liebral party, however, is to be credited with making a beginning of the end of it by making appointments and promotions in the inside Civil Service depend upon merit and not on party colour; and if the fortunes — some of us think, misfortunes — of politics hadn't deprived it of the power, the Liberal party would have gone still further, and we might have been spared the ghastly exploiting, the graft and waste of public money of late, that can, without prejudice, be chiefly attributed to the patronage system. We hope Sir George Foster's well known eloquence, will have a convincing, as it has had in his the speech, a converting effect, upon his colleagues. We have done well in waging war in the way of providing men and munitions and money; we shall do better in the future if we banish the patronage system; if we let the lesson of cooperation; of the sinking of party considerations; of unity of action become the dominant note in our administration of our great national and imperial trust. "Hands all round" in Canada, and imperial politics will make Canada greater and greater.

WE'RE DOING WELL NOW.

The Toronto News is strong for Imperial federation, which would remove the conditions that Canada now rests under—"taxation without representation." In one sense we have, in another, we have not, "taxation without representation." What is meant by taxation without representation is the taxation levied not by ourselves, but by another. It was this latter that caused the split between Great Britain and her American colonies, nearly a century and a half ago. Even with the splendid exhibition of loyalty and devotion to the Mother Country and the Empire that Canada has shown, and is showing to-day, there would be a pretty row if Great Britain tried to impose taxation on Canada without representation. It is admitted that Canada is paying a fairly burdensome tax now for our share in the war. But our glory and our boast is that we do not consider it a tax. It is a voluntary offering—we consider it a part of our duty. It expresses our sense of obligation, our interest in the Empire. Our voluntary contribution to the cause of Empire in this war is founded upon what makes a fight for the Empire worth while. We are fighting for freedom and all that British freedom stands for. The outlying sections of the Empire, the Overseas Dominions, have contributed, or will have done before the war is over, nearly a million men, and many millions of money, and every man and every dollar a free-will offering. Great Britain has raised between five and six millions of an army, all by the voluntary principle. Canada has not taxation without representation, even if our present monetary contribution is regarded as a tax. Canada has the most glorious, the most useful form of representation. She is represented in the fighting line, in the trenches; and if that representation has the expected result, the triumph of the cause of freedom, Canada will count as gain the voluntary contributions in men and money she has made and is making. The British constitution is built up on precedent, every stone in the splendid fabric tested and tried before it is set in place. The precedents implied in the success of our past relations ships to the central power and the Empire, have justified a continuance of the situation. The magnificent precedent of voluntary and loyal support we are giving now—the smooth, frictionless working of the imperial machinery—is a proof that under any other relations the Empire's work, as a whole, would not have been better done. The News might resurrect its slogan of five years ago—"Let well enough alone."

EXPIATES "BLOOD SACRIFICE MURDER"

Cut Up Body of Victim and Threw it in Hudson River.

OSSINING, N.Y., Feb. 19.— Hans Schmidt was electrocuted at Sing Sing prison yesterday for the murder of Anna Aumuller, September 2, 1913.

Schmidt went quietly to the death chamber, accompanied by the principal keeper and the Rev Father Cashin, the prison chaplain.

When he entered the chamber, the guards attempted to direct him toward the chair, but Schmidt gently shook them off and insisted upon addressing the seventeen witnesses.

Schmidt said: "Gentlemen, I ask forgiveness of all those I have injured or scandalized. I forgive all who have injured me. My last wish is to say good-bye to my dear old mother."

Schmidt then seated himself in the electric chair and the current was supplied three times. Within a minute he was dead.

When the torso of Anna Aumuller's body was washed upon the New Jersey shore of the Hudson River there started a search which has had but few parallels in the annals of New York crime. There was but one faint clue, a pillowslip on which was embroidered the letter "A" but it was just such a pillow slip as might be found in hundreds of homes or stores. There was not even a laundry mark to aid the police.

With this slender clew, Inspector Faurot took personal charge of the case and on September 14th, 1913, twelve days after the murder, Hans Schmidt, an assistant priest at an up-town church, was arrested charged with the crime. An hour before the arrest the Inspector had broken into a flat and found a long bladed butcher's knife and other evidence that the murder had been committed there. Schmidt confessed and his sole defense was that it was a "blood sacrifice murder."

The body had been dismembered and presumably all of it was thrown into the river, although the head was never found.

A CONSERVATIVE LEADER'S VIEW OF THE SITUATION

Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in an eloquent reply to A. K. McLean, Liberal, in the budget debate, told his own party some wholesome truths and gave a lofty treatment to the situation. He said in part:

As to Mr. Maclean's strictures upon the alleged failure of the Government to realise its opportunity for borrowing from the people as a whole, Sir George noted that in the domestic loan $75,000,000 had been obtained from the small investors, and only some $25,000,000 had been allotted to the banks and big institutions. The Government's proposal to issue Dominion bonds in denominations of $100 each would, he said, result during the coming year in giving every small investor a chance to contribute toward the coming domestic loans.

In regard to eliminating from the Dominion bookkeeping the large class of expenditures now put under the head of "capital account," Sir George agreed that there had been much juggling with figures in the past. He thought the time had now come when Canada had developed sufficiently from the pioneer stage to transfer much of what was now called "capital expenditure" to the ordinary cost of administration.

Plea for Honesty and Economy.

Then, coming to the main doctrines of economy preached by Mr. Maclean, Sir George, speaking earnestly to both sides of the House, put in his own plea for honesty and economy.

"There never was a time in the history of Canada," he declared, "never a time in the history of any Administration, when the call came more clearly to those administering the affairs of the country to be more careful in matters of expenditure; to direct them properly and to administer them with honesty; to be strong enough and brave enough to refuse unnecessary demands. When the trenches call for munitions and supplies, when the blood of the country is oozing from its veins in the struggle to preserve its ideals and its liberties, when those who are at home are contributing with generous self-sacrifice and without murmur or repining, I say that to me as a member of the Government, to you as supporters of the Government, and to you, gentlemen opposite, as a part of the great body which represents the people of this Dominion, the call comes to cut off every unnecessary expenditure, to refuse every improper demand. It is our business to administer the funds of the people with perfect economy, and to devote ourselves to the one sole purpose of prosecuting this war to a successful and final conclusion." (Cheers.)

Evils of Patronage System.

Continuing at the evening sitting, Sir George declared that he endorsed in large measure what had been said by the Opposition critic about the evils of the patronage system. That criticism, however, would have carried more weight had the Liberals themselves when in power done something to eliminate the evil. There were now and always had been expenditures neither useful nor expedient. He believed that all applications for public works should be examined by a board of engineers and business men, who should examine each application on its merits.

Patronage Criticized by Trade Minister.

Then Sir George launched forth into a condemnation of the patronage system, which was received with applause from both sides of the House.

"I have been in public life," he said "for thirty-four years, and during that time I do not know of one case where political patronage ever helped the status of the Bench, the civil service, a member of Parliament or the Government. On the other hand, it is always the cause of the dry rot which breaks out and destroys. I hope that in the white light of the present great struggle the two parties will agree to do away with the evil. In 99 cases out of 100 any laxity in public virtue or any corruption is due to the baleful effects of party patronage."

Thinks Favourably of Income Tax.

Sir George did not think that Mr. Maclean's criticism of the new taxation proposals were very serious when it was considered that it was the bounden duty of the Opposition to criticise. He agreed with Mr. Maclean that the business tax was but a temporary expedient, which was to be coeval with the duration of the war. When abnormal conditions had passed there would be a time for a general and permanent readjustment of the taxation system. Foreign capital he thought would scarcely be prevented from investment in Canadian industrial securities by the new taxes, as Mr. Maclean feared. The Government was still allowing a flat 7 per cent. profit before any percentage of the excess was taken for the Treasury. Sir George admitted, however, that there was a good deal to be said for the suggestion of an income tax as a permanent taxation measure. It could be considered later on.

The Larger Economic Situation.

The Minister of Trade and Commerce then turned from the specific consideration of the Budget to the larger field of the general national and world-wide economic situation. The greatest problems and the greatest struggles were still ahead, when the tremendous work of readjustment in Canada, in the Empire, and throughout the world would have to be undertaken. To-day it was true the country was prosperous. It had a two-year crop in one. There was abnormal production, with abnormal prices. The manufacture of hundreds of millions of dollars' worth of war munitions more than filled the gap left by the languishing of ordinary industry. There was the new condition of a favourable trade balance of $200,000,000. All these things were, however, abnormal, though they had caused most people to think that Canada stood to-day, after nineteen months of war, in a better and sounder position than ever before.

Too Much Optimism May be Dangerous

Sir George, however, warned Parliament and the people that the present prosperity must not be taken at its full face value. To-morrow would not be as to-day. Too much optimism would be more dangerous than a tinge of pessimism. The optimist spoke of unexampled prosperity that would follow the war. "I would like to think so, but I can't," declared the Minister. The prediction of a Montreal newspaper that Canada would have from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 inhabitants within three years after the war he characterized as a mischievous exaggeration, which would lead to disappointment and depression when the hopes were not realized. Let the country not forget that the world is suffering in the present awful conflict, and what its losses meant. Millions were lying dead on the world's battlefields, other millions were maimed, blind or bruised, and rendered physically unfit for further productive work. Never in the history of the world had there been so much of wealth in material things and wealth in human lives destroyed.

What Has Yet to Be Faced.

Sir George eloquently reviewed the deliberate German policy of world-wide aggression and domination. After the close of the France-Prussian war Germany had entered upon a scientific and wonderfully organized campaign of "peaceful penetration." She had fortified herself in every clime for warfare, both economic and military. Her economic warfare had succeeded to a greater extent than rival nations had realised. When the war itself was over this economic warfare would continue, and preparations for the economic campaign were already being made by the allied nations. The defeat of Germany in the present conflict was certain. But what the world would have to face then would be a world-wide dislocation of trade, of resources in men and material. At the end of next month it was estimated that $45,000,000,000 will have been spent on the war. That immense debt would have to be borne for generations yet to come. The wreckage of humanity and its economic loss could not now be estimated. The depleted physical, mental and moral force of the world would take decades for rehabilitation.

The Period of Armistice.

The first trying period of readjustment would come immediately after the actual fighting ceased and an armistice was declared. The period of the armistice and before peace was acthally concluded might be a full year. During that period thoughtful men believed that business conditions would be the most strenuous, and possibly the most dangerous and trying of all. Then, too, there would have to be great social changes worked out. Millions of men would have to be demobilized and revert to some form of productive employment.

The masses and classes which had coalesced in this war and shared the same dangers of the battlefield could not again come together without some great readjustment of the old order. Old shibboleths were passing away, and a different social world must be evolved. For all of this Canada must be prepared, and it were well if plans were made before hand.

Two Lessons From the War.

Two great lessons, he concluded, had been learned from the war by the British people. First was the lesson of unpreparedness in military matters. The British Empire, controlling one-quarter of the world's resources in men and wealth, now realized the awful responsibility of that trusteeship and what unpreparedness had cost. In the second place, there had been learned the lesson of co-ordination and co-operation for all parts of the British Empire, both in war and in matters of trade and economic inter-alliance. Every part of the Empire had co-operated for the general good and the general benefit. The lesson would, he believed, be carried into the years to come.

There would be a revision of the old treaties and the old tariffs. There would be a union of forces in trade as there had been a union of forces in war. And the nation which would feel this most would be the German nation. The last and least source of supply for the British people and their allies would be Germany. The Hun spirit had revealed itself too clearly. The antipathy, the hatred, the loss of sympathy, the output of all those feelings of humanity which rebelled against the inhumanity of the Hun would live on in the minds of generations to come.

"We Are Facing New Things."

Canada as the foremost among the daughter nations of the Empire had learned, said Sir George, a self-reliance many degrees above what it was before. "Our sacrifices have melted out parochial trivialities. We feel wider and broader possibilities. We are throwing aside old theories, political and social. We are facing new things as they are. We are preparing for a sane, solid, systematic mobilization of our best forces. We are realizing as never before what justice and liberty mean. Henceforth these words will come from purified hearts and enlightened minds. We have all made higher resolves of citizenship, to be worthy of our place of one of the potent, virile forces of the whole world."

A LOCAL MISSTER FAVORS CONSCRIPTION

pets, fixing barb wire entanglements, etc., is done at night. When they were there the trenches were very wet and there were only one pair of rubber boots for every twelve men. Now, however, the trenches have been made much more comfortable and there are rubber boots for every man.

Graphically Pte. Gibbons described the famous battle of St. Julien and Langemarck, telling of the flight of the Belgian civilians, followed by the break of the French, and then describing the battle itself. In simple but eloquent language he described the fight of the 3rd Battalion, a portion of which was entirely surrounded and cut off. Seven times they repulsed the German charges, but finally when nearly all the men had been killed or wounded, their trench was taken, and he and the few others left alive were taken prisoner. He was taken back of the German lines and left four days without treatment. Pte. Gibbons passed on to describe his life in several German hospitals and told of the cruelty of one German doctor whose favourite pastime was to twist the limbs of wounded men until they writhed in pain. He was finally placed in the great prison camp at Giessen where there are thousands of prisoners of every nationality fighting against the Huns. The food was as bad as it could be and if it were not for the parcels from home the boys would be in danger of starvation. Pte. Gibbons, considered unfit for further fighting, was finally exchanged, but had first to pass five boards of doctors.

Speaking of the conditions in England the young soldier said that nothing was too good for a soldier in England, especially a Canadian. "If you have a maple leaf on your cap or your tunic," he remarked, "you will find it as a passport everywhere in England. I can promise you a good time when you reach the old country."

Pte. Gibbons concluded his remarks by a brief but pointed appeal for recruits. The great lack at Langemarck had been of reinforcements. This was true later on. At Festubert and Givenchy the Canadians had captured three lines of German trenches, only to fail to hold them because reinforcements did not come, and they lost many more getting back than they had in taking the trenches. To the young men, Pte. Gibbons said: "Don't send parcels to the prisoners in Germany. Get into khaki and help to end the war so that they will get home the quicker. Many a brave fellow buried in France would be alive to-day if we had had enough men."

The speaker reminded the men of military age that it was their own chums out there on the battle line that were calling for help. He was unable to go back himself, but he would like some one to go back in his place. There were only three in his family and one brother aged seventeen was in the trenches and another only fifteen was now in England on his way to the front.

Major Watt briefly explained the provisions for the pay of a recruit and the maintenance of his family while he is away.

LOST HALF A MILLION

Feds Chicago Backer Was Heavily Soaked.

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Charles H. Weeghman, president of the Chicago National League baseball club, and his associates were obligated to the extent of more than half a million dollars at the close of the 1915 season, it was learned yesterday, as the result of their operation of the Chicago Federal League club.

At a banquet given Thursday night in his honour, Weeghman in an address said that he was induced to join the Federals by James Gilmore, president of the league, while the two were playing golf.

"I invested to the extent of $26,000, said Kreeglman, "and at the close of last season the Chicago Federal League club was obligated to the extent of $650,000."

THE WORLD OF SPORT

Veiled Professionalism Is Killing Interest In National Game

Straight Talk From The Montreal News Which Says That The Genuine Amateur Teams Have Vanished—Many Rank Violents of the Primary Tenets of Amateur Sport

Montreal, February 19.—In view of the action of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association in dealing with the disregard of amateur law prevalent in Eastern Canada, the four column article in the evening News a few days ago, exposing the state of affairs in local hockey was of timely interest.

"WHAT'S WRONG WITH HOCKEY"

Under the above heading the News says: "There is no query involved in this title. There is no need of a question mark in the consideration of the aspects of the great Canadian game which calls loudly for attention at this stage of the game's development. In its natural progress from a minor into a major sport, hockey may expect to suffer from growing pains, and has suffered and is suffering from them. But the outstanding evils which seem to us to call for immediate and rapid attention at this juncture are more definite and far more dangerous than any mere surface trouble incidental to the natural growth of a national pastime. They are deep rooted and virulent. Moreover, apparent, there is no desire on the part of those whose lax action is dragging into the gutter one of the finest, and by far the most spectacular competitive, sports in the world, to better things. Verily, the proportion of genuine sportsmen who are interesting themselves in hockey in Montreal in these degenerate days must be microscopically small.

PUBLIC INTEREST IS DECLINING.

"Public interest in hockey in Montreal is declining. Making due allowances for exceptional conditions, the attendance at the big professional games, where hockey is, or at any rate should be, presented in its finest and most scientific development, demonstrates beyond a doubt. There is no longer the keen interest in the performances of the local teams which used to obtain in the later days of amateurism and the early period of the game's professional development. Even with two Montreal teams in the running for the professional championship, the attitude adopted by a very large proportion of the sport loving public of Montreal is one of, at the best, very languid interest.

GENUINE AMATEUR TEAMS VANISHED

"To a certain extent this condition of affairs is due to bad management of the professional league's affairs, undoubtedly. But to a still greater extent it is due to the fact that the Montreal public is slowly but surely losing its regard for hockey as a national sport by reason of the exploiting for profit of various so-called amateur teams, who have usurped the places of the genuine amateur hockey players of earlier days, whose love for the sport itself, as exemplified in their sterling performances under the auspices of such clubs as the old Wanderers, the old Shamrocks, and the old Victorias, put hockey on its highest plane, from which it has steadily deteriorated of recent years.

PRACTICALLY OPEN PROFESSIONALISM

"The case of the players who are weekly given trifling messages to carry from one point of the city to another a few blocks distant, for which they receive payment out of all proportion to the services rendered; the case of the players who make bi-weekly trips over a three-hundred mile railroad journey from one scene of operations in the district surrounding their home town to Montreal, presumably for their bare expenses and because of the immense benefit they derive from our superior climate, or possibly because of the love they bear for us, the case of the player who performs regularly in a simon-pure 'amateur' league, and who practised before the season opened with one of the N.H.A. teams, wore that team's uniform and sat through at least one game of the N.H.A. schedule on that bench, and who has not even applied for reinstatement as an amateur; the state of the star Provincial players who suddenly flood the Montreal district from points in Ontario at the start of each hockey season, for no other reason than that they have secured work here; the case of the player who plays professional lacrosse in the summer and amateur hockey in the winter—all these and many more similar instances of the rankest violation of the primary tenets of amateur sport are so familiar to the followers of these supposedly amateur leagues as to be positively commonplace."

CANADIAN LEAGUE DEPENDS ON HAMILTON

HAMILTON, Feb. 20.—The Canadian League held a meeting here today, but after conferring for two hours the magnates were unable to arrive at any definite decision as to whether the League would do business this season or not. Frank Shaughnessy was on hand, and stated that Ottawa was ready to come in again, and the delegates from the other cities were also ready to place a team in the league. The whole matter appeared to rest with Hamilton, and it is not known just what stand the local club will take in the matter.

The Hamilton Club has debts totalling $6,000 to meet, and the directors, eight in number, are willing to raise $1,000 of that amount if the shareholders will raise the balance. As there are about 72 shareholders it means that each one of them would have to give about $62 to protect shares that cost them $100. A meeting of the shareholders will be held shortly, and if they are agreeable to meet the deficit, the Hamilton team will be in the League stronger than ever.

London, Guelph and Brantford were not represented at the meeting, although at a previous meeting the delegates from the three cities expressed a willingness to continue business under the old arrangement. "Knotty" Lee was on hand, as a free agent, as was Bill Cristall, formerly manager of the Hamilton team. "Sandy" Ballantine represented Hamilton, while St. Thomas was represented by Mr. Bowley. Shaughnessy claimed that he had a chance to secure a franchise in the New York State League, but would not consider the proposition if the Canadian League continued in business. It was announced that the Hamilton team will play at the H. A. A. grounds if the league continues in business this year. Another meeting of the League will be held in the near future, when a final decision will be arrived at.

TRENT VALLEY LEAGUE GAME TO-MORROW NIGHT

There promises to be all kinds of fun around Brock Street Rink tomorrow night, when Campbellford and Havelock, who are tied up for their Trent Valley League district, will settle their differences here. Both teams will run excursions to Peterborough and as both are confident of winning there will be some tall rooting to-morrow night. No doubt a lot of Peterborough fans will take in the game.

O. H. A. Teams Are Drawing Near Finals

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—T.R. and A.A. have dropped out of the senior O.H.A. series, which means that if Riversides win from Argos on Wednesday they will then be ready to meet the Kingston Frontenacs in the semi-finals.

Aura Lee will meet the winner of the Kingston C. I. Belleville series. This winner of this game will go into the junior finals with the winner of the Berlin or London vs. Collingwood. The latter series will commence on Friday night at Collingwood and back at either Berlin or London on the following Monday.

The winner of to-night's intermediate O.H.A. game at the Arena between Weston and Brampton will entertain the Midland team at home on Friday night, and play at Midland on the following Monday.

HOCKEY

The Otonabee amateurs are scheduled to clash with the fast Keene team on Thursday night at the Keene rink and a lively game is anticipated, as both teams are in good shape. It will be remembered that the amateurs played Keene a short time ago and were defeated. The amateurs since then have secured two new men and are determined to come out on top.

LONGBOAT WALKED TO TORONTO TO JOIN SPORTSMEN BATTALION

TORONTO, Feb. 19.—Hobbling into Capt. Tom Flanagan's Grand Central Hotel last night, after making his way afoot from Brantford, came Tom Longboat, with a request that he be given a place in the 180th Sportsmen's Battalion. He explained that he had enlisted in the scout section of the 125th Batalion before he learned that the Sportsmen's Battalion was being recruited here. The Indian has been keeping close to the seclusion of the reservation at Caledonia and had not been informed of the battalion of athletes now enrolling under Lieut.-colonel "Dick" Greer.

The famous Marathoner was very much disappointed when he learned that he would have to be formally transferred from the 125th to the 180th, and wants to know right away what the prospects of the change of unit are. He will apply for the transfer at once.

Before Longboat sprang into prominence the run from his home at the reservation to Hamilton was a matter of weekly occurrence. Once he ran from Hamilton to Toronto, a matter of almost fifty miles by way of the roads. On another occasion he beat a fast harness horse from Caledonia to Hagersville. He insists that he made his way from Brantford to Toronto afoot by easy stages, running and walking.

W. H. Taylor Won The Bonspiel Final In a Remarkable Game

Was Overhauled by J. E. A. Fitzgerald After Getting a Wide Lead—Extra End Was Required and Taylor Counted.

In an extra end J. E. A. Fitzgerald lost the bonspiel final game on Saturday night by a mere sweep of broom.

Just a moment's misjudgment by his vice-skip, Harry Foote, who help up the sweepers and the skip's perfect stone stopped within a fraction of an inch from the buttom and the game went to W. H. Taylor's rink, who had a counter just that much closer to the button.

Getting away to a bad start Fitzgerald had much the better of the last half of the play. It was not until the sixteenth, the last scheduled end, that he drew up even with Taylar. And then came the anti-climax, when a shot that had to be perfectly made came within an ace of clinching the game then and there, though Taylor still had his last stone, but would have faced a decidedly fragile layout. It is not with any intention of minimizing the victory W. H. Taylor scored, but rather to show that the game hinged on a final stone, and that Jack Fitzgerald had to lose a game with a perfect shot as a manifestation of his curling ability. Let it go as a paradox, the statement is none the less a fact. Had his stone been swept just a little more on its way up the rink there is no question but that "Fitz" would have been shot and to take him out and lay shot at the same time would have been a contract which Taylor escaped.

The rinks lined up as follows:

G. W. Fitzgerald	R. P. Best
Dr. Wightman	A. W. Archibald
Archie Moore	H. Foote

W. H. Taylor	J. E. A. Fitzgerald
Skip 17	Skip 16

The following score by ends indicates the way the game went:

Taylor ..... 0512110102002010 1—17
Fitzgerald ..... 1000001050220401 0—16

Archie Moore played a whale of a game for Taylor. Not only did he work hard, but he had an accurate range of the rings and kept shooting the stones just where they were called for. In that extra end Archie placed two "good y'uns" right in the centre, one back of the other, and after a field conference Fitz decided on the draw shot already referred to. Walter Fitzgerald as lead is only in his second curling year, but he has already "cadged" more than his share of pribes home. He played a very steady game. Dr. Wightman and Billy Taylor were inclined to be erartic, although they played strong games both. The rink, however, performed practically as was expected of it, especially until they slumped in the middle and were overhauled. Best and Archibald curled in fine style, and Harry Foote played a good game. His judgment on that last end proved fatal, but it had to be made watching the stone come up the ice. It was a forgivable mistake, especially in view of his past performances. Jack Fitzgerald came through with some brilliant shots and he certainly lost no prestige with that game.

Gold wrist watches were presented to the winners by Mr. Geo. Morrow, chairman of the bonspiel committee, and Mr. W. M. Lang presented carving sets to the runners-up.

Sunday Evening Service At Murray St. Baptist Church

It was most fitting that the Sunday evening service at the Murray Street Baptist Church should be, in a manner, preparatory to the "every-member visit," which is being undertaken this week, in connection with the congregation of that church.

The Rev. Mr. Webb chose as his text Acts 15:36, "Let us go again and visit our brethren. . . .and see how they do." In this text and in the whole verse from which these words are taken the Pastor found a precedent for the visitation of every member during the week.

Paul, with his companion, had preached the Gospel in a number of places, and in most cases, it was impossible for them to meet all those who had taken Christ into their homes, and so Paul saw it was necessary to have occasional contact for the sake of the convert and himself.

The text naturally falls into three divisions:

First, there is the suggestion that when a man becomes a believer in Jesus Christ, his fellow man has not rendered all the service he may. The great fault of the Christian Church is that when they receive a man, woman or young person they think their duty is done.

Second, it is of infinitely greater service for two to go than one.

Third, when two men make a visit to any home there must be purpose in it: "to see how they do."

Paul had no relatives; his was a lonely life; but in Christ, in those he had visited, he found brother sister, father, mother, son and daughter. One convert he called "My son, Timothy"; he found relations in Christ Jesus he missed naturally.

Timothy was a Christian man, but his father was not—he was a heathen. Here we see opportunities for visitors in the every-member-visit. In verse three of the 16th Chapter we see that Paul used every means to reach the heathen in the neighbourhood, even going so far as to have Timothy circumcised, that none might be offended. Timothy's mother was a believer, but the father was not; therefore, the task of training Timothy was rendered infinitely harder. It is in homes like these that all the sympathy and help that can come from outside is needed.

In speaking to a man who had taken part in the every-member-visit last year, the Pastor told him of two homes that had been benefitted by his visit.

"I help them?" queried the man: "I got more help than I could possibly give."

"We want our men," said Mr Webb, "as they go forth to their task to remember that they may be used by the Master as ministers, for they have peculiar relationships, one with the other, that call for inspiration and help."

During their visit Paul and his companion had found some who had crowned Jesus, but who had not made Him their Lord; at Lystra one suffered from a physical infirmity for years; some were almost persuaded to accept Christ as their Saviour some who were converted to the preacher, but not to his preaching; some thought Paul and Barnabas had come down in the likeness of gods, but Paul said: "Do not worship us for we are men of like passions as you are." There must be something faulty if a preacher gets a following around him, and does not direct them to God. There are hundreds of people waiting to be of service, but there is no one to tell them how. Mr. Webb is a great believer in the propaganda of the hour: that of sending laymen into the homes.

Two men are greater than one. Paul, although great in himself, was not sufficient. He asks for Barnabas Silas, Timothy, and then takes Luke. Who ever heard of Silas, Luke or Timothy giving an address? But the presence of these men made it possible for Paul to endure what he could not have done alone. How much easier it is when we have the silent support of those who love our Lord.

Christ sought companionship when the storms began to gather round Him, ending in Gethsemane. God Himself, is influenced by two, rather than by one: "When two or three are gathered in My name, there am I in their midst." We have also recorded that the disciples went forth two and two.

These visits have a purpose; therefore, to accomplish the most there must be co-operation on the part of those visited.

One year ago the speaker said he was privileged to visit the great Y. M. C. A. building in Chicago. As he stood in the gallery, at one end of the gymnasium where hundreds of youths were exercising, where a score of runners raced on the track, where an orchestra was playing, where one could hear the dash and splash of the water in the plunge, he noticed a sign which read: "Seeking to Save."

That is the justification of the gymnasium, that is the justification of our pleasures, of our social life. It is the object behind every visit.

Remember that the Master sends us forth to save from anxiety, from depression, from loneliness, all for His sake.

When Jesus visited a home He never left without speaking some word that remained as a fragance, because He had been there.

—Paul Penman.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Rev. William Charles Beer, who passed away suddenly at his home, 836 Colborne street, was buried to-day. The deceased was born in Devonshire, Eng., July 5, 1840. He came to Canada when 15 years of age, and made his home near Bowmanville.

Before the union of the Methodist churches, he was a Bible Christian, and as such preached in Cleveland, Ohio. Upon his return to Canada, he travelled many circuits as a minister of the Methodist church, beginning at Elmville, Columbus and Cobourg. His ministrations were also known at Little Britain, Madoc, Marmora, Milford, Welcome and Peterborough (Mark Street). His last circuit was Dutton, after which he superannuated and removed to London sixteen years ago.

The Daily Life Of A Y.M.C.A. Representative With Boys At The Front

Muddy, soaked to the skin, tired out, getting to bed in a dugout at 11 or 12, or 1 a.m. or 2 a.m.—this is not an uncommon picture of the typical daily life of a Y.M.C.A. man with the Canadian soldiers at the front. Here is a page from the diary of one stationed with the 28th, outlining a week of service for the boys in khaki:

"Sunday.—Still raining. Rode to—. Had a Bible Class. Church parade at 2.30. Went around distributing papers until 4.30. Dinner headquarters. Song service in four different huts. Rode home tired, wet, but feeling that I had a good day. Got to bed 11.05 p.m.

"Monday. — Received gramophone from London. Carried it to huts, putting —— in charge. Went around with writing materials. Men doing a lot of writing, owing to rain, kept indoors. Had on football match for afternoon, but conditions made that impossible. Had impromptu checker tournament. Evening, band concert as men were passing to go into the trenches for seventh tour of duty there.

"Tuesday.—Got settled in dugout. Fairly quiet night. Left dugout with reading material to go round trenches; (it takes 3 to 4 hours to go round our trenches), and when I go I take orders from the men if they want to make any purchases from our canteen. After lunch and a little rest, I started back. The German artillery was active, consequently I was forced to keep to the trenches. Back to my dugout, tired; dinner 6.30 p.m., and rest for a while. Start out for another round of the trenches with Pete ——; had some great talks with the men on sentry go. Got back to dugout at 2.30 a.m. tired, wet, and mud from head to foot.

"Wednesday.—Round of the trenches again. Sing-song aided by gramophone with reserves in school. Left for dugout 8 p.m., arriving there at 11.15 p.m.

"Thursday.—Up at 8.30. Terrific bombardment by our artillery. Not allowed up in front so made for behind the lines; . . . . wet and weary, crawled into a billet bed about 1.15 a.m.

"Friday. — Still raining. Wind blowing a hurricane. Came out of the trenches early to-day as we go into Division reserve at 12 p.m.

Saturday.—Went for short route march with battalion after lunch, but rain cut it short. Concert 7 p.m.

The following week was spent in visiting the hospitals in the forenoon and the 29th in the afternoon, where he distributed reading and writing materials, arranged concerts, etc., and "something going on all the time in the 28th"—the other Battalion.

A Special Sermon For Normal Students By Rev. J. P. Wilson At Trinity Methodist Church

The Normal Students' Conference which has been in progress since Friday, was concluded Sunday morning when the students listened to an able sermon by the Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of the Trinity Methodist church.

"Christianity has ever been aligned on the side of education," said the Rev. Mr. Wilson, after welcoming the students.

"Two-thirds of the colleges on the North American continent are established and maintained by Christian churches. The Methodist church of Canada has eleven colleges, and her sister churches have institutions of learning as well. Christianity has been the candle of education in a democratic country like ours, and one writer has said that Canada is more democratic even than the United States. In a democratic country education is very necessary since all the machinery of government is in the hands of the common people."

The text was taken from the third chapter of John, the first three verses: "There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: The same came to Jesus by night, and said unto Him, Rabbi, we know that Thou art a teacher come from God; for no man can do these miracles that Thou doest, except God be with Him. Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."

The Jewish Rabbi sought Jesus because He was a great teacher who had a message and a mission. "Never man spoke like this man." Jesus, the son of a carpenter, never went any place to seek learning, He never left His own country, yet when He conversed with His neighbours they marvelled at His wisdom.

Jesus knew His ground, He never spoke at a venture. In like manner, prospective teachers must know their ground.

Jesus was a kind teacher; very human in is contact with the people; with gentle love instructing them all.

An Inspector once visited a school and examined a class in mental arithmetic. He was about to question a little girl when the teacher interrupted by saying: "Oh, it's no use asking her to solve that, she can't solve anything." The Inspector's sympathy went out to the child and he proceeded to question her by easy stages until the little one successfully worked out the problem. When the child went home the mother scarcely knew her, so great was the transformation wrought. The Inspector had found her soul.

Jesus saw something in every life. He had faith in the possibilities of human nature. "Go ye unto all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Within every soul there lies hidden great possibilities. It does not help a child to say, "You are the worst child in the school." Jesus brought out the best. He believed in humanity. No minister can preach no teacher can teach, unless he can see the soul in humanity. A teacher ought to find the soul of his pupil, then the school room would become an enchanted place, the pictures of joy and gladness in every child.

In the text Jesus says: "Ye must be born again," thus establishing that the highest function of the teacher is character building, and education is to be judged by its success or failure in developing an honest life. Even in these days of dreadful wars humanity has not changed, and men are still bleeding the country; and when they are caught with the goods they have the nerve to seek re-election, bringing shame to our country and making it necessary to demand commissions to enquire into the dishonesty of the people.

Teachers must help to rectify this. Truth, honour, uprightness must be woven into the warp and woof of the country.

Canada is at the parting of the ways. In a recent speech Sir Edmund Walker said: "We are too much in love with prosperity, and a nation built on this above cannot endure."

The teacher stands at a strategic point. The schools make the pulpit, the press and public life. The teacher has the public life to mould; and Canada will not be what she ought to be until Canada is taught by Canadian teachers.

Education is not only the moulding of the mental but the development of the moral. Education is not simply the question of bread and butter. You cannot separate head culture from heart culture. The modes of thinking as exemplified by the teacher will be the methods of thinking on the part of the pupil as he brings them to bear on his own mental; moral and religious development.

Germany was once the country to which people went to finish their education. To-day she is a loathing. Thirty years ago she threw off the teaching of gentleness and love and adopted that of force and the superman. The weak must be crushed; Caesar against Christ; Europe is now in ruins, because of the teaching of Germany to hate peace and love war.

Teachers can impress themselves on the souls of their pupils, and no Christian man should allow his child to come under the influence of a teacher who does not possess the proper qualifications of head and heart. Truth must be supreme.

The motto of the conference is most appropriate: "The true purpose of education is to cherish and unfold the seed of immortality already sown within us."

Jesus Christ is the only authorized teacher the world has known. "Learn of Me, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Four hundred years ago Columbus sailed for the New World. Phil had tried to fathom the vast expanses. They had many theories, but no certainties. When Columbus returned to Spain laden with trophies he could say: "I speak that I do know, and testify that I have seen.'

Nicodemus said to Jesus: "We know that Thou art a teacher come from God," Jesus replied; "I say unto thee, you must be born again." Unless a pupil believes his teacher he cannot believe his lesson. Unless we believe in Christ we cannot believe in the teachings of Christ.

If we believe in Him we cannot doubt God, for He is the Son of God; we cannot doubt heaven; for He came from heaven; we cannot doubt the scriptures, for He was their inspiration; we cannot doubt hell, for He died to save us from it: we cannot doubt the resurrection for He rose from the dead and ascended into Heaven.

It was most appropriate in an address to teachers that the service should conclude with:

"And soon, O Blessed Prince of Peace,
Bring in the days when war shall cease;
And men as brothers shall unite
To fill the world with love and light.
Till then, O Lord, we plead with Thee
For Britain's cause on land and sea."

RESOURCES AT AN END.

Turkish Parliament Warned By Talaat Bey—Revenue Exhausted

LONDON, Feb. 17.—In the last week of the year Talaat Bey, the shrewd partner of Enver, who is omnipotent in turning the wheel of state in Turkey whenever danger is anticipated, went before the Medjlis (Parliament) and said: —

"I regret to declare that the war has cost us very dearly. All our financial resources have been dried up. There is no more customs revenue since our country is blockaded by our enemies. All working hands being taken into the army, no taxpayers are left in the land. We have to maintain our Government; we have to arm and supply our army fighting in the west and east; we have to support orphans and widows left by our brave soldiers. Where is the money to come from? What little real estate and income taxes are collected in the capital and in a few large cities, like Smyrna and Beirout, are not even enough to keep the administrative machine going.

World War Films Better Than Pass To Battle Front

Spectators Can See more Than the Fighting Soldiers—The Examiner to Present to People of Peterboro Official French Pictures

Probably it would be impossible to conceive any more remarkable demonstration of the amazing extent to which the ingenuity of man is making science serve him to-day than is to be witnessed at the Grand Theatre March 2nd, 3rd and 4th. Nor is it only in one direction that this is made manifest.

There, at small cost, one may sit in the comfort and safety of a handsome up-to-date theatre and have reproduced before him for his pleasure and enlightenment the leading events taking place 3,000 miles away in the greatest war the world has ever known. He can, in fact, see more of the war than is seen by the soldiers whom he watches fighting and falling. And that is only a part of what our fathers would have thought a miracle.

These official pictures, which were taken by order of the great general staff of the French army for the national archives were loaned by the French Government and are presented to the people of Peterborough by the enterprise of The Evening Examiner.

No other war pictures have been like these amazing official films. For no other operators have ever been permitted to get within miles of the French front. But those who had the authorization and were under the instructions of the French General Staff went right to the firing line—and they obeyed their orders to record the war for the purpose of history.

New York World's Tribute.

"Many spectators last night observed with expressions of admiration and surprise that, though these French soldier camera men had had to set up their tripods full in face of the enemy's shot and shell, their photography proved how steady were their nerves. For the films so exposed give results which, strangely enough, are far above the average in clearness and beauty. In the case of one of the films, that of the terrific bombardment from which the foe tries to escape by letting loose a cloud of poison gas, the danger was so great the exposure had to be made through a periscope.

The films have proved an unexpected sensation. While a few persons, ignorant of the real nature of modern warfare and misled by pictures manufactured for mere sensationalism and big profits, looked to see thousands of men engaged in hand to hand fighting with plunge of bayonet and quick revolver shot, there were not many who had anticipated such realism, such vivid glimpses of the true actuality of modern scientific fighting, as are given by these official French films.

Several spectators last night said they found it hard to realize they were not actually at the front. So vivid are the pictures, one forgets they are pictures. So entrancing is the interest they arouse, one feels the same thrill and tense excitement which being at the front would give. The actions are so real, they seem to be being actually enacted before one's own eyes, and one is completely carried away. It is quite curious afterwards, when one tries to grasp that one has only been in a theatre all the while.

For, as Lieut. Claude Patin, of young officer of the French Fifty-Sixth Infantry of the Line, who is convalescing here for a while, after nine months in the trenches, projected the different scenes onto the screen, nothing could have been more life-like. In the awe of battle it did not strike one as surprising that no talking could be heard.

For sixteen months the war has been written about and talked about. Yet in these official French motion pictures things are to be seen which have never yet been described. There are other things, and many of them, which no description could portray so vividly as does one glimpse of the thing itself seen in action. But with all that is written, there is nothing that has yet appeared which tells the story of the great war so simply and so truly as does this picture record which is being shown under the auspices of The World."

In Peterborough at the Grand Opera House, March 2nd, 3rd and 4th, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and Saturday afternoon matinee.

Startling Confession By Young Colored Girl

MONTREAL, Feb. 19.—A sensational scene was enacted in the court of Judge St. Cyr when Isabella Domicon, a young colored woman, held as a material witness in the case of Mrs. G. H. Matthews, an aged woman who was found strangled to death at her home on Shuter street, confessed to going to Mrs. Matthews' home, quarreling with her and taking her by the throat.

The Domicon woman broke down in her cell, and when she announced she had a confession to make was taken before Judge St. Cyr. A large number of people were in the courthouse when she, evidently conscience stricken, was led in and told her story. Up till to-day the girl had denied all connection with the crime

Were Married For Sixty Years

In the village of Pickering yesterday Smith and Caroline Clark, aged 84 and 81 years, respectively, celebrated their diamond wedding anniversary.

On February 18, 1856, Smith Clark and Caroline Betts were married at her father's home near the village of Pickering. They took up farming in Victoria County, where they resided for 28 years. Retiring, they moved to Lindsay, and shortly after to Pickering, where they have lived for the past thirty years.

A large number of friends and relatives assisted them in celebrating the day, among them the entire family of the bridal pair, consisting of one daughter, Mrs. Chas. Knight and husband; one granddaughter, Mrs. Alex. Anderson, and husband and two great-granddaughters, Erle and Clare Anderson, all of Mariposa Township, near Lindsay.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Clark have always been steadfast members of the Society of Friends, the former being a thorough Liberal and a Globe subscriber all these sixty years

Bystander's Cartoon Costs Big Fine

"Reported Missing" Depicts British Soldier Under Tree With a Bottle.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—The proprietors of the weekly journal Bystander were fined £100, the former editor, Vivian Carter, £50, and Lieut. Bernard, cartoonist, £50 for publishing a cartoon depicting a British soldier lying intoxicated beneath a tree and clasping a bottle of rum. Beneath the cartoon were the words, "Reported missing."

The charge was brought under the defence of the realm act, on the ground that publication of the cartoon was prejudicial to discipline and recruiting. An appeal was entered.

CONSPIRACY WAS CHARGED

Russian Guilty of Frauds Over Passports.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Noi Yoachim Altans, otherwise known as Altschuler, who was arrested on January 18 on a charge of conspiracy, was found guilty yesterday.

Altans, who is a Russian subject, was charged with having co-operated with James Dallas, chief clerk of the Department of the Home Office dealing with aliens, in connection with passport frauds.

Dallas already has pleaded guilty to the charge of having accepted money to commit acts in violation of his public duty.

It was alleged many aliens were enabled to leave England by the use of permits obtained with the assistance of Aliens and Dallas.

Murdered Woman Was Strangled

Correspond With Those of Woman Arrested Charged With Crime.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 19.—The autopsy held on the body of Mrs. Matthews, murdered in her home on Shuter street, revealed the fact that the woman was strangled. This will be established by Doctors MacTaggart and Derome, the coroner's physicians, at the inquest to be held into her death at the morgue.

It will be further established by Eugene Lafiamme, the finger print expert at police headquarters, that the finger marks on the throat of the dead woman correspond with the finger prints of Isabella Domicon, the coloured girl who was taken into custody by Captain Gorman, and who is being held for the coroner.

It was stated at police headquarters that the girl still sticks to her story that she only spent one night in the house on Shuter street, in the company of another coloured girl who was employed by the murdered woman, and that she herself never saw Mrs. Matthews.

The police, however, claim to have evidence that the girl now in custody was in the employ of Mrs. Matthews for some days, neighbours stating that they saw her going in and out of the house as well as working about the place.

The police further contend that they found in Domicon's possession a ring and a trunk which belonged to Mrs. Matthews, while a broken string of beads, belonging, it is believed, to the coloured girl, were found near Mrs. Matthews' body.

Music & Drama

THE NIGHT BEFORE.

Refreshing as the smell of the heather was "The Night Before," Harry Lauder's Scottish comedy which brought a breath of old Scotia to the Grand Opera House on Saturday. For the lovers of thrill and excitement the offering probably had little attraction, but as a cleverly drawn picture of life in the land of cakes twenty years ago, Lauder's little comedy proved altogether delightful. He has provided some very amusing characters and his lines are bright and sparkling. Interwoven through the play are six songs written by the famous comedian, and all of them possess the lilting, haunting melody that characterizes all his efforts. "The Lass of Gowrie Lea" and "I'm Weary Waiting," two delightful waltzes, and "We All Go Hame the Same Way," a rollicking, captivating song, were among the best. The Company was a very adequate one, and did full justice to the quaint charm of the production. Dowsey McNaughton, remembered here for the role as "Bunty" in "Bunty Pulls the Strings," was charming as Peggy, while Peter McArthur, who as Jimmy Morrison, the plumber, had to sing most of the songs, showed a fine voice, as well as a pleasing personality. Jessie Villare's sketch of Mrs. Twaddle's, the village gossip, was a gem. The production was beautifully staged, and was thoroughly enjoyed.

To-night, theatre-goers get an opportunity of seeing the famous comedy "Daddy-Long-Legs."

3 BOXES CURED PSORIASIS

Mrs. Nettie Massey, Cameron, Ont., writes: "Three doctors described my trouble as psoriasis, and said could never be cured. The disease spread all over me, even on my face and head, and the itching and burning was hard to bear. I used eight boxes of Dr. Chase's Ointment and am entirely cured—not a sore to be seen. I can hardly praise Chase's Ointment enough."

1,439 GIRLS DISAPPEARED.

The New York bureau of the unidentified dead, in charge of Lieut. Grant Williams, whose duty it is to trace those who are reported missing, recently announced that during the last year 1,439 girls and young women had been lost from homes in New York City alone. Their number increases every year faster than the growth of the city would warrant.

The Store That Has New Things and Has Them First Takes Pleasure in Inviting You to See

An Enchanting Display of New Spring Suits

Youthfulness is the Keynote of the New Models

The Silhouette is Characterized by Lines That are Full and Free Flowing

Spring's Favored Fashions have arrived, they're here from the style centers of the world; and what a revelation!—the modes of the past year have gone almost beyond recognition! You will go into an ecstasy of delight over them. The beauty, charm and individuality of the models shown leave no question as to their popularity. Each model was selected with that carefulness that is characteristic of Cressman style choosing, and each model is absolutely exclusive to the Cressman Store—this we guarantee. A brief outline of the general style tendency is given below:—

THE SUIT COATS are short; waist-line tendencies are largely employed with ripple effect below the waist; other styles are loose and full. The sleeves are shown with the bell or flared effect at the wrist. Collars are convertible, flared and turn-over.

VARIETY OF STYLE is a noticeable feature of the skirts; they range from 2½ to 3½ yards in width—the more dressy models are of course much wider. They are cut circular or gored, having few or many inverted, box or side pleats. All skirts are short, and mostly all have the belted effect.

THERE'S A GREAT diversity of materials, though perhaps Serges, Poplins, Gabardines, Goffenes, Worsteds, Shepherds' Checks, and silk and cloth combinations are likely to prove most popular. The favorite colors seem to be Navy, Copenhagen, Joffre Blue, Sage, Prune, Browns, Greys and Black.

COME ALONG at your very earliest convenience and take a peep at the display, you cannot fail to be intensely interested, for never has there been such a diversity of styles—it's just a matter of suiting your own individual taste.

SPECIAL NOTE. We are also showing an extensive range of O. S. sizes in the New Spring Models—styles that are specially designed to suit short-waisted stout figures.

Low Birthrate Worries Germans

Prussian Diet Budget Committee Discusses Condition and Will Call for Specialist's Advice.

BERLIN, via London, Feb. 21.—The declining birth rate in Germany which was attracting attention before the war, is receiving more serious consideration at the present time, in view of the losses suffered in the field. This subject was brought up to-day in the Budget Committee of the Prussian Diet. A representative of the Ministry predicted that unless a radical change should be made Germany soon would be in the position of France, with deaths exceeding births.

The speaker also referred to the high rate of infant mortality. He also said one of the gravest hindrances to the growth of the population was the increase in the number of premature births caused deliberately, an evil which was not confined to the poorer classes.

The Minister of Education said he recognized the seriousness of the situation. He informed the committee that the government already had taken the matter under consideration and was conferring with specialists in an effort to devise ways of remedying the evil.

Revival Meetings In Byersville

The special revival meetings to be held at Byersville in the S. A. Temple are being continued this week, every night. Adjutant McElhiney conducted the service last night while Mrs. McElhiney and Captain Chittenden conducted the service at the Simcoe Street Temple. The converts of last week are taking their part in the services which grow in numbers and interest.

To-night the Corps Cadet Guardian, Mrs. Lang, and her Band of seventeen Corps Cadets, will assist in the meetings. The Girl Guards will assist to-morrow night. This will serve to develop the young people as well as help the service.

The people in the neighbourhood are becoming interested and some have promised to attend the meetings this week. All are invited.

Voice of The People

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Could you not publish, for the benefit of your readers, that portion of Ex-Senator Elihu Root's recent speech dealing with the great European war?

This speech not only denounces the policy adopted by the Government of the United States, but puts the cause of the war in its true light. Among other things, he says: "I have said that this government lost the moral forces of the world by not truly interpreting the spirit of the American democracy.

"The American democracy stands for something more than beef and cotton and grain and manufactures; stands for something that cannot be measured by rates of exchange, and does not rise or fall with the balance of trade.

"To them liberty means not liberty for themselves alone, but for all who are oppressed. Justice means not justice for themselves alone, but a shield for all who are weak against the aggression of the strong.

"When their deeper natures are stirred they have a spiritual vision in which the spread and perfection of free self-government shall rescue the humble who toil and endure from the hideous wrongs inflicted upon them by ambition and lust for power, and they cherish in their heart of hearts an ideal of their country loyal to the mission of liberty for the lifting up of the oppressed and bringing in the rule of righteousness and peace.

"To this people, the invasion of Belgium brought a shock of amazement and horror. The people of Belgium were peaceable, industrious, law-abiding, self-governing and free. They had no quarrel with any one on earth. They were attacked by overwhelming military power; their country was devastated by fire and sword; they were slain by tens of thousands; their independence was destroyed and their liberty was subjected to the rule of an invader, for no other cause than that they defended their admitted rights. There was no question of fact; there was no question of law; there was not a plausible pretence of any other cause.

"If the nations were to be indifferent to this first great concrete case for a century of military power trampling underfoot at will the independence, the liberty and the life of a peaceful and unoffending people in repudiation of the faith of treaties and the law of nations and morality and of humanity—if the public opinion of the world was to remain silent upon that, neutral upon that, then all talk about peace and justice and international law and the rights of man, the progress of humanity and the spread of liberty is idle patter—mere weak sentimentality."

Many of us Canadians must confess that we have been painfully slow in grasping the true significance of this war; that it is a contest between brute force on the one side and the progress of humanity, the spread of liberty, righteousness and peace on the other.

When we grasp this idea, there will be no hesitation about doing our duty and no sacrifice will be too great in the interest and welfare of mankind. Yours, etc.,

A Reader of the Examiner.

Young Girl Who Was Injured is Awarded $1000

Ada Arnold, Seriously Hurt When Alighting From Moving C.P.R. Train at Local Station Last Fall

TORONTO, Feb. 21—Ada Arnold, who was injured when alighting from a C.P.R. train at Peterborough was awarded $1,000 damages at Osgoode Hall to-day.

Ada Arnold is a young girl who was on her way, last October, from Central Ontario Junction to the Margaret Cox Home, this city, when the accident occurred, by which she lost an arm and also suffered other injuries of a less serious nature. She came on the afternoon C.P.R. train, and as is the custom, it proceeded to the west end of the station before it came to a standstill. Thinking the train wasn't going to stop, the young girl stepped from it, as it moved rapidly towards the far end of the platform. She fell alongside the track, the cars passing over one arm, completely severing it, and also injuring her other hand. She has been confined to Nicholls Hospital ever since.

Grandparents Were Sponsors of Cousins At Their Christening

Their mothers are sisters and are the daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Goeslin, Romaine street, who were the sponsors at the christening.

ONLY SPANKED HER, HE SAYS

Physician's Wife, However, Declares Punishment was Other than "Paddling" with Hair Brush.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Feb. 18—Dr. Mark T. Booye told Judge Brown when taken before the Domestic Relations Court on charges of non-support preferred by his wife, Rose Booye, that he had struck her only once when he put her across his knee and spanked her with a hair brush. Mrs. Booye asserted, however, that he struck her frequently and not in the manner he described.

Before their marriage, in 1909, Mrs. Booye was a graduate nurse. Mrs. Booye left the physician last Friday because she declared, she could not stand his continued abuses and violent temper.

The physician accused his wife of being jealous of his women patients. Judge Brown ordered the probation department of the court to investigate the case.

Russian Forces Are Being Aided By The Armenians

ROME, Feb. 21.—News received here states that the Russian line is already from thirty to sixty miles west of Erzerum.

The Turkish debacle in Armenia surpasses all imagination. No unit remains intact, and the debris of the army in flight is being massacred by the insurgent Armenian population.

The Armenians have now begun giving organized aid to the Russians. After the massacres of last year by the Turks all the able-bodied men who escaped enlisted in the Russian army and Grand Duke Nicholas now has under his command a force of 50,000 Armenian volunteers.

Information from Constantinople depicts the situation there as tragic. No direct news has reached the Turkish capital from Asia Minor for ten days, but the Greeks have informed the Turks of the catastrophe at Erzerum. Agitation and revolt are the order of the day. The troops refuse to march toward Asia.

The Sultan has summoned the principal authorities of the Empire to take decisions of supreme importance.

It is stated that the Germans are preparing to leave Constantinople, where their position has become difficult.

Ferdinand Fears For His Throne

Bulgarian King Said to Be in Dread of a Revolution Among People.

ROME, Feb. 18.—A neutral diplomatist, who recently returned from Bulgaria, says the Bulgarian losses, so far, amount to 150,000, hence the army is now reduced to about 180,000 men. This is absolutely insufficient to aid the Germans in an attack on Salonika.

The soldiers, who are on short rations, as the Germans requisitioned all available supplies of wheat, are disheartened and tired of the war. They fear Russian reprisals in the near future. The King is openly blamed for selling the country to the Germans, and is becoming very unpopular.

His journey to Germany and Austria was taken because he feared it would be impossible to avert a revolution unless the Austro-Germans took the precaution or organizing timely measures. These the King personally urged in Berlin and Vienna.

Those slain on the battlefield by no means represents the total victims of war, but only about half of them.

GREAT SEA RAID ON ENGLAND INCLUDED IN GERMAN PLANS

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 19.—"I have always believed," said Lord Derby, director of recruiting, at a workingmen's mass meeting here to-night, "that sooner or later the Germans will attempt a great sea raid on this country, but I believe the army and navy are now so co-ordinated that even if a raid comes it will be practically inoperative, and that those who come will be wiped out."

Discussing the air menace, Lord Derby appealed to the newspapers not to unduly agitate the public mind regarding air raids, because of the effect such agitation was likely to have on the British airmen.

"It is not true that the British aeroplane commanders have sent up their men under atmospheric or other conditions of the greatest danger," Lord Derby declared, "but if the newspapers are not careful public opinion will force these commanders, for fear that it might be said that they were doing nothing, to take action they would not otherwise take. Moreover, if the public is always decrying our aeroplanes the airman will lose confidence in their machines."

BEAUPRE CHURCH IS IN FLAMES

Special to The Examiner.

QUEBEC, Feb. 21.—The historical church of Beaupre, near Quebec, is on fire. The flames at ten a.m. had already destroyed the rear near where the heating furnaces are, and is eating its way to the whole structure.

Beaupre has no fire fighting apparatus and help has just been summoned from Quebec, and it seems nothing can prevent the whole sacred edifice being destroyed.

TRANSFORMING PARLIAMENT HILL

Special to The Examiner:

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 21.—Parliament Hill has been transformed. It resounds to the rattle of hammers and crash of stone on stone. The still picturesque ruins are ringed with scaffolding and wooden boardings are everywhere. Seven hundred men are engaged in reparation; ruined portions from those which are still intact, and dust, mortar, broken bricks, charred timbers, etc., are being carted in sleigh loads to the quarries on Nepean Point, a mile away.

What Manitoba Has Done For Red Cross

From a small nucleus of organization which existed at the beginning of the war, the people of Manitoba have built up a provincial Red Cross system which yields to none of the other Provinces in enthusiasm, efficiency and amount of work accomplished. In fact one might go so far as to say that Manitoba with characteristic Western determination has become one of our model Red Cross Provinces.

Up to last summer its work had consisted of the collection of money for the Central Canadian Society and the shipping of supplies through the St. John Ambulance Association. By last July, however, the Provincial branch had attained such proportions that Manitoba was given the distinction of being the only province shipping its own supplies in its own boxes, in car load lots straight to England.

In the Keewayden Bldg., Winnipeg, a great supply station has been established, which purchases supplies at wholesale rates and distributes them to the workers of the whole province to be made up into hospital material. The various articles required have been standardized and systematic instruction has been given to all the branches, thus making Manitoba Red Cross material of uniform quality.

All this work has been done under the direct administration of the Women's Auxiliary, which has 2,300 members. The Manitoba women are themselves in control of the actual physical working of their provincial branch. The abundance and excellence of volunteer labour has meant an immense saving of overhead expense, and the cost of Red Cross operation in Manitoba is 1 per cent.

There are in the province 56 organized branches with a total membership so far as returns have been made of 7,519 consisting of 266 life, 908 subscribing, 2,876 active and 3,448 associate members. It is estimated that complete returns would show the actual Red Cross membership of Manitoba to be over 10,000.

The Province was asked for 50 beds in Cliveden Hospital, and actually subscribed 115 at a cost of $6,055. The total receipts of the Provincial Branch have been $130,116, of which $45,199 was contributed by Winnipeg. Over $8,000 was given by various Manitoba Municipalities, and $30,880 was received from unorganized sources, representing the spontaneous generosity of Manitoba citizens generally. In the two months following July the Supply Department at Winnipeg shipped 900 cases of Red Cross goods at a value of $20,000.

There is not the least doubt that Red Cross work has been particularly successful in Manitoba, at the same time the province is determined to make new records. To quote the words of Mr. C. B. Piper, Chairman of the Manitoba Executive. "The Province is one unit in this matter." No other province in Canada can show the same organization. We have a greater proportion of permanently organized branches. We have a fair greater number of unorganized sources of money and supplies than any other province in Canada.

Our entire object has been to set a pace which may be constantly maintained and perhaps augmented as the demand increases. Our people are prepared to carry the work through to the finish and to meet every demand which may be thrust upon us.

Altschuler Is Convicted For Passport Frauds

He and Dallas Receive Sentences in a London Court.

LONDON, Feb. 19.—Noi Yoachim Altans, otherwise known as Altschuler, who was arrested on January 18 on a charge of conspiracy, was found guilty.

Altans, who is a Russian subject, was charged with having co-operated with James Dallas, Chief Clerk of the Department of the Home Office dealing with aliens, in connection with passport frauds. Dallas already has pleaded guilty to the charge of having accepted money to commit acts in violation of his public duty. It was alleged that many aliens were enabled to leave England by the use of permits obtained with the assistance of Altans and Dallas.

Altans was sentenced to one year at penal servitude and Dallas to three years.

WOMAN ENDS HER LIFE.

Takes Poison, Falling Into Sister's Arms.

Owen Sound, Feb. 19.—Mrs. Anna Norton, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. She was separated from her husband, James Norton, about three years ago, and he with their two children, boarded with a family named Livingstone. The suicide took place just outside of Livingstone's house, where she had evidently gone to see her children. Before they could be brought to the door the woman took about two ounces of carbolic acid and fell dead in the arms of her sister, who had come out of the house. Mrs. Norton was acquitted Tuesday before Police Magistrate Creasor on a charge of being an inmate of a disorderly house. Her name was Berry, and she came from the Bruce Peninsula. An inquest is being held.

FEARS NEWSPAPER MEN

PRINCE OF WALES STAYS UNDER COVER WHEN THEY ARE ABOUND.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—"The Prince of Wales is generally a pretty level headed fellow," said an officer just back from the front to-day, "but there is one thing that sends him into a blue funk. He is scared stiff of newspaper reporters. Recently he came bolting into a room where my captain was shaving and said: "For the Lord's sake, let me stay here a bit!"
"It developed," said the officer, "that the journalists who had been allowed to visit the front were prowling about. The prince stayed under cover until the danger was passed."

MAYOR SAYS PEACE WILL END PROSPERITY.

DECATUR, Ill., Feb. 18.—The prosperity which the country is now enjoying is of the "war baby" variety and is destined to vanish as soon as peace is declared, according to Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, who spoke here in the interest of his candidacy for Republican National Committeeman from Illinois.

"Factories in Germany have been working all during the war," said the Mayor. "They have turned out a big output which they have been unable to dispose of. As soon as the war is over these goods will be unloaded upon America in competition with similar articles made at home and under the Democratic tariff this will mean ruin to the industries of this country."

Let Retired Farmers Go Back to the Land

Lieut. Col. Hamilton, Special Recruiting Officer, Finds Appeal Popular

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—Lieut.-Col. R. B. Hamilton, Special Organizing Officer for Recruiting, of Ottawa, who was in the city yesterday, said that many young men could be secured by the army if retired farmers and older men still capable of doing farm work would move "back to the land" to take the place of the young men now employed on the farms.

"I made suggestions at meetings throughout the country during the past week that the retired farmers and others able to do farm work, many thousands of whom are living in the towns and villages and cities of the Dominion, should offer to do their bit by taking the places of the young men on the farms, and thus allow the young men to enlist," said Lieut.-Col. Hamilton.

"The proposition seemed to meet with great favour, and I think if it were taken up would be largely acted on," he continued.

Speaking about recruiting throughout Ontario, he said "there has been too much bulldozing going on, but I am trying as far as possible to stop that kind of work." He has held meetings in Baden, New Hamburg, Heepeler and Preston.

A Hint As To Knitting Soldiers' Socks

A correspondent of the women's page of the Globe gives the following pointers how to avoid leaving knotted yarn in the heels of socks for soldiers, under the heading, "Don't Knot Yarn":

In conversation yesterday with a soldier he remarked that some of the ladies who knit socks for the soldiers do not know how to knit, for they leave a knot in the heel, which makes them very uncomfortable. The following direction, if followed, would obviate all that: When a ball of yarn is about used up leave 4 inches, then cross it with the same length of the new ball. Knit the former 4 inches with the regular long strand for two stitches, then knit the other short strand with the regular long strand for two stitches, and the joining is complete without any knot. In case of a knot being in the yarn, it is better to cut the knot out and join in the above manner.—W. J.

MAY LAST TO SEPTEMBER.

But Germany Will Have to Call Up Aged and Unfit.

PARIS, Feb. 17.—The military critic of the Journal Des Debats says:

1. She can call the unfit of nineteen to forty-five years of age. At the very most she would thus get 400,000 men.

2. She can call men over forty-five years of age. If she took men up to fifty-four years, fit and unfit, she would get 1,200,000. In practice she positively could not take more than 400,000 of this number, and the quality of these men would be poor from the fighting viewpoint or even for auxiliary services.

3. She can call up the 700,000 men retained in their old employment. When the vast number engaged on war work, munitions, etc., are deducted, at most there would only be 100,000 of these men available.

To summarize, there are available for use after April, 400,000 unfit of nineteen to forty-five; 400,000 greybeards; 100,000 of nineteen to forty-five removed from civilian or munition employment. The total of 900,000 would carry Germany along to September.

Mrs. Smith belonged to a family that was prominent at one time in Wallingford.

Safer Than They Would be in Louvre.

PARIS, Feb. 19.—The sculpture section of the Louvre Museum will be re-opened to the public on March 1. In making the announcement to the Petit Journal, Albert Dallimier, under Secretary for Fine Arts, said that the 700 precious paintings, which he had sent to Toulouse for safekeeping, after the battle of Charleroi, will be kept there until the end of the war. They are stored under excellent conditions and are safer there than they would be in the Louvre, where there is always danger of a mishap through a Zeppelin raid.

Fall in German Mark Still Continues

LONDON, February 23.—An Amsterdam despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that a further fall in the value of the German mark is looked for as a result of the decision of the Dutch tobacco importers, who have large German orders, to decline the German request to wait until after the war for payment but to insist upon payment in gold before delivery.

Avoid Harsh Pills! Doctors Condemn Them

Most Pills unfortunately are harsh and drastic; they cause inflammation and great discomfort. Rather like nature is the way a pill should act, mildly but effectively. Science has established nothing more satisfactory as a family pill than the old reliable pills of Dr. Hamilton's, which for forty years have had a premier place in America. Dr. Hamilton's Pills are very mild and can be effectively used by the aged, by children, and indeed by men and women of all ages. No stomach or bowel medicine is more reliable. No remedy for indigestion, headache or biliousness is so effective, so mild, so certain to quickly cure as a 25c box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The yield of California's gold mines last year was the greatest, with the exception of one year, since 1864.

A WONDER WORKER.

"It heals like magic!" is a favorite expression when Dr. Chase's Ointment is used. It works quick! stops all itching at once, often heals in a single night. For eczema, salt rheum, barber's itch, skin irritations or eruptions, it is a most satisfactory treatment. Being antiseptic it prevents blood poisoning.

OBITUARY

JOHN CUMMINGS.

The death occurred on Monday morning last at the House of Refuge, Lakefield, of Mr. John Cummings, at the age of 80 years. He had travelled extensively in Europe and had been through many campaigns. He was well educated and the interesting letters of his travels and experiences which appeared in the "Lakefield News" from time to time, were much appreciated.

The funeral took place to St. Paul's Church, Lakefield, this morning, where Requiem Mass was said by Rev. Father Meagher. Interment was made at St. Mary's Cemetery, Young's Point.

THEY REFUSE TO EAT

At periods in most children's lives they fail to relish their meals and refuse to eat even the delicacies prepared to tempt their appetites. They lack ambition, and growth seems impeded, which causes anxiety and worry.

To compel them to eat is a grave mistake, because nutrition is impaired. Healthful exercise in fresh air and sunshine is important, but equally important is a spoonful of Scott's Emulsion three times a day to feed the tissues and furnish food-energy to improve their blood, aid nutrition and sharpen their appetites.

The highly concentrated medicinal food in Scott's Emulsion supplies the very elements children need to build up their strength. They relish Scott's—it is free from drugs. Avoid substitutes.

INDIAN RIVER ITEMS OF INTEREST

INDIAN RIVER, Feb. 23. — The concert given by the Peterborough company was a keen disappointment to the large audience which had assembled in the Baptist Church on Tuesday, 15th February, to hear a musical entertainment of some promise. The leader promiscuously chose a few members from his company, which arrived at a late hour, and called upon them to delight the audience. These numbers were not appreciated. Miss Sanderson, however, delighted the audience with a few instrumental selections of good choice, and Miss Kidd sang in good voice, calling forth a hearty applause from the audience.

After the entertainment Mr. Huycke and his company of about thirty members were entertained by the ladies to a supper in Mrs. Hall's drawing - room, the tables and room being beautifully decorated with daffodils and primroses.

Russian Wings Are Making Rapid Progress While The Centre Is Pursuing Turks

LONDON, Feb. 23.—With the centre occupying itself in pursuit of the Turks who evacuated Erzerum the Russian right and left wings are making rapid progress against Trebizond on the one side and Diarbekr on the other.

Unofficial reports which reached here Monday night indicate that the column which came down the Black Sea coast from Batum is about sixty-five miles from Trebizond, while the second column operating against the port has passed Barburt and is heavily engaged in the mountains just to the west of the town.

The entire Lake Van region now is in Russian control. The evacuation of Bitlis by the Turks has removed the last serious obstacle between Van and Diarbekr, since Mush was occupied by the Russians four days ago. Diarbekr is one hundred miles west of Bitlis and only fifty miles from the route of the Bagdad railway.

A despatch from Tiflis, Russian Caucasus headquarters, sent to the Boerse Gazette, of Petrograd, says two Turkish army corps, which were on their way to reinforce Erzerum, have turned back on being informed that the fortress had fallen.

Lord Kitchener, Secretary of War, has telegraphed to Grand Duke Nicholas, commander of the Russian forces on the Caucasian front, congratulations on "the brilliant feat of arms at Erzerum." The Grand Duke replied, thanking the Field Marshal and his "brother comrades of the British army."

Describing the Russians' great improvement in artillery, which was illustrated in a graphic manner at Erzerum, and their ascendency in this respect in certain quarters over the Germans and Austrians, a correspondent writing from Petrograd says that conditions for months past have indicated that any big Russian assault on the Austro-German lines would be directed against the southern section, opposite the armies of General Ivanoff. This, though it affects only one-third of the Russian forces, is a great undertaking, for these lines stretch for two hundred miles, from the south ridge of the Pinsk marshes to the northern corner of Moldavia.

CHOICE OF OFFENSIVE.

The choice of offensive was governed by several considerations. The German centre on the Pinsk marshes could not be driven back safely while the flanks remained intact—that would restore the threatening position which caused the abandonment of Poland. The northern group of the Russian armies, which General Russky left in first class condition and spirits, probably by a giant effort could drive the Germans from the Dvina, but a success here would mean tackling the lost fortress which Field Marshal von Hindenburg has rearmed. A dash westward in Galicia has the advantage that it probably would force the Austro-Germans to withdraw their whole line.

Unless the present activity in Galicia is merely a demonstration intended to relieve pressure in the Balkans, the above must be General Ivanoff's aim. A complete break through has not yet been achieved; but the Austrians and Germans have been so badly battered that a break through is conceivable if the Russian attack is continued or repeated. The task is not easy. On most of this front the Austrians and Germans have been for half a year, and in field fortifying they have done as the Germans did in France after the Marne. The positive achievements of the Russians are:—The thorough beating of the Teutonic artillery, the battering to bits of several strong positions, the captures of positions of great strength and of potential importance if the Russian assault continues, and, above all, the inflicting on the defenders of much heavier losses than they have suffered themselves.

General Ivanoff's audacious strategy is due to the fact that his men have had a good rest, that he has been reinforced and that his ammunition supply is satisfactory. Eyewitnesses of the recent fighting agree that it exceeded in vigor anything the Russians have done so far. The Austrian and German counter attacks apparently had no offensive intent, their motive being the recovery of lost positions.

The general staff declares that the Main cause of Russia's success is her unexpected artillery superiority and the new system of section firing. Austrian infantry tactics failed against this, as did their artillery tactics. Thousands of men were left in the front trenches, exposed to high explosive shells, when they might as well have been removed. Reserves were hurried up in thick columns, and in a hurry—one column was caught by the Russian shrapnel and nearly destroyed. The bayonet losses also were heavy. This is due to the exceptional amount of trench fighting. The Austrians are using against the Russian entanglements a non-explosive shell which opens just before reaching the entanglements and discharges something like the old-fashioned chain shot.

CONSTIPATIENTS
Read This—

It must be remembered that the bowels should move freely once a day to ensure perfect health. When such is not the case the poisonous waste material is absorbed into the system, thus producing a self blood poisoning.

The causes of Constipation are many and varied. Among the more common may be mentioned poor stomach digestion, a deficiency of bile in the intestines, a lack of secretion in the bowels, and a twist of the natural muscular construction of the intestines from above downward.

Abbey's Effervescent Salt, sold everywhere at 25c and 60c, stimulates and restores the stomach digestion, increases the flow of bile into the intestines, causes a flow from the intestinal glands, and restores the natural downward action of the intestines, rendering it easy to secure a free action of the bowels, which is one of the most important requisites to health. 1

SUES MRS. SHONTS FOR $6,000.

Note Made by Wife of Interborough Head Involved in Action.

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Mrs. Mills D. Shonts, wife of Theodore P. Shonts, was made defendant in an action by William Baxter in the Supreme Court to recover a judgment on her note for $5,000. Mrs. Shonts is said to have made the note July 15, 1912, payable in three months to the Barytes Chemical Sales Company. The concern indorsed it and delivered it to Robert Blei, who August 24, 1912, made his own note for $1,800 to H. A. Haines, of Haines & Bishop, pledging the note of Mrs. Shonts as collateral.

He made another note November 20, 1912, for $7,325, making the note of Mrs. Shonts as part of his collateral. William Baxter then received all of Blei's notes and obtained a judgment against Blei for $21,191, August 16, 1913, which is still unsatisfied. He now wishes to collect the collateral.

GIRLS! HAVE WAVY, THICK, GLOSSY HAIR FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Save Your Hair! Double its Beauty in a Few Moments—Try This!

If you care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair, besides it immediately dissolves every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy or too oily, get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine at any drug store or toilet counter, apply a little as directed and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine if eventually—why not now?

Synopsis.

"Like many another, Bob. Selly, an all around popular school boy, becomes possessed of the idea that athletic prowess is more to be desired than scholarship. He is surprised in the midst of a 'spread' in his room in regatta week by a visit from his aunt who is putting him through college. Aunt Serena, "a lady of the old school, and the dearest little woman in the whole world," has hastened to make this visit to her adored nephew under the mistaken impression that he is to receive the fellows' prize for scholarship. Her grief and chagrin when she learns that instead of the prize Robert has received a 'pink card,' which is equivalent to suspension for poor scholarship, gives a touch of real pathos to an otherwise jolly comedy of school life. How the repentant Robert more than redeems himself, carries off the honours at last and in the end wins Ruth, the faithful little sweetheart of the 'Prom' and the class room, makes a story of dramatic interest and brings out very clearly certain phrases of modern school life..

Musical selections added much to the programme given by a company of glee singers composed of Mrs. Daynard, Misses Murray, Brewster and Paget and Messrs. Daynard, Britton, Laing and Lieut. Worth.

The maids of Havelock are sending out invitations to a dance to be held in the town hall on the evening of Wednesday, Feb. 23rd.
